DEDICATION

It is with pleasure and pride that we dedicate the 1965 KIROKU to Mr. Robert N. Hintze, without whose diligent and tireless work the KIROKU could not have been prepared.

For two years Mr. Hintze has served Johnson Junior High School both as an excellent teacher in the mathematics department and as the conscientious and congenial sponsor of the Yearbook Staff.

The dedication of this volume to Mr. Hintze is our way of expressing our appreciation to him for his outstanding assistance to us during the past two years at Johnson Junior High School. The members of the KIROKU STAFF and the entire student body wish to thank him sincerely and to wish him continuing good fortune.

OFFICERS

Miss Nancy Fecthmeyer, advisor.

The student council meets during study hall every Thursday. The purpose of this organization was to help develop leadership, and to encourage cooperation between teachers and pupils.

The members planned money-raising projects to sponsor school dances and to help finance other school activities. One of the main money-raising projects is selling ice cream and popsicles.

The student council consisted of a boy and a girl from each homeroom.

MUSIC: THE UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE

Music is everyone's language. When we play or sing a song, probably we are unable to tell the nationality, the color, the religion, of the politics of the man who wrote it. Music is a thing of beauty, which extends into every land and nation. Music is the Universal Language.

The objectives of the music program are to instill in each student participating, a better knowledge of music, the ability to play or to sing better than when they entered the program and to help them to learn to enjoy all types and styles of music.

DRAMA

Play-acting is an instinctive activity in children. The ability to lose oneself completely in the characterization portrayed is extremely rare, and only a very few are gifted with the ability. Those few, if given the opportunity and circumstances permit, become truely our greatest artists in the field of dramatics. But regardless of the degree each individual has in relation to this instinctive trait all children enjoy some such activity whether it be becoming a favorite cowboy while playing "guns", or a devoted mother while playing "dolls."

The urge to transform one's personality if only for a little while is strong, and it is common knowledge that masquerades are extremely popular for the very fact that one can release hidden personality traits that might not be at all in keeping with his or her position in society in everyday life.

Some individuals are naturally more extroverted than others. Play-acting gives them the opportunity to release this need for expression. Some individuals are shy and need to develop a sense of self-achievement in relation to their peers. What better way is there to overcome shyness, than to perform on the stage in a school in a school play?

Drama presentations which are sponsored by the school are and should be considered an important and beneficial contribution to those who participate on stage; those who participate behind the scenes; and those who participate as an audience. The drama presentation is the end result of many unseen educationally and socially worthwhile hours spent in the preparation of the program itself. Countless students are responsible for the end result, each doing his part in co-operation with his contemporaries. This working together toward a final goal is the ultimate in social living, priceless in developing worthwhile and useful citizens. The play is a tool to develop these characteristics in the student. It is naturally not the only way by all means, but it is necessary for its educational as well as entertaining and gives those who would benefit the opportunity to benefit.

Culture, the life blood of civilization, is often expressed through the medium of the stage. It is our responsibility to give the students every opportunity in as wide a range of activities as is within our capabilities, and to develop understanding and appreciation of culture.

To the student it is a beginning. A beginning which eventually might lead to greater achievements. We are grateful that we can contribute to this beginning.

ENGLISH

English in the junior high school is of cardinal importance. During the junior high school years, the student receives the language arts foundation upon which he will build as he progresses through formal schooling and after his formal schooling has been completed.

The English department hopes to develop these concepts and skills in the two years of study at Johnson Junior High School:

The ability to express one's thoughts coherently by enriching one's vocabulary and developing vivid expression in speaking and writing. Book reports, themes, and oral presentation give the student experience in the expression of his thoughts and ideas.

An understanding of all parts of speech, their uses in the sentence, and basic sentence structure.

An analysis of word structure, and basic rules of spelling.

An appreciation of literature-both classic and modern.

A review and futher study of basic reading skills.

An ability to use resource and reference material and a development of library skills.

SOCIAL STUDIES

The Social studies department hopes to develop these concepts and skills in the two years of study at Johnson Junior High:

The advantages of our democratic government over other systems.

An understanding of how our representatives democracy operates on the national, state and local levels.

An appreciation of the freedom which are ours as citizens of the United States, and a desire to preserve them.

A sense of responsibility to carry out out duties as United States Citizens.

An awareness of current happenings in our own country and throughout the world.

The ability to weigh arguments on both sides of important issues and reach individual conclusions.

Understainding of America's history from the days of exploration to present day leadership in meeting the challenge of communism.

An understanding of the political, climate, and physical division of the world.

A feeling of closeness to other peoples of the world through studying their ways of living.

An analysis of the major natural resources of the world.

The interdependence of the nations of the world through world trade.

Skill in reading maps and in interpreting charts and diagrams.

MATHEMATICS

The purposes of the mathematics department are many, but in general these are the three main objectives that this department achieved this year:

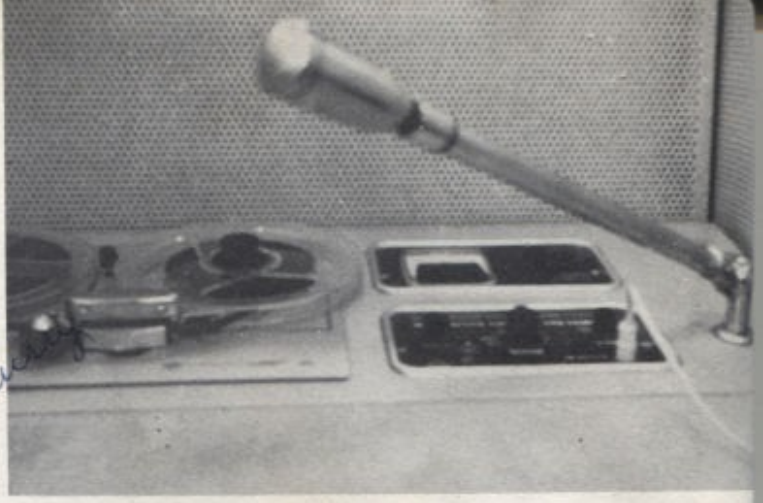
1. Provides advanced instruction toward understanding more fully the logical structure of a mathematical system and to provide an opportunity for a more enriched study and exploration in certain topics for higher mathematics. This object was realized in a section of seventh graders using SMSG math and a section of eighth graders using SMSG Algebra.
2. Explore students to certain select topics while ensuring a firm understanding of the fundamental processes of arithmetic.
3. Insure that all students receive instructions in practical mathematics for daily use.

AND...

SCIENCE

Science is the organized search for knowledge. At Johnson Junior High the 7th graders are engaged in the study of Life Science and its implications. The 8th grade classes are involved in the study of their Earth and all its sciences. These include Astronomy, Geology, Geophysics, and others.

FRENCH



The French program at Johnson Jr. High School provides students with an opportunity to learn about the language, land, and the people of France.

A 12-week exploratory course for interested seventh-grade students introduces the French culture and language.

A year-long course of French 1 is offered to eighth-grade students who wish to study French on a high school level and who plan to continue their study of the French language.

JAPANESE LANGUAGE AND CULTURE

Activities -

Fall 1964 field trip to Ueno National Museum. Luncheon at Johnson Officer's Club Japanese Room.

Aims -

To create an appreciation and understanding of the Japanese way of life by teaching a beginning in the language and writing, plus various cultural aspects, both ancient and modern.

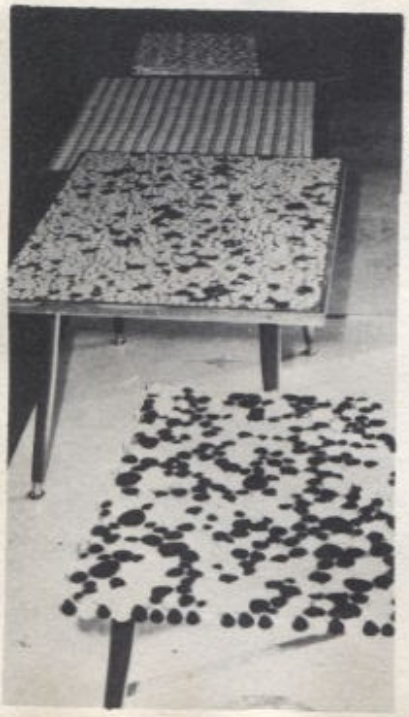
ART

Self-achievement is necessary for both adults and children. Without it we seem inadequate even though we might hold a position of responsibility in the business world, and try to rationalize by telling ourselves that we aren't artistic. We all can create. Children, who are uninhibited in communicating their ideas and can be guided along without having the burden of false standards to reach, will be able to think for themselves when they mature.

The art room is a place where a child can learn to express his ideas, his feelings, and emotions. A place where he can be guided and taught the use of materials to accomplish his desire. It is one of the few places the students learn about materials; everyday materials we use all our lives, and the materials not usually used, but with many hidden potentialities. He discovers and is guided rather than being directed and steered. Students learn that in order to create they must use the tools, tools of the trade; and tools must be taken care of so they will last and give the best use.

Man first communicated with one another by pictures; and since the beginning of time we have the cultural part of life very important, in fact, necessary.

It is our duty and responsibility to give every student the opportunity to be exposed to art, for one amongst them might someday record contemporary American Society.



LIBRARY

At Johnson Jr. High we have a well-stocked library of up-to-date periodicals and books to meet both the personal and curricular needs of the students.

The major aims of a school library program are:

(1) To establish skills in using books

(2) To help develop an appreciation of the arts and of our social heritage

(3) To help the student in his lifelong search for knowledge.

TYPING

The typing course offered at Johnson Jr. High is designed to aid students in typing their personal papers. The basic skills of typing such as the letters, numbers, correct posture, stretch of fingers and use of wrist are stressed. Students take one and three minute timed writings for speed. During the course they learn to type letters, envelopes, short themes, and outlines.
