COVID-19

THE CORONAVIRUS PANDEMIC 2020

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE EDUCATION ACTIVITY
EUROPE
UNIT 29649
APO AE 09136-9649

March 23, 2020

Dear DoDEA Europe Students and Families,

I am writing to you today to provide an update regarding the status of our schools and programs. As of Friday, March 20th, all DoDEA schools across Europe are closed to students until further notice. While our schools are closed, our teachers and administrators are working diligently to provide digital learning plans to ensure continuity of education for our students. These plans differ for each community and school due to varying needs and capabilities...but the goal is the same, to provide “Excellence in Education for Every Student, Every Day, Everywhere”.

Spring Break for DoDEA Europe schools will take place as previously scheduled on each school’s annual calendar. These calendars can be found on the individual school pages at our website (DoDEA.edu). We hope that our students, staff and families alike will be able to use this break as a time to rest and recover during this uniquely challenging time. We also encourage all DoDEA students, staff and families to follow regional guidance regarding travel. Given our current situation, any significant travel could increase the possibility of becoming ill.

Out of an abundance of caution regarding the health and safety of our staff and student/athletes, the decision has been made to cancel the remainder of the 2020 Spring Sports season as well as all extracurricular events through at least the end of April. While I know that these decisions are highly disappointing to our incredibly talented students and athletes, I believe it is the best decision under the circumstances and given the potential health risks.

This is obviously an incredibly challenging, frustrating, and concerning time for all of us. Watching everyone come together, however, has been extremely inspiring to me personally. I could not be more impressed or proud of how our communities have worked together to ensure continuity of education for our students in these trying circumstances. Please know that we continue to work closely with military leaders, the medical professionals, and host nation partners to closely monitor the situation. All decisions regarding school status will be made with the health of our students, staff and community in mind.

For more information regarding DoDEA’s response to COVID 19, go to:
<https://www.dodea.edu/Coronavirus.cfm>

Sincerely,

Dell McMullen
Director, DoDEA-Europe

No One Can Thrive on an Empty Stomach

Community food banks are committed to meeting the need for emergency food, and they expect that need to increase as schools and workplaces shut down and the economy is affected by COVID-19.

Many food banks are unable to accept food donations because of the risk of infection, so the best way to help is to make a gift donation online. If you are healthy and able, ask if your local operation needs volunteers. If you are in need of a food donation, FeedingAmerica.org distributes 4.3 billion meals each year through a network of food pantries and meal programs.

Makers Gonna Make, Make, Make, Make, Make

When hospitals run out of valves for crucial respiratory machines, their supplier can't ship replacements fast enough to keep patients alive. So local manufacturers step in to provide 3D print replicas. Without the actual specifications of the parts, the valves have to be reverse-engineered. 3D printers are brought on-site to hospitals to produce more life-saving devices and alleviate shortages. These quickly-printed emergency valves are never meant to replace the intricate, precise factory originals. Desperate times call for desperate measures, and until the supply can meet the demand, hospitals are having to improvise creative solutions to provide emergency life-saving care.

Planes Go Cargo

American Airlines has cut thousands of passenger flights in the face of the coronavirus. Now they are finding a purpose for some of their idle planes: flying their first cargo-only flights since 1984, when the airline retired their Boeing 747 freighters. With more than 200,000 commercial flights canceled, other airlines are stripping out passenger seats and turning their largest planes into cargo freighters as well.

FLATTEN THE CURVE

The biggest threat in this pandemic isn't necessarily the virus, but the stress on our healthcare system.

"Flattening the curve" refers to slowing the spread of the virus so that fewer people need to seek medical treatment at once, staying below the capacities of our health care system. Medical equipment and resources are finite, and once they become overwhelmed, people needing immediate treatment would tragically have to be turned away by hospitals.

WASH YOUR HANDS

Thoroughly and frequently wash your hands with soap and water for 20 seconds. Use hand sanitizer when hand washing is not available.

COVER YOUR MOUTH

Cough or sneeze into your upper sleeve or a tissue, and discard used tissues immediately.

AVOID CONTACT

Do not touch your eyes, nose or mouth with unwashed hands, as that's how the virus enters your system.

CLEAN SURFACES

Disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces using an EPA-registered household disinfectant.

THE IMPACT ON SCHOOLS

For many students, an extended spring break turns into an early summer "staycation."

Just as we are looking forward to going on spring break, the world realizes that it's facing a pandemic, the likes of which hasn't been seen since 1918. Many schools' first response is to extend their spring break from one week to three weeks. But as the contagion spreads, educators decide to close for the year and/or switch to an entirely online curriculum. As the outbreak of COVID-19 accelerates, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention advises that closing schools for eight weeks or more will have a greater impact on containing the virus. Kansas is the first state to order all K-12 schools closed for the rest of the year, followed by Virginia. California Gov. Gavin Newsom closes schools "indefinitely," and Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis cancels all remaining testing for the school year, saying grades won't be calculated.

Canceling school also means canceling school functions, and now millions of students are faced with the possibility of not having spring sports, prom, graduation and other milestones of the academic experience. "The Class of 2020" becomes "The Class of COVID-19," losing what's left of their senior year and missing the traditional rites of passage that they have worked towards for the last 12 years.

Spring Break Gets Broken

Students look forward to spring break all year long, and plans to gather with friends and exploit the warmer weather are made well in advance. But the coronavirus has other ideas. Vacation hot spots become closed to the public indefinitely. Airlines reduce their number of flights by 30-70%, leaving travelers with few options to get to their vacation destinations.

Many students are already on spring break when the threat of COVID-19 becomes severe enough to mandate social distancing, while others downplay concerns about the outbreak. Those that keep their vacation plans force officials in Florida and other coastal hot spots to officially close public beaches at the height of the spring break rush.

The Show Must Hold On

The end of the school year is when everything culminates in one final show, but COVID-19 upends performances, tournaments and entire seasons. The theatre department was going to bring you an amazing production. The band and choir won't get to perform their end-of-year concerts. Leadership conferences are canceled. FFA conventions are postponed. The journalism staff has no idea how they are going to get your yearbooks out. Baseball, softball, lacrosse, soccer, track, golf and tennis seasons will not be played in their original form.

The end of the school year is when teams and organizations of all disciplines—athletic, academic and creative—showcase what they've been working on and compete at the state or national level for coveted titles. With social distancing measures put in place, everything suddenly becomes "on hold," another giant question mark in our academic calendars caused by the coronavirus.

School Lunch Stays Open

Nearly 30 million children in the U.S. count on schools to provide one or more meals each day. When schools across the U.S. close their doors to try to prevent the spread of COVID-19, many make arrangements to provide grab-and-go lunch bags or set up meal delivery routes.

Source: Daniel Jedzura / Shutterstock

The Dining Room is Closed Until Further Notice

To stop the spread of COVID-19 and encourage social distancing, restaurants offer curbside delivery instead of people gathering in their dining rooms. Many fast-food restaurants become "drive-thru only," and food delivery services like Shipt, Uber Eats and Doordash put food on the table for many Americans during a period of self-isolation. Many students with part-time jobs in the food industry see their hours severely cut or their positions eliminated entirely.

Hand sanitizer and face masks are in short supply when experts estimate that 40-70% of the population could become infected with COVID-19.

DOMESTIC IMPACT

COVID-19 causes everyone to take immediate, drastic measures to stop the spread of the virus, resulting in a temporary "new normal" for the foreseeable future.

It's humans vs. virus in a global game of freeze-tag. The only way to stop the pandemic from overtaking the planet is to immediately isolate everyone until treatments and vaccines become available. This means everyone—regardless of age or level of health—has to shelter in place to avoid spreading the virus and overwhelming hospitals. Staying isolated means you won't give the virus to anyone, and you won't get the virus from anyone.

For many students this means long stretches of quality time at home with books, video games, creative outlets and social media. But for our families, there are very dire concerns about how much longer our parents will be employed. How will they make the house payment? How much longer can we afford to go without their paycheck? The US government begins discussing options for stimulus packages to address this growing concern.

With 23 employees testing positive for the coronavirus, New York City's MTA has no choice but to cancel certain subway lines and more than 1,000 trips due to reduced staffing. This leads to packed platforms and overstuffed trains at a time when social distancing is our most important weapon against the spread of COVID-19.

You Can't Spell "Pandemic" Without "Panic"

When the public is first made aware of the coronavirus, people begin to stockpile toilet paper for reasons that still aren't widely understood. And despite no major threat to the nation's supply chain, bread, bottled water, disposable gloves and hand sanitizer cannot stay on store shelves. Many retailers begin to limit the number of items a household can purchase.

Any Empty Bed Could be a Hospital Bed

Communal living quarters are the worst places to be in a pandemic, but not if they can be used as makeshift hospitals. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers makes plans to convert more than 10,000 empty hotel and dorm rooms into hospital rooms in the hardest-hit areas of New York City, Washington and California.

Hollywood Disaster Movies Didn't Prepare Us For This Hollywood Disaster

Starting with the recommendation that people not gather in groups larger than 500, then 250, then eventually, 10, the movie industry faces dire consequences. "A Quiet Place II," "Fast and Furious 9" and 007's "No Time to Die" are the first movies to postpone their release dates. Pixar pushes "Onward" to Amazon's Prime Video Cinema streaming service only days after its theatrical release. But for drive-in movie theaters, once a novelty throwback to a simpler time, the show will go on.

THE IMPACT ON

These Tickets Are No Longer Valid

Concerts, festivals, conventions, movie theaters and sporting events are all petri dishes of germs even without an active pandemic. But when social distancing is mandated, live entertainment may be the hardest hit.

Austin's tech, music and film conference South by Southwest cancels at the last minute. Music festivals Coachella and Stagecoach are pushed back six months to October. Pearl Jam, Avril Lavigne, Green Day, Blake Shelton and BTS cancel tour dates and reschedule shows. Stand up comedians take to livestreaming their sets. In New York, all Broadway shows are shut down as well as the Met Gala and Tribeca Film Festival. Las Vegas hotels, casinos and venues shut down, devastating Nevada's economy.

People stuck in self-isolation turn to streaming services like Netflix, Hulu, Amazon Prime Video, Disney+ and AppleTV+ to alleviate the boredom of staying put. Hulu adds a free, live news stream to its app to keep people up to date on the coronavirus. Netflix adds Netflix Party to connect with friends and sync streaming video, so you can virtually attend a movie with friends, without having to share your popcorn.

Disney Parks Go Dark

Citing "an abundance of caution," The Walt Disney Company announces all of their theme parks, cruise lines, hotels and shopping malls will close through the end of March 2020, with possible closure extensions as the situation evolves. This is the first time in history that all six Disney properties are closed simultaneously.

Spring Sports Fall Back

High school athletes who compete in spring sports, take a knee. Spring sports such as soccer, track, tennis, golf, baseball, softball and lacrosse are completely on hold. Many teams aren't allowed to hold practices, meetings, conditioning or workouts during the time away from school. The NCAA even put a hold on recruitment, suspending National Letters of Intent signings until at least April 15, 2020.

A Global Time-Out

The NBA abruptly suspends its season after Rudy Gobert of the Utah Jazz tests positive for COVID-19 ahead of Utah's tipoff against the Oklahoma City Thunder, sending home an arena full of very confused fans. The NHL freezes its 2019-2020 season. Major League Soccer is put on hold, along with the start of Major League Baseball. The PGA cancels the Players Championship and postpones the Masters Tournament. And Formula 1, the Australian Grand Prix and NASCAR all postpone races until it's prudent to resume social gathering. The brand new XFL barely gets into its inaugural season before suspending play.

But the biggest impact comes with the announcement that the 2020 Olympics will be postponed until 2021, marking only the fourth rescheduling in the history of the modern Olympic Games.

THE IMPACT ON BUSINESS

COVID-19 Kills People, Only Hurts Economy

Our best chance to fight the spread of the coronavirus and save human lives is to stay home. And when people stay home, they can't earn money, so they stop spending money, so the economy comes to a grinding halt.

COVID-19 causes unprecedented spikes in unemployment and drastic slumps in the stock market, and we still don't know what damage will be done. We do know the only way to slow a pandemic and save lives is to shelter in place, and that forces us into a recession that could turn into an economic depression if treatment and a vaccine for this virus aren't developed soon.

If unemployment reaches 25 percent, it will be our worst rate since 1933 during the Great Depression. As entire cities buckle down and mandate self-isolation, we see a spike in unemployment claims across the country. Employees are hopeful that these are temporary measures until normalcy resumes. But many businesses, big and small, aren't equipped to be shuttered for weeks, and those companies may go away entirely without assistance from the government.

Historically, economies always recover, and there's no reason to believe we won't do the same after this virus is in check. How hard we are hit and how long the effects last is entirely dependent on how fast we stop COVID-19.

Fight or Flight? Stay Home and Fight

At the urging of both the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the U.S. Department of State, Americans do their civic duty and shelter in place to stop the spread of the coronavirus. Travel bans are enacted between nations and flights around the world are canceled. As non-essential travel comes to a screeching halt, the airline, hotel and tourism industries brace for impact. With bankruptcies looming on the horizon, all major airlines begin to negotiate with the government for bailouts.

COVID-19 Causes Weight Loss to 401k's

There are a lot of moving parts to the U.S. economy, and at this stage in the pandemic, there are no clear answers as to what the lasting effects of this crisis will be. The short explanation is that while you were on spring break, your parents and grandparents watched in shock as their retirement funds got obliterated and their paychecks vanished into thin air.

Stock market drops happen, especially in times of uncertainty. But this is unlike recent stock market crashes that are caused by fears and speculations that change our economic behavior. With previous crashes, the government could attempt to change the course by infusing the market with stimulus plans. But when a pandemic forces millions of workers to shelter in place, the factories and machines they operate are shut down. Enormous resources lie dormant because the people who use them to keep the wheels of our economy turning must stay at home or risk catching and spreading a deadly disease.

Many public health officials consider it likely that severe social distancing measures will be needed throughout 2020 to stop this pandemic, and our modern economy has simply never seen a crisis of this scale before.

Once this is over, you'll want to go to the mall for some retail therapy. But supply-chain disruptions caused by the coronavirus outbreak are likely to make goods from China—including clothes, cars and electronics—scarce well into the second quarter of 2020.

A Weapon of Math Destruction

Algebra teachers everywhere collectively scream "That's what I've been trying to teach you all semester!" when the entire planet becomes enthralled with charting exponential growth to predict and explain the rate of infection of COVID-19. The United States ranks among China, Italy, Spain and Germany as the hardest-hit. At the same time, South Korea, Singapore, Taiwan and Hong Kong appear to have some success at flattening the curve and spreading out the number of coronavirus cases over a longer period.

SARS Made Hong Kong Ready for Coronavirus

As the epicenter of the 2003 SARS outbreak, Hong Kong has already established emergency protocols that help them avoid the exponential increase in COVID-19 cases that other countries cannot contain. Before the first confirmed case appears in Hong Kong, their health care system is alert and prepared to: declare an emergency response level, establish quarantine stations, close schools and public events, and take tracking and testing very seriously. Despite their proximity to China, Hong Kong manages to keep COVID-19 infections and death extraordinarily low.

Treatments and Cures Still Pending

COVID-19 is a novel (new) coronavirus, which means that as this pandemic gets larger and accelerates faster, scientists are still scrambling to find treatments and vaccines. This is why it is crucial to self-isolate the healthy and quarantine anyone who has potentially been exposed.

The World Health Organization officially changes their classification of COVID-19 from a public health emergency of international concern to a pandemic on March 11, 2020.

The first case of the novel coronavirus is reported in Wuhan, China, in December 2019. Early cases were believed to be connected to a live animal market in Wuhan. Because the virus was thought to have originated in animals, humans have no natural defense to the virus, and no known treatments exist.

The global implications have been severe, reaching every continent except Antarctica. Many countries have closed schools and non-essential businesses. International trade has slowed to a crawl. Some countries' borders have been completely closed, and travel is being discouraged unless it is absolutely necessary.

The current outbreak of infections sparks global anxiety and concern that the virus might spread too far and too fast, causing dramatic casualties before health officials find a cure.

It took 7500 laborers working around the clock only 10 days to erect a makeshift emergency hospital in China's city of Wuhan—ground zero of the coronavirus pandemic. The facility is made up of two floors, featuring several isolation wards and 30 intensive care units. It can hold up to 1,000 patients.

Coach Behr Day

Students have declared the third Wednesday of every month "Coach Behr Day," on which they wear his signature polo shirt, belt, and khakis.

THANK YOU

As the saying goes... "It takes a village to make a yearbook." This book would not exist without the constant work and attention of Ms. Karen Burbach-Barker. It has also benefitted from the talents and generosity of many students, parents, and other members of the Alconbury community. Special thanks go to Mrs. Nicole Andre, Dr. Tina Bal, Mr. Tony Balsimo, Alyssa and Mrs. Patricia Beighle, Mrs. Susan Berneau, Ms. Ann Forster, Emiko Groder, Ms. Jessica Mitchell, Colonel John Pardo, and Mr. Kevin Wagner. The great photos in these pages are theirs. Any errors or omissions remain mine.
