A new spirit and sense of school responsibility has prevaded the halls of Baumholder Highthis year. This is due, largely, to a new system of inter-class competition based on the use of "Spirit Points." Under this system, classes are awarded spirit points for a job well done or for doing something that benefits the school that is over and above the call of duty. Class competition has run hot and heavy on many projects. Spectacularly decorated floats were one of the highlights of Homecoming. Attractive and witty bulletin boards grace the school's hallways. Educational and entertaining assemblies have been presented. Well over two hundred dollars was raised for the Red Cross during a fund drive the week before Christmas vacation. As the temperature rises on each class's thermometer in the main hall, so does the spirit of each class.

The students in the school have shown a new willingness to participate in and work for the plethora of activities offered by the school. It is hard to imagine such things as the ALLERLEI, or the Drama Club, or the football team functioning without the superb spirit shown by our students. With the Seniors as their model, the underclassmen have demonstrated a new zeal to work for their school. A perfect example of this is that the Juniors had over 60% of their classmates work on their award winning Homecoming Float. Spirit, determination, and work -- this is the combination that has provided the bullwark and foundation of our school.

BAUMHOLDER JUNIOR HIGH

Halfway between the hand-holding lines of boys and girls in kindergarten and the slow-stepping gowned stream of graduating seniors you find junior high students. Visit the upstairs lockers and witness the chaos there. Enter a junior high classroom and watch the perpetual motion of its occupants. And go one step further to attend a junior high basketball game -- pandemonium reigns!

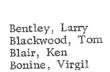

Junior high school students are a peculiar combination of insecurity and oblivion, eagerness and fright, great high spirits and profound unhappiness. They know that life is there, that they are on the brink of wonderful yet scary experiences. They want to run ahead to meet the adult world, yet often seek the comfort of their childlike present, for the future looms very large. Junior high is painful, it is the unfolding of new concepts of knowledge, new vocabulary, new friends.

Here at Baumholder American High School the junior high -- nearly half the total school population -- takes a faraway back seat in the high school's life. But no one can ignore the "little people", for they support most of the activities of the school with their money, their enthusiasm, their presence, their indomitable spirit. With the great emphasis this year on spirit, the junior high students' contribution to the school at large, though greatly ignored, is undeniable and ultimately desirable.

JUNIOR HIGH CHEERLEADERS

Sponsored by Mrs. Morrison

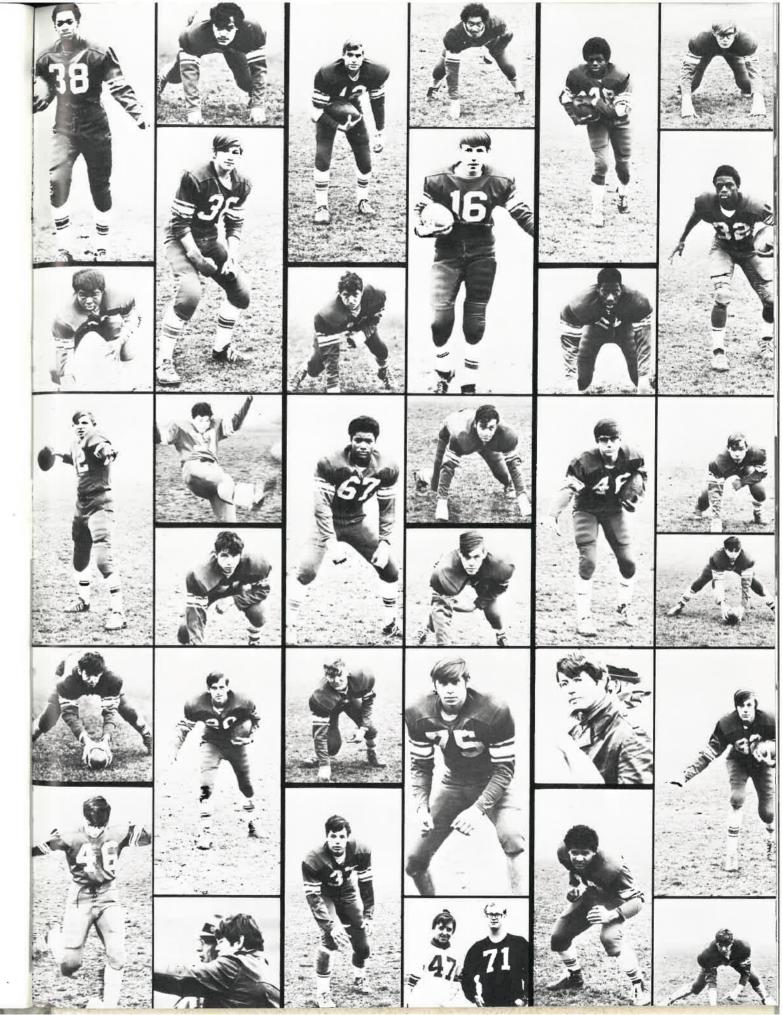

Athletics An essential element in that all-important factor of high school years -- school spirit. We rallyed around our teams. For them and because of them the cheerleaders practiced long hours, the pep club cheered, the student council arranged bus trips, the faculty rode along. How many hard hours of practice took place in preparation for the scoring of a touchdown, the winning of a race, the pin, the set-point, the deciding putt, the pressure free throw, the winning goal? How many tackles were made in the mud? How many miles run? Sprints? Was it all worth it? We know it was. Games were won. Friendships cemented. We learned to work and play together. Whenever the maroon and white was worn, it was worn by all of us. Whether varsity, J.V., or GAA, they were BUCS, and for us that meant the best.

1970 Golf

Golf, the most recent addition to the BHS sports program, is perhaps the most desirable sport offered whereby a student, relying completely on his own talent and determination, can progress to the finals in Garmisch. Although the golf program has been in existence for only three seasons, Baumholder has sent a student to the finals in Garmisch for two out of the three years. This season's representative was Helena Cato, who placed sixth in USDESEA's list of the top ten girl golfers.
