Fire Safety Demonstration

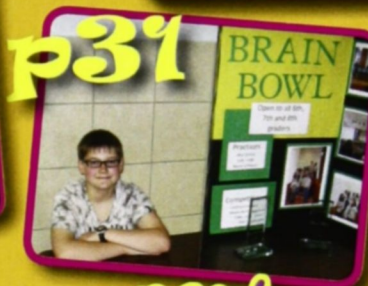

I remember the Fire Safety Demonstration the firefighters put on during Fire Safety Month. They brought their truck, their equipment, and they were wearing their protective gear. First they showed us never to pour water on a grease fire. Instead of explaining, they showed us why. There was a skillet burning on a stove in front of them. When they poured water on it, a giant flame roared up from the pan and released a wave of heat that warmed up the entire crowd. The flame was so big, it almost touched the Taj Mahal. I couldn't see the skillet because there were people in front of me, but I sure saw the flame. After that, the fire men drove their truck around with their siren on, so we'd all know what it sounded like. I had to cover my ears, because the siren was so loud. It was a fun experience, and we learned more about fire prevention, too. – André Becerra

September, 8, 2011 Bitburg Middle School hosted an Open House. There were many different tables for the many different groups. Tables included Sign Language Club, NJHS, Student Council and other extracurricular activities. I sat at my group's table, which was Video Production. All I had to do was show parents videos of Bobcat News and other videos. Then I would tell parents to encourage their students to see Ms. Micallef about joining the Bobcat News Crew. All of the tables were in the main hall. It all turned out to be a great success. Parents thought it was all interesting. After viewing the opportunities and talking with students, parents met teachers in their classrooms and signed up for PTSA. – Dawson Beshears

JS2S (Junior Student to Student) is an active and useful program that is not known by very many people. To get noticed we are making a video for our school archives. It is a way for us to introduce new kids to the school and to say bye to kids who are leaving. That should tell you that JS2S helps people. The first JS2S group went to training for two days with other middle school students from across Europe. "It helps you in life," Noah Bolneo claimed. "There are good leadership skills. When you get older you learn how to talk to people nicely." – Sierra Luna that will help us in our future academic careers -- primarily in college -- such as taking Cornell notes. This ties into another assignment we do on a regular basis called tutorials. Tutorials are questions we formulate from our notes, classes, and textbooks. In AVID, we must work as a class with each individual student on these questions to further comprehend the material. All this might sound hard, but it's really not so bad, especially when we get rewards and parties. --Jovan Volny

9/11 Ceremony

BMS honored the remembrance of 9/11 when the Twin Towers fell in New York City in 2001. The Boy Scouts presented the American flag while two trumpet players from Bitburg High School played Taps. Everyone stood at attention outside in seminar lines and tried to be quiet and respectful. Some teachers were teaching at this school when that horrible day happened. BMS wants to say we will never forget. --Ryanne Thompson

TerraNova

Terra Nova is a week long series of tests that is given to all BMS students. Terra Nova has five parts to it: reading, language arts, math, science, and social studies. A week seems like a long time if you don't know what you're doing. Everyone was assigned to their seminar class. Some people go to other classrooms for peace and quiet. Everyone must be quiet as a mouse for concentration. There are normally two or more parts of each subject, and you have a certain amount of time to finish them. About halfway through the test, you get a break with snacks that are provided by the BMS PTSA. There are usually healthy things like apples or some kind of fruit with a bottle of water. Then after your break, you finish the test. You end up having shorter classes, because of how long the tests take, but on the bright side, people got to have hour-long lunches. To most people, the end of Terra Nova was like a weight being lifted off of them. It was how I felt, but just wait until next year. – Alexis Goodro

Winter Formal

"Dance, dance, dance!" the music blasted as I walked into the Bitburg gym. I gave my ticket to the cashier so he could stamp it, and I was off to find someone to hang out with. That night was all about dancing and hanging out with friends, or as Piper Bent said, "It's make up, break up night." In the beginning there wasn't really anyone there, but later on students from Spangdahlem came by and danced with us. They gave away prizes all night long and had a dance off. Lauryn Freeman, Alexis Smartt, and others from Spangdahlem were dancing their heads off, to see who was the best dancer in the building. After the students danced we got a few teachers out there to dance, too. That night was really fun! I certainly can't wait until next year! -Kayla Mullis

Kickball

Kickball is a popular recess sport. Everybody loves to play it. People love it when they hit a homerun or catch a ball. Sage usually brings his ball that goes really far and is better than the ones provided by the school. "I caught the ball," Demetrius Johnson says happily. "I love this game." This game is kept in order by Mr. Vasquez. If we didn't have him the game would have many arguments. Everybody gets a chance to kick. That's what makes it fun. You play by kicking the ball and running to the base. You can get out by getting hit, tagged, or they tag the base you are running to. You are not allowed to get hit in the face. This game has a lot of action and goes by fast if we are not arguing. I love this game. – Ryan Sirk

Junior Leadership Seminar

Junior Leadership Seminar is a week-long activity that introduces leadership skills in action. Every year three to four 7th graders represent BMS in Oberwesel along with 150 other DoDDS-Europe students. This year the four seventh graders who were selected were Yasemin Karaguzel, Jarod Leon, Cecilia Foster, and Erin Bradley. When we arrived at the Youth Hostel in Oberwesel, we were greeted by seventh and eighth graders who helped us find meeting rooms, dining rooms and our roommates. Every morning, we had eye opener activities like swimming, jogging and games. If you didn't wake up early, you were bound for a rude awakening. The main people would come around to blow horns and bang on your door. Everybody had a fabulous time. Even though we were only there for a week, all of us made good friends that will last a lifetime. – Erin Bradley

Polish Food Drive

Student Council held a food drive for the Elim Center in Poland. Lots of canned items were collected within weeks of starting the donation. The food drive was a success. Over the last few days, they filled a table full of food.

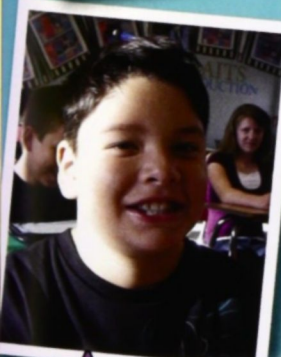

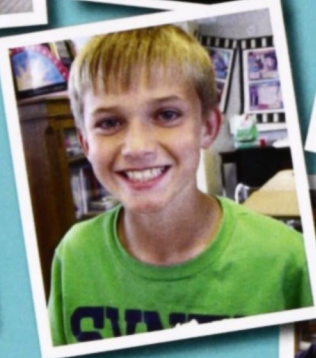

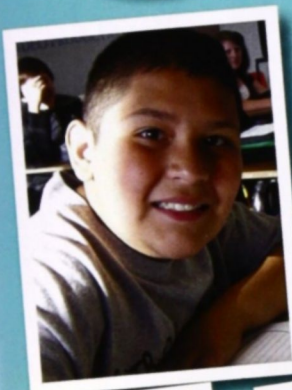

What made it even better was that Bitburg Elementary School donated even more food. Sixth grader Keegan Morfey traveled with the group who delivered the food through the Elim Center. This student also created a video of the process of delivering the food and arriving in Poland. A video was later broadcast on Bobcat News so we could meet the happy families in person. –Nicolle Thompson

During the week of December 4th through December 14th, the school collected 300 products of animal food and toys for the Trier Animal Shelter. The school sponsored a fundraiser and contest to help the animals. Each grade tried to collect the most products. The 8th grade team won and got a free breakfast served by younger brothers and sisters in the 6th grade. – Alex Lutes

Veterans Day

On Veterans Day we honor our fallen and living men and women who fought in wars for America. BMS gathered in the gym to recognize the importance of the day and to talk about honor. There are many different ways that people honor veterans. The first way I can think of is having an assembly, and bringing Boy Scouts and raising the American flag on a large pole in front of the school. The second way to honor the veterans of today is by going to their elderly homes that they stay in. People can start singing old songs from when they were kids to remind them of the good old days. The way I honor our fallen Veterans is by leaving flowers on their graves. That is the way I think all of us should honor our fallen veterans. – Brandon Stormer

The 5th and 6th graders got to “dig” into some mastodon matrix. It was wonderful for them. At the first parent teacher night, the parents found out that their child would be exploring the ancient times of the world. They would find evidence of plant and animal life in dirt sent to us from a mastodon excavation site. Sometimes what they found was unknown. One piece of pottery is still causing a stir. No one is sure what it is. “It will be fun to explore and discover the world in the habitat of this mastodon,” I said to my father. The first and many days of the mastodon site the parents of the children were allowed to come.

“My father was allowed to come from work and guide me into the world of the mastodon. It was a fun experience with my father,” I said to a friend after the class. The 5th and 6th graders loved the experience to go and get into some dirt that was educational. -- Brenna Conner

Museum of Me

The Museum Of Me Project lasted from the beginning of the school year. Ms. Micallef's 6th graders were to make a box with four corners to tell about themselves. They were shown on 6th grade parent night. Everyone showed their Museum of Me to every single person. They did a good job all in all. The teachers congratulated them and the parents, too. – Exzavior Duncan

Cafeteria

The cafeteria has been providing lunch to us since the first day of school. There are many options to choose from. All of the students can depend on the cafeteria to give them food for lunch. Some of the kids bring their own lunch. In the cafeteria you know that it is okay to talk and not get in trouble. It is a place to settle your hunger for the rest of the day. -- Logan B. Zellers

Medieval Novels

November was medieval novel month for everyone in the sixth grade as part of NaNoWriMo (National Novel Writing Month). Mostly every one reached the word count goals and finished their novels. 25% of the class reached 8000+ words! All 6th graders set their own goals.

"The best part is seeing your book published," said Anthony Garza.

"I wanted to draw my own cover but I'm very pleased with how my book turned out," said Johnmichael Boucher.

Every student has a First-Class Novelist 2011 button. When people finish their novel they will be published and put in the library in our school and they might have tests in reading counts, too. Also one copy will go to the author so he or she can remember it, and they might make another novel some day. There will be T-shirts and certificates to mark the end of this activity. – Isaac Rocha

Walking Club

Ms. Rettie the school nurse sponsors the Walking Club. During lunchtime, any student can walk the fun run route around the schools. There are usually four or five students and maybe seven, if we are lucky. Walking Club starts in Ms. Rettie's office. The routes are different depending on the people, time, weather and speed. The reason Ms. Rettie does it is for the fun of it, the students get a workout and it make the students happy. The conversations are different depending on the people. There's often a healthy snack at the end of the walk.

"I like walking club because we walk the fun run track and we get treats at the end," said Exzavior Duncan.

"I like walking club because of the workout. You get off the school grounds and explore the base," said Jerry Cooper. So if you are interested in walking club, please join us. -- Xavier Buchholz

SUITCASES

Fifth graders made explorer suitcases in Social Studies class out of shoeboxes and decorated the outside with cloth or paper. After that, they added the places the explorers had been. On the inside, they put the explorers' routes and five artifacts that the explorers might have brought. Artifacts may have been compasses, water barrels, cannons, maps, journals, Bibles, spices or telescopes. Mrs. Martz keeps some of the suitcases in her room as examples. They look really neat. We were able to bring ours home and keep it. I hope we get to do something like this again. It was really fun! -- Bella Garo

West Point Bridge Designer Contest

In the computer lab, Ms. Britt's and Mr. Oliver's classes work hard with the technical help of Mrs. Oliver. They are designing a bridge that will stand up as a cargo truck goes over it. Not only that, but they have to make the bridge with the least expensive materials and labor. They will submit their design to the local contest where it is eligible to win special prizes. The competition will heat up as more students become involved. One student noticed that there are 289 students or teams playing for the prize. I can't believe there are so many people who are going to try to win! Keep an eye on the leader board. – Michael Neisner

VIDEO GAME DESIGNERS

Who would have thought kids would be playing video games in school? Mr. Oliver's Research (aka Introduction to Engineering) class has been doing just that. Students began the unit in November and have been mastering the elements of game design. Overall, the purpose of this unit is to introduce students to the world of video game design. The Engineering class is sparking jealousy all over the rest of the school! – Kristina Urban

Civil War Trunk

Remembering the past and learning by doing.

The Civil War Trunk was a great way to go back in history to experience what the people during the Civil War felt like. We got to see the games they used to play, their medical equipment, their music and how they dressed. I got a chance to try on the clothing that they wore during harsh weather. The clothing was big for me, but for most it would be small. The shoes were not made for each foot like nowadays. They were made for one side and that's it. All of these fantastic items that are replicas or the real things made learning about the Civil War easier. I hope that everybody gets to learn about the Civil War in the same fun way we did.

ROTC Demonstration

The Reserved Officer Training Corps (ROTC) trains young people who are planning to join the military. When you take this class, you'll learn good posture, how to stand at attention and wear a uniform with pride, and how to carry and display the American flag properly. You can get scholarships from this organization. – Bobby Hoffman

BMS Activities and Clubs

Keeping tabs on this year's events!

All Smiles!

Intramural Indoor Soccer!

All grades participated in indoor soccer games at lunch. Students picked five players for their teams and then named their teams. Teams met in the gym about once a week to play against other teams. Teams played two quarters against each other. The quarters lasted about three to five minutes. Even though the quarters were short, they were fun games. Everyone enjoyed the school spirit, the competition and the active lunch hours with intramurals. -- Naomi Fiala

Exercise!

Laughter!

Red Ribbon Week FUN Run!

Every year at BMS the children do an activity called the Fun Run. This year's first one was in coordination with Red Ribbon Week. In the Fun Run, kids race to see who the fastest runners in each grade are. You can make your own competition by trying to beat your own time for the mile run! "I like the Fun Run, because you can get your energy out and have fun. That's why they call it the Fun Run!" says Tristan Korff. When the Fun Run happens, the school day is flipped around and Seminar is in the afternoon. The Fun Run is basically just to run and not think. After you're finished, there is a place to rest under the Taj Mahal. -- Demetrius Johnson

Friends!

Hard Work!

Our Student Council Election

All candidates worked hard on persuading our fellow students to vote for them. Posters were put up all over the school. Candidates walked around giving out flyers and other items to persuade the students to vote for them. On the day of the voting, candidates tried to get more and more people to vote for them. Friends helped the delegates.

After our president, vice president, treasurer, and secretary were announced, a round of applause was given: President Samantha Nop, Vice President Nicolle Thompson, Treasurer Dawson Beshears, and Secretary Emily Nop. What would you do to win? Do you wonder what student council is like? Want to be a candidate? Try next year. Now it all comes down to getting the job done. The student council hopes for a great school year -- Emily Nop

Academic Clubs

National Junior Honor Society

NJHS (National Junior Honor Society) is a school program that students with a grade of 3.5 or higher join. These students are also selected by the teachers and usually the best students are selected. This "club" has rules and regulations that apply in the by-laws and a meeting is usually held every month. A president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and a historian are elected for the council members. This society creates fund raisers, service projects, and community service to support the school and the community. This club helps improve leadership skills and challenges people to take a stand. This program is run by Mrs. Hill who volunteered to aid NJHS. NJHS is a fun experience that everyone who succeeds should join. – Tatum Bent

Brain Bowl

Brain Bowl is an academic extracurricular activity similar to Jeopardy. There are two teams of four players per school consisting of 6th to 8th graders. Students who want to participate in the competition practice every Tuesday and Thursday throughout March. The competition, which takes place at Landstuhl each year, is open to all middle schools in the Kaiserslautern district. This year, one of our teams walked away with the second place trophy while the other team came in fourth. I encourage anybody willing to try out for Brain Bowl, because it is a fun way to show off how much you know, and how fast your reflexes are. Team members consisted of 8th graders Willi Nicholson (team captain), Elizabeth Wong (team captain), Aaron Korff, Connie Sung, Mekenna Hooper, Samantha Nop, and Bobby Hoffman.

Seventh graders were Andre Becerra and Phillippe Perrine. Sixth graders were Jerry Cooper and Tristan Korff. Other students who practiced and attended were Josh Reitz, Mark Becerra, and Emily Nop. Willi Nicholson was the MVP for our school and for the overall tournament. – Willi Nicholson

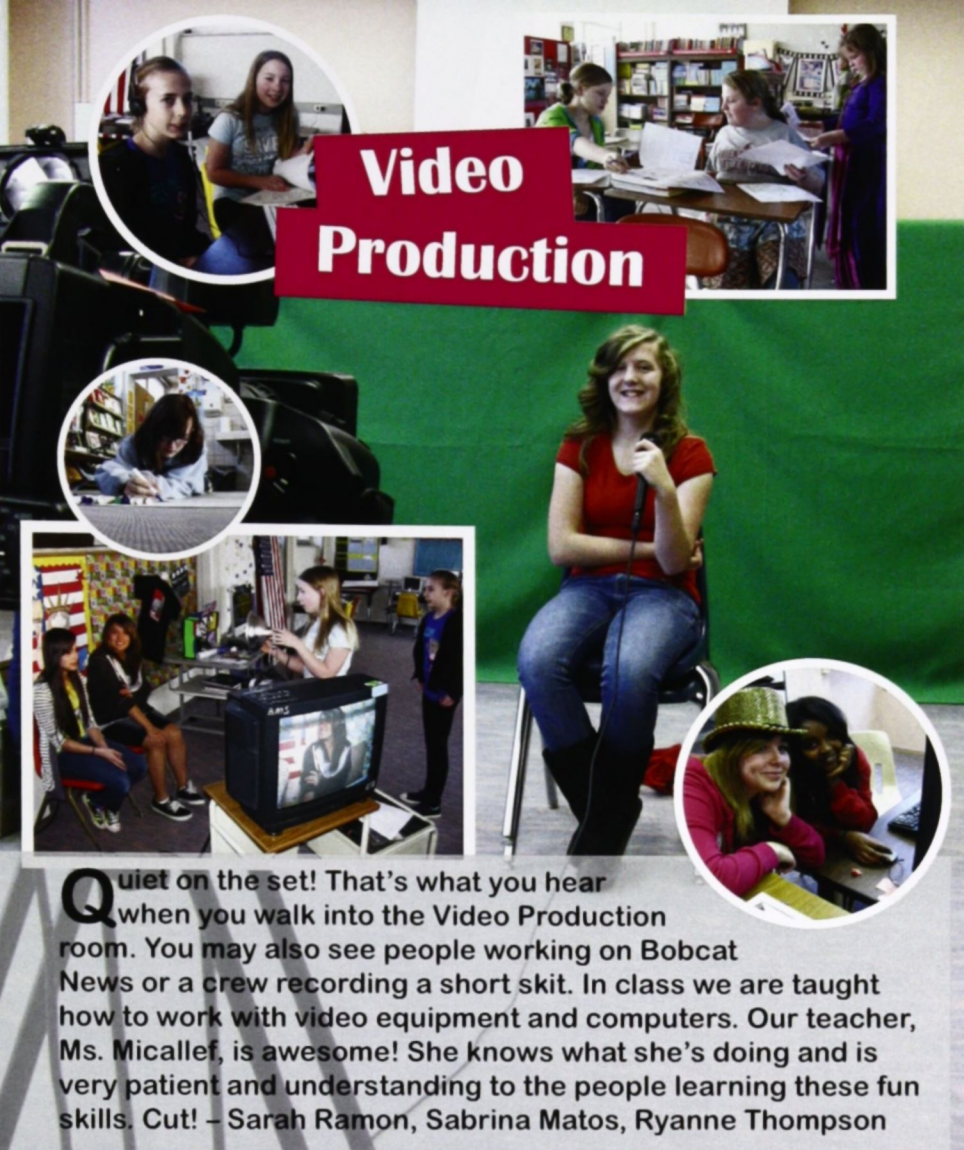

Science Club

What do we do in STEM (short for Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics)? We do lots of exciting activities! Not many students show up at STEM, so we usually get a lot of room for doing projects. We never know which project we're going to do next. So far we've done finger painting, testing water stopwatch, and planning to do a science fair. Join STEM club now! – Tatyanna Hardy

Video Production

Quiet on the set! That's what you hear when you walk into the Video Production room. You may also see people working on Bobcat News or a crew recording a short skit. In class we are taught how to work with video equipment and computers. Our teacher, Ms. Micallef, is awesome! She knows what she's doing and is very patient and understanding to the people learning these fun skills. Cut! – Sarah Ramon, Sabrina Matos, Ryanne Thompson

Yearbook Production

In Yearbook Production, we create and sell the Yearbook. For example, we did a magazine theme with professional level programs and skills. At the beginning, we started learning all about Adobe Photoshop to enhance pictures and to crop them. After we learned how to use InDesign, the 11 of us created the yearbook which you are reading today. -- Mekenna Hooper

American Sign Language Club

Our Sign Language Club has been learning fun signs and songs. In the Winter Concert we sang and signed with the song Silent Night. You should really join, because you might run into a deaf person and want to talk, or later in life you might become deaf. Mr. Songer, our sign language teacher, has helped us a lot throughout the year. Anybody is welcome to join our club. "I love this club, because if you run into a deaf person or somebody hard-of-hearing and they are lost you can sign to them," says Kea Iosefo, 5th grade. -Briana Reitz, Akira Martines, Jacqui Howard, Kea Iosefo

Geo & Spelling

National Geographic Bee

The National Geography Bee is a contest for students in schools across the United States. The Bee is open to all students in grades four through eight. It is sponsored by the National Geographic Society. Students from all 50 states, District of Columbia, U.S. territories, and the Department of Defense Dependents Schools participate in the contest. There are three levels of competition: school, state, and national. For a school-level Bee, there has to be a minimum of 6 students. The winning student in each school then takes a qualifying test. As many as 100 students who take the qualifying test will advance to the state-level Bee. The first place winner of the state Bee then goes to the national level.

The national level competition is in the National Geographic Society's headquarters in Washington D.C. The students split up into groups to take more tests. The top ten students compete in the final competition. It is hosted by Alex Trebek who is well-known from the quiz show Jeopardy. The first-place prize is a $25,000 college scholarship. The winner also gets a lifetime membership to the National Geographic Society, as well as $500 in cash. Last but not least, the winner goes on a trip to the Galapagos Islands, which are off the coast of Ecuador. Second place gets a $15,000 college scholarship and $500 cash.

The National Geography Society makes up the questions for the Bee. The questions are not just about locating places and their capitals. They may ask you what is on a state coin or what festival is in Rio. They could ask about religion, languages, economic activities, population, or political systems. They also may ask about stuff from recent times like from last year. They can ask where the famous Mt. Saint Helens erupted. Some of the questions are easy, but once the students get the qualifyify test, they get a whole lot harder. -- Aaron Korff

Geo Bee

Spelling Bee

The Spelling Bee was an event that made many students nervous. There were eight competitors from all grade levels, and they were all experienced spellers. Everyone made it through the first round. The competition lasted six rounds, with 7th Grader Phillipe Perrine winning the competition. He represented BMS at another Spelling Bee in Kaiserslautern in March. A few years ago, one BMS student made it to Washington DC! People may think it is only a Spelling Bee, but it's lots of fun. -- André Becerra

BAND AND

Winter Concert

Being in the middle school band is a special privilege. Learning to play an instrument is great. It also makes you feel good to know that you can play music. I play the saxophone. A couple months ago, I played in the Winter Concert. The songs were enjoyable to practice and to play. Being in the band means a great deal to me. -- Aaron Hairstone

Honor Band

If I were to look back on my time in Germany and relive a few choice events, one of those moments would be Honor Band. I first experienced Honor Band in 7th grade, and I immediately wanted to go again. I was a flutist, but in 8th grade, I tried the oboe. At honor band, I sat with the oboe players who were all from different schools. We joined about 100 musicians who played for 5 ½ hours with short breaks and lunch and dinner. At the concert that evening, I was amazed at the way we sounded. At rehearsal, we'd been disorganized and unsure. Now, we sounded confident and proud. There were elements in each piece that I had never heard before as BMS does not have as large a variety of instruments as Honor Band. Each piece had a magical quality to it. The next day, we drove to Spangdahlem AFB for our last concert. We practiced for about 2 hours, went to lunch, then came back and played. In my opinion, that concert was the best. The music enraptured the audience and ended with a touch of finality. Honor band was one of the most amazing experiences that I have had in Germany. If someone told me I could go back, I would jump right back in. -- Elizabeth Wong

Singing Seminar

"Jingle Bells, Jingle Bells. Jingle all the way," the students sang. I am DenMarie Barawel, and today we are going to talk about Singing Seminar. As they practice during seminar with Ms. Ford every A-day, Mr. Songer helps his sign language class learn Silent Night in sign language. The kids are trying hard to let their voices shine in the light. They sing their happy songs to tell about the baby who was born on December 25. They are really bringing it on. The students' performance will be at the BX, commissary and the food court at the BX. I hope they do great. Go Singing Seminar! -- DenMarie Barawel

GERMAN COURSES TAUGHT BY MR. WILLIAM HERB

Learning
the local language and customs!

In the 7th grade German class, students have lots of projects. One of the projects was 'Die Familie Projekt'. In English that translates to 'My Family Project' where we had to do a family tree in German. We cut out pictures from a magazine, pasted them on the paper and wrote family member names under it. We used German words like 'Tante' for aunt and 'Onkel' for uncle. We also did a project on time called 'Die Zeit'. We had to cut out four circles and put the seasons on one, days of the week on another, numbers of the months on one and months on the other. When we did mid-terms, they were probably the hardest for us, but we still got okay grades. My favorite part about our German class is that when we learn there, we can go back home and tell our moms and dads how Germans go to school and how it works. In most classes, I'm not able to do that, but all of them are still fun and educational. – Jecia Woodard

Red Ribbon Spirit Week

Red Ribbon week was one of the most fun things we did at school! Red Ribbon Week really got us together to fight drugs and alcohol while having fun. On Monday, we dressed in cowboy clothes and wore our boots; another day we wore all red; but my favorite day was wacky tacky day, when we got to dress up as wacky and as tacky as we could. Though we did lots of cool dressing up during the week, we always wore ribbons stating that we refuse to use drugs and alcohol, and that we were sorrowed by the many people who did. Drugs and alcohol are serious things, and can do serious damage, not only to your body, but to your emotions. People on drugs often become emotionally depressed, so it's never too early to raise awareness for these life-threatening addictions. Red Ribbon Week was a great way our school rallied for a great cause. --Cecilia Foster

We walked to the Eissporthalle and immediately got our skates. Then we walked out to the rink. Friends skated away with friends on the ice while the music played. It was my first experience ice skating and of course, I fell a lot, but that's how we learn. After we skated, we went to the snack bar.

I got amazing french fries and a slushy that tasted like a wonderful rainbow. Ice skating was a lot of fun. I can't wait to go ice skating again.—Brandon Brown

Activity Night

Bitburg Middle School celebrated Halloween on October 28, 2011 during Activity Night. There was a soccer match going on during that night just for fun and all the kids were having a good time. The teams were 5th grade through 8th grade. Each grade competed against each other.

In the same game, there were sometimes boys verses girls in the same grade. The night featured a disc jockey mixing music for people who wanted to show off their skills. They were playing hits from the 90's and today's music. At the end, there was a costume competition and people won gift cards. In order to be in the competition, you must dance in front of the judges and you must be wearing a costume. The others who didn't win in the top three got a pen which had a skull on top that lit up. The three winners were a nerd, a grandma, and a halo dude. There was also a snack bar where we could buy foods and drinks. You can buy cookies, pie, chips, soda, water, and other delicious items. You had to buy tickets from the front counter where you enter the party. The tickets were cheap and you didn't really need to buy a lot of tickets. For the foods and drinks, you just needed to pay 6 tickets for a bag of chips and a soda. A little game room enabled you to make arts and crafts, play board games, or play band hero. "I can't believe that a big guy can sing a high pitched voice," said a 5th grader who was watching Matthew Rocha playing the guitar. "I love this song," said Piper and Hunter Bent when Matthew Rocha was playing Mr. Roboto by Styx. Everyone had a good time at the party and that is the important thing and that is what the party was for.

-- Johnmichael Boucher

Pumpkin Decorating

The pumpkin contest was a fun activity planned by NJHS students for the end of October. A group of five contestants would get a pumpkin to decorate. The contestants could not carve the pumpkin but had to think of a creative way to make it festive. Some people brought cloth to put on their pumpkin, but others spray painted their pumpkin. Others would decorate a background for their pumpkin. When everyone was done, students from all across the school voted with a piece of paper for which pumpkin decoration they liked best. Some people from video production came and videoed the contestants putting their pumpkins together. It was a fun activity for everyone. - Madison Stewart

Bungee Barbie

The Bungee Barbie project was very fun. First we took our Barbies to a room where we attached the rubber bands to her feet. The goal was to let Barbie free-fall and not hit the pavement from a predetermined height. After that, we tested the Barbies indoors. Once we were confident, we brought the Barbies outside to Ms. Micallef's stairs. We attached the rubber bands to the stairs, and let them fall off. Of all the groups, my group won. - John Fougere

Stop and Stare Acrostic by Mekenna Hooper

Stop and stare at the beauty around
Tops of trees are the brightest green
On the free sky birds fly
Places around the world have amazing stories

A world filled with majestic mysteries
Night is the best time to go star gazing
Days are filled with light

Stop and stare at the beauty around
Take a step back and look around
At the beauty the world has to share
Rare gems are just the same as a delicious grape
Everything in nature is equal to me

Ode to Wildflower Meadow by Kristina Urban

The springtime air whispers fragrance of sweet peas
over my restful face,
And the rush
of cool blue water over dark gray stone gently soothes
my troubled soul.
It is here in the bright green grass, amidst the purple annuals
of Wildflower Meadow, that my jagged heart heals,
and I drift into a peaceful sleep.

By Derek Lutes

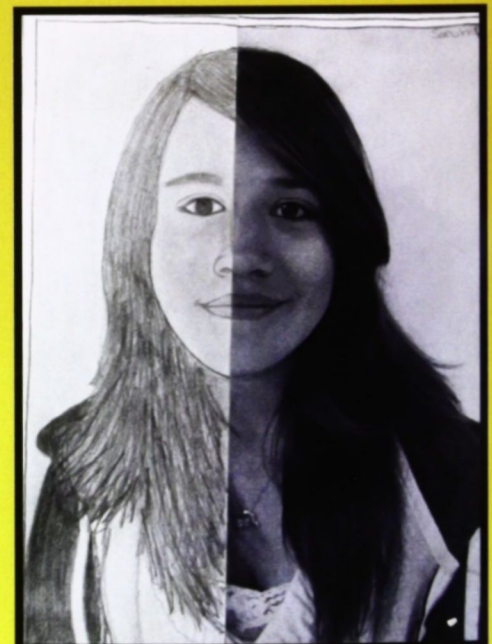

Super Heroes by Sabrina Matos

Super heroes are all around
Up in the air
Prowling the ground
Everyone in the Air Force is a hero to me
Remembering the men and women of the Air Force

Here they are protecting us
Everyday watching over the people Really happy to be helping Only making things easier
Even when they're tired, they never stop
Super heroes are the men and women of the Air Force

Ode to My House by Madison Stewart

My house protects me
From thundering winds,
Shades me from the blazing sun.
In winter, heaters turned full-speed,
Warmth encircles around me.
My house is filled with pictures.
When the sun sets,
It's a sight to see.
Sometimes my house makes me cry,
I wonder why?
Clocks tick,
Doors creak,
Children laugh.
My house is most peaceful
When everyone's asleep.
I love my house.

Words cannot express the joy you bring into our lives. Your beauty is beyond what our eyes can see, and we know that every person who meets you also sees the wonders of your heart. You are truly an amazing gift from God, and we are blessed to have you as our daughter! You have accomplished so much for a young lady your age, and we can only imagine the treasures that the Lord has in store for your future. With that in mind, we feel that it is only fitting to remind you of a prayer that, as a young gymnast, you should remember hearing before your competitions and how fitting it is for a day like today:

Father God, You created this day for gain not loss,
Success not failure,
And for positive action, not negative thoughts.

Lord, inspire my daughter with a desire for greatness
And to wisely use the gifts and talents
That you have so generously given to her;
For these are tools to be used, not treasures to be stored.

Create in her the Right Attitude
To excel in the classroom and in life -
The attitude that says
"I can reach deeper inside myself."

Build in her a Firm Belief in you,
Herself, our family, and her classmates,
And to have great expectation for her future.
Grace her with the Enduring Commitment
To persevere, to never quit no matter the score,
And to never give up, no matter the odds.

Father, continue to protect her
From any harm and fill her with Courage Unquenchable and Joy Overflowing.

For it is in You that she has become this beautiful young lady.

We love you baby girl!

When we first got to Germany, we didn't know if you were going to adjust here while missing all of the things you left behind at Fort Walton Beach. But you made it through and found new friends and things to do. These past three years have been full of excitement watching you re-adjust from dancing to full time sports all while still managing to take care of your school work with Honors. We are so proud of our "STAR". You are an amazing and wonderful daughter and sister. We look forward to seeing what excitement you will bring us during your high school years. We love you very much.

Congratulations on finishing the 8th grade!
You have grown and changed so much over the years.
We love you and look forward to all the changes to come in high school.
May your future be bright and your dreams be great!
We are proud of you and wish you the very best!

Love,

Aaron,

You are an amazing person and we are so proud of you! You are helpful, caring and respectful. We admire your knowledge and concern for the world you live in, and your commitment to doing what is right. You have just the right mixture of adventure, goofiness, and responsibility. Your character, not to mention your 'awesomeness', will take you far, and we will always be there to cheer you on.
