Pure Gold

As we're going off to high school being brave and bold,

We're almost in the ninth grade we're almost getting old.

My friends it's been a great year.

Let the truth remain untold,

we've been the best eighth graders,

a title we'll proudly hold.

But whatever the circumstances...

this last year has been pure gold!!!

YOU WERE ONCE A TIGER, TOO!!

It is your first year in middle school,
And the best years are yet to come.
You are going to have a lot more freedom
You are going to have a lot more fun.

Next year you will be in 7th grade,
It will be the middle of the crew.
But no matter were you go,
Remember that you were once a tiger too!

With Hearts of Gold

With hearts of gold Cheerful each day Smiles that would light the sky When it's cold, dark and grey.

What else is there to say?
They give their all for us,
So when we get on that bus
We know that at the end of the day,
They have taught us how to trust.

Even though they can be tough,
We know they care- oddly enough,
It's all done with love
We've been sent angels
With hearts of gold.

The Time Machine

2003-2004 year in review

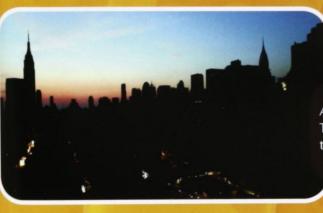

Happy Thanksgiving

On November 27, 2003, President George Bush surprised American troops stationed overseas. The president flew from his ranch in Crawford, Texas to Baghdad, Iraq to join armed forces for a traditional turkey and stuffing dinner. After helping serve troops, President Bush sat down and shared stories about home. This was the first time an American president visited Iraq.

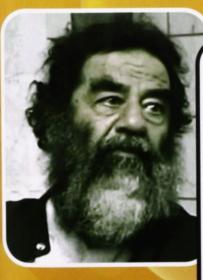

Mars Gets a Visitor

After seven months of space travel, the U.S. robot. Spirit, landed on Mars in January of 2004. Digital images from eight different cameras are sent back to scientists daily. As the robot roams the Martian surface, a mechanical arm will take samples of the planet. Scientists will use these samples to analyze the planet's geological composition to decide if there is, or ever was, water or living organisms on the planet.

Lights Out!

August of 2003 saw the nation's largest power failure to date. The massive blackout covered the entire Northeast, parts of the Midwest and portions of Canada. 50 million people were without electricity for 29 hours!

Hussein Captured

On December 13,2003, ex-Iraqi dictator, Saddam Hussein was captured by American forces. Hussein was found hiding in an 8-foot spider hole on a rural Tikrit farm. The once feared dictator surrendered without a fight, but later refused to cooperate with interrogators. Iraqi people rejoiced in the streets. President George Bush was quoted as saying, "In the history of Iraq, a dark and painful era is finally over."

A Special Salute

to all of our troops stationed overseas. The time our soldiers spend away from their families and homes to protect our freedom as Americans is greatly appreciated. Without them, we would have no America.

Big News

Flu Vaccines Run Out

The winter of 2003-2004 saw influenza diagnoses in record numbers. Many states reported a dramatic increase in outbreaks early in the season, prompting fears that this would be an especially severe season, causing a rush on the vaccine. Many areas ran low and had to limit the vaccine they did have to the elderly, pregnant women and people with chronic health problems such as diabetes, asthma or weak immune systems. By February, case numbers had dropped significantly.

Fires Ravage California

Wildfires engulfed huge areas of Southern California killing dozens and sending thousands seeking refuge. The fires scorched more than 400,000 acres of land. Over 8,000 firefighters worked to contain the blazes. The hot, dry Santa Ana winds were blamed for spreading some of the fires. The governor declared a state of emergency in many southern California counties and activated the National Guard to help in disaster relief.

In December, residents of the Northeast climbed through towering snow drifts and slid down icy streets, trying to dig out from a weekend blizzard that dumped more than two feet of snow in many areas, closed airports and businesses and sent crashing waves over coastal sea walls.

Last Concorde Flight

Crowds cheered for the final British Airways Concorde jet as it approached for landing in London. The three jets touched down for the last time in October of 2003.

Governor "Terminator"

Action movie star Arnold Schwarzenegger ran for governor of California against 134 other candidates and won. After the recall of former Governor Gray Davis, Schwarzenegger promised California residents that, if elected, he would take aggressive measures to decrease California's excessive financial deficit and spending practices.

Gadgets & Gizmos

First it was pagers. e-mail. пом phones are THE way to stay connected. Cell phones have become an accessory. Pick a phone, pick a face plate, pick a ring tone. Do you want to play games on your phone, text message your friends or take pictures with it? The options available today make even the most tech-savvy heads spin!

- Research indicates that two out of every four teenagers own a cell phone and three out of every four use one on a regular basis. Even though many teens don't have the disposable income to afford a cell phone, many parents are willing to foot the bill in order to keep track of their kids. • Downloadable MP3 files have become the new CD. Now, people can search the internet
 - for their favorite tunes, pay to download, and listen. Once transferred, the song can be burned to CD, downloaded to a personal MP3 player or listened to right on your computer. The MP3 player market is booming with hundreds of companies trying to corner the market. MP3 players range in price from $100 - $400.
