as a professional.

In his first year at Hanau American Middle School, he has captured the hearts and minds of our youth. The mysteries of science became a reality in Room 207 where he taught. His zeal for teaching was, and is, never-ending. It is with great enthusiasm that the students of H. A. M. S. dedicate the 1990-1991 yearbook to Dr. John Hunt.

During this past year, the Student Council has participated in many fundraising activities and projects. Throughout the first months of school many students had a parent deployed to the Middle East. In order to show our support, the student council collected various goodies from the homerooms and sent them to the Hanau units in Saudi Arabia. S. C. also held a leadership lock-in. The lock-in provided many students with basic leadership skills to help make H.A.M.S. a better place.

The fundraising activities that the student council sponsored were a huge success. Our December dance turned out to be a fun night for all, especially with D. J. Vicious Venny. We also sold Happy Grams, Friendship Grams, plus helped the PTSA sell bull pencils, book covers, and t-shirts.

All-in-all the student council had a productive and very successful school year.

Executive Board

8th Grade

The 8th Grade Class had set a goal of establishing some traditions for the next 8th grade classes of HAMS.

We had formed an advisory group made up of the executive officers and homeroom representatives plus other interested 8th graders. These people had been the most active people in deciding, planning, and taking part in all the activities.

We had a very successful 8th grade assembly to build class spirit. Each class signed a homeroom banner which was posted in the cafeteria. The advisory council presented a very funny skit. It was a lot of fun. There were various fund-raising activities such as the Valentine flower grams to raise money for the end of the year barbecue and activity day. The 8th grade sponsored an all-school talent show and a field day. Year end activities for the 8th grade were very successful.

The 8th grade class left a planned Meeter-Greeter Welcome program to be used in the future years.

Outstanding 8th graders were Nick Davis, Kathy Thomas, Erin Muserilli, Suzanne Sennett, Jenny Jensen, Dominique Boyd, Carolyn Hogue, and Melantha Nephew.

The Bull's Eye production staff was a unique group with a formidable task of assembling and publishing a school paper. But this bunch always managed to pass the tests and obstacles with flying colors.

Illustrators, reporters, and printers were constantly scurrying around for information. We all tried our best to process articles that both interest and educate the student body of Hanau Middle School.

Looking back on a year of hectic work, each member of the staff was proud to see an admirable body of work.

Band I

Band I was the band for first year, or beginning band students. These students had no prior experience in playing band instruments. At the beginning of the year, those students who signed up for band were tested and given an opportunity to try out for the different band instruments. They performed at the annual spring band concert and for the PTSA.

Band II

The Hanau Middle School Band is made up of Band III and some Band II students. This band was the primary performing group. A toothpick bridge project was conducted on Oct. 31, 1990. The bridge had to be constructed from the least amount of materials and hold the most weight. Chaun Gaddet won this project. His bridge was made of two toothpicks and held a weight of 5,100 grams.

A matchstick rocket competition was held on Nov. 27, 1990.

Matchstick rockets were made from a matchstick, a paper clip, and tin foil. The tin foil was wrapped around the match and the paper clip had to be pulled out. The rocket was then placed on a paper clip launch pad and fired. Crystal Brown won this competition. Her rocket went 43 centimeters.

Story by Russell Arnold

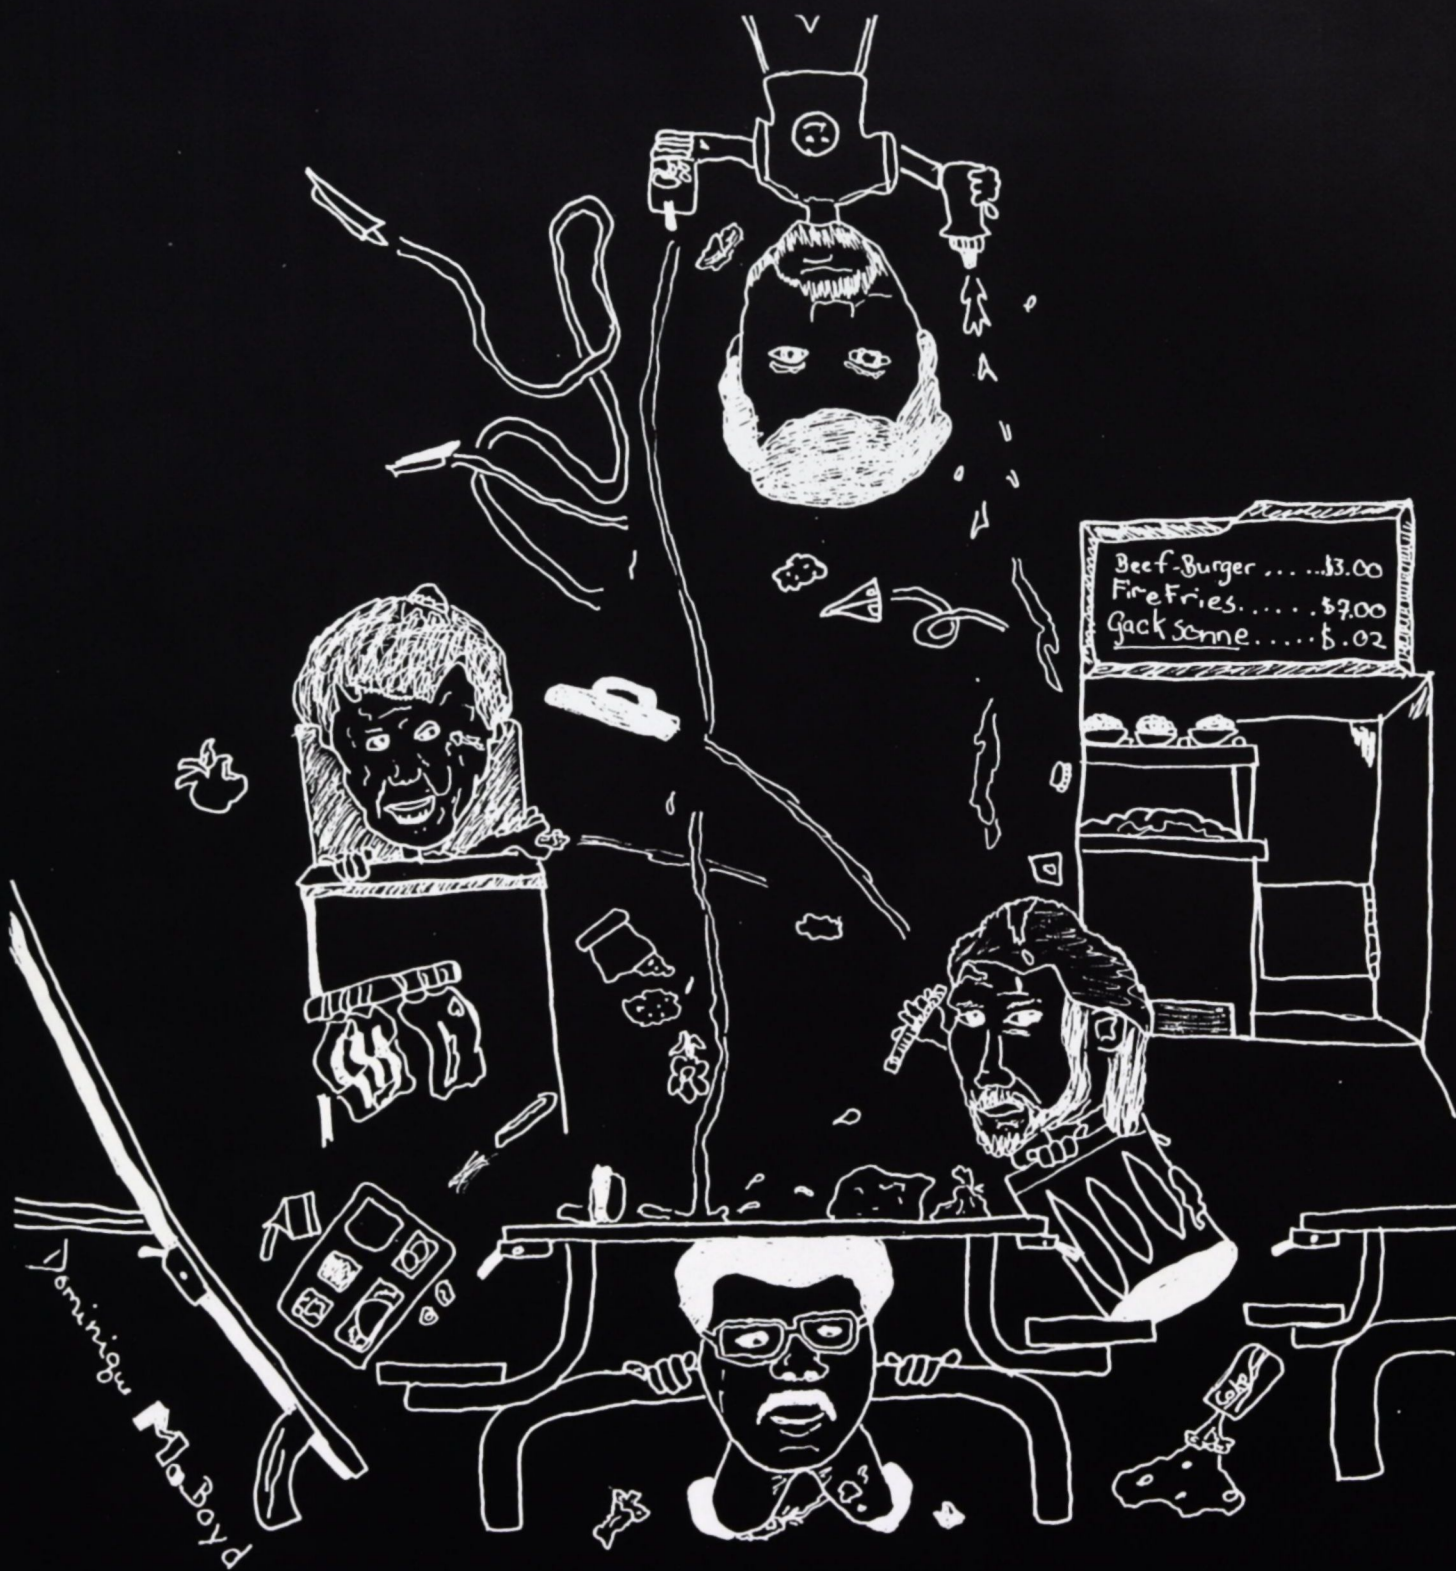

in Science!!

Being One of the Bulls

Waking up in the morning, your parents start to yell. Last thing you want to hear is the school bell. You arrived at school around a little after eight, your stomach is growling because you haven't ate. 2nd period comes and you didn't mention that you didn't do your homework and now you have detention. Now you're really mad, you want to give the teacher a pinch, because after school you don't want to see Mr. Lynch. Lunch bell rings. You run down the hall. Your shoe wasn't tied so you trip and fall. So, you're the last one at lunch, at the end of the line. You go to buy your lunch and you only have a dime. Now your stomach is weak when you wished it would be strong, and you're thinking to yourself, "What else can go wrong?" 7th period comes and you made a C. You could have made an A, but you were talking to me.. School is out and your detention now is over. You throw on your coat and put your book bag on your shoulder. Mr. Lynch stops and says, "Don't break any more rules." You say, "That's just a part of BEING ONE OF THE BULLS."

Weihnachtsmarkt

The Promise Land by Katina Lee

It was a time of peace, a time of hope. The sun wove its most beautiful colors in the clouds that held the golden strings. Seagulls laughed and chased each other through the horizon. The fears and cries of every creature faded and their dreams came true. We remembered the people who left early. We joined hands in the name of friendship. This is the promise land. From land to shore, sorrow spreads no more.

DOWNTOWN HANAU

Downtown Hanau is the coolest place I know. The shops are really neat. The shoes are really dope. It's fun to go down there and attempt to speak the language. Fortunately, most people speak English. The Americans are easy to pick out in their jeans and sneakers. A good portion of German people get dressed up when they go out shopping.

The only bad thing about downtown Hanau is the anti-American vandalism that occurs there. When the Persian Gulf war broke out, many Americans had their cars painted with anti-war slogans.

All in all, downtown Hanau is a really nice place for hanging out.
