Memories . . . of the year gone by.

Those true great memories;
They'll never die.

Lots of fun with stone faces, Izmir students going places.

Remember your friends,
And the good times you've had;

Then you say,
"Turkey, you're not so bad!"

We're swinging, we're dancing; we're all having fun,
All the good times have just begun.

THE BOY NAMED ROY

There once was a boy named Roy,
Who went to Troy.
He came back with a large sack,
And went to exchange it for a small back pack.

MRS. PIGGY

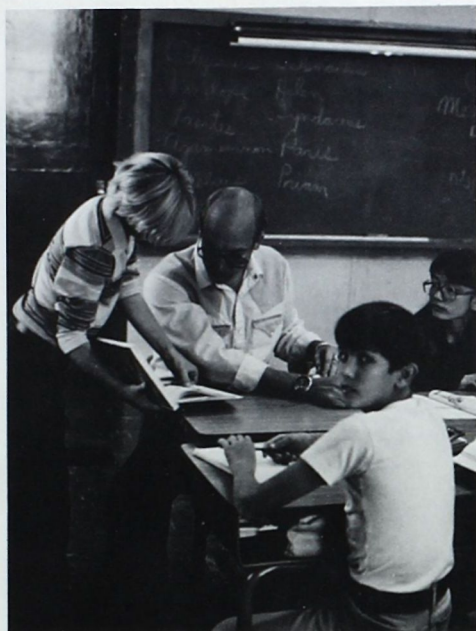

I heard someone yell "ow!"
I thought it was a cow.
Or a frog.
No, it's a hog, no, a dog.
Maybe a cat.
Or a bat.
What about a wiggy?
Yes, it was Mrs. Piggy!

FATE

Your laying there sick in your seat,
 Listening to the sound of the disco beat,
 Those speakers blarring that horrible sound,
 Clutching your throat you fall to the ground,
 Now you know what must be done,
 So you reach in your pocket and take out a gun,
 Bringing the weapon up to your head,
 You think to yourself "I'd rather be dead,"
 Suddenly, you can no longer hear,
 But it's better than Disco, any day of the year.

Danny Philpot

HAPPINESS

Follow the magic rainbow,
 Find the pot of gold,
 Stop worrying about how long,
 It takes for you to get old.
 Live each day to its fullest,
 Forget about yesterday's sorrow,
 Just remember all the happy times,
 And dream of sweet tomorrows.

Then

I remember way back when -
I was oh so happy then.
I'd laugh and have fun
When we were together;
And smile when we thought
Of each other.

Not realizing it,
Our time flew by -
The summer has ended;
Remember and sigh.

There's a part of my mind
That remembers it all;
A part which is made
For me to recall.

I wish I could bring
It all back again.
But the old memories stay;
And the new memories begin.

In the preface of The Copper of Turkey, Mr. Taylor described the purpose of the project.

In learning, the process is as important as the product. The required steps in creating a book demand an involvement utilizing many of the skills deemed worthy in the educational process.

All too often, what a student does in the classroom is either thrown or filed away. Though the knowledge and skills acquired by the learner are eventually applied to life, rarely is classroom work immediately reflective or applicable to the students' world. This booklet, a product, represents a direct application of our educational skills.

Though our product is certainly not definitive, and undoubtedly suggests areas to be explored more fully, it was a work of love and a rich learning and cultural experience for us all.

Slumber Parties

*Slumber parties are outta sight,
One long endless sleepless night,
Blasting music and lot's of noise,
Absurd stories and thoughts of boys,
Lots of eating and refrigerator raids,
Games like truth or dare and charades,
A messy room and rowdy girls,
Telling fantasies of minks and pearls,
Slumber parties are really great,
It's the cleaning up that I hate!*
