PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

GRADUATES!

We have done our best to prepare you for the future. Even to the point of testing your flexibility as an American living in imminent danger. Each of you, in your own way, has lived through a period of international tension in the Mediterranean - Gulf area. This year is one you surely will remember.

We enjoyed a fine Fall, a much diminished Winter, and uneasy Spring extra-curricular program. Despite many hardships, we arrived at your graduation day with a wealth of emotions and feelings. Whatever your choices tomorrow, I hope you can look back on your days in Izmir with a feeling of accomplishment and positivism. I'll miss each of you for your contribution to Izmir American High School. My advice is to never stop being a learner.

2 Patriots accidentally fired in Turkey

By J. KING CRUGER
Mediterranean bureau

Dutch air force launchers mistakenly fired two Patriot missiles in southeastern Turkey on Thursday and quickly destroyed them by remote control.

The Patriots were fired at 10:10 a.m. after the missile system's computers incorrectly indicated that the Diyarbakir air base was being attacked by tactical ballistic missiles, according to the Dutch Ministry of Defense in the Hague, Netherlands.

The Patriot missiles were destroyed well outside residential areas, said a statement from NATO's Allied Forces Press Center in Diyarbakir. They caused no casualties or damage when they exploded, the statement said. It was the second accident involving the missiles.

On Tuesday, a U.S. Patriot missile was accidentally fired and subsequently destroyed at Incirlik AB in southern Turkey. It self-destructed near the joint Turkish-American base. A falling piece of the missile reportedly injured an 8-year-old Turkish boy.

"The firing of the Patriot missiles at Diyarbakir was caused by a mistake in the system's software," said a spokesman for the Dutch Defense Ministry.

The software functions automatically up to a certain point. For safety reasons, "we have now put a step into the process that requires manual intervention," said the spokesman, Jurgen van der Vlugt.

"The step requires a second or two to carry out," he said. The decision constitutes "a calculated risk" on the part of the Dutch, he said.

The United States and the Netherlands sent the missiles to help defend against an Iraqi attack on Turkey, Incirlik, a large base near the city of Adana and about 200 miles from the Iraqi border, a being used by U.S. warplanes for raids into Iraq.

The air base at Diyarbakir is Turkish. It is home to Belgian aircraft from NATO's Allied Command Europe Mobile Force, sent to Turkey to bolster the country's defenses. Italian and German planes in the force are stationed at another base in southeastern Turkey.

TRUTHFUL DAILY NEWS

ANKARA—Turkey told Baghdad Saturday that Turkey was not participating in the Gulf War, but would retaliate if there is an attack against Turkey.

A senior Turkish government source said the Turkish response to a letter sent to Turkish Foreign Minister Ahmet Kirişçi Alptemurç by his Iraqi counterpart Tariq Aziz was presented Saturday afternoon in Ankara to Iraq's ambassador to Ankara. The source said Turkey's response underlined Turkey's determination to abide by the United Nations resolutions as a founding member of the world body.

The source said Turkey's response, what he described as "a strong and clear message," was "a warning to Iraq that Turkey will not tolerate any aggression against its territory." He said the country was providing facilities for the United Nations and the United States to combat Iraq in a bid to force it to withdraw from Kuwait. ## Dev-Sol claims responsibility for bomb blast in NATO command post in Izmir

ISTANBUL—The extremist underground group Dev-Sol (Revolutionary Left) claimed responsibility for a bomb blast in the garden of a NATO command post in Turkey's Aegean port city of Izmir late on Thursday.

The blast shattered windows but caused no injuries, officials said.

Dev-Sol said it carried out the attack on the headquarters of NATO's Sixth Allied Tactical Air Force in Izmir in a protest against the Gulf War.

A NATO security officer said the explosive caused minor damage to the building and shattered windows of neighboring houses. No one was hurt, he said.

Police bomb specialists were examining the remains of the explosive, he said.

Dev-Sol claimed responsibility in telephone calls to the offices of major newspapers. An anonymous caller claimed that Dev-Sol planted the bomb in protest of the invasion of the Middle East by imperialism.

Dev-Sol is one of the most feared terrorist networks in Turkey. It has claimed responsibility for most of the bombings in the country after the Gulf War erupted, including Thursday's shooting of an American civilian working at Turkey's Incirlik Air Base, used by U.S. planes for bombing raids on northern Iraq.

The American, Bobbie Mozelle, was gunned down outside his home on a tree-lined street in the city of Adana. He was the first American killed in more than 70 attacks on Western targets around the world since the war started.

The U.S. embassy condemned what it called "the brutal assassination of Bobbie Eugene Mozelle," a 44-year-old customs specialist for a company supplying contract workers to U.S. bases in Turkey.

Mass circulation daily Hürriyet claimed that an anonymous caller who phoned their Istanbul office said that Mozelle was shot because he was a CIA agent.

In a separate incident in Istanbul's

Yeşilköy district early Friday, a policeman was wounded and an alleged terrorist was killed in a clash between police and a group of four persons whose attitudes were suspicious.

Anatolia reported that at around midnight Thursday, police spotted four persons with suspicious attitudes wandering around the Yeşilköy police station.

The agency said that when policemen approached the group for a security check, the group opened fire on the police, and wounded one policeman.

Anatolia said one of the suspects was killed by police in the ensuing clash. The agency said the other three suspects, one of them apparently wounded, fled in a speedboat.

The Turkish cities of Ankara, Istanbul, Izmir and Adana have been rocked by a dozen bomb attacks which have injured three people and damaged several buildings and cars.

Most of the attacks have been claimed by Dev-Sol, which has said it was behind dozens of politically motivated murders in Istanbul in the past year.

Baghdad has warned Turkey, a secular but mainly Moslem nation and the only NATO member bordering Iraq, that it faced unspecified consequences for its "unjustified aggression" in allowing U.S. air raids to be launched from its territory.

Iraq has called repeatedly for Moslems to wage a holy war (jihad) against the United States and her allies in the Gulf War.

Turkey this week asked the Iraqi Embassy to send home about one-third of at least 75 Iraqi officials working at the Ankara embassy, Istanbul consulate and elsewhere in the country.

Since the United States and its allies went to war to drive Iraq from Kuwait on Jan. 17, at least 72 revenge attacks have taken place around the world, killing four people.

Attackers using bombs, guns, rocket grenades or gasoline bombs have hit targets in Turkey, Lebanon, Greece, Peru, the Philippines, Yemen, Jordan, Malaysia, France, Spain, Cyprus, Israel, Pakistan, the United States and Saudi Arabia.

Role of Turkey causes concern over NATO ties

By DAVID TARRANT
Brussels bureau

BRUSSELS, Belgium—Turkey's decision to let the United States use its air bases against Iraq has significantly raised concern that NATO could be drawn into the conflict, officials and defense experts said.

The Parliament of Turkey, which is a member of NATO, on Thursday authorized use of its air bases by U.S. warplanes "in case of necessity."

Hours after war started Thursday, NATO allies issued a stern warning to Iraq that, according to Article 5 of the NATO treaty, an attack against Turkey would be considered an attack against the entire 16-member alliance.

The Turkish news agency, Anatolia News, reported that 25 U.S. fighter aircraft and three refueling planes took off from the strategic air base in Incirlik early Friday and returned sometime later. A Pentagon official said the planes were on a reconnaissance mission.

President Turgut Özal said the U.S. warplanes might have engaged in an air attack against Iraq.

Özal, answering questions at an evening TV program, said the U.S. planes initially took off from Incirlik base for training mission but "could have later gone to Iraq."

If Iraq were to retaliate against the Turkish bases or other targets in Turkey, NATO's statement Thursday would seem to indicate that NATO would automatically be drawn into the conflict. But political groups in several allied countries, including Germany, are strongly opposed to involvement in the Gulf war.

Hundreds of thousands of Germans have taken to the streets to protest the war and the opposition Social Democrats have warned against NATO's being drawn into the conflict. Chancellor Helmut Kohl has decided to let the nation's Parliament be involved in deciding the sensitive question of whether Germany should participate militarily in any NATO response to an Iraqi attack.

The Belgian Cabinet would have to approve any change in the mission of its 18 planes stationed in Turkey, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said. The 18 planes are part of a NATO quick-reaction force recently sent to the country.

The spokesman added that the Cabinet would consult with Parliament on the decision.

Recent polls in Italy have shown that almost 70 percent of the public is opposed to involvement in the war.

If Turkey should be attacked, a decision by NATO to act against Iraq would likely generate heated debate within the alliance, said Edward Foster, a defense analyst with the Royal United Services Institute, an independent defense think tank in England.

"I think there will be lots and lots of hand-wringing and weighing of pros and cons," Foster said.

But several NATO sources said there is little room for debate within the alliance.

"As far as NATO is concerned, at every opportunity it has reiterated its commitment to Turkey," said a NATO source, who requested anonymity. "There is no fine print here. The treaty is there. There are no footnotes."

However, a senior NATO military official said the language in Article 5 does not necessarily require NATO to take offensive action.

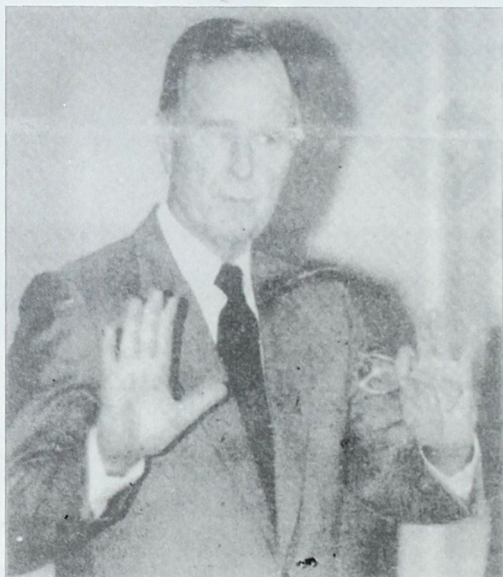

"Article 5 says that the allies will meet to decide what their response should be. It doesn't say an automatic response," he said.

The treaty states that the alliance will take "individually and in concert with the other parties such actions as it deems necessary, including the use of armed force to restore and maintain international peace and security."

"Getting back to practical politics, based on the political winds in Germany, I would think there would be strong resistance to respond," he said.

In Bonn, Kohl decided to give the Bundestag a role in the decision because of political concerns, a spokesman for Kohl's party said.

The opposition Social Democrats have argued that such a decision should be made by the country's Parliament, not just the ruling coalition.

"WAR RIGHT ON SCHEDULE"—U.S. President George Bush late Wednesday declared air supremacy and said the war against Saddam is "right on schedule."
