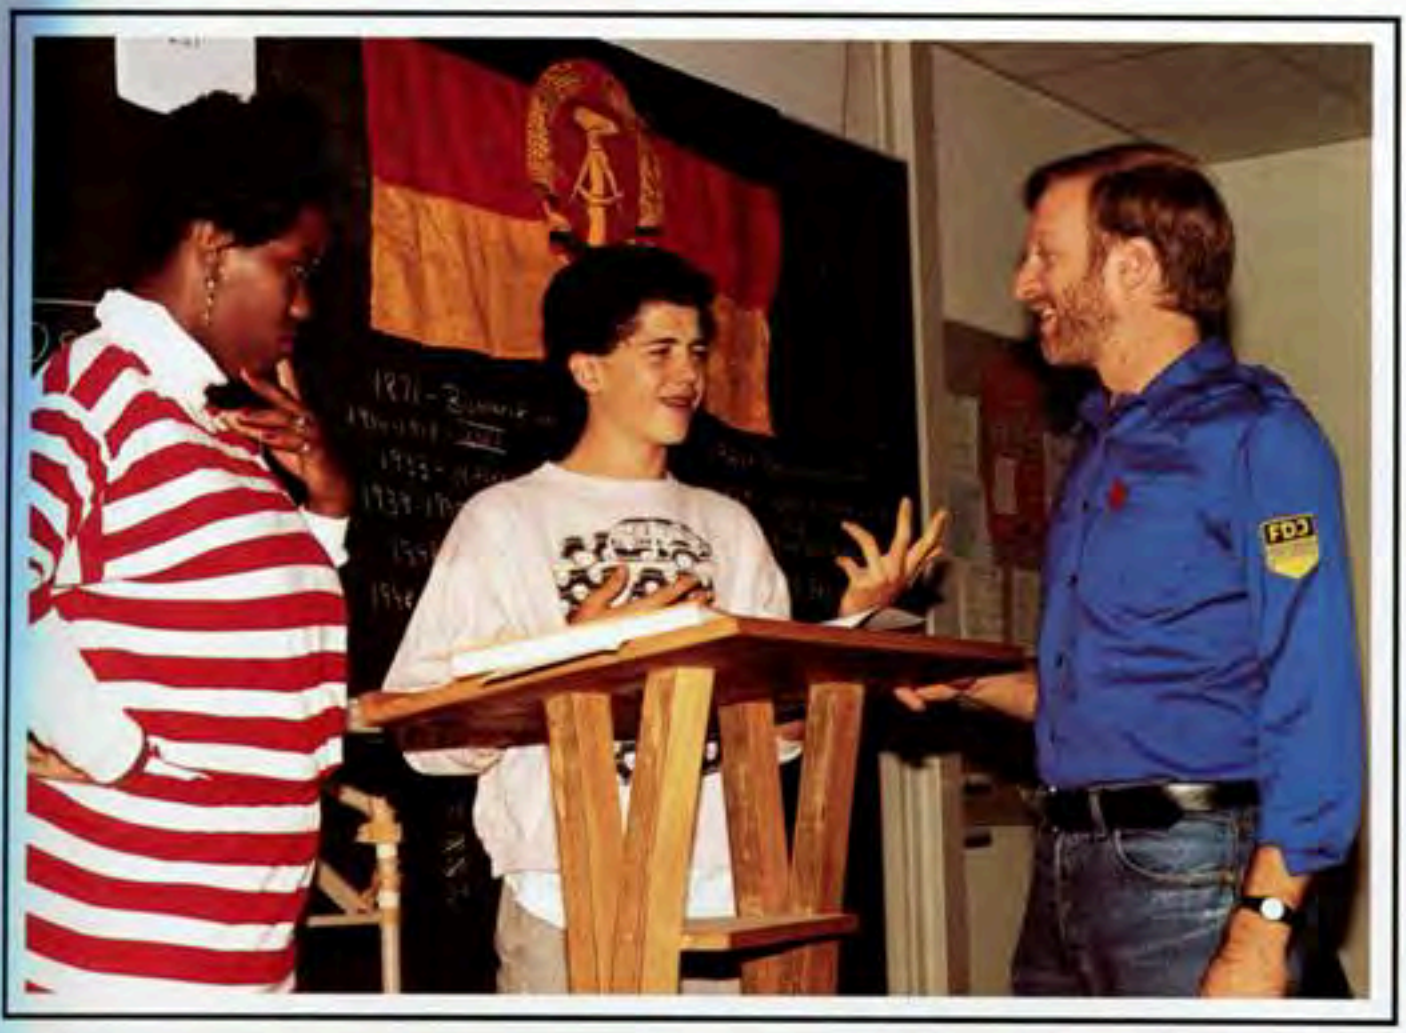
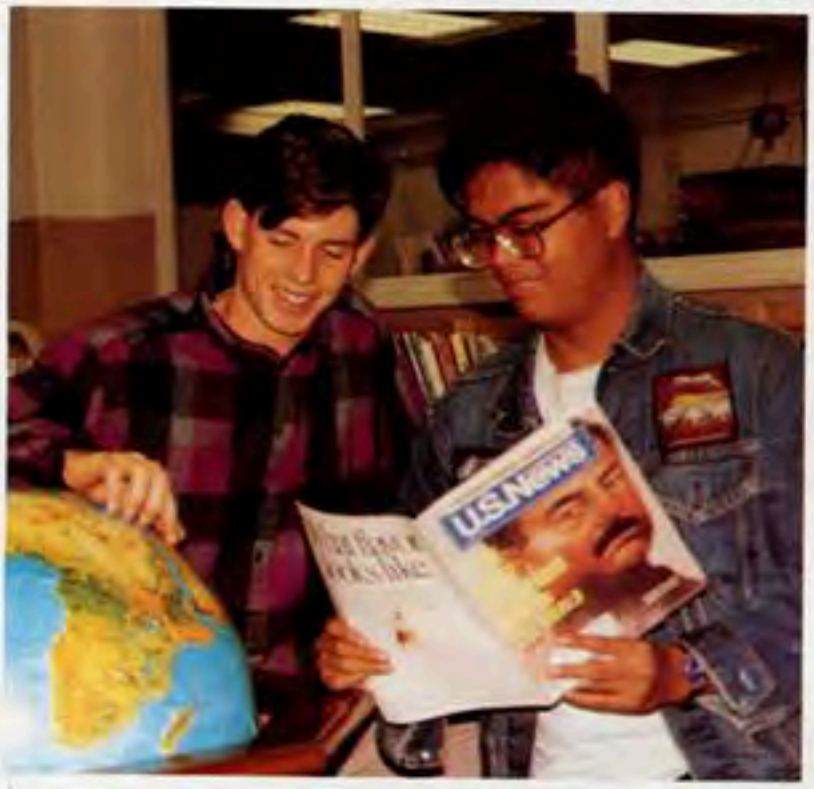
David Goynes, Editor-in-Chief
Mr. Bill Hobbs, Adviser



The faces of change - the change of faces: the world continues to amaze us. Frankfurt keeps an open mind to the future . . .

"Where is this middle East crisis?" senior Jonathan Fallis asks classmate Reggie Agbayani. "It's between Iraq and a hard place," Reggie answers. After this year, the globe suddenly seemed smaller (BELOW).



"And the Wall came tumbling down!" Dr. Peter Fisher, an expert on Eastern affairs, addresses the East German problem in class.

Germany celebrates. The world took notice on Oct. 3, the day of German unification. Marked by a national holiday, DoDDS students also got time off (RIGHT). The past year's events will be a large part of history.

After the fall

Freedom arrives and Europe looks eagerly to the change

After the "crash," mementos of the East Bloc countries appeared everywhere. East Berlin was the sight for longtime DoDDS educators Mrs. Alice Sax and Mr. Don Moriwaki who can remember well the stories associated with the Iron Curtain (TOP). From everywhere, visitors were only too glad to chip way at the historical — and loathsome — Berlin Wall (LEFT). After 45 years, gusts of freedom blew across Europe. It was a sight to remember!

It seemed that it would never come.

But it did. One day last year, the Iron Curtain gave a few final, desperate tosses and dropped. It was the climax to a dreadful scene; it was the final denouement of a very bad production.

While all the world may be a stage, not all the lines are Shakespearean, and Eastern Europe, as we've known it for the past 45 years, is no more.

Freedom — and its accompanying responsibilities — has spread across Europe. Everyone gave a sigh of relief. The Cold War is over.

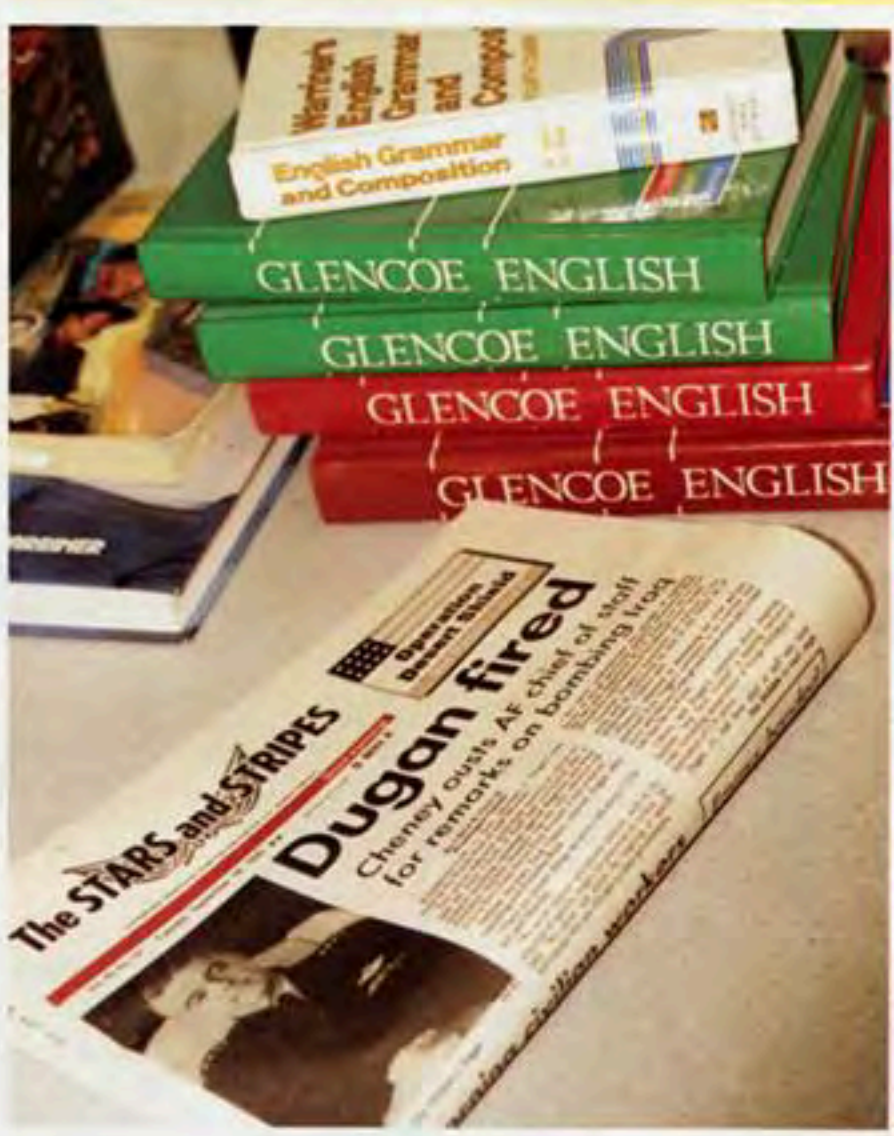
Unfortunately, as soon as one group of people achieved peace and dignity, another group was held hostage to tyranny's evil ways. The words "Desert Shield" and "Saudi Arabia" became everyday terms. Saddam Hussein and Iraq joined the word of villainy as the world faced yet another crisis.

While FAHS rejoiced in the removal of barriers and border guards, concern was expressed for the delicate state of affairs in the Middle East.

Students and teachers alike worked to support Desert Shield operations. The excitement of working together — of practicing real unity and harmony in the face of change — was exciting.

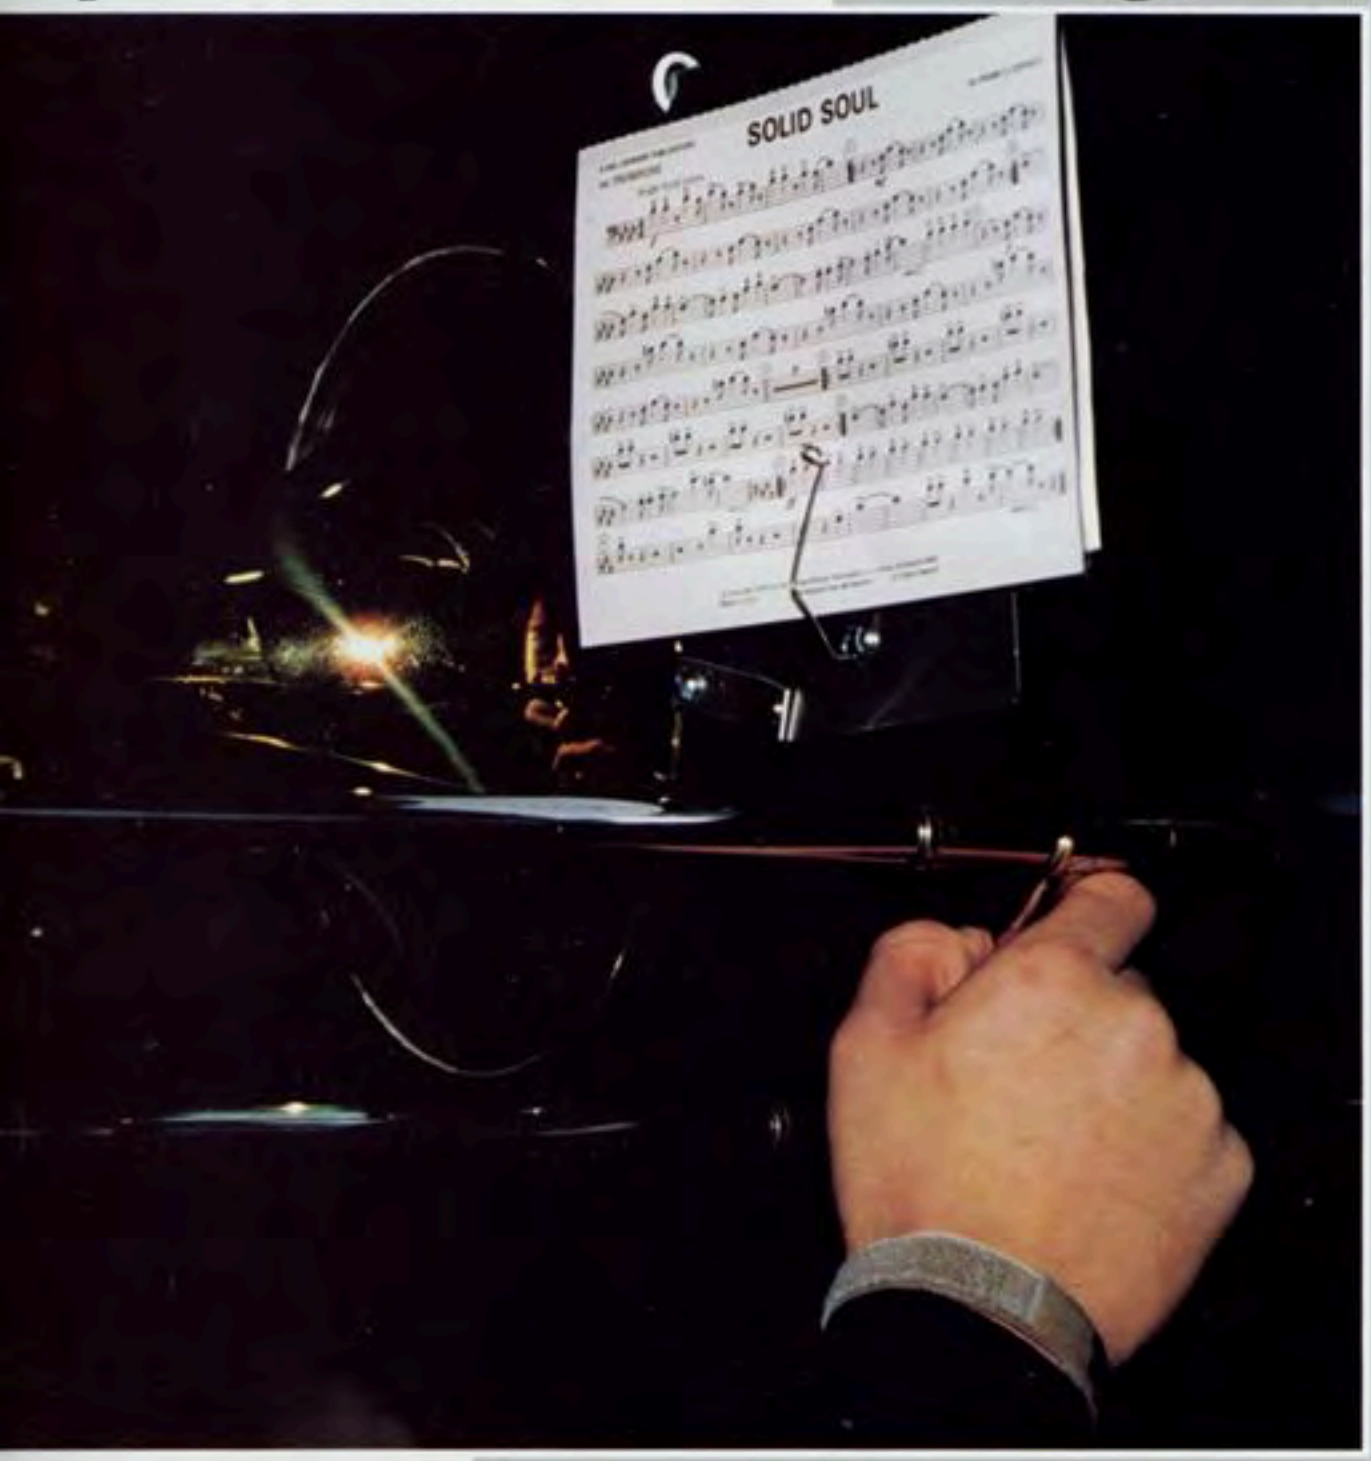
Solid as a rock, Collin Scott eyes the future (BELOW) and senior classmates Natalie Adams and Sheri Boseley keep apace with current events in the Mid East (RIGHT). Students in Frau Peggy Janda-Meier's class read all about unification in the zeitungen (BOTTOM).

Changes are constant, we are told. Frankfurt adapts and welcomes the challenges. The year has promise!



It was not only international events that made history. Frankfurt students helped write the history books, too, as all aspects of campus life were offered from meetings to studying to playing.

Spirit paces Eagle action



Known as "No. 1 Fan" of the Eagles, Principal Edward Siemaszko charted the course of the changes at FAHS. Through his concepts and goals the school's atmosphere has continued to be positive, as students, teachers, and parents came to appreciate his efforts toward school!

Facing historical changes, the school kept pace with developments that will affect us all

After the bell

What made up the day at FAHS?

Each day was unique; and each day brought with it more of the experiences we'll keep.

It was not just work, work, and more homework, but a day that brought with it new challenges.

Roll call and daily announcements started the day as soon as the bell rang (if your class could actually hear a bell!). Then that day's activities began.

(It was not just math — but knowing about Pythagoras; it was not just biology and learning of cell structure, but knowing what those "x" and "y" chromosomes meant!)

By lunch (if you were willing to try the cafeteria's bill of fare) spirits were soaring and joining in a club's program was beneficial.

Then afternoon classes (if you could stay awake!) took over. The hands on the wall clock never seemed to move fast enough!

Finally. It was over. The fun was about to begin: practice, Eagles Landing, Burger King, the bus ride home.

All in the day of a life.

Eagles spend time in variety of leisure pursuits

"Don't forget the Project Close-up meeting today," reads Mr. Arnie Geller in his first period class as Claudette Lewis takes the class roll (RIGHT). "Through deception, the Persians win the second battle," notes Dana Karl in first hour (ABOVE).

Taking a break from class, seniors Kittina Rice and Sonja Reynolds know that FAHS is no Mickey Mouse school (LEFT)! The library served as a place to catch up on all the homework the teachers assigned (BELOW).

Valuable assistance to the school's program were the TAs. Here, David Jenkins, senior, helps out the attendance office.

While no new biological discoveries were made this year, lab work provided a great opportunity for Tanya Phipps to explore the unexamined. The wide range of course offerings made Frankfurt tops academically.

Dozens of activities called to the Eagles — not a moment was spare! It was "happy birthday" for Michelle Frilot (RIGHT) as Yuisa Vasquez and Andy Talbert check out books (BELOW).

The leaves of fall attract Paul Lee who grabs a few minutes of quiet study time (ABOVE). The atmosphere and tone of FAHS suited everyone as the days turned into fast weeks.

Frankfurt business

Students find the time to keep up in all areas of involvement

Posting the colors — members of the JROTC color guard keep alive a long and proud tradition. Old Glory's place in Germany was never more appreciated than it was this year.

Students take center stage

Measure for measure

Activities filled all the extra time Frankfurt students could muster! It seemed that every second was filled with one activity or another. No group could complain!

At times, it was hard to keep up with everything that was going on, from the fall Homecoming and Spirit Week excitement to final plans for the spring's Prom.

Involvement was the password as unity was the theme this year. Students and teachers alike worked together in the shaping of Frankfurt, 1991!

The little "squiggly things" in the solution are important to the analysis of biology student Doug Hand (BELOW).

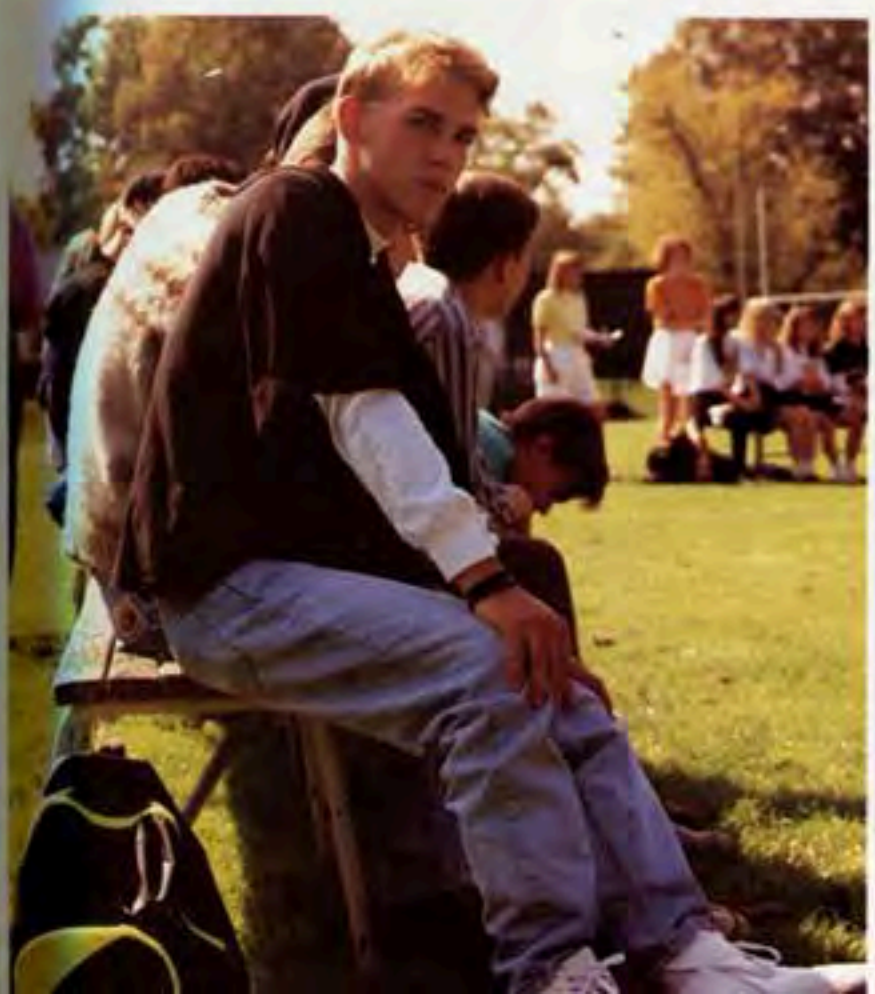
Adding to the Homecoming spirits, a class float enters the stadium (LEFT). The varsity cheerleaders lend support to the Eagles (BELOW) by fielding the "victory banner."



A new activity on the organization scene this year was Pride, sponsored by Ms. Marie Davenport (ABOVE). Some students showed their spirit by coming to an early season pep rally (LEFT).

Health Fair adds flair, lots of fun for students

Nowhere was there greater health concern than at FAHS! In late September, members of the community and the school nurse presented the annual Health Fair. Shane Pennington reads up on his cholesterol (RIGHT), while others (BELOW) check out their own respiratory system functions!

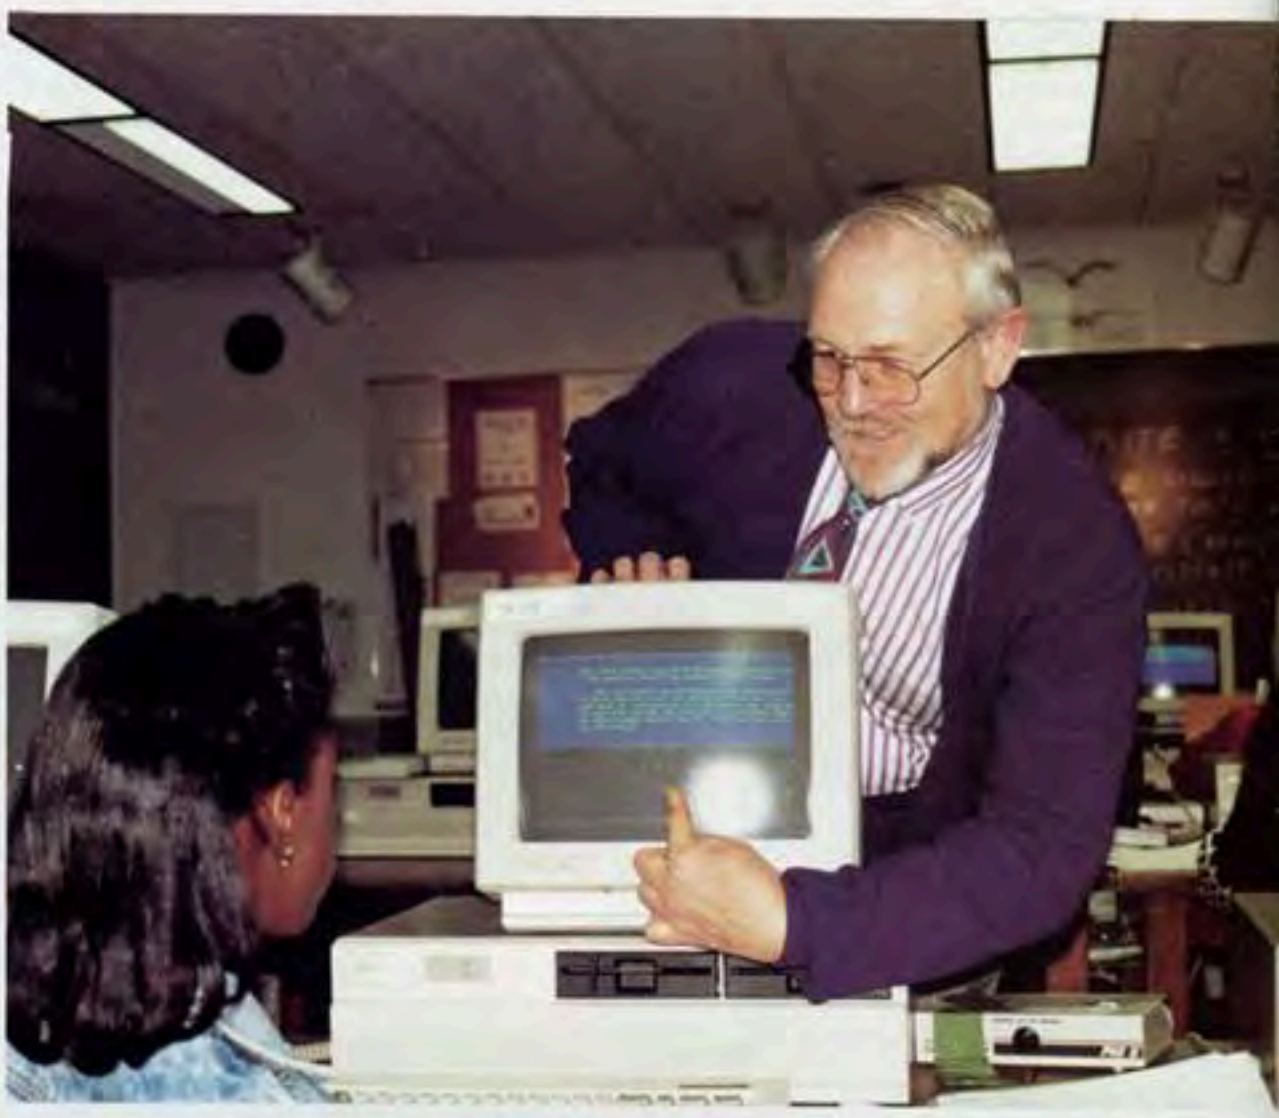
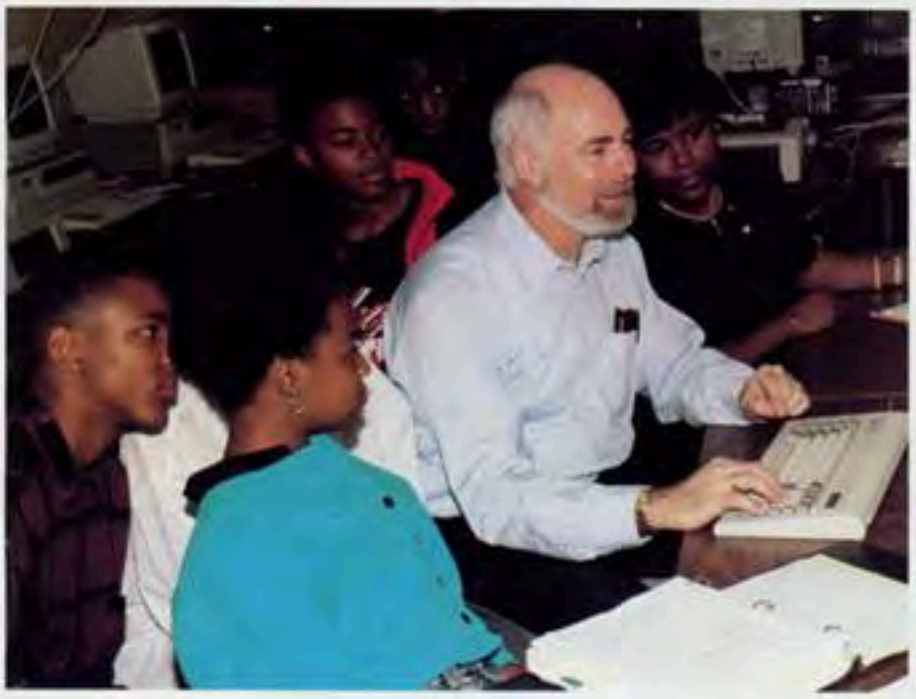
Another first down for star running back Grover Rollins as he leads the Eagle attack over the Red Raiders (RIGHT). The spirit of the Eagles soared as the students united. Dan Breazeale (BELOW) fans up the spirit with a banner, and during a pep assembly. Eagles show their enthusiasm (BOTTOM).

Eagles catch the action!

Sports activities always play a major role in any school. Coach Charlie Toth sends in a play (FAR LEFT) as the assistant coach Bud Olmstead gives a play to Cedric Bailey (LEFT). (BELOW) seniors are always able to get spirited!

Checking for exact wording, Mr. Larry Brunner gives advice on computer matters (RIGHT). Mr. Ken Van Lew scrutinizes a physics finding (BELOW).





Is there a computer virus running loose? Not if Dr. Robert Finders can help it (ABOVE). Here, he helps take a "byte" out of the crime with a little help from his class members. Ms. Pat Cosby (RIGHT) gives some handy advice on the "straight and narrow" educational pathways at Frankfurt!

FA Law

All the "legal" terms and conditions, all the contracts and signed statements made FAHS students court a new attitude!

"All rise for the judge!"

And with a bang of the gavel, a new "court session" began in late August as this year's school term began on time.

Headed by the firm of Ausra, Cosby, Prinz, & Siemaszko, along with the myriad other "legal" officials, Frankfurt High School set forth each day to render sound judgment through moral leadership, swift justice, and unbiased teaching! Each student and teacher had his or her "day" to be heard!

Just like in the TV series, right?

By the time summer had arrived, plenty of rulings and findings were handed down. Fairness, competence, good interpretation, and a sense of fair play were upheld!

Playing lawyer was no small task and the responsibilities were great. While no one felt that FAHS was a "trial," it was a unanimous decision that there were equal opportunity and justice for all!

Mr. Robert Prinz, BELOW, kept charge of the "fiscal" ed. department. Newcomer Ms. Judy Bicknell (RIGHT) gets this year's unfocused Focus picture! (And she promises not to sue!) An English teacher, she prefers short sentences.

Frau Marie Langer and Ms. Mary Leonhart ready themselves for the defense (RIGHT). The school's legal Eagles made every effort to represent their students properly and to see that each of them learned (or else!).

Educators lend a helping hand

Classes

The mainstay of any school is the classes! Students from all over the world came together to amass a great collection of ideas, of purpose, of individuals.

Class of '91

Members eye unification!

Marching to different drummers, yet tooting their own horns, Seniors also had their eyes on their studies. A more industrious class was hard to imagine!

From earth shattering equations in math and science to discussing the tragic flaw of Macbeth to playing and dancing for special assemblies, the members of the Class of '91 did not hesitate to boast of their earned merit and honors!

Years of tradition have preceded this class, and following classes will have to work hard to equate the qualities of the Class of '91!

Senior fever catches on fast - with the only cure: Graduation

Getting down to the business of the day. Grover Rollins reveals all!

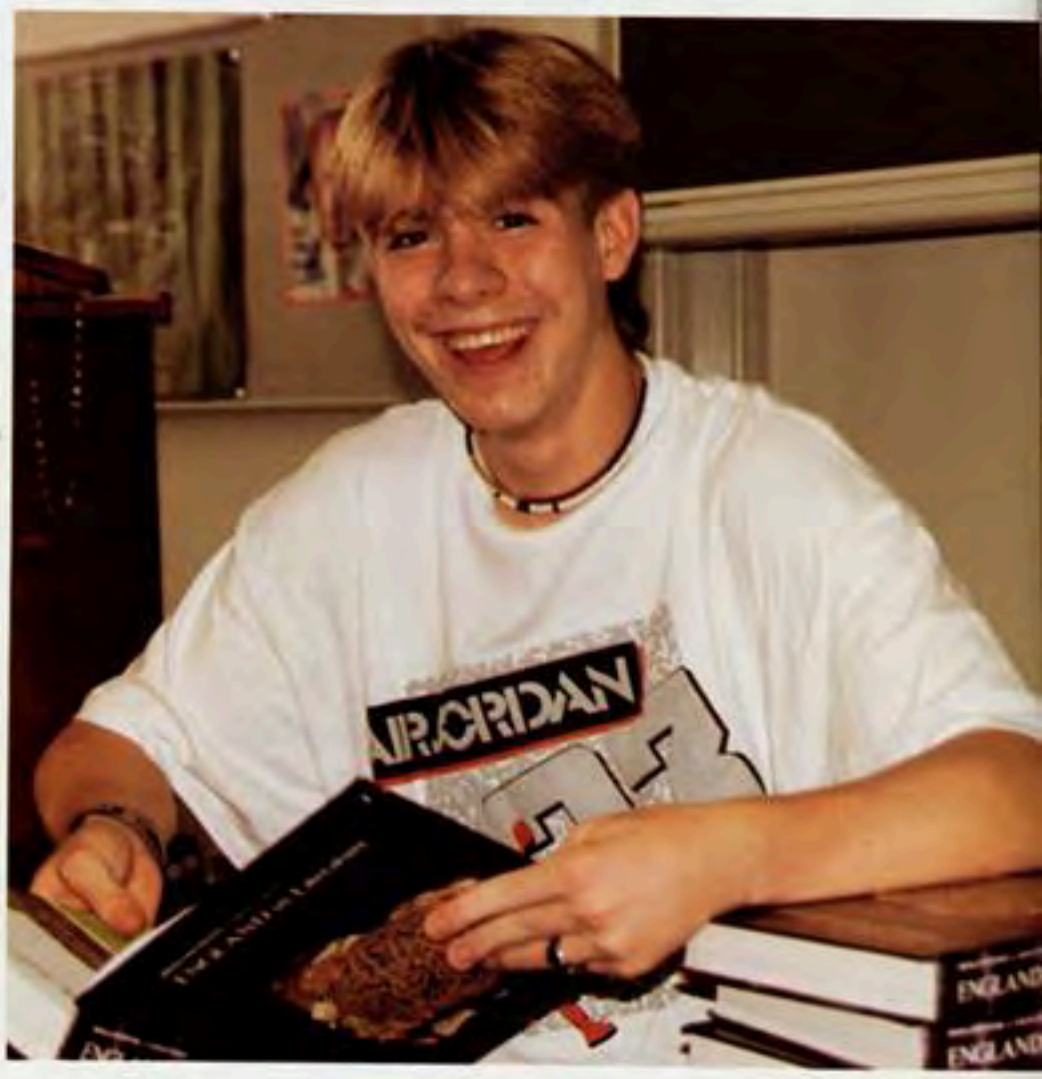
Class members gave strong support! Gretchen Grosick is no exception.

Outside class activities were not the only scene! Michael Cluette finds time to study literature!



For a super class, it takes

Action, Action!

Outside class time for most seniors was set aside for enjoyment — as Michael Berthiaume takes a break to enjoy his favorite pastime!

Among the changes around campus was the strong sense of unity this year's Senior Class exhibited.

And the Class of '91 leaped into the new school year determined to leave a lasting mark in the history book of Frankfurt High.

In a country where "divided" was its middle name for over 45 years, the seniors erected no walls, no curtains, no barrier gates. This year's theme was "unity."

Veteran adviser Ms. Judy McDonald was joined by Mr. Charlie Toth as sponsors and the two helped guide the 250-plus seniors to the final countdown: graduation night!

And keeping up this theme, the Senior Class "adopted" this year's freshman class. A number of seniors "adopted" freshmen counterparts, helping them socially, guiding them through their early days in a large high school, and, in general, seeing to it that the newcomers felt a part, a unified part, of FAHS!

Being a senior was more than just attending class (for those who did!). Action was instilled from the beginning. Class meetings, activities, individual plans merged into a Black and Gold senior year. A strong sense of pride marked all.

It was a year that had its sadness, too. Previous sponsor Mr. Wayne Erdmann's death over the previous summer saddened everyone at FAHS.

It was sad, too, in knowing, that at long last, members would soon be splitting, going their separate ways: some to college, others to join the work force. It was a year to remember!

God and goddesses on parade! Seniors enjoy the time to discuss "impious" behavior or to go into a lengthy Socratic debate on whether the unexamined life is worth living (LEFT).

Maintaining the tradition of decorating the Homecoming float, class member Dacia Bridges "creates" an Eagle (ABOVE). Seniors were more than willing to devote hours to the job.

Seniors everywhere! Emily Ledbetter takes time out from studies on the front patio (RIGHT), as Raquel Martin gets into the Halloween mood (BELOW). The "mark" of the Senior Class will long be remembered!

It was a scene right out of The Iliad — the "goddesses" get set for the Judgement of Paris! Perhaps the largest number ever of seniors donned their togas for the annual tribute to the Greeks and to Homecoming!

First in spirit, Seniors take charge

Once again Albie Peguero shows his homecoming spirit by donning the school's colors. This is his third year at Frankfurt, but Albie remains as enthusiastic as when he first came!

'Late' Seniors get involved

Class activities take up free time, as these members make their contributions

Class of '92

Junior ambition promises a great year

The Class of '92 staked its claims early in the year! Going for the Gold, the class members took even more than their share of prizes. It was a bonanza year for the juniors.

Not that there's a shortage of desks, but Aldwin Manuel and Young Shu Chin find studying is easier in the hallways (BELOW). Juniors also kept pace with the war! Jason Loftis and Bobby Chitwood point out the Iraqi invasion (LEFT).

Full of anticipation with only one year to go, the Juniors raced through time toward the future taking shape before them. Extracurricular activities, commitments,and a lot of tough classes took great effort, as well as preparing for a memorable Prom. The pride and determination of the Class of '92 has made this year memorable.

It's "through the looking glass" for an adventure not for Alice but for Janel DeGuzman who knows (LEFT) the "mirror, mirror on the wall" phrases. It was not "through a glass darkly" for juniors, who were always in the "light"!

Between the bells: a pause to reflect

Exchanging the latest of the latest, Ramsey Farrell and James Moore share a meal during lunch on the "terrace," an in-spot for social gatherings (LEFT). Hausmeister Jim Johnson also contributed to the Junior Class (BELOW).

Class of '93

The Class of '91 set its sights on being a class of successes. Taking in all aspects of the school, the class enjoyed the year. Jennifer Gorman enjoys the Valentines of February (RIGHT). Robert Drake sees his year as a sophomore as "great" (BELOW). Other sophs take time to read (BELOW RIGHT).

Sophomores move up in the world!

Settling into high school and feeling at home in the halls of FAHS, the Class of '93 took time to make their marks for themselves and for everyone at Frankfurt High!

Being overseas brings special experiences and treats. Patrick Costello, new to FAHS in the spring, observes a display of Hessen culture in the media center (TOP). Robert Hedderly thinks hard on a social studies examination (LEFT).

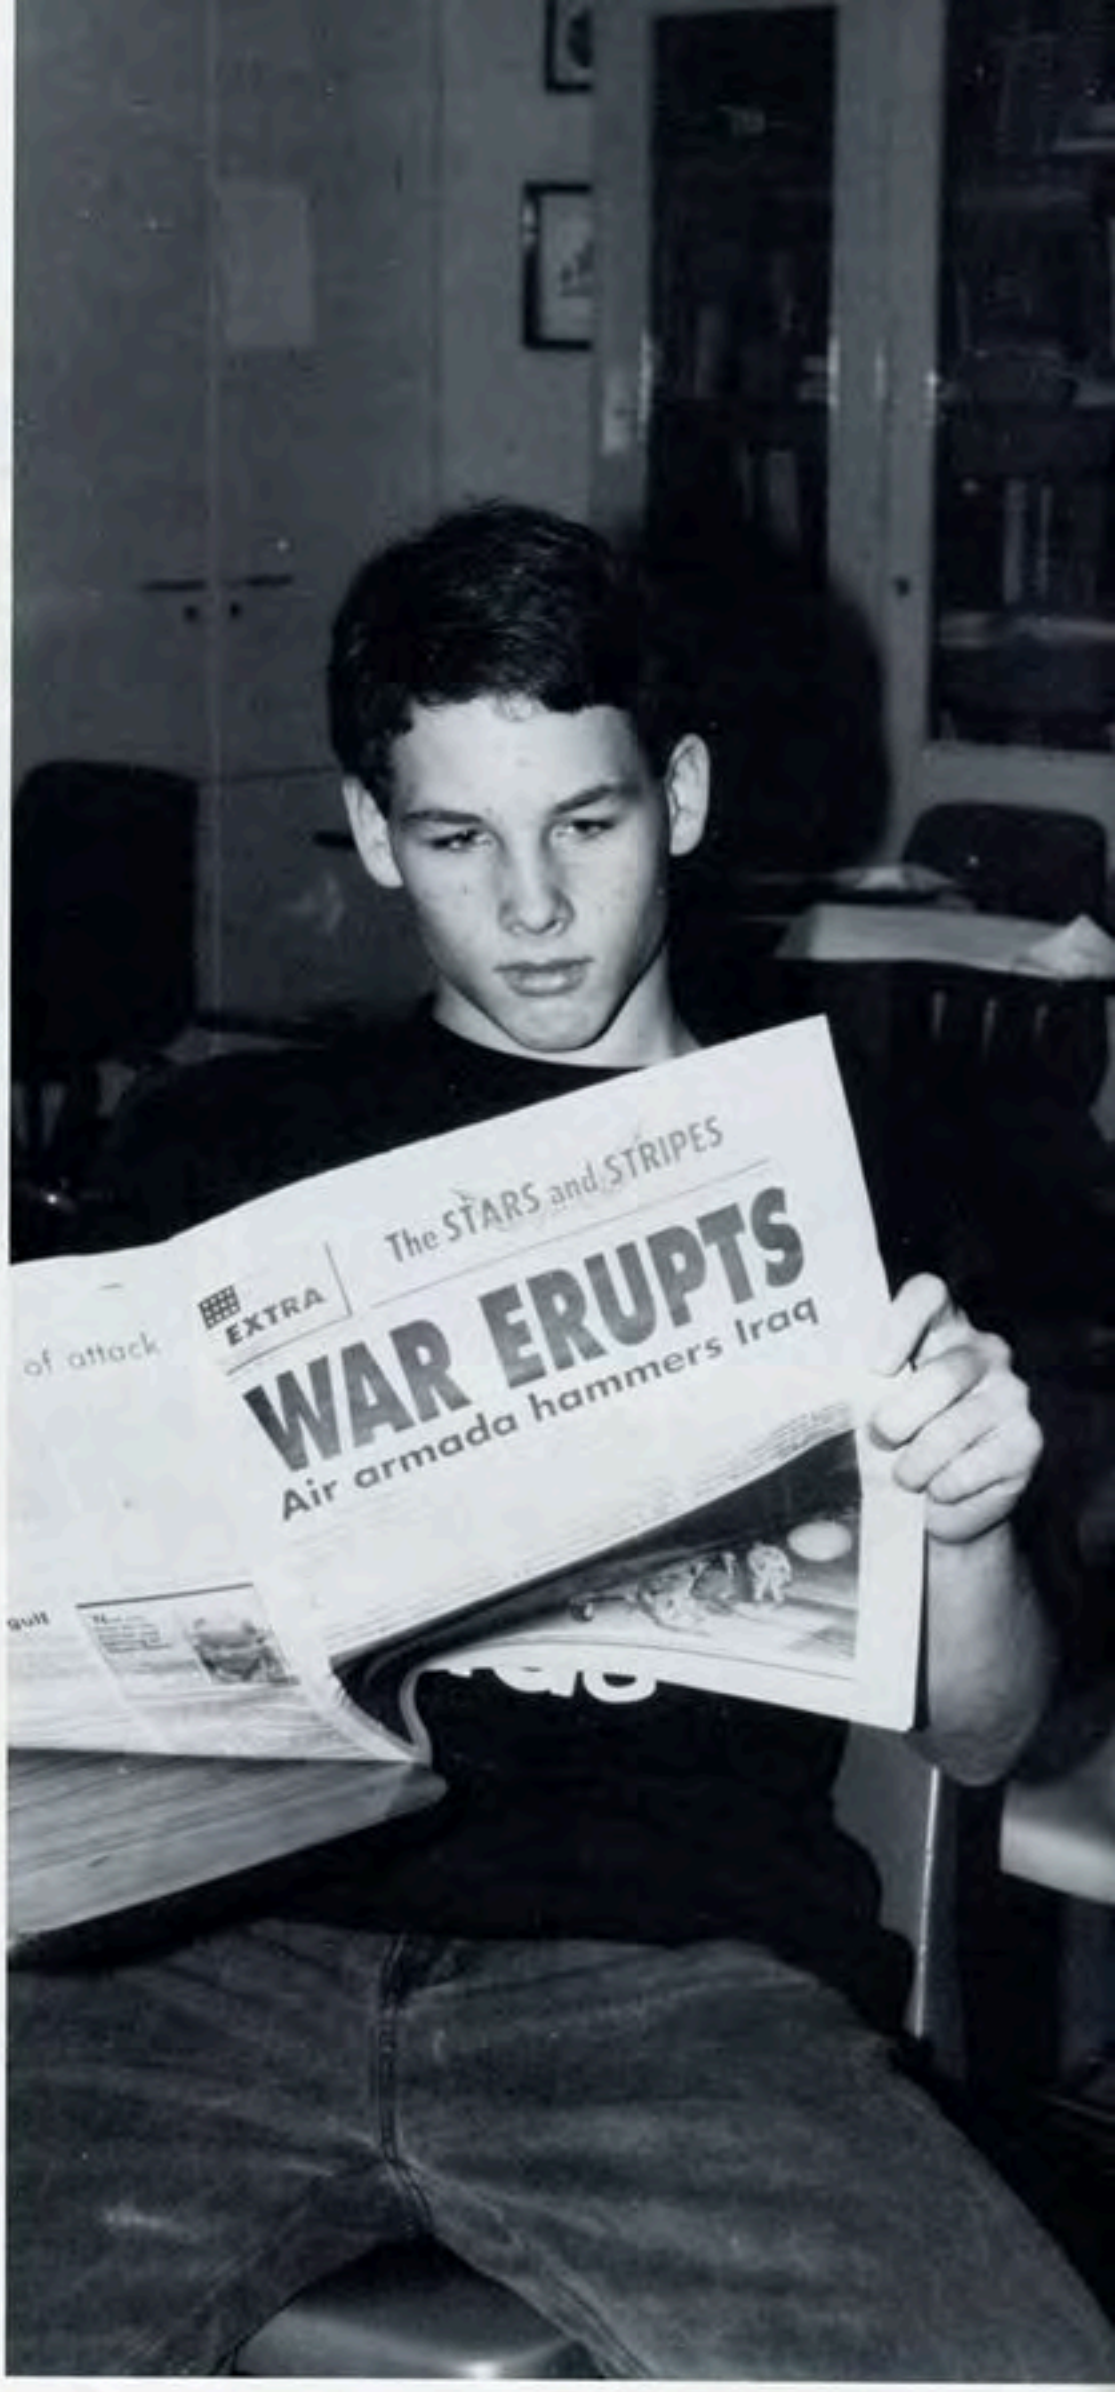
Building, extending personalities

The Sophomores kept the enthusiasm high and the grins wide throughout the 1991 school year. Promising the best Winter Ball yet, their involvement has raised FAHS to new heights. Being the largest class, the Sophomores aimed for overall unity, uniqueness, and talent . . . and achieved it. An impressive lot of students, the Class of '93 has made and left its mark.

Sophomores keep up with 'Storm' news

With loved ones, friends, and fellow Americans deployed to the Persian Gulf, sophomores were also keenly interested in and aware of the war reports as Zachary Kessler (RIGHT) and Michael Edwards (BELOW) scan the papers for the latest.



The media center's video department made tapes for family members deployed to the Gulf as Mrs. Phyllis Gorman directs (TOP). Another student works to set up the monitor for review (LEFT). Amy Linker follows the news in print (ABOVE).

Class of '94

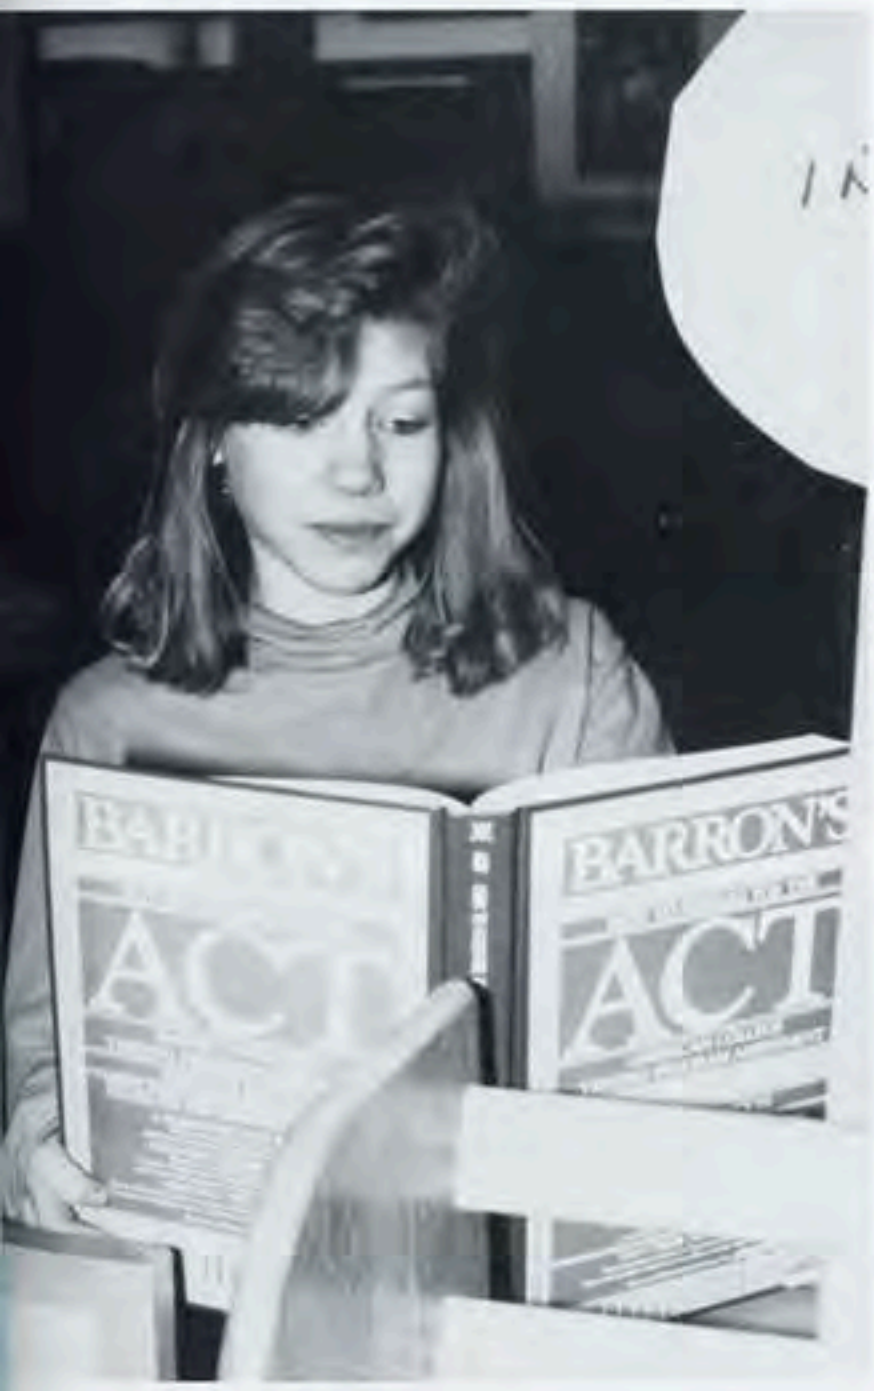
Kicking off the season with the right attitude, class members wasted no time in adjusting to the new demands of the high school (RIGHT). And it was the season to be jolly, as Kris Kappel and Dennis Michelson write holiday cards and wrap their gifts (BELOW) as the year progressed.

Freshmen look to the future of FAHS

At last, in the halls of a real high school! It was no matter that they were the youngest — the Freshmen soon fit into Eagle Land and into the "big picture."

From the very first day of school, members of the Class of '94 were made to feel welcome. This class made its adjustments early and soon became a solid part of the school, from going over the class schedules to supporting our Eagle Spirit!

The signs of the times! Freshmen class members take note. Rico Bell, Jose Rodriguez, and Duane Vaughn read a display (RIGHT). Newly registered classmates get their schedules (BELOW). John Eriksen finds all the information that he needs in the media center card catalogue (BELOW RIGHT).

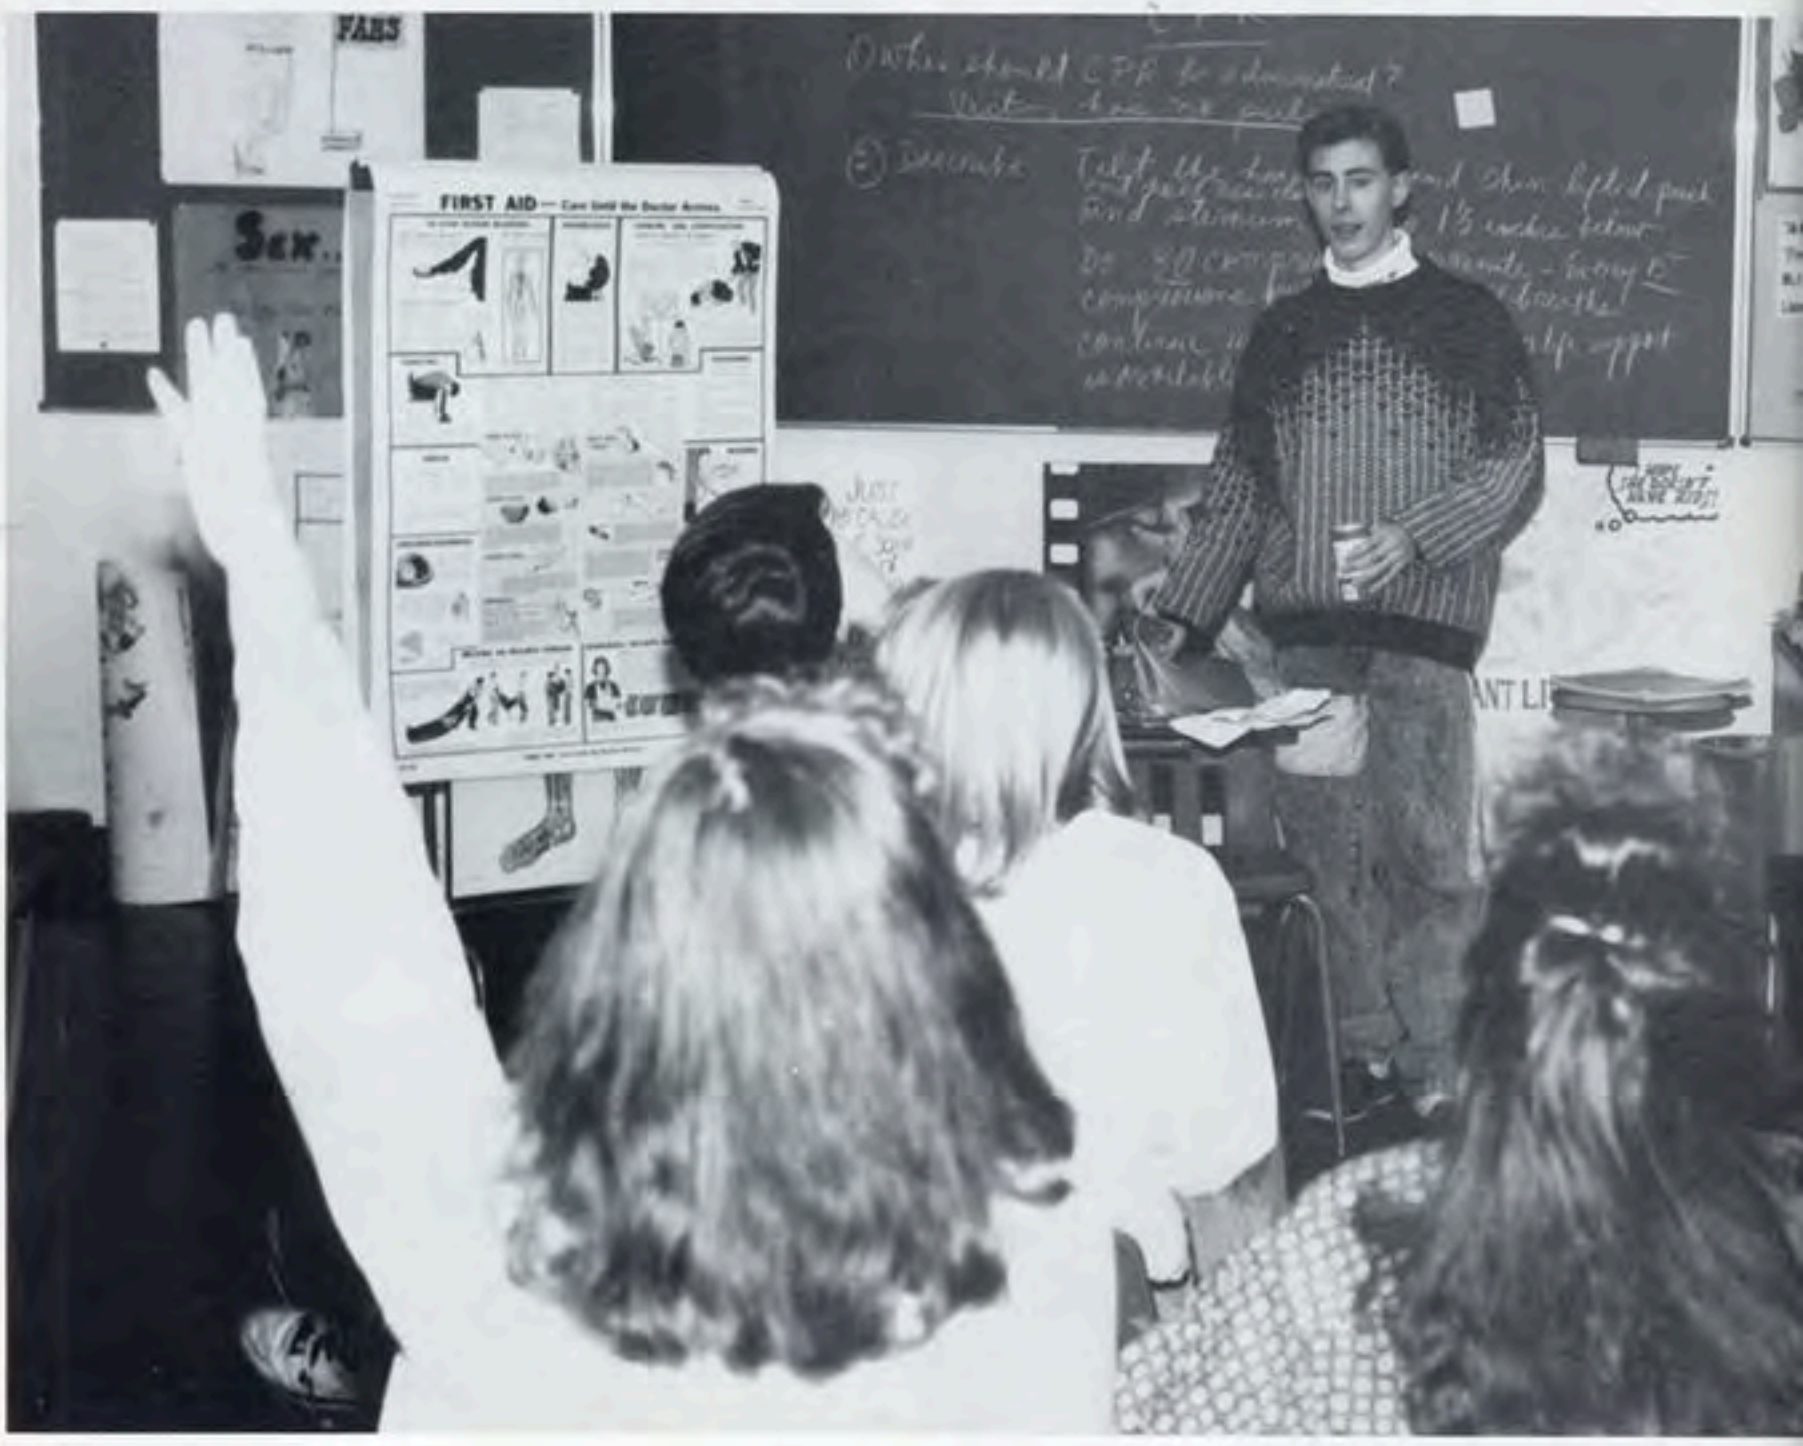


You know you're in high school when you begin to practice your ACT's! Dawn Wahl gets into the habit (LEFT). Scott Buber and Octavia Ivory observe the Dr. King exhibition in the lobby in January (BELOW) as the class showed its awareness.

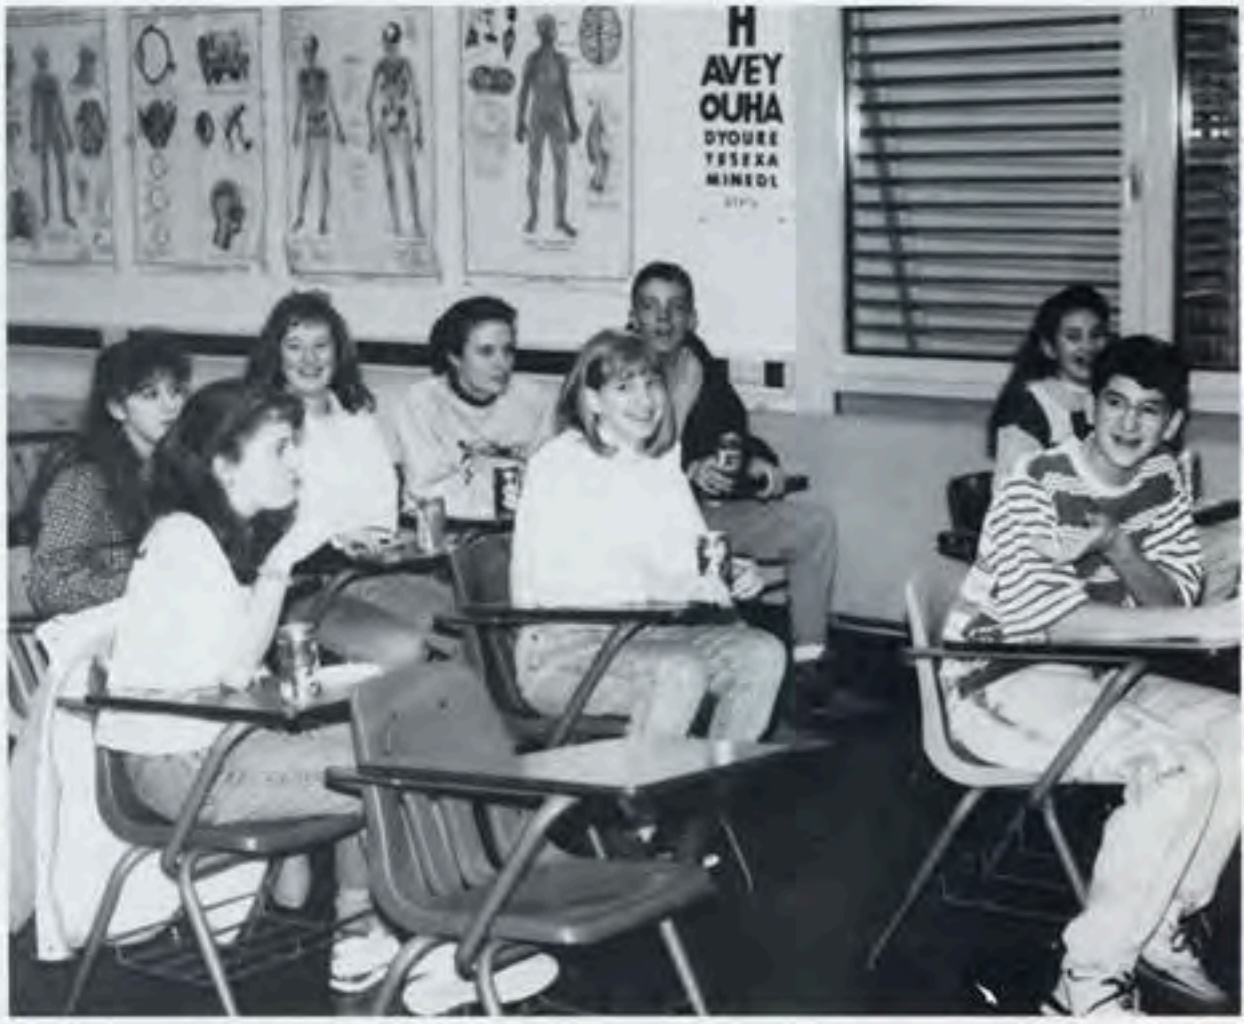
New Smiles in an unfamiliar place

A new year, a different place . . . adjusting to new surroundings, the Freshmen quickly assumed their standing as a prominent class at FAHS. Striving to make the grade, joining new activities for the first time, the Class of '94 quickly proved their worth and dedication. Wtih high spirits, the Freshmen have set a long lasting impression for the years to follow.

It was not exactly creating life, but Ms. Suan Sprunger does work with Anthony Perez on a science experiment (RIGHT). Members of the Freshman Class meet (BELOW) to work on an important issue (an upcoming dance).



Class members work together in Eagle harmony



A few of the "faithful few"—some of the class members who showed up for a class meeting (ABOVE)! Junior Paul Lee assists freshman Telly Specht in overhauling a motor in their small engines class (TOP).

Freshmen face a new environment

Student government is an excellent way to show school pride. Courtney Harvey, treasurer, (BELOW), and Shawn Vincent, president, (RIGHT), are some examples of Freshmen who are active in the school.

FACULTY

Guiding lights, the faculty of FAHS continued to have profound influence on our lives. Caring and professional, they were able to instill much pride and success.

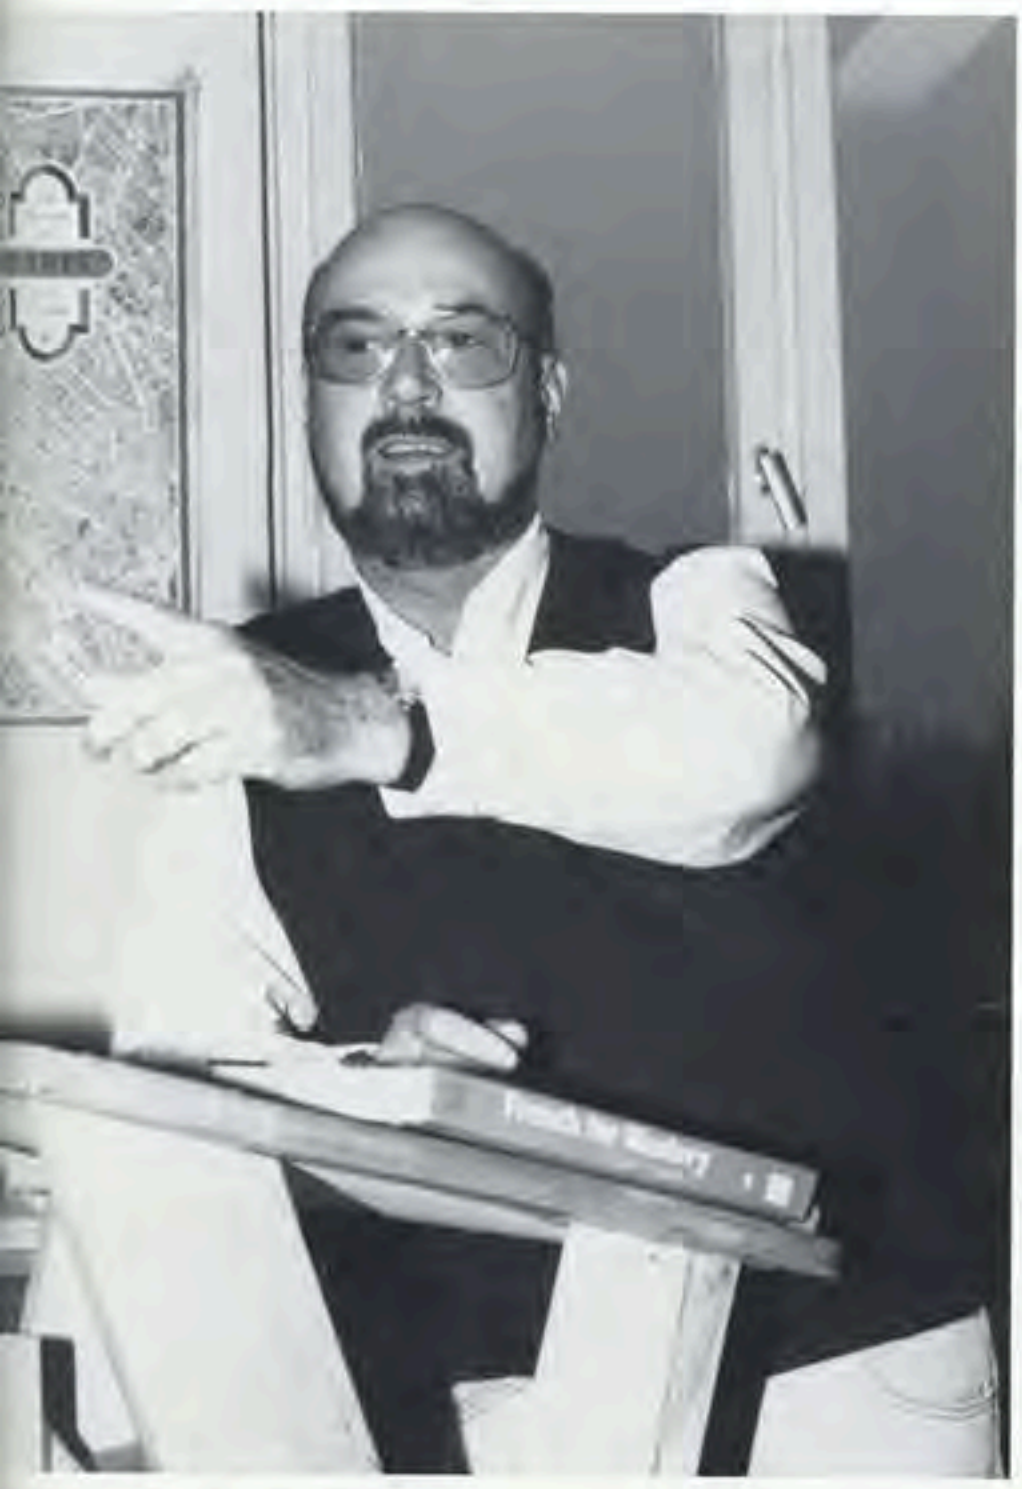
In Memoriam

Mr. Martin (Marty) Miller
1935-1990

Mr. Wayne (Toby) Erdmann
1941-1990

I cannot say, and I will not say
That they are dead. They are just away.
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
They have wandered into an unknown land
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since they linger there.
And you — oh, you, who the wildest yearn
For an old-time step, and the glad return,
Think of them faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here.
Think of them still as the same. I say,
They are not dead — they are just away.

James Whitcomb Riley



History is made as faculty face a unique year

"Draw down," "cut backs," "deployment," "Desert Shield"—a new dictionary could have been published this year. And by this date, it probably would have been out of date!

It kept Frankfurt's finest, otherwise known as the FAHS faculty, on their toes this year, as staff members tried to keep their minds on the curriculum but eyes wide open to the many other aspects of being in Germany in 1991.

And fare well they did, as this group of educators was completely aware of all their reponsibilities. There had not been a year like this one, ever!

Starting with the principal, the tone was set as everyone eyed the crisis in the Mid East and the possibility of troop reductions in Europe. Both topics affected everyone and everyone responded in the best manner possible.

"Uncertainty" was another word that concerned the "family," but as the year continued, adjustments were made—many painfully—and a closer unity could be seen by everyone involved.

Faculty maintains its principles!

Teachers work, play in school's best interests

Mr. Winston Carter assists Michelle Grippo in Mid East studies (LEFT). Ms. Martha Peed readies for afternoon English class (BELOW).

'Top Brass' directs FAHS excellence

High CTBS scores, excellent graduation rates, above average SAT scores, outstanding teacher and student morale—these descriptives sum up this year's administration's accomplishments! Headed by Principal Edward Siemaszko, the FAHS "front office" led the way for another successful school year, despite threats of impending war in the Mid East, tightened security measures, drawdowns, and an occasional "snow day."

Mr. Siemaszko was ably assisted by Mr. George Ausra, Mr. Robert Prinz, and Ms. Patricia Cosby, who combined their own professional expertise to help make Frankfurt run smoothly. All were visible figures at school and students and faculty alike were able to look to them for leadership.

Attendance and discipline, logistical support and advice, monitoring student and teacher progress, and keeping "in touch" with the school in all areas were some of their responsibilities.

With the exception of Mr. Ausra, who has been at FAHS for a number of years, the other administrators have been at FAHS for two years. So far, all rate an "A" for their contributions!

"You're doing great work!" Principal Edward Siemaszko tells the department chairs (TOP). Mrs. Susan Murphy served as a secretary in the fall (ABOVE). Ms. Patricia Cosby (RIGHT) contributes to the FAHS staffing policies.

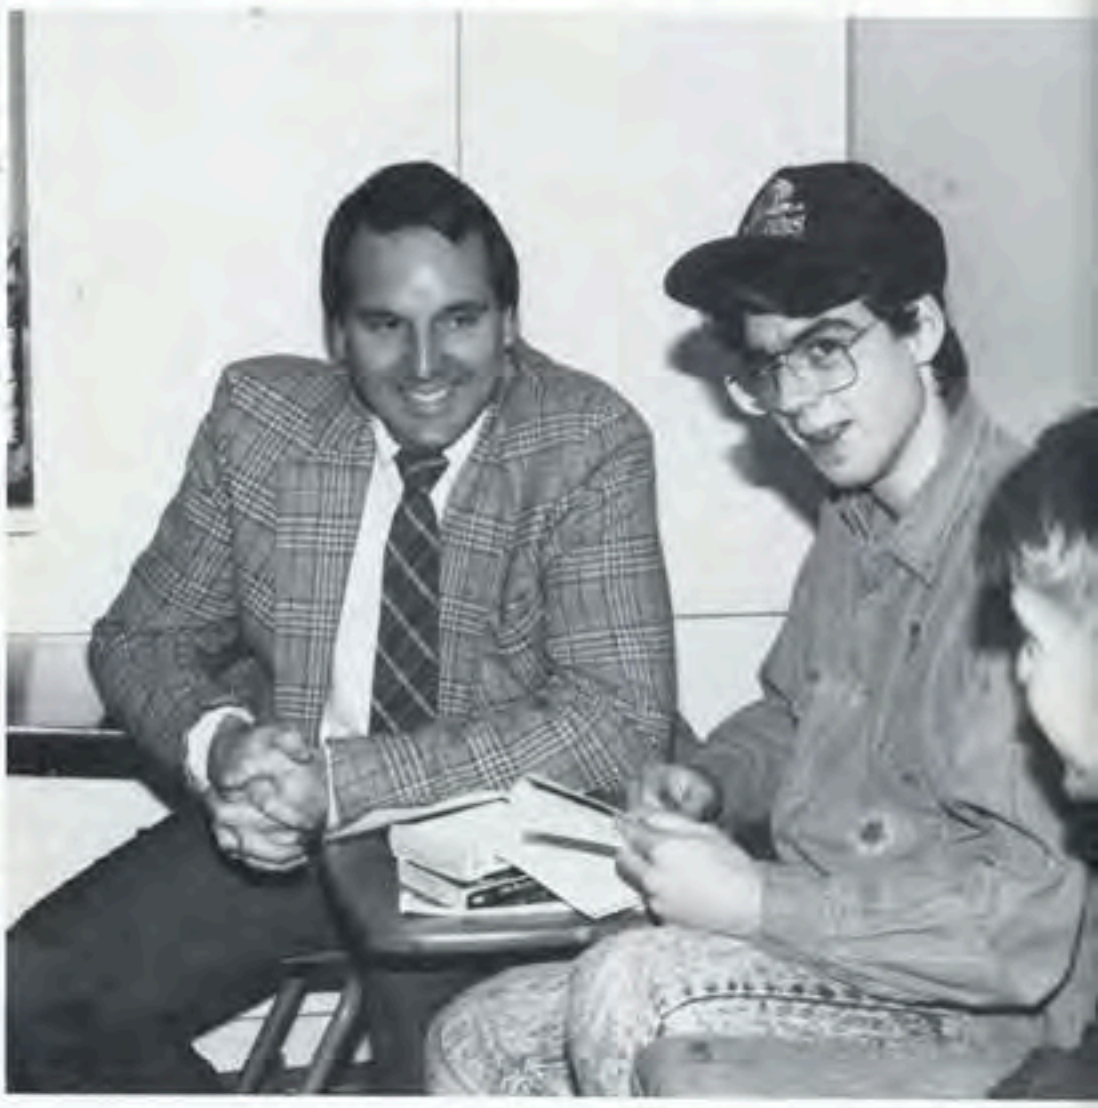
Our Guidance System Works

Thorough counseling procedures were the order of the day! Mr. Dale Potter makes scheduling suggestions to seniors Sean Everett and John Ennis (RIGHT). Mrs. Alice Sax (BELOW) was this year's guidance department chairperson.



CWE Scores!

One of FAHS's most successful activities this year was the Cooperative Work Experience (CWE) program.

Headed by Mr. Sam Galio and Ms. Lisa Arnot, this program provided the students with the opportunity to work outside the school alongside community members as well as to fulfill some of the working responsibilities within the school.

Jobs ranged from working at the Burger King to assisting in the offices of the Vet Clinic to the JAG positions, while others were non-paying, but "easily provided the students with valuable learning experiences," Mr. Galio pointed out.

Students were also able to earn academic credit to meet the DoDDS graduation requirements.

Ms. Lisa Arnot

Counseling office draws high praise

These were the times, perhaps, that tried students' souls, as "draw downs," Desert Storm, and the always-present concern over academic status loomed over everyone's horizons.

Students at FAHS, however, were comfortable in their knowledge that regardless of the problem, they could go to their counselors.

The counseling department was chaired by Mrs. Alice Sax, longtime FAHS member. It was Mrs.. Sax's responsibility to see that all the events under the jurisdiction of the couselors were coordinated.

In addition to individual scheduling of classes, the counselors were available for personal guidance and direction. Of course, students, especially seniors, spent much time there, as college applications and recommendations too much time and consideration.

Other members of the department were Mrs. Sylvia Jerdee and Mr. Dale Potter. Each of the counselors was responsible for certain alphabetical listings of the students.

The department worked closely to assist in the Financial Aid Night and the College Night presentations. Scholarship information was directed through this department.

All in the day's activities—Mrs. Sylvia Jerdee converses with Mr. David Nowlin. The counselors were constantly working among the faculty, students, and parents. It was a massive—but satisfying responsibility!

Ms. Mitzi Allen
Secretary

Ms. Beth Ann Butte
Registrar

Registrar notes!

Accuracy was the key word for this year's registrar! Ms. Beth Ann Butte assumed the role in early fall and in no time had mastered the techniques with ease and success!

Keeping permanent records, recording current grades, and making certain that all grades were posted correctly were only some of the responsibilities of the registrar.

Coordinating requests from stateside schools and keeping track of the numerous records made this job one of great sensitivity! The FAHS office was always "top notch"!

A cheery disposition coupled with a perfect professional atmosphere met anyone who entered this office!

FACULTY RATES HIGH IN THE EYES OF THE STUDENTS

Maintaining just one of the many machines in his classroom, Mr. David Young was never hard "pressed" for activities for his class. Here, Eric Sipe and Matthew Foster finish a press run at the end of a busy day in the Graphics Lab.

Faculty 'becomes' Frankfurt

Attention, faculty!

Your mission, if you are willing to accept it, is to "educate all students in an integrated setting to become responsible, literate, thinking, and contributing members of a global society through excellence in teaching and learning."

Sound difficult? That is exactly what the eclectic accumulation of teachers at FAHS did this past school year. They brought with them a myriad of teaching techniques, philosophies, and experiences to share with the students of this school, who waited agog with anticipation for their "words of wisdom"!

Frankfurt High School is the largest high school in DoDDS worldwide and has existed here in Frankfurt, Germany, since 1946, following World War II.

Over 65 teachers, combined with the administration, counselors, specialists, and staff personnel, met daily to work toward a better education for everyone and to make our school a great place to attend. From algebra to zoology, the teachers made certain their subjects were the best they could be. Statistics showed that the DoDDS schools scored above average over stateside counterparts in all categories that were surveyed.

The faculty of FAHS also donated much of their time to sponsor the plethora of extracurricular activities that were offered at school this year.

The faculty, too, were more than just names on doors. They proved to be caring individuals who were genuinely interested in not only their subject matter but also in the students themselves.

Exchanging teaching techniques and ideas, these faculty members discuss collaborative learning, one of the techniques that DoDDS wanted to implement this year. Teachers were always open to new and innovative methods to add to the classes.

It's "Operation Dessert Shield" for faculty!

Ah, sweet temptation! Mr. Arne Geller demonstrates the fine art of concocting the perfect ice cream sundae. FAHS teachers, administrators, and staff celebrate birthdays at the monthly faculty socials after school.

From Spirit Week, concerts, and selecting class rings.

Activities highlight FAHS

"What's in a name?" That which we call an activity would by any other name be just as exciting!

Besides studies, it was the activities that kept everyone in focus, especially during the trying times of this past year.

From the opening days of August to the closing in June, the spirit of the Eagle reigned. War days, snow days, field trip days to in-school days, everyone worked together to make this year memorable.

Students took time out to do important things — elect the Homecoming Court, select a class ring, donate refreshments for the gate guards, dash through the snow to an annex class — it was all to add up to Year '91, unique in its own right. As the year progressed, adjustments were made. The impending end to the war in the Persian Gulf, friends, and loved ones returning — who could not mark the year as "special"?

At last, '91 — senior Peter Sachs proves it's true. He was only one of some 240 students who were happy to mark this year in their calendar (LEFT). Cheerleaders proclaim another victory as the year rolled off to a great start (BELOW).

FAHS springs 'Operation Rescue' for post GI's

It was "Operation Dessert Storm" here at FAHS! During the days of heightened security and amidst some of the most snow in history, Frankfurt's students came to the rescue.

On numerous occasions, various groups of students brought hot coffee and desserts to the troops who were posted for gate security.

Led by Frau Marie Louise Langer, members of the International Club, German Honor Society, Keyettes, and the yearbook staff brought "cheer" to the soldiers.

Other students and teachers were also into the operation during the year. "It was almost like Christmas," one soldier said. "We really appreciate the support — and the food!"

Seniors elect 'best of the class'

Nowhere were pride and unity more clearly displayed than the Senior Superlative elections!

Class members voted in December for the "best" of their class in seven categories. Over 200 of the class members voted and the results have been kept secret by the yearbook staff until now.

Besides those elected, other female nominees were Lynn Cabral, Erin Hasal, Dana Karl, Caryn Krys, Emily Ledbetter, Kema Luis, Stella Matheos, Kelly McCarty, Tina Rice, Liz Rumsey, Marquel Russell, Tirzah Salmons, Sam Singer, and Yvonne Keys.

Other male nominees were Dan Breazeale, Timo Budarz, Robert Feggans, Ron Hatter, Irvin Johnson, Paul Molnar, Shawn Nighbert, Louis Pointer, Johnny Ross, Anthony Stinsman, Jason Thompson, Eric Von Trotha, Adam Wallen, and Eric Zeigler.

Brain Bowl team notches wins

With questions that would have left a Trivial Pursuit expert rebuffed, this year's FAHS Brain Bowl team faced a formidable challenge!

And by the end of the annual DoDDS Brain Bowl competition in November, the Frankfurt team had found most of the answers! The five-member squad answered enough of the questions to emerge with a 2-2 record, "the best in a number of years," commented one of the members.

Led by senior Neeraj Sharma, the team was composed also of Damon Sanderson, David Irey, Lee Cox, and the alternate Atul Mehta. Mrs. Sue Patrick was the FAHS coach for this event.

Held in nearby Hanau, the Brain Bowl tournament drew 24 DoDDS secondary schools. Competition was very stiff. Opening with a win over Wuerzburg, the team then defeated host Hanau. Losses came at the hands of Zweibruecken and third-place finisher Ramstein.

Competing and interacting with students from other schools were perhaps the highlights of the competition, according to team members.

Serving as the coach and sponsor for the first time, Mrs. Sue Patrick quickly helped shape this year's team. With a lot of patience and good organizational skills, she also provided much support during the Brain Bowl competition.

ORGANIZATIONS

Always a mainstay, the school organizations gave ample opportunity — and reward — to everyone. Good leadership provided a healthy attitude around Frankfurt!

Coordinating the many organizations' activities was only one of the jobs of the Student Council. Mrs. Sunny Willis, Council sponsor, approves requests for a bake sale from members of the Model Harvard Congress club at FAHS (RIGHT).

Organization fund records were maintained by Mr. Thomas Whitney, who takes a deposit from Michael Edmondson (ABOVE). The Thespians, an "act-ive" group, was on center stage at FAHS as usual as Jonathan Shearer villainizes (RIGHT).

FAHS organizations vary

"Variety is the spice of life," and at FAHS, there was plenty of variety as the school's organizations once more met extra-curricular needs.

From the weekly Student Council meetings to daily sessions of yearbook and newspaper work, students were able to spend some of their energy in making our school as well-rounded as possible.

From community service projects to tutoring classmates to decorating the halls to boost Eagle spirit, there was always a member or an adviser on hand after school and on the weekends insuring the traditions that have long labeled Frankfurt as a school that made "excellence" a familiar word.

Despite the threats of world uncertainty that made us all a bit nervous at times, students and faculty maintained a strong, positive attitude of harmony and unity throughout the year.

Nine Frankfurt students were selected from among DoDDS students to attend Challenge '90, a three-week summer seminar held in London. Sponsored by DePauw University, the seminar offered subjects such as physics, trigonometry, and astronomy. Frankfurt, the largest delegation present, was represented by: Front Row: Mylinda Bryan, Barbara Berdecia, Luisa Choi, Neera Sharma. Hard work and responsibility equal fun-filled efforts Tradition is upheld. A new member (Dimitri Cassimatis) is escorted by Lynn Cabral during fall inductions of the National Honor Society (LEFT). FAHS' reputation for producing top scholars is known throughout the DoDDS system.

Not the Flying Nun, senior Emily Ledbetter charms the audience in the fall melodrama production by the drama department. Proclaiming her innocence but fearing the villain, she is soon rewarded by the goodness and justice every heroine deserves! FAHS' Thespians scored high in international circles.

Council addresses student concerns

It was a new year for the FAHS Student Council! A new adviser and a year of international strife were the two major areas that this year's Council faced — and on both accounts, the FAHS student governing body addressed positively and yet differently these opportunities.

Mrs. Sunny Willis assumed the responsibilities of this year's Council and members were pleased with the positive attitude and pleasant demeanor she contributed to this year's body. "Mrs. Willis provided a spark for us all," claimed President Erin Hasal. It was Erin's responsibility to see that the FAHS legislative concerns were met.

Some 100 students obtained the necessary signatures to qualify as senators. Meetings were held each Wednesday to discuss student and school concerns and to plan activities that related to Frankfurt High School.

Other officers were Tirzah Salmons (vice president), Lisa Sanchez (recording secretary), Jennifer Perkins (corresponding secretary), and Jennifer Blain (treasurer).

The Council was responsible for the Homecoming celebrations, election of next year's class officers, greeting each class at the beginning of the year, the Ten-pfenning Drive to provide coins for the Desert Shield soldiers, and the annual hospital visitations at Christmas.

This year's Council tried "to involve as many FAHS students as possible in activities of all kinds," Mrs. Willis said, and "to support each organization as well as to keep in touch with the national organization."

"I pledge myself to uphold the high purposes of the National Honor Society" repeat inductees at the fall ceremony, administered by Ms. Patricia Cosby.

Society honors national standards

Character, service, leadership and scholarship — four traits all National Honor Society members must possess. FAHS's chapter was no exception!

Two inductions (fall and spring) kept alive this honored tradition. Ms. Carolyn Thomas advised again this year. Neeraj Sharma was president during the fall term and Ben Wallen assumed the presidency upon Neeraj's stateside departure in December.

OTHER OFFICERS INCLUDED Stefanie Steiner (secretary) and John Ferrie (treasurer).

The faculty selection committee was comprised of Mr. Al Brunner, Mr. Bill Hobbs, Mr. Dan Holmquist, Mr. Ken Van Lew, and Frau Maria Langer. These members were responsible for making final membership selections for both semesters' inductions.

Eagle band plays, marches to success

Sounds to live with: the band plays on!

The sounds were never so sweet! The Fighting Eagle band marched and played to new heights this year — a long-time tradition for Frankfurt High School.

The band was "instrumental" in providing sound pep music during the fall sports assemblies and at the home football games. Inside, the concert band members scored musical success with the oft-postponed winter concert. It was worth the wait, however, for the sounds of winter resounded! Mr. Kent Yardley served as the director of the band once again this year and is to be credited for directing this success!

Members of the concert band pause during the tune-up exercises during the winter concert at RIGHT. While the concert had to be postponed due to inclement weather, the audience was impressed! BELOW: the 1991 concert band.

Marching, marching, marching followed a lot of practice, practice, practice! The spirits of Homecoming were certainly lifted by the soaring sounds of the Fighting Eagle band. Once again, FAHS musical tradition was maintained.

Curtains rise early as drama department sets FAHS stage

Up went the curtain and it was center stage for the FAHS drama department and Thespian members. Once more, Frankfurt "tripped the light fantastic" in international circles, walzing away with top honors.

In the fall, the troopers trouped across town to the ISTA festival held at FIS Nov. 16-19 where students performed their one-act melodrama "He Ain't Done Right by Me," as well as individual and ensemble presentations.

Later, the ISTA cast gave a special assembly for classmates at FAHS. "The Good Woman of Czechuan" and a song-and-dance from the musical "A Chorus Line" were among the other on-stage attractions.

In the spring, the dramatists entered the DoDDS fests with three productions: "Five Days," "Joyful Noise," and "Many Moons," as well as individual acts.

In addition, members also performed during National Library Week with shows at four of the area DoDDS elementary schools.

Mrs. Noel Feeney, assisted by Ms. Elizabeth Homann, directed the FAHS productions this year. Presiding over the Drama Club/Thespians was Emilie Ledbetter.

Senior Emily Ledbetter "made the scene" this year as Drama Club president. It was through her efforts in leading the drama students and in working with the adviser that helped keep up the FAHS tradition of theatre excellence.

Chris Ward, Emilie Ledbetter, and Tricia Brukardt try to right wrongs in "He Ain't Done Right by Me" (BELOW) in the school assembly of the ISTA production. Stephanie McCaslin (RIGHT) is "The Good Woman of Czechuan," also on the ISTA fare.

Marching in to set the tone for the fall National Honor Society inductions, the 1991 Melloteens continued its tradition of musical excellence this year.

Melloteens add musical spark!

While "Tradition" is a famous song from "Fiddler on the Roof," tradition also is part of the FAHS choral program — and it's still very much alive at Frankfurt! Once again, Melloteens, composed of the very best of our musically talented students, lived up to its reputation as being the "best".

Directed by Mrs. Karen LaCrosse, the choral students sang far and wide in our area, performing numerous concerts not only for our school, but also for the community. Despite strong winter conditions, the group braved the elements to serenade at the community Christmas tree lighting and, despite continued inclement conditions, gave the annual winter concert.

Performances also included both the spring and fall National Honor Society inductions, the special Martin Luther King, Jr./Black History Month assembly, and wound up the year by singing at graduation exercises.

Other activities included the area AWCF Thanksgiving luncheon, the MILCOM Christmas party, the spring concert, the jr. high concert tour, the annual variety show, and the spring performing arts banquet.

In mid-year, the DoDDS Honor Chorus was announced and FAHS placed six on this august list.

The Melloteens were led by President Chi-chi Bevens, Vice President John Rutland, Secretary Kathy Gilbert, and treasurer Claudette Lewis.

For the third year, Mrs. Karen LaCrosse was the choral director of Melloteens, FAHS' acclaimed chorus. Here, she goes over a score with Brad Boisvert, as they rehearse a number which will be included in their annual winter concert.

Choir lands six on All Honor Chorus

Keeping an eye on the news around campus was Editor Sonya Battles, who headed up a team of "roving reporters" (RIGHT). Mr. David Miller took over duties as the advisor (BELOW) of this year's FAHS student newspaper, the Eagles Echo.

A new image, a new staff, and a new news policy greeted FAHS this fall with the first edition of the Eagles Echo.

Headed by Editor Sonya Battles and new advisor Mr. David Miller, the newspaper staff and its all-volunteer members "covered" the campus in a responsible manner, looking for more in-depth reporting and sound writing.

The students responded with vigor! Mr. David Young and his graphics classes "pressed" into action and the new format was both pleasing and professional in appearance. Gone were the crooked paste-up lines and gossip columns and song dedications of days of yesteryear!

The 20-member reporting staff met daily before school to plan for their upcoming editions.

In the fall, members attended the annual DoDDS-Germany journalism conference in Nurnberg, where Tracy Tate won first place in editorial writing.

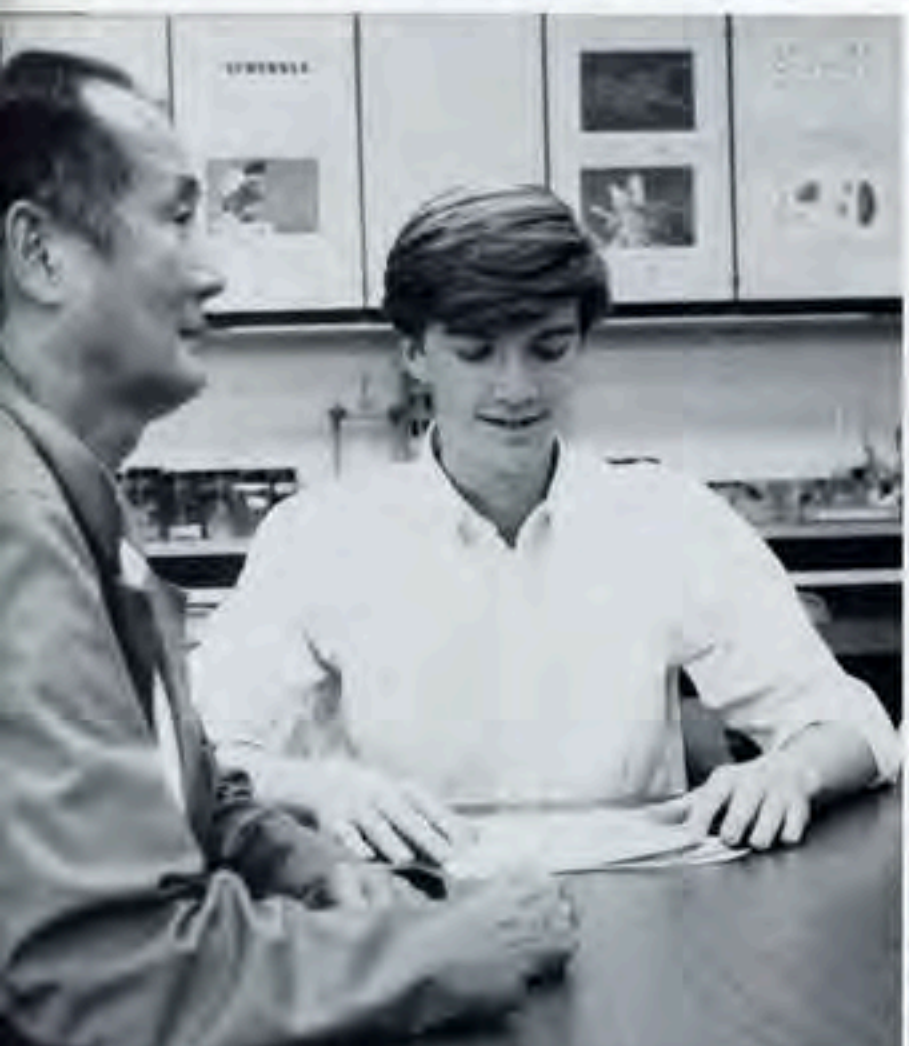
Members note NATO contributions



The past two years have been increasingly significant historically. As the Iron Curtain folded and the Persian Gulf exploded, it was increasingly clear how important NATO was.

At FAHS, the Model NATO organization continued its study. Led by senior Adam Wallen, who was the secretary-general, the 30-member delegation met weekly to plan its activities and to earn money for their projects.

In February, the group attended orientation at NATO headquarters in Brussels, where they met with ambassadors and foreign ministers of member nations. In March, a simulation exercise was held.

"The role of NATO in peacetime following the collapse of the Warsaw Pact took on a new, but more important role," commented veteran adviser Mr. Don Moriwaki, in his 10th year as FAHS adviser.

Chris Hannah was deputy general, Holly Wheeler was secretary, and Neil Wharton served as treasurer.

In May, the group journeyed to Budapest for its annual study trip. Membership was open to all students at FAHS, regardless of grade, according to Mr. Moriwaki.

Amnesty works for a peaceful world

For the students of today there are very few ways in which they can express and support their political views. For students who wish to take a serious stand on their views there is the organization Amnesty International.

Amnesty International, at only a year old, has taken an active interest in human rights and political situations of the world. Although there are many teenagers who don't know a thing about politics, there were 20 individuals who showed their interest every Friday at the meetings of Amnesty International.

President Stella Matheos, Vice president Erin Hasal, Secretary Caryn Krys, and Treasurer Balvinder Kainth as the same officers from last year, assured a harmonious existence of the organization.

Although the officers were the same as last year's the sponsors, Mr. Ioan Pop and Mr. Robert Holczer, were newcomers to Amnesty International. Their experience and views were a welcome sight to all the members.

To maintain their charter with the Amnesty International Bureau, the members planned to sell Christmas cards and engage in debates. They also planned to have guest speakers.

As the president of Amnesty International, Stella Matheos (RIGHT) must keep up on the current events of the world. To be serious about their views the members of Amnesty made sure that their facts were straight!

Project takes a close up look at Washington DC

For a dozen Frankfurt students making a trip to Washington DC to get a first-hand look at the workings of our federal government, it is a chance of a lifetime. This group is Project Close-Up and has been active here for nine years.

After months of study, plus hours of time spent earning the money to pay for the trip, these students and their adviser, Mr. Don Moriwaki, boarded a transatlantic flight on March 23.

On this field trip, the students — all seniors — were given tours of the U.S. capital, which included the Capitol, as well as other federal buildings, and opportunities to meet with Congress members and other federal employees.

Jason Snipes headed Project Close-Up as president. Other officers were Dimitri Cassimatis, vice president; Lynn Cabral, secretary; and Jennifer Blain, treasurer.

World traveler and longtime government teacher and Project Close-Up adviser, Mr. Don Moriwaki takes the opportunity last year to chip away at the Berlin Wall, now only a historical memory, one which played an important role for all of us.

Keyettes make '91 an active year!

For every occasion, a Keyette was ready to serve!

For FAHS, the service organization Keyettes provided one of the most visible and most active groups at school. From mum sales at Homecoming to the school-wide Toys for Tots to helping support the Operation Desert Storm campaign with letters and packages, the Keyettes were ready, willing, and able.

Led by President Nyree Reeves, the group of some 30 members provided thoughtfulness and cheer.

Miss Mary Leonhart was the faculty adviser who was responsible for coordinating the various events. The group met every two weeks — "And on special occasions," explained President Reeves — to maintain their "alert" status. This status was "to learn compassion for others who are less fortunate and to make the school and community better places to live," according to the club's stated objectives.

Other officers were Vice president Tykeisha Dixon, Secretary Max Duke, and Treasurer Carol Aguon.

"Tis the season to be festive," President Nyree Reeves looks over Christmas designs that Tykeisha Dixon (vice president) has made for hall decorations. Keyette members were busy throughout the year, with one beneficial project or another!

International Club brushes up on culture

The biweekly meetings of the International Club centered on interest in aiding senior citizens' residences in the Frankfurt area and gaining more knowledge of world culture. Every Christmas and Easter, the members of the International Club visit a retirement home to bring a little happiness to the elderly who live there, presenting gifts and adorning the halls and rooms with festive ornaments. Sponsoring this well-meaning organization was Frau Marie-Luise Langer, who encouraged participation in the trip to the home and preparations for this benevolent event. President Dimitri Cassimatis and Vice president Corinna Kissner organized the selling of cards and candy at Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter to help pay for supplies that would be used to make gifts for the German senior citizens of Frankfurt.

The other officers, including Secretary Kaye Wissel, Treasurer Tammy Willner, and Historian Stefanie Steiner, worked diligently to assemble cards and decorations, and many of the club's 20 members contributed new ideas on how to experience true German "Kultur."

Model Harvard Congress, a sizeable and reputable club at Frankfurt High School, gives students the advantage to practice parliamentary procedure and to apply their knowledge of the United States Congress.

Simulation exercises with Ms. Judy McDonald's AP U.S. history class prepared members of MHC for the annual conference held at the Parliament Center in Luxembourg.

President Peter Eitel and Vice president Jon Skidmore cooperate with Mr. Don Moriwaki to better the organization's skills as future American congressmen.

Juniors and seniors gave up several lunch hours to sell snacks, drinks, and sandwiches, and organized bake sales to fund their three-day trip.

Selected members attended the conference in March.

Jr. NAACP joins FAHS organizations

Newest group enhances wider cultural interests

Adding another dimension to the FAHS group of organizations was the establishment of the Jr. NAACP during the fall. Led by President Teona Thomas and charter-sponsor Mr. Robert Hancock, the 30 members met weekly to establish firmly this club's foundations.

Our aim was to get all races involved in groups that help themselves and other people too," stated President Thomas.

The once-a-week meetings were well attended as student interest was high. Stressing education and involvement, the club planned a guest speaker for Black History Month.

Other officers were Kitina Rice (vice president), Cielo Dula (secretary), and Myckeldrea Cox (treasurer).

Dances and bake sales were planned in order to help raise funds for the club's activities.

Cultural awareness and more involvement were stressed during the year as the Jr. NAACP got off to a strong start. To increase the number of student members was also one of the club's objectives. Already, members are looking forward to a second, successful year!

Making FAHS history as the first president of the Jr. NAACP was Teona Thomas (RIGHT), who spent much time and energy in getting the club started. Members were able to meet regularly to discuss cultural interests.

FBLA notches national, local recognition

Giving the "business" to FAHS this year was the Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) club.

The 60-member group met regularly during the year to accomplish their projects. In the fall, the group planned "to sell chain links in order to donate the link to the school's Christmas tree," according to club officials. Everyone at FAHS was able to appreciate this holiday spirit and effort!

In addition, the FBLA helped the Student Council to collect 10 pfennig pieces for the Desert Shield soldiers deploying to the Mid East from Rhein/Main AFB.

Another major project was to collect soda cans for recycling in support of Greenpeace.

The FBLA laid claim to national recognition when Jonathan Skidmore was elected to a national office.

In the spring, the organization attended the spring Leadership Conference.

"FBLA is an organization that prepares high school students to go out in the world and to be all that they have the potential of being," wrote one member.

Longtime adviser to the FBLA at Frankfurt High School was Mrs. Janice Jaskot, who was instrumental in seeing that all the club's projects were completed, in addition to seeing that the student store was kept well supplied, at LEFT.

Three of the officers were President Yvonne Keys, Vice President Marquel Russell, and Treasurer Jennifer Mason. ABOVE, Attending the national convention in the fall were two FBLA leaders, David Hannigan and Jonathan Skidmore (LEFT).

Pride: FAHS takes a positive notice

Every Thursday. Members of a new club at Frankfurt High School marked their calendars with "pride" — and in no time, the club, aptly named Pride, was among the most active and visible of the FAHS organizations.

Chartered by Mrs. Marie Davenport, the club participated in the Homecoming parade with their own float, made several appearances at school functions and assemblies, and made a strong anti-drug statement during the year.

Headed by President Dacia Bridges, this club was always ready with a project! During Desert Storm's early days, the club was active in providing support for our troops wiht letters and holiday cards.

Pride also sponsored fund-raisers with hog dogs and hamburgers and bake sales. Proceeds went to get more students involved, to travel to other schools, and to start outside projects with the German community, according to President Bridges.

Malik Williams served as the vice president and the secretary was Shemika Harrison.

The Pride Dancers, composed of several members of the club, also made special appearances, especially at the assembly for Black History Month in February, as well as at community functions.

MUN takes on global responsibilities, actions

A popular, but difficult class in Frankfurt High School, Model United Nations encourages students' knowledge of what's going on in the world. Current dilemmas were examined and solved, and several in-depth studies were undertaken to broaden students' understanding of international politics in the United Nations.

It was President Gary Bocan who, as a senior, worked hard with dedication and much enthusiasm to prepare the 13 members for the annual spring trip in the Hague, keeping hopes high as maturity and confidence raised to new levels.

Mr. Robert Holzcer, who helped greatly with funding for the trip, sponsored and instructed the MUN class. The League of Arab States was represented by Atul Mehta and Shane Todd. Representatives of Liberia were Robert Marchi, David Irey, Gary Bocan, Troy Anfield, David Mecklem, Terry Roberts, Michelle Rakel, Michelle Moody, Prudence Avery, Corinna Kissner, and Katrina Osterholz.

Serving up hot dogs with an international flair was the Model United Nations president Gary Bocan. Earning money to pay for the expenses to The Hague took up much of the group's time and energy during the year.

VICA looks to an industrial future

Every third Thursday of the month was a special day for VICA — it was the regularly scheduled meeting day for Frankfurt's Vocational Industrial Club of America.

Sponsored by Mr. Gerhardt Golba, the club introduced members to the work place in the auto industry, according to the sponsor.

For the past two years, VICA won first place at the DoDDS sponsored Technology Fair, where awards were again won for safety posters.

Presiding over the club were President Cliff Byrd, Vice president Mike Giard, Secretary Joe Cabe, Treasurer Dennis Lawton, Reporter Robert Frisbee, Historian Jim Jenkins, and Parliamentarian Mitch Mayfield.

For activities, the club held its annual Christmas party, toured the John Deere plant in Mannheim, and visited the Mercedes-Benz bus and truck plant in Worth.

Other field trips included the Aschaffenburg auto display, the Frankfurt AAFES garage, the auto display in Sinsheim, and the Opel plant in Russelsheim.

To belong to VICA, students had to be enrolled in a vocational or industrial class at FAHS. "Membership was renewable annually," Mr. Golba pointed out.

Various fund-raisers were set up to defray expenses for the club's field trips and end-of-year banquet.

JROTC strives for excellence

Frankfurt's JROTC provides one shining example of the will and patriotism of American students living in Germany. With the guidance of their leaders, LTC (RET) Donald Ingram and Cdt. LTC Christopher Nolan, the JROTC aimed to gain the title of "Honor With Distinction" for their school.

The 120 cadets enrolled in JROTC had the opportunity to attend several trips to military installations throughout Germany and to attend the annual Military Ball.

German students gain recognition in NGHS

The members of the National German Honor Society practice every other week to enhance their German skills by relating current events to each other. Their objective is the preservation of the German language. Inductees must have attained a 3.6 average GPA in their German courses and an overall GPA average of 3.0 for three semesters of enrollment in Frankfurt High School. Potential inductees must also take an oath during the induction ceremony, after which they are then presented with a certificate from Delta Epsilon Phi. This elite membership is open only to the select few who have mastered German as a second language.

Elizabeth Rumsey (RIGHT), the vice president of the National German Honor Society here at Frankfurt, attends each meeting to discuss up-to-date issues and exercise her fluency in the German language with her other classmates.

MEP breaks ground in autumn conference

Members of the FAHS Model European Parliament were among 29 schools who participated in the second annual Model International Parliament Conference held this past November in Brunssen, The Netherlands.

Frankfurt, one of the only three American schools involved in the conference, debated positions of the Soviet Union, Norway, and Ireland.

Delegates from the Soviet Union, United States, Norway, and Finland were among the invited guests at the conference.

To prepare for the activity, FAHS students had to research their individual nations, propose resolutions dealing with their respective countries, and then defend their positions in an open forum.

Mr. Don Moriwaki, the sponsor of MEP, assisted students with the drawing up of various resolutions on such topics as arms reduction, civil rights, terrorism, and acid rain, while President John Ferrie and Vice president Barbara Berdecia worked diligently to ensure members were adequately equipped for the conference.

Junior John Ferrie (LEFT), chief delegate of the Soviet Union and president of Model European Parliament, was a member of the political committee during the conference held in The Netherlands, where delegates stayed in a converted monastery.

Yearbook staff imprints FAHS history

Producing award-winning yearbooks is a tradition at Frankfurt High School. The 1991 edition should be no exception!

This year's staff, headed by Editor-in-chief David Goynes, put its ambitions forward to produce an edition once more of top-quality workmanship.

Despite some setbacks with having to re-shoot underclass portraits twice, the staff worked harder to overcome any obstacle. Daily work sessions — and sometimes on the weekends — were the order of the day!

From the photography to the advertisements, the staff worked eagerly and positively to meet their deadlines.

"In addition to staff members pictured here, we wish to say special thanks to the following students who also worked with us," commented Editor Goynes. "They are Mike Giard, Stella Matheos, John Ennis, Majlis Robinson, Jennifer Blain, Lynn Cabral, Tona Dunn, Erin Hasal, Dana Karl, Shawn Nighbert, Chris Nolan, Stefanie Steiner, Jen Smith, Adam Wallen, David Wright, Shelly Young, Neeraj Sharma, Crystal Mullins, and David Hannigan."

"This year's book is a careful examination of the life at Frankfurt High School," stated adviser Mr. Bill Hobbs. "In it, we have attempted to reach everyone here at FAHS, not just a select few. I think we have been successful in this effort."

ATHLETICS

Visible at all times, the athletic scene at Frankfurt brought us Eagle champions and Black and Gold winners! Pride and unity made this a hard-earned letter year.

From winning ways and Eagle pride and spirit

Athletics grab the spotlight

It was a great feeling to have champions on our side this year.

Long a tradition, that championship spirit has always been a part of the Frankfurt mystique.

The March to Victory began in August when team members showed up for practice, a sure sign that summer was over. It was not long before Eagle Pride once again surfaced. The Black and Gold was here to stay!

From the opening cross country gun through the final whistle of this spring's soccer matches, the Eagles flocked, raced, jumped, swam, dribbled, and spiked their way to the scoreboard with victories, victories, victories.

The Frankfurt Athlete symbolized all that is good in a person: strong competitiveness, a strong sense of fair play, a desire to be respected, both on the court or field or off it.

"Athlete" was a word that Frankfurt defined for itself this year. It had a meaning of unity, pride. Fans throughout the community sensed this definition.

Coupled with "tradition," the new meaning is here to stay!

"Go Eagles Go!"

"Go Eagles Go!"

"High stepping" applied not only to the drill team members (who performed at halftime during an Eagles basketball game) (LEFT), but also to a fast-pacing member of the cross country team in an early fall race against Nurnberg (ABOVE).

Future beckons athletes

"Slam! Dunk!" Ron Hatter makes two points look easy (RIGHT). It makes his future look bright! Tracey Johnson accepts her award at the golf ceremonies in Berlin (TOP). Members of the Eagles enjoy a timeout during the Hanau game (ABOVE).

The Eagles ambitiously charge into a season of victories, honors, and jubilation. They qualified for the play-offs and placed second in the AAA conference. The basic keys to success paid off: discipline and dedication.

Eagles break into winning spirit!

What a year it was! Win, win, and almost win! Frankfurt's Eagles returned to football glory as the team completed its first winning season in a history, marching to a 5-4 winning record.

Under the direction of second year Coach Charlie Toth, the Eagles came within a point of the play-off finals before closing the season.

A second-place finish in the AAA (big schools) conference earned the Eagles a play-off berth. The last-minute loss to Mannheim 24-23 kept Frankfurt out of the play-off finals. This year's team marked the first time in over 10 years that DoDDS' largest high school had made the play-offs.

Led by senior running back Grover Rollins, who amassed over 1475 yards rushing, the Eagles triumphed, too, for a Homecoming victory over Heidelberg, marking the first Homecoming win in a long time.

Coach Toth credited this year's successes to the leadership of the seniors and the team's understanding what they had to do to be a competitive football team. More than once, the Eagles fought back from half-time deficits to emerge winners.

"The keys to our successes were the three D's — discipline, dedication, determination," Coach Toth said.

"What has been accomplished by this football program in two short seasons can only be measured by the successes to follow. We must build on the past to continue our successes in the future," he explained.

The coaching staff had accolades for the entire team, but some deserve special recognition. "Some backs may be bigger; some may be faster; but none are better," the coach pointed out in a tribute to Grover Rollins. "Mike Korinta possessed the best blocking technique of any lineman I've coached," he added.

Other outstanding individuals were Eric Von Trotha (captain), Troy Gray, Irvin Johnson, Chris Thom, and Chad Nighbert.

Team awards went to Grover Rollins (most valuable player), Shawn Highsmith (most improved, offense), Joe Evans (most improved, defense), Shawn Nighbert (coach's award), and Eric Von Trotha (eagle award).

Assisting this year as coaches were Mr. David Miller and Mr. Bud Olmsted, as well as a number of volunteer coaches, who, Coach Toth pointed out, were quite valuable and made major contributions to the team's successes.

For the second year, Mr. David Miller served as assistant football coach. Here, he gets set to introduce the junior varsity members at the annual fall sports outdoor assembly. The JV, once again, posted a winning season.

It's a game-winning point for the Eagles during a match at Wuerzburg as the Frankfurt team chalks up another victory.

Eagles spike way to conference wins

Frankfurt's Eagles were once again the force to be reckoned with as Coach Karen Snyder's volleyball chargers "stuffed" their way to a second place conference standing and a first place tie at the AAA conference tournament. Combining outstanding team work with excellent serving percentage that worked well with championship defense, the Eagles served notice that the ball was in their court!

Led by everybody's all star team member senior Tina Rice, Frankfurt wound up with a 9-4 regular season record and a 5-1 conference record.

"Tina was perhaps the best player in the AAA conference this year," the coach stressed. Conference officials could not help but agree!

This year was a double success for Captain Rice, who was a repeat from last year's All-Conference team.

"Teamwork and dedication to the sport by the players are what I feel were the strengths of this year's team," pointed out Coach Snyder, who has headed the Eagles for the past five years. Domination at the net with strong blocking and hitting also contributed to the Eagles success.

Coach Snyder also pointed out that the team's ability to serve accurately was an important factor in Frankfurt's winning season. "Jennifer Blain, one of our great defensive players, led our servers with a 93 per cent season accuracy rating," the coach explained.

Lisa Sanchez, a junior and winner of the Eagle Award, was one of the mainstays of this year's team throughout the season.

Alicia Smith, who had an outstanding tournament, according to Coach Snyder, was also outstanding on defense.

Hours of after school practice paid off for the Frankfurt "spikers," who agreed that dedication and teamwork were the key factors in contributing to this year's squad.

Serving as assistant coach this year was Ms. Peg Jones.

Of course, as soon as one season ends, thoughts are generated for next year's team. Watch out, AAA competitors!

Eagles cover all angles in tennis

The tennis season ended as abruptly as it had begun. The tryouts ushered in with plenty of rain, delaying practices and forcing Coach Bill Snyder to reschedule weekend matches.

Returning athletes Robert Marchi and Rafaela Steen were the captains, fulfilling the responsibility of providing the impetus and competitive spirit necessary for a team to be a top contender. Manager Christine East played the role of keeping the courts dry and accompanying the team to all its matches. During regular season play, number two seeded Stefanie Steiner stayed undefeated.

Six weeks' training all culminated in the Central European Championships, in which our top three contenders would represent Frankfurt in a field of 33 schools. Mr. Snyder, having been Frankfurt's head coach for eight years, was the tournament's AAA representative.

The men's singles representative was junior Perry Olson, who utilized his deceptive left hander's slice serve to slot fifth place, upsetting number two seeded Wiesbaden on the way. Robert Marchi and Anthony Stinsman were the doubles duo, going into the tourney strong from regular season. Their efforts against the number three seeds took them to the tiebreaker of a third set, but a decisive loss brought them to seventh place.

Rafaela Steen relied on consistency for a place in the top eight, as her doubles compatriots Amy Shroads and Stefanie Steiner vied for a spot in their competition.

Eagles get set, go for titles in cross country

Over the hills and through the woods they ran, week after week! From daily practice sessions to weekend meets, the Frankfurt High School cross country team members once more brought home racing laurels to the FAHS trophy cases!

Led — and by great distances! — by junior Weldon Thompson, the Eagles maintained their reputations as Europe's finest. And before the mud and dust had settled, FAHS once more had the fastest runner in DoDDS when Weldon triumphed at both the AAA and Central European meets.

The Eagles as a team finished second in the AAA conference and in the Central European finals. Led by Coach Robert Hancock, in his third season as head coach, the team's efforts through hard work and determination made this year's squad also remarkable.

Also finishing in the top 30 in the AAA meet were Ben Wallen, who finished eighth in the Centrals, Kenny Dinovo, Webster Langhorne, Trevor Bush, Richard Thompson, Doug Hand, and Evelyn Kapell.

"At the end of the season, all runners felt happy because they had contributed to another successful cross country season," Coach Hancock explained. "The willingness to work and train together" proved the winning combination this year.

Coach Hancock's charges raced to 11 wins and two losses this year.

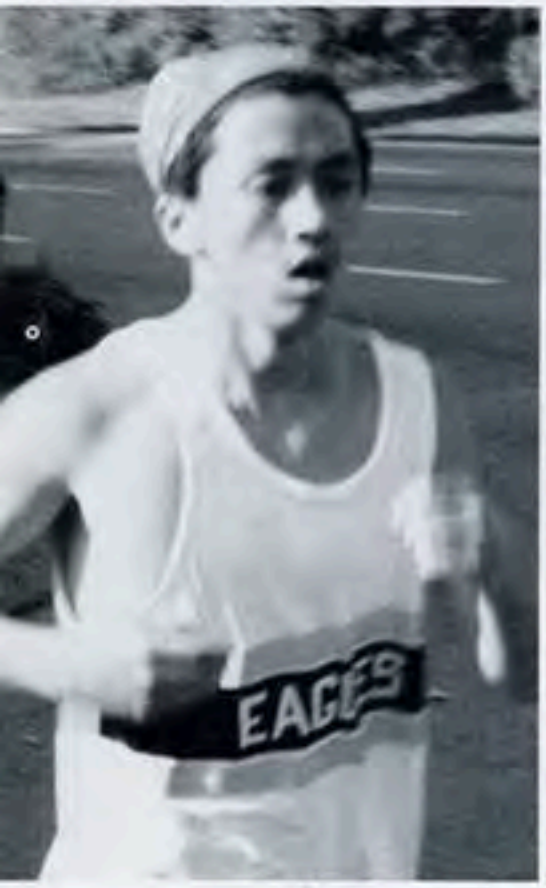
Europe's fastest — junior Weldon Thompson outraced just about everybody again this year before moving back to the States in December. In two years of cross country racing, he never finished lower than second in a regular meet.



Sophomore Kenny Dinovo puffs toward the finish line (ABOVE) during the Homecoming meet. Junior Ben Wallen races to the finish line in the same meet (RIGHT) and Evelyn Kapell leads the women's competition for the Frankfurt squad (FAR RIGHT).

Going for the pin, it was no easy match against arch-rival Ramstein, but then the Eagle mat men were extra tough this year as once again they ruled the district.

Frankfurt dominates mat action

Domination was the word! The Frankfurt Eagles once again ruled the district as Coach Robert Hancock's FAHS wrestling squad were kings of the mats.

Placing 10 spots to compete in the Central European championships, the Fighting Eagles pinned, slammed, and pounded their opponents on the way to an impressive first place win in the northern regional. Frankfurt meant business!

Entering the regional with a winning regular schedule, the Eagles scored 173.5 points with three first places, four second places, and three third places, outdistancing their foes.

In the European championships, it was sophomore Jonathan Buntin who took the coveted first place and teammates Chad Nighbert (second) and Shawn Highsmith (fourth) added their weight.

For the third year in a row, the Eagle matmen were coached by Mr. Hancock. "The highlight of the year was having the opportunity to work with so many freshmen and sophomores and seeing them develop into regional champions," he stated.

Coach Hancock also pointed out that his assistant coach, SGT. Slider, was quite instrumental in helping the team win. "His dedication and expertise certainly helped us and we are most grateful for his help," he said.

"With seven varsity wrestlers returning next year, we are making plans to win the European championships," he declared. "It's time we stopped the Heidelberg tradition!"

Mat men pin hopes on season championships

It's no holds barred for Eagle wrestler Malik Williams as he sets up a victory in the final season match before winning regional (BELOW). Chad Nighbert gets ahead for a quick pin (RIGHT). In regional, Chad finished in second place.

Eagles notch a winning season

Team work — they were a true team!" Thus Coach Bill Snyder summed up this year's Eagle basketball squad as Frankfurt raced to a first place in the AAA conference and a second in the Big School's tournament in the spring.

Boasting the best defense in the league, the Eagles did what was best — win games! This year's 14-6 overall record and 11-1 conference record served notice to friends and foes alike that Frankfurt was for real!

The Eagles lost only to arch-rival Ramstein in the regular season and when championship time came, Frankfurt, seeded fourth in the tourney, faced Wuerzburg for the title.

Alas, a Frankfurt sweep of both boys and girls championships was not to be, as the Wolves squeaked by the Eagles 57-53 to take the crown.

It was a year of ups and downs for the Frankfurt team, as the Eagles seemed to find the going rough against Giessen, Hanau, and Wuerzburg, all non-conference foes. However, in league play, Frankfurt dominated the action.

It was the second year straight that the charges of Coach Snyder made the finals of the tournament, and the 14th year in history.

CHAMPIONS!

Eagles reign! Frankfurt wins AAA tourney!

Going for the gold! And did they ever! When the season came to a close, it was all Black and Gold of Frankfurt High School. Coach Karen Snyder's Eagles marched confidently to an 18-1 season record, claiming both the conference and the Big School's tournament championships in a decisive manner all the way!

Led by sophomore Aundria Sparrow, who claimed the tournament's most valuable player award while notching the All Tournament and All Conference honors for the second year in a row, the Eagles out shot, out defensed, and out played the opponents to one of the most impressive season records in FAHS history. Enez Brown and Tina Rice shared tournament and conference honors with Aundria. Coach Snyder was filled with ecstasy in her praise for the entire team.

Frankfurt's only season loss came at the hands of Ramstein on Jan. 11 when the Royals edged the Eagles 52-43.

In the tournament finals, however, it was Frankfurt in a big win, 48-35, over Ramstein.

For next year, the future looks bright also, as a number of players will be returning. "Repeat" is the chant!

It's another two points and there are Eagles everywhere! Excellent team work and great attitudes helped the Eagles soar to an 18-1 season record, a record that showed no doubt as to who had the best team this year in DoDDS!

Golfers tee up to par the course!

The dawn of a new age, the return of an old tradition. This is the third year that golf has been reinstated into the Frankfurt High School sports agenda. The team consisted of beginners and old "fanatics." Although not that big, the team did have a sizable impact on the school golfing circuit.

The Eagle golfers had four matches during the season, beginning at Wurzburg and ending in historical Berlin. Qualifications for the Berlin championships required a score of under 103 for men and under 120 for women. Present in Berlin for the championships and at the same time to celebrate the German Reunification holiday were Bethann French, Tracey Johnson, Tanya Woods, and freshmen Richard Howe and Osman Kahn. Accompanying the qualifying golfers were Reid Kinder and Mitch Mayfield as alternate members.

Seniors Tracey Johnson and David Hannigan concede with Coach Dan Reaume that this season was primarily one of building, since underclassmen were the majority. In the future, look for the golfers to soar above all and sink that "hole in one."

A member of the Frankfurt Middle School faculty, Coach Dan Reaume (RIGHT) has been heading the golfing department for the past three years. He feels that the opportunity to work with a lifetime sport is "much too good to pass up!"

Cheerleaders take the Eagle Spirit to record highs!

School spirit was never so high!

From the summer cheerleading camp where FAHS yell leaders took top prizes, all the way through the final athletic season, Frankfurt's spirit leaders were completely in charge of marshalling school pride and enthusiasm.

Practice was held every day after school and when pep assemblies were held, it was quite evident that such hard work had paid off.

Cheerleader selection was a careful, fair, and complicated system, following actual try-outs when a panel of judges named the squad.

This year, the cheerleaders were sponsored by Mrs. Renae Miller.

"Go, Eagles, go!" Cheerleaders for all seasons and for all sports lead the Frankfurt spirit. Always on the athletic scene, these members spent much time and effort to see that the Frankfurt Eagles were represented everywhere they played.

Making sure that the team was always "in line," the officers of this year's drill team were Tona Dunn, Kema Luis, Jessica Rivera, and Shameka Henderson. From planning the performances to making sure everyone was at practice, the group was great!

Hold on to the Moment

Single file and yet together,
We have shared our greatest days.
And we carry common memories
In different ways.

Though we don't know where we're going
We will cherish where we've been.
I want to cry.
I want to shout . . .
Want to let this feeling out.

Hold on to the moment.
Let the feelings show.
Hold on to the moment.
Never let it go.

I can picture us together
With my arms around my friends.
Just let me hold on to this moment,
Before it ends.
There was laughter. There were tears,
Through the dozen golden years.

EPILOGUE

The final weeks, days go marching by — food for thought, and soon '91 will be only treasured memories of what was. Or might have been. Or will be. We'll see.

"If I were a carpenter" sing Robert Brewster and Andy Talbert as they check out their equipment in their sixth period class (BELOW). Other underclass members report in to pick up their schedules to begin another exciting semester at FAHS (BELOW).

"Saddam managed to shake up everyone's lives a bit, but the conflict made us a closer and a stronger nation. I'm proud to be an American."

— DAVID WRIGHT

With the pace of the school year picking up so quickly, it was hard to keep up! Debbie Barbee pauses a few minutes during lunch to learn some lessons from Pearl Buck (RIGHT). The thoughts of the war kept everyone relating to each other.

After all . . .

The activities of Frankfurt come to an end with a great sigh!

Could there ever have been a more studious or a more health conscious class than the Class of '91? Michael Giard memorizes a Macbeth soliloquy for English class (LEFT) and Clay Cooper gets his cholesterol checked in the Health Fair (ABOVE).

Ending the school year is always a type of a "draw down" or "deployment of forces," as many (especially seniors) get ready to leave Frankfurt. Some, for the last time.

With new experiences, new vocabulary (especially from the war), and new friendships that went along with the old. Eagles now look to the future with an even more positive outlook. It was also an outlook of relief, owing to the tensions that all felt during the war.

As the days wound down to June, the mixture of last minute cramming for grades mixed with the excitement of final sports activities (Soccer, track, and gymnastics finished in a flurry of thrills!).

And the Prom. What an experience that was (Congratulations to the Court!).

For the faculty, it was tying up loose ends with grades and reports, packing away everything for the summer months.

And finally — Graduation. For over 200 seniors, this was THE night. The Stadthalle had never seen so many, so proud, so ready to meet the future. As one senior said, "The future is ours."

Keeping up the Christmas spirit, senior Sean Everett gets "a little help from his friend" James Feeney as Frankfurt did not hesitate to get into the holiday spirit early and in keeping with the season's promises (RIGHT).

Those lazy, hazy days of fall soon catch up with Robert Frisbee, who finds studying under the shade of a tree better than in class (BELOW). Soo Young Song listens attentively to a motion on the floor during her government class (BOTTOM).

All the activities came in such a whirlwind!

Who had time for anything else?

It was the mother of all snow storms as February draws to a close as students rush to seek shelter that Friday afternoon (BELOW). For senior Marcus Bryant, the cafeteria provides "food for thought" as he gets an energy "lift" before school (RIGHT).

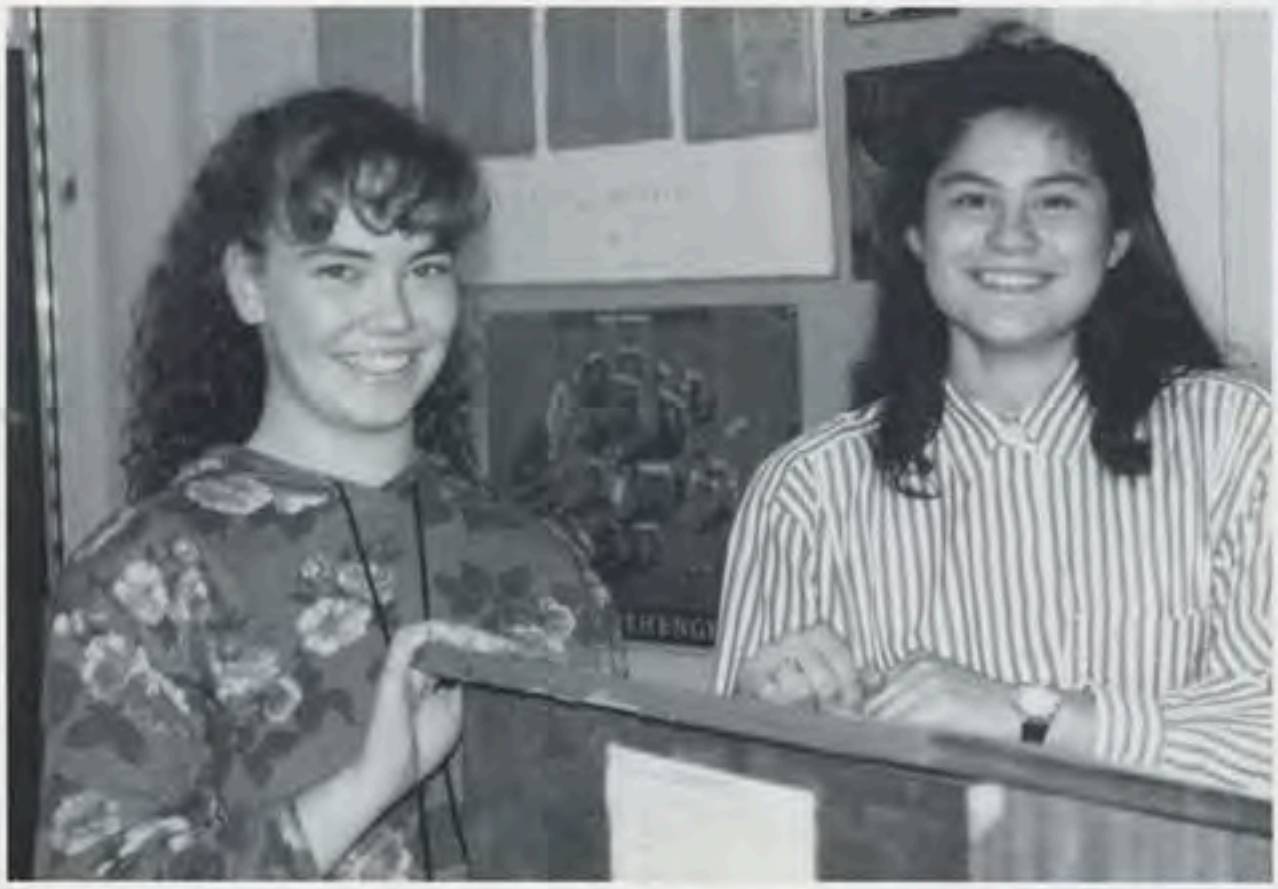
It's measuring time! Seniors Cedrick Conner and Conradge Brown line up for cap and gown measurements during a Senior Class meeting during lunch. Some 200 seniors "made the tape" in order to line up for the final march (RIGHT). Rita Collins heads up VICA (ABOVE).

Projects and activities everywhere!

Students wind up the year

Faculty member and keynote speaker at the Martin Luther King Jr. Assembly Mr. George Amerson joins the Eagles (ABOVE). Was there any question about who was the "greatest teacher"? (LEFT), and class-members ponder a few "academic questions" (TOP).

Seniors Kelly Vargas and Lynn Cabral gain National Merit finalists list (BELOW). Tim Palmer gets his cholesterol checked (BOTTOM) and Charles Cox pauses a moment (RIGHT) as members of the Senior Class ready for a June date.



It was the best of times . . . The year rushed to a close: the end of the war, prom, graduation. And what a year it turned out to be! A year filled with pride, with unity, and with a loyalty we won't forget!

To our sponsor, Ms. Hubbard, for her dedication to the sophomore class.
THANK YOU!

As the Editor of Focus '91 I was forced to become a leader, which by nature I am not. I was forced to make quick decisions and confront people who were my friends. In all it was a very enlightening experience which made me a better person than I was before I started. Through all the hard work . . . It was great!

SPECIAL THANKS

On behalf of the entire staff of Focus '91, I would like to thank Kelly McCarty, Stella Matheos, Mike Giard, Michael Cluette, David Hannigan, Carly Delk, Dr. Peter Fisher, Josh Hooten, Birkin Weith, Chris Nolan, and Martin Greeson (of the Frankfurt Chronicle) for their pictures, Mr. Winston Carter for letting us print the index three times, Troy Anfield for the work that he did that got the book rolling, and most especially Mr. Bill Hobbs for keeping us all on our toes and working hard to get this book finished.

DAVID GOYNES
Editor in Chief
Focus '91

The first year of the Nineties has proved to be something to reflect upon in the future. . . .
