CLASS PROPHECY

ALAS, poor Emmy. Her lifer dad had kept extending their stay in the Philippines, and it looked as if she would stay forever. This year, however, she was elected Queen of Igorots for 1978 and given a free trip to the United States, not to mention the bodyguard of thirty Igorots.

"Oh, it was a marvelous trip - and such scenery!" said Emmy, "I wish you could have seen it! Well, to continue, our ship, the U.S.S. Nautilus is docking and I already see an old friend, Helen Vargas. "Oh, Helen! What are you doing?"

"Nothing much. I won the heavyweight weightlifting contest in the last Olympics. Other than that, I'm just a shortshore man on the docks."

"I wish I could talk to you some more, but this crowd is carrying me along. Gee, I hope she doesn't think I'm awful."

A siren screamed and a cloud of dust turned the corner. "My goodness! What's that? Why it's Olaf. "Oh, Olaf, I see you're state policeman now!"

"Cop!" he reminded me. "And I've got the latest transportation too. . . . a Cushman Eagle!"

Suddenly I remembered the Igorots. "Olaf, what do you think of my bodyguards?"

"Throw the stagnant bums out," he replied as he vanished in another cloud of dust.

Oh, me, I've got to get to the airport. Taxil! Taxil! a familiar contraption of wheels, squirrel tails, mirrors, chrome, and rattles pulled up.

"Thirty centavos," snapped the driver.

"Ten," I countered automatically.

"Twenty"

"Fifteen"

"Splendid!" He replied.

"Why, you must be Ray! Do you have the only jeepney in San Francisco?"

"Don't you know it!"

"I'm on my way to the airport. I'm here on a free trip to see all my old friends."

"Splendid!"

"Well, here's the airport, and here's your money. My you must be getting rich!"

"Don't you know it!" He drove off.

Last Will and Testament

I, Ray Battaglini, being of sound body, leaves to Duane all my homework; to Gayle, Diana, Lyda my decisions; to all the boys my good times; and to all the girls my love.

I, John Bennett, hereby will to any sick-hearted junior who wants it my ability to steal school bells.

I, Terry Brown, hereby will my crusty gym shoes to anybody with feet big enough to fill them.

I, Sharon Burr, leave to Jean Whitman and Wes Sullivan my knack for saying the wrong things at the wrong time; to "Big Ted" I'll gladly leave "Big T" (Texas); and to all the up-and-coming seniors, "Good Luck." (You'll need it!)

I, Marilyn Cooke, leave the editorship of the annual, with all the headaches, to any junior crazy enough to take it!

I, Steve Gladin, leave, to any one who wants it, my ability to argue and harass teachers, namely Miss Bahen and Miss Rose.

I, Judy Hanson, will with utmost glee my old, beat-up shorthand and typing books to Miss Williamson.

I, Olaf Kitchin, being of sound mind (?) and body do hereby will my cat-man haircut to Bob Miller.

I, Tom McDade, being of sound mind and body, leave at last and never to return — I hope!

I, Bob O'Bier, leave to Tommy Cooke my ability to antagonize the feminine sex.

I, Betty Ann Petryk, being of questionable mind, do hereby leave the editorship of the "Post Script" with all its headaches, to Barbara Stevenson! To Betty Sitter, I leave my ability to mooch lunches; I hope she has more luck than I did.

I, Mary Lou Petryk, being of sound body and feeble mind, (after 12 year of school), do hereby leave to everyone all of the luck, health and happiness in life:

I, Helen Vargas, with a perfect mind and body (?) do hereby will to Fil my ability to spin the bottle at parties.

I, Emily Warfield, being of sound mind and body do hereby leave to Miss Bahen all my left-overs from lunch (she looks so hungry!).

CLASS PROPHECY (Continued from page 19)

"Well, here's the airport, and here's your money. My you must be getting rich!"

"Don't you know it!" He drove off.

I climbed aboard the plane with my bodyguards and we took off for Houston, Texas. I was tired, so I took a nap. When I woke up, I looked out the window who should I see but Sharon Burr! She flying around on her broom, doing loops and lazy rolls and crying, "Wes... Where are you Wesley... Oh Wes."

A few minutes later we landed in Houston and who should be there to meet us but Bob O'Bier on his Baguio mustang.

"Emmy! Emmy Battleground!"

He always did get my name wrong."

"Did you get any... bananas for me?"

"No, they were out of season when I left."

As we approached Bob's house, he told me about his famous pro basketball team. He had some terrific players. Chamberlin, seven foot-two and a half; Roberson, six foot-five; Shales, six foot-seven; Cousey, six foot-two; at center was the hottest player on the team, Bev McCann, four foot-eleven.

Bev was a jump-shot artist. Everytime she got the ball they just gave her two points... she didn't even have to shoot! A real credit to the Houston Carabaos.

My bodyguards and I cheered the Carabaos to a 169 to 39 victory over a team called the New Yorks Knicks.

O'Bier informed me that Terry Brown owned Brown's airline, so I decided to switch airlines for the rest of my trip.

When we arrived at the airport we saw the president, manager, pilot, mechanic, and janitor of Brown Airlines... Terry Brown. He had just finished painting a slogan on the side of his one and only plane. "If you have to go down, do it with Brown."

When we were all comfortably in our seats, Terry gunned his three engines for take off. The fourth had fallen off while we were taxing.

"How's that sound?" he said.

We were off and flying to Connecticut at 27 miles an hour. It was then that I noticed the stewardess. It was Judy Hanson. She had been voted Brown Airline's best-looking stewardess for 1978. She won by a landslide since she was the only stewardess on the line.

After many hours of flight we landed in Middletown, Connecticut. I looked up John Bennett and found him living in a large, white-walled mansion, overlooking the Connecticut River. I had read that he was the successful feature writer for Mad Magazine. He even had a title on his gate, "Connecticut State Mental Institution!" I saw John waving his arm through a barred window.

"Johnny! How do you like it here?"

"This place bugs me!" he screamed.

"You are crazy!"

I left John in a fit of hysteria and took off for New York. After making a forced landing in the East River, we were picked up by a Navy rescue craft. Who was in command, but the one and only Tiny McDade! He was Ensign in charge of the New York garbage scows.

"I'll give you a lift to the airport," Tom said in his good-natured way. "Oh, thank you! Who's that scrubbing the deck?"

"Oh, that's my first mate, Miss Bayne."

"Hmm! How do you like your job?"

"It stinks."

We took off again, to the strains of A Garbage Scow Built for Two. Early the next morning I arrived at Coco Beach, Florida, to see the twins. Mary Lou was out in front of her house raising the Confederate flag, and Betty Ann could be seen across the street running up the Stars and Stripes. They were both glad to see me.

"Hi Emmy!" said Betty Ann.

"Em-il-yyy!" Exclaimed Mary Lou.

"We had to move out of our trailers... not enough room for all the kids," Mary Lou told me.

After talking to the twins for awhile, I once again took to the air and set out for Jackson, Mississippi. The second engine fell off on take-off.

"How's that sound?" said Terry.

I landed in Jackson on the final leg of my trip... Marilyn's.

"Ouch," says she.

We couldn't talk long, because she was on her way to church. She wanted to get a seat in the front row because there was the cutest little preacher she ever had seen. Oh, such Big blue eyes.

About this time I saw a parade marching across the airfield, and there was Steve Galdin leading fifty Negritos. I had heard that he was planning to secede from the United States again. The Negritos he was training, they had the cutest uniforms—G-strings, and ivy league shirts.

"t. Steve."

"Oh, its you. Where are your Teen-Age Club dues."

"Will you take pesos?"

"No, and I haven't got time to talk. I'm on my way to re-take Vicksburg."

It was time to return to the Philippines once again. As our plane soared upward and our third engine fell off, I could hear the first shots of Steve's rebellion. None of the class had changed... the same crazy bunch.
