The Tigers' Pride...

50 YEARS AGO

June 6, 1944 — American heavy bombers, concentrating on France's channel coast for the fourth consecutive day, blasted German installations around Boulogne and Calais.

WORLD WAR II

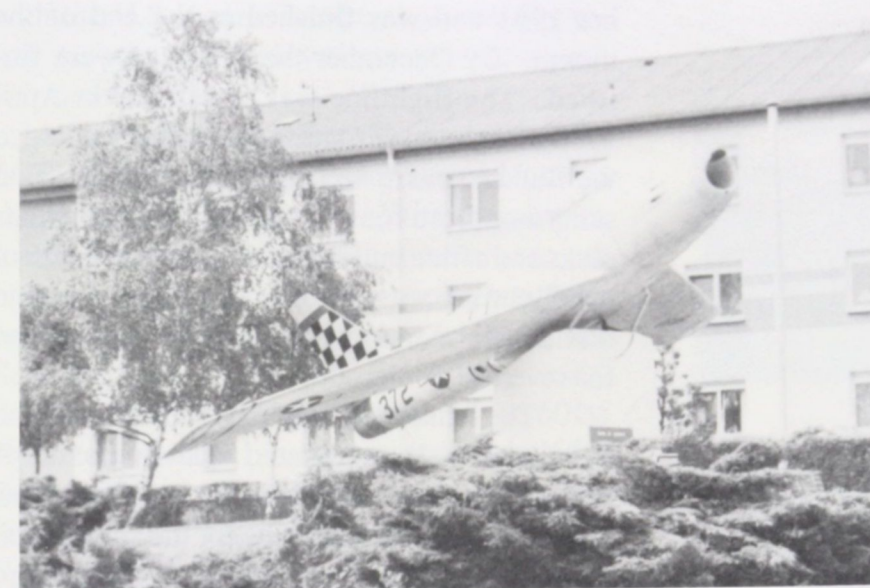

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

1944

Allied soldiers
pour ashore on beaches in Normandy, France, delivered by the biggest amphibious fleet in history, to open the long-awaited "second front" in western Europe. A pre-dawn drop by some 20,000 American and British paratroops precedes the landings. Lulled by the poor weather, the Germans are caught by surprise, and by the end of the day 150,000 Allied soldiers are securely dug in.

A Short History of Sembach Air Base

The year was 1919 and the Treaty of Versailles had been signed giving French occupation troops control of the eastern half of the present flight line. The first base consisted of ten iron barracks and twenty six wooden hangars with canvas coverings. The French occupied the airfield until the general withdrawal of all French forces from the banks of the Rhine. The airfield was abandoned June 15, 1930.

For nine years local farmers used the land as hay fields when in 1939 the German government ordered the field held as a possible Luftwaffe fighter base. Because of the brevity of the French campaign in the first year of World War II the area was returned to the farmers.

Early in 1951 there were rumors in the village of Sembach concerning the surveying of the former airfield by Americans. In April 1951 German surveyors visited the area in the company of French officers. The local farmers protested the construction of a hard-surface airfield.

They demonstrated in Mainz,
the capital of the Rheinland Palatinate. The West German Communist propagandists joined the fight to halt the construction. In spite of the opposition the French began construction of a more modern airfield in June of that year.

Construction continued around the clock with nighttime illumination. The pouring of the 8,500 foot long runway began in early September 1951 and was finished at the end of the month. By December the taxiways were finished. The flightline was completed in April 1952 with the construction of the road leading to the Bundesstrasse 48 (Snake Hill Road). That same month the construction of multi-story barracks and office buildings on land to the north of the flightline was announced. Protestors and dissident farmers kept the surveyors off the land for several months.

The Minister President of the Rhineland Palatinate finally negotiated an alternate site. A sandy hilly area, with little agricultural value, farther north became the site for the administration/housing area. It was known at "Heuberg". Work began in October 1952. More than 2500 workers labored day and night, operating bulldozers, dump trucks, and cement trucks. The present barracks and administrative buildings were completed in the spring of 1953. While all the construction and surveying was conducted by the French, Sembach was built for American NATO forces. The American flag was first raised July 8, 1953. The third and final phase of construction was conducted in the summer of 1954 when the present housing area was built.

The 66th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing operated RF-84 Thunder jets and RB-57 Canberras until 1958. The 38th Tactical Missile Wing moved to Sembach August 20, 1959 making it the prime air force missile base in Europe until 1966.

On January 8, 1976 the 601st TCW returned to Sembach after being moved to Wiesbaden in 1973. The 601st is responsible for air surveillance.

The 17th Air Force moved its headquarters to Sembach in 1972. It provides surveillance of U.S. Air Forces assigned to Central Europe. Included are six tactical wings, one tactical fighter squadron, one air base group, and one operations group. 17th AF interfaces with the U.S. Army Europe to insure day-to-day support and deployments consistent with war time objectives.

At the end of the Desert Storm conflict the 66th Electronics Control Wing returned to close shop and return to Arizona. With their departure in May of '91 the flight operations ceased. However Sembach continues to play a significant role in NATO defense. In April '92 Sembach's present mission was firmly established when the 601st TCW became the 601st Operations Group. At the same time the 66th Support Group was disbanded and a new 601st Support Wing created to continue the daily operations of Sembach Air Base, as well as many geographically separated facilities throughout Europe.

In early 1992 the airfield closed and all the planes were shipped to Arizona. The airfield is going to reopen in August of '94 because the runway at Ramstein is being repaired. It will close again in November of '94. The proud tradition of Sembach support continues!

FACULTY INSERVICE

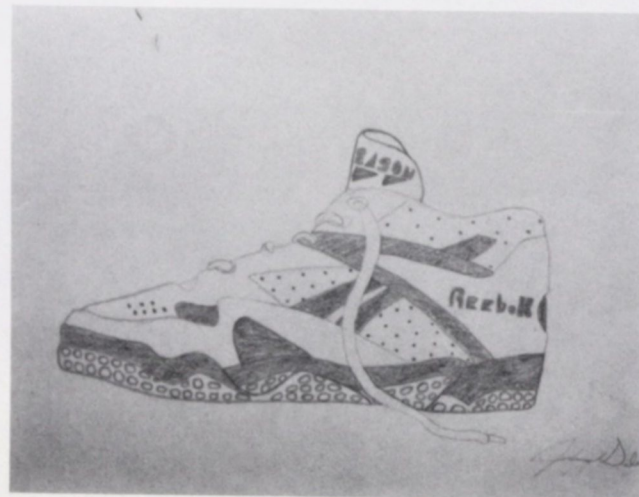

Faculty inservice provides an opportunity for the staff to learn about new ideas and techniques, reinforce practices and ideas that are already in effect in our school, and work on improving designated aspects of the school program. Inservice days this year were used to evaluate and improve the writing of the students and study the effects of stress on children and adults and how to better handle stressful situations. Faculty meetings after school have included inservice on the techniques of the Study of Teaching program and cooperative learning.

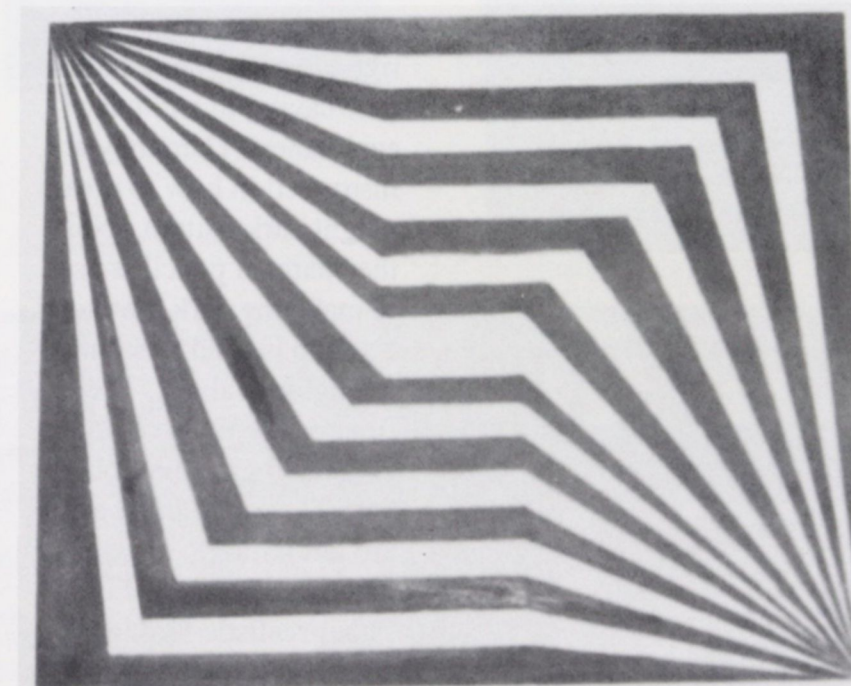

Student/Adult Games

Art 1993-1994

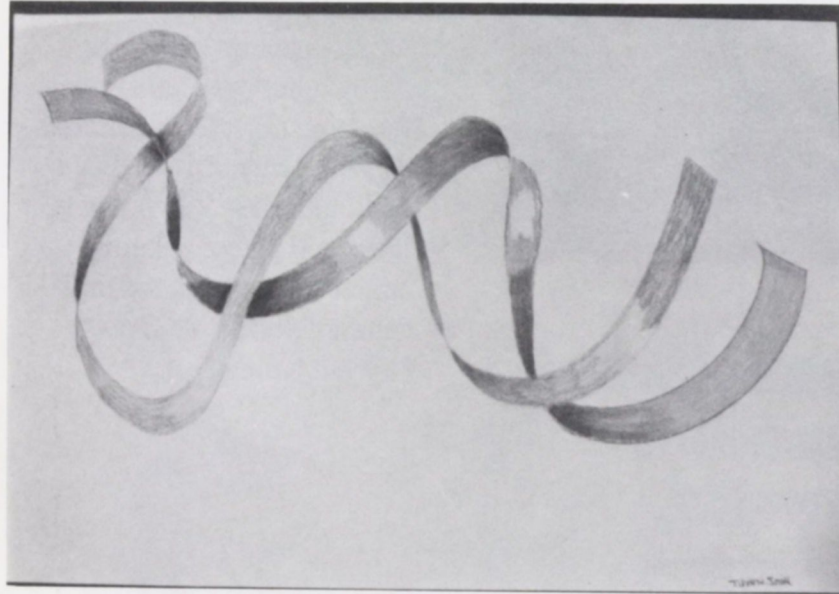

Mrs. Edwards comes to school very early to prepare for her art classes. She has been teaching art for about eighteen years. She has taught all grade levels from adult and college to kindergarten. She prepares by putting glue on the tables and putting art supplies in the middle of the room. She decorates her room with student artwork because she loves them so much. After star time the first group of students come in and either they get out their books or Mrs. Edwards teaches them from her personal experiences and knowledge. Some time she teaches the students art techniques that Betty Edwards and Nicolidus used, because it was the way she was taught when she was young. Although the students say they hate art `I come to the conclusion they are learning something, because of the art work I see around Mrs. Edward's room. It is very beautiful. Another thing I can conclude is that students enjoy art and are experiencing a great amount of success. Mrs. Edwards tries to do different things each year for each grade level, but the DoDDs curriculum guide directs her to teach certain objectives for each grade level, so the program stays basically the same. She changes her art class by doing other projects to teach the same objectives required. At home Mrs. Edwards continues to search for more ideas and personal knowledge by producing magnificent art works of her own.

(By Ian Krauter)

Ribbon Art

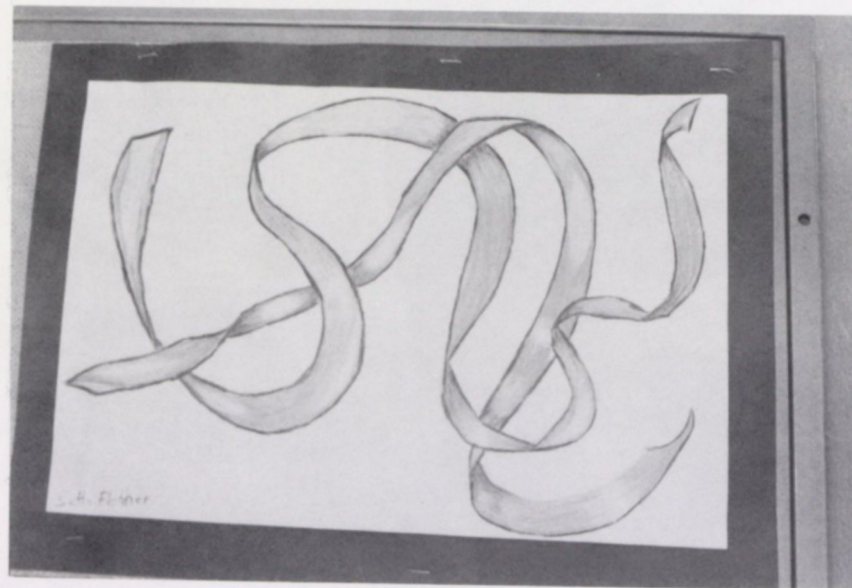

Ribbon drawings are one part of a shading unit, which teaches students how to do gradation of value and to show light hitting an object.

Shading is one of the more difficult concepts to teach but Mrs. Edwards tries to do it step by step so her students can have success with it.

First students are shown how to draw the ribbons so they appear to be weaving in and out of each other. Then they are instructed in how to create a light dark pattern. Next the charcoal pencil is used to make the dark areas and a stump is used to smudge the lighter values. The final part is to use colored pencils to give the ribbon a hue. The highlighted areas are left white.

The result is a rather realistic looking shaded ribbon drawing.

The art room is the meeting place for the Art Club after school on Thursdays. They have produced many creative items this year including the Scarecrows for the Harvest Dinner and the plaster eggs for the Spring Fling. The Art Club also does face painting on special occasions. A special party marked the end of a successful year for the Art Club.

Music

Interview With Ms. Morelli.

questions by, Ian Krauter edited by, Christine Abrenica

Q: Do you create your own music? If yes, which instrument and where.

A: I am really more of an interpreter of the piano greats, but I have sat at my piano and improvised. If I had a Midi - Music System, I might have an avenue to be more creative.

Q: Do you like teaching music?

A: I am really curious about all types of music, but I'm not skilled enough to enjoy listing to certain very different cultural styles for pleasure!

Q: Do you like music?

A: Life without music would make no sense music makes life more meaningful.

Q: Do you do the same things every year in all of your music classes? Yes or No. Explain.

A: Yes and no. Each year I try to add some new teaching techniques and some new elements in the music. Examples: This year I tried to use Keyboards in my chorus. It was only partially successful, but I learned something about how to make it better. AND, I tried to teach more scales this year, more theory of music and more listing skills of Classical music in bands and chorus.

Q: Do you think people enjoy your class?

A: Yes, I've been told often by my students that they would love to be in band all day. Students often write me to say that my class has given them something very important in life!

Q: Do you think you get through to the students? Explain.

A: Well, the proof is sometimes hard to come by, but this year I can name one occasion when I know I've accomplished something. At Bad Kreuznach, the German teachers raved about the ability and discipline of my Advanced 7 and 8 grade Bands.

Q: How do you teach music? Do you teach by the book or by your own knowledge and use the book?

A: I think that the book for band is a must to follow for beginners, then at the intermediate stage, I use my knowledge more. In chorus, I use my knowledge and books, charts, etc. as aids!

Q: How long have you been teaching music?

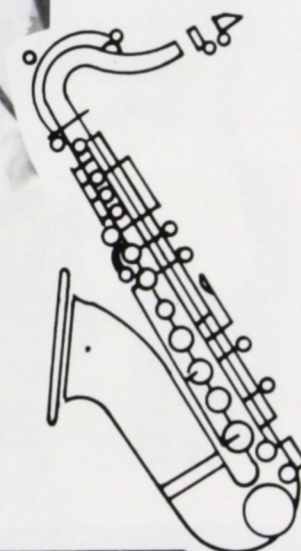

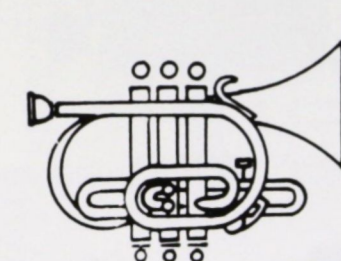

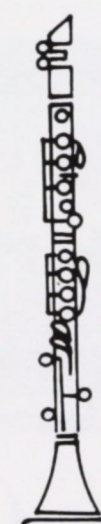

A: 17 years!

Q: What is the strongest point in your program?

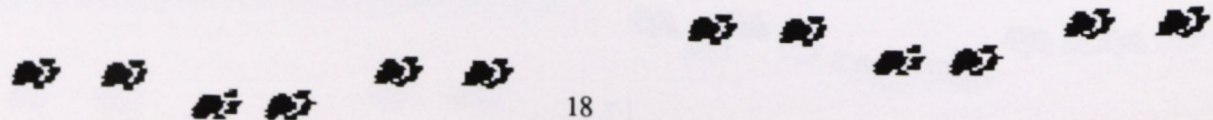

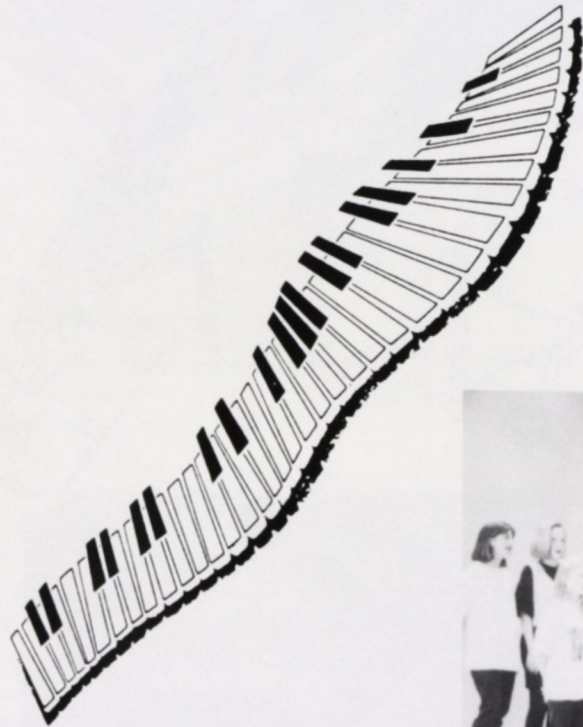

A: Probably that my advanced bands reach such a high level of performance skills and that my concerts are so well disciplined. (especially compared to other schools)

Media Center

What draws students into the Media Center? The approximately 10,000 volumes are in daily circulation by students in fourth through eighth grades. The automated checkout system allowed students to quickly search for and check out books this year. Students were also attracted to the Media Center by the computers, listening centers, and special activities.

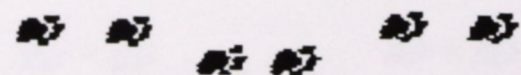

P h y s i c a l E d u c a t i o n

What is offered in the physical education program at Sembach Middle School? Students are introduced to playing the major sports while practicing their social skills in P.E. classes. An intramural sports program was also initiated at lunchtime

Black History

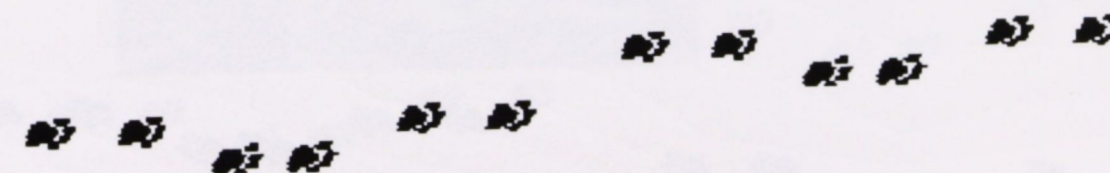

Brain Bowl

What does it take to prepare a Brain Bowl Team for competition? Students at Sembach Middle School practiced "buzzing in" and answering questions to prepare for the Brain Bowl. Practice sessions were at lunchtime on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The team then competed against other teams from middle schools throughout the Kaiserslautern district. Marcus Kelcher received the highest score for Sembach Middle School. Other members include Adam Hayes, Essence Wilkerson, Avery Cole, Melissa Hill, Katie Taylor, and Jeremy Wachutka.

National Junior Honor Society

What are the goals of the National Junior Society? The National Junior Honor Society is an organization designed to promote service, scholastics, citizenship, and leadership. Students in seventh and eighth grade with a 3.5 grade point average are eligible for consideration. This list of students is then considered by the faculty and final selections are made.

CHESS CLUB

Participants in the Chess Club include Lisa Feldhake, Natasha Dueterhoeft, Matt Whip, Jim McCracken, Samuel Feldhake, Cara Matacale, Josh McGraw, Frank Cassagnol, James Lambert, Richard Gonzales, Adam Speegle, Franklin Crosby, and Kimberly Newton.

Yearbook/ Tiger's Tale

How are students at Sembach Middle School able to practice their writing skills? Students can work on the Tigers' Pride yearbook staff or the Tigers' Tale school newspaper staff. Students worked in their free time, at lunchtime, and after school to complete the three newspaper publications and the yearbook.

Student Council

Where is one place students are able to practice their leadership abilities? The Student Council meets on Tuesdays after school in Room 147. Elected representatives from the various Star Time groups share ideas about what is happening in the school and what can be done to improve the school environment. The Student Council has sponsored the Brain Bowl Bingo, Spirit Week, the Gingerbread Village, and the Jelly Bean Contest.

On October 22 the Drama Club presented a play called:

Live in Transylvania.....dum, da da, dum, dum..da!

The atmosphere in the auditorium that day was engulfed with laughter and excitement. The play began in Mr. Hawkin's office. Jonathan Harker and his fiancée Mina Moosehyde were discussing Jon's departure when Mr. Hawkins, Jon's fat and deceptive boss, barged in. Mina was upset about Jonathan's leaving so Mr. Hawkins explained to her how very important it was

Sarah Herhusky and Ms. Dahl, Directors for Jonathan to go to Transylvania.

After an uncomfortable ride in a horse-drawn carriage, Jonathan approached the gloomy castle of Count Dracula. The Count and Jonathan retired for the night after a brief discussion. The next day Jonathan met Boris the bat boy and soon discovered the truth. Count Dracula invited Jon over so that Mina would be unprotected. The count could bite her on the neck and force her to play her accordion. Poor Count Dracula shared his tale with Jonathan.... He had been transformed into a vampire. The only way he could be made human again was for a band consisting of a viola, accordion, and a fiddle to play on the 666th full moon, which was why he needed Mina to play.

That night the count went off to Moosehyde Manor and Jonathan persuaded Boris to take him there on Bat Airlines. Mina was sleeping soundly when Count Dracula disturbed her. The heroic Jonathan arrived seconds later and saved Mina. In the end, Count Dracula became human, Jonathan married Mina, and they started a band which performed to standing room only!

Drama Club

As the spring production the Drama Club picked "HOW TO EAT FRIED WORMS". It was produced as a videotape. Characters' voices were performed while illustrations were shown.

Young Authors

6th Grade: Dustin Liebhaber, Kelley Hayes, Dana Chesbro. 7th Grade: James Lambert, Tara Scott, Amber Brockney, Rebecca Taylor. 8th Grade: Ian Krauter, Stephanie Rowles, Seth Fletcher.

What does DoDDS do to help us promote writing and artistic skills? A showcase for some of the finest writing and works of art of our students is the Young Author's program and the Sparks and Sketches anthologies. Students write and illustrate their own books as part of the Young Author's program. Selected students from each grade level then attend a conference with published authors. Students throughout the DoDDS-Germany region submitted writing and art to be published in the elementary anthology Sparks or in the upper level anthology Sketches. Sembach Middle School is well represented in both publications.

HEALTH FAIR '94 - May 13

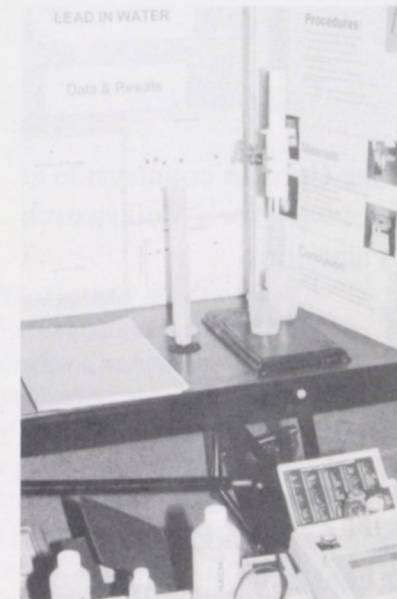

What can you learn at the Sembach Middle School Health Fair? Members of the base community shared their knowledge on topics of physical and emotional health with the students. The varied topics included CPR training, dealing with the stress of change, physical fitness challenges, and disease control.

SCIENCE FAIR - April 23-24

What can you see at a science fair? The sixth, seventh, and eighth grade students at Sembach Middle School used the scientific method to explore varied topics in life, earth, and physical science. Entries were judged and prizes were awarded at each grade level in the areas of use of scientific method, originality/creativity, and exhibit/display.

VOLKSMARCH

How do Sembach Middle School Students get exercise and experience the German countryside at the same time? May 12 was the day the students at Sembach Middle School went for a Volksmarch at Drehenthalerhof. Food, treats, games, and relaxation ended the day's activities.

TALENT SHOW

Where did students at Sembach Middle School get a chance to show their talent? The multipurpose room was filled with excited students and adults who had come to see the performers in the annual talent show. When all of the acts had finished, Candice Trische was declared the overall winner. Other winners included Linda Bradshaw, Bobbi Spencer, and Sarah Herhusky.

GINGERBREAD VILLAGE/ BRASS GROUP

What takes 4 dozen cans of frosting, three cases of graham crackers, mountains of candy, and patient teachers? The lights of the Gingerbread Village once again twinkled and glistened in anticipation of winter vacation. The event became festive with the addition of the Brass Choir; a special group composed of Ms. Morelli, SMS students and community members.
