Principal's Letter

It was wonderful to spend School Year 2014-15 with you at Sigonella Middle/High School. As each of you look through this yearbook, you will smile and say, "I had so much fun,"... "I remember that". With every turn of the page you will see pictures of your teachers, friends, and photos of events that will bring back memories.

As you complete this school year, this book will serve as a reminder of time you spent in Sicily under the shadow of Mount Etna. Wherever you are in the world, you can look at it and revisit Sigonella!

Phyllis Fuglaar
Principal,
Sigonella MS/HS

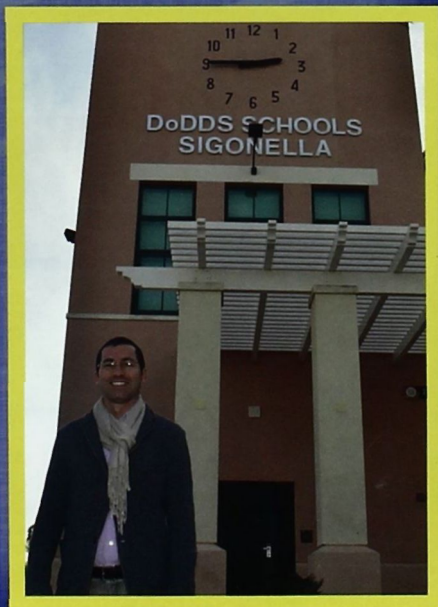

Dear Sigonella students and stakeholders, I take pride and honor in being a representative of the Italian Culture and community here in Sigonella. Living in another country and appreciating the culture bring you a handful of memorable experiences that you will carry forever in your heart.

From the rain you "absorbed" on the Siracusa study trip to the new friends you met at school exchanges, you will certainly take with you the deep bonds that link both the American and Sicilian communities you have lived in.

Sincerely,
Salvatore Iozzia
(aka "Prof")

Italian Community

Base Command Letter

Jaguar Seniors and Mid-High Sig' Citizens, completing a year in a DoDEA school is challenging like few other experiences. Each year you face academic rigor like most schools; however uniquely you must say goodbye to best friends and just as abruptly connect to new best friends. This social demand is straining through and through. Yet, you do it and in doing so, grow stronger. The people you connect with in a DoDEA school and community are from all corners of the world which makes you, as young Americans living in Sicily, true world citizens. My sincerest compliments on completing a challenging 2014-15 DoDEA school year! As you go forward I hope the places you've visited, people you've encountered and befriended, and your unique experiences here not only invoke fond memories, but perhaps as importantly, make future days brighter, relationships sweeter.

While new adventures wait beyond our warm Sicilian-American nest, please remember fondly all here who've invested in you, and love you. Cherish every person and experience that helped you arrive at this moment. You are from all corners of the world which makes you, as young Americans living in Sicily, true world citizens.

Sometimes you will struggle and want to quit on yourself and others. DO NOT GIVE UP; setbacks are merely challenges by another name. You may never feel ready, but you will find successes if you keep trying. Of this, you can be sure.

In closing, remember life is about living; living is connecting with people and cultivating relationships; relationships when in motion grow and nurture communities, gifts which truly nourish our souls. It is a virtuous circle. As the "famous" sociologist Graham Chapman once noted "...apart from better sanitation, medicine, education, wine, public order, irrigation, roads, a fresh water system, and public health ... what have the Romans ever done for us?" Romans, not Roman. They invested individually, they connected and together and with great fulfillment, they achieved great feats for their community and for all of humanity. Jaguars, embrace your Italian roots and DO LIFE WITH DISTINCTION! We know you can and we are excited to see just how you do it!

Aloha! This years Homecoming theme was Hawaiian Paradise. The students participated in a delightful spirit week and attended the pep rally on October 16th. The pep rally consisted of a powder puff football game and a halftime show from our Men's Cheer Squad. After school, students came together to create tropical hallway scenes. The grade levels that won this competition was the 8th grade and the sophomores.

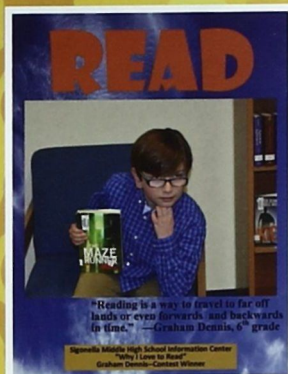

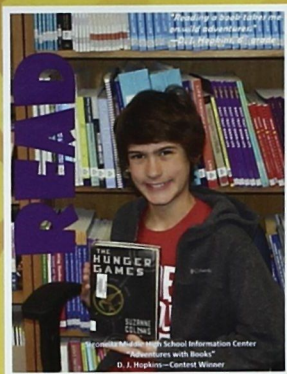

Homecoming Dance HAWAIIAN PARADISE

The Homecoming Court was announced at the dance. The Freshman Baron and Baroness were Dylarian Jackson and Kristiana Wyrick. The Sophomore Duke and Dutches were Christian Moore and Eden Groves. The Junior Prince and Princess were Jason Berlin and Mary Kate Jones. The Senior King and Queen were Anthony Lastrella and Sydney Moore

Creative Writing

Student samples from Mr. Corey's writing classes

They say some people are born lucky, with everything handed to them on silver platters. If they ask for something, they get it, no matter how absurd. As Alvr looked down the blade of one of the most deadly assassins he'd ever heard of, he knew he wasn't one of those people. In fact, he had to be the complete opposite. This sort of horrible thing always happened to the Dwarvish boy. It wasn't that he was especially bad - just that he was especially poor. Begging on the streets of Yellsik, the biggest city in Gitbur, didn't make enough to feed him every day. Sure, he got money, but some people were not as generous as others. Alvr wasn't focused on that at the moment. He was more focused on how he was going to escape, if at all. It was extremely likely that he wouldn't make it out of this alive. "Hand over the Chiffs, and no one gets hurt," the assassin commanded, her fabric mask slightly muffling the words. Alvr reached into his pocket, grabbed the sack of money, and held it out to the Elven woman. She yanked it out of his hand, but didn't remove the blade from in front of the boy's face. "You have any parents?" she asked, catching Alvr off guard. "Ah, no, I don't. Why do you ask?" Alvr said, trying to keep his voice steady despite his nervousness and fear.

-Wrong End of a Blade
Elizabeth Lancaster

Scott sat silent and still in the darkness of the narrow alley. The bright lights of the city glowed behind him. Ahead of him were two men. He'd followed the agents all day. They were in disguise, but he knew what they were doing. They worked for the Asteroid Association and were gathering information for their project - in this case, population. "Three thousand," one man said shakily to the other. "Three thousand people in this city alone. The shuttle can only hold five. No way people from the other cities are going to fit." "That's why they're building more," snapped the other man. They both had accents - maybe British. "How are they going to build more? It took us over a year to build the first one. We only have five years before Kane hits." "Shhh!" hissed the second man. "Don't talk about the asteroid here. Too many people in this city! We can't let the populations know until the time is right. This city will burst into mayhem if they know about it this soon. And if they find out that the A.A. knew and didn't tell them," the man hesitated, "well, that's another problem we can't afford to deal with right now. We need to wait till the time is right." The first man nodded. "Let's get out of here."

"Ooooh, that's it!" Max Stern said.

"What's it?" I replied, playfully punching his shoulder.

Max Stern could be described as any girl's dream boy: same pale blue eyes that seem to be smiling at an unspoken joke, same golden blond hair and toned muscles. He had the attitude of every jock, nerd, and socialite combined - and because of this, could get along with anybody.

I'm still not sure how we first became best friends - and then a couple - considering that we're polar opposites. Where he's talkative and a people person, I'm quiet and socially awkward. While he's out watching a movie with his friends, I'm at home in my t-shirt and sweatpants watching reruns of old TV shows. He always looks put together, and I never do (I'm famous for my simple shorts, t-shirt, and flip flops combo, and my copper hair seems to never leave its ponytail.) Somehow the old saying "opposites attract" has come true for the two of us.

"You know what it is!" Max exclaimed.

- In The Dark
Kayla Hatfield

I sat on the old flannel couch, watching the fuzzy television screen. It was difficult to make out what show was playing, but I guessed it was one of those law shows. I was just trying to enjoy myself before he got home. As soon as my drunken father walked in, he would beat me and end my wonderful day. I was sixteen now and I wasn't going to let it happen again. He had given my mother a broken arm a few weeks back. My mother was a wonderful woman and I couldn't let him harm her again.

She didn't deserve this life.

We had to escape.

The lock on the door turned as the smelly, intoxicated excuse for a man walked into the living room. He stumbled over to the couch and said, "Jason, why don't you get me a bottle of that old whiskey your mom hides in the basement."

"No," I said in a very calm voice.

TOMMY MCMANUS

CONGRATULATIONS AND

"I never understood exactly how Tommy could love swimming so much... and I'm glad I didn't. If I had loved swim as much as him then I would've spent his last season in the pool instead of taking pictures of him. Next year will be really boring without all of the meets. Stay warm."

-Sammie McManus

"Good luck Tommy in all your college adventures, I know you will succeed."

- Coach Sarah

"Prof Tommy, congratulations on your acceptance to Niagara University. I know you will do great things, Just don't over analyze everything your professors say like you did with the simplest drill sets!"

-DJ

"Flip in the middle."

-Ethan Bowling

"Tommy McManus is the man. Though he supports arguably the worst teams in all of the major sporting leagues, he is always gracious in their frequent defeat.

Tommy is one of the most genuine and grounded friends I know and he has already proven that he has what it takes to compete at the next level. As long as Tommy continues to practice safe sets he will go far not just in swimming but in all aspects of his life"

-Brian Burke

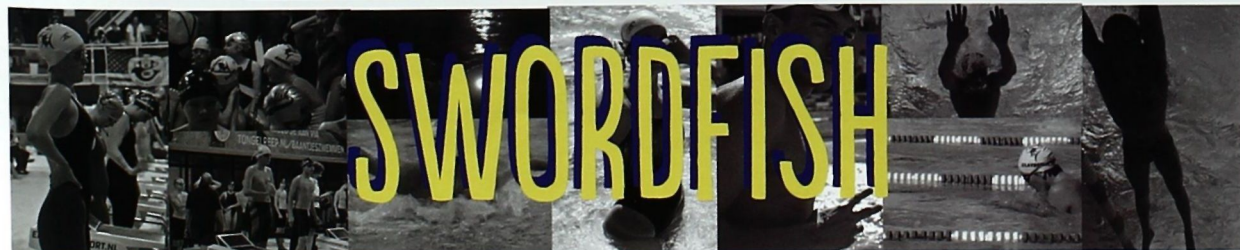

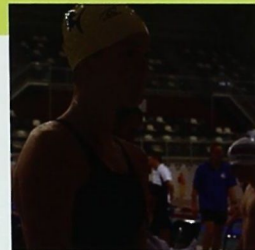

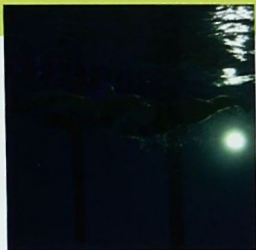

"You are my favorite high school swimmer and I know you are going to do amazing at Niagara. Don't party too hard in college."

-Mary Kate Jones

GOOD LUCK AT NIAGARA!

is impossible. I think that everything is possible as long as you put your mind to it and put the work and time into it"

-Michael Phelps "Something will pop up in my head. It could be like the weirdest thing. Like all'sudden, like I have like a jumping banana in my head. Like, I don't know what's going on." -Ryan Lochte "Have fun is my message. Be silly. You're allowed to be silly.

There is nothing wrong with it." -Jimmy Fallon

"There is something you must always Remember. You are braver than you believe, stronger than you seem, and smarter than you think. But the most important thing is, even if we're apart.... I'll always be with you." Winne-the-Pooh

CONGRATULATIONS, TOMMY!

We love you

-Mom, Dad & Sammie

Congratulations Zane!! You have achieved a great milestone within your life. Graduating is only a glimpse of what lies ahead. We are confident that you will continue with success in all that you undertake to do!
