A Reflection

Reflections come from more than mirrors or lakes, they come from the faces of others and trips into the mind's eye. What we see is filtered by what we know and what we feel. Life is what we make of it in our day-to-day travel. The smile or frown is only on the surface of the reflection. We all dig deeper into the void to see what we can to understand. Some dig deeper than others, and some do not see what they are looking toward. They only see what experience has taught them to see.

These reflections do not produce the same image for all of us. Knowledge helps Some cannot get beyond their prejudice toward others or their perceived truth that is rooted in false assumptions. Knowledge helps. A wholesome soul is important — so too, caring about others. We must not always react to what we first see, but think through what we see to what is really there. Truth comes from understanding what is reflected back to us.

It also helps to clean your mirror once in a while.

School shows their SPIRIT too

"Being in Middle School is awesome!" commented seventh grader Rachelle Frazer. There are so many new things to do seventh and eighth graders can't help but get involved. One of the new and exciting things is Homecoming. Usually the Middle School gets lost in all the commotion, but this year that was far from the case. Their spirit came shining through, out-shining much of the high school. With all their hard work the eighth graders managed to take third place. The classes of 1999 and 2000 are bound to go far. At the pace they are going nothing will get in their way, not even a bunch of upperclass men!!!!

When I look back on my high school years I see the smiling faces of my closest friends. I've come to realize that it's not when or where, but rather who you are that makes the difference. Thanks for all the great memories, guys!

The most important thing that has happened to me in high school is when I had my son. That really made me change and the teachers and my friends were really good with me. They all helped me stay in school and do well. If it wasn't for him, I would have quit school.

Good times? Cross Country season is always fun. I've made some great friends through the teams I've been on. Important people? No one is insignificant through my eyes. My parents (all three of you) and my family get extra credit. How I have changed? I'd have to say that I have grown a bit and my hair has gotten longer since my freshman year.

Throughout my time in high school I feel that I have grown stronger and become more mature. I have more responsibility and I like who I am. I'm glad I came overseas, again, because I got away from the gangs in the States and all the problems there. Also, because I really like all my friends that I have here and that have moved because they were, and still are, there for me when I need that shoulder to lean on. Thanks to all my friends, teachers, and most of all my family.

High school, the advertising that it was, had so many "best" moments that it's hard to pick one. I loved being backstage during My Fair Lady and playing Egyptian Rat Screw. I loved going off topic in English class. I loved getting to know my relatives when I went to school in Utah. I loved the football games followed by stomps and a stop at Yogurt Beach. I loved being with my family, again. I loved learning. I learned to love.

Some of the most important people in my high school life have been my teachers and my friends. Frau Reisinger, Mr. Minette, Mr. Duffin, Ms. Zekel, Mrs. Zank-Rehwalder, Mr. Heffernan, Coach Washington - they wouldn't let me quit when I wanted to and made me go further and finish whatever it was that I had started, even at 2:00 am. My friends put up with fussy habits, and though I must have driven them crazy, they stuck with me, all the way to and including my senior year - the busiest yet.

Junior year - is the most decisive and nerve-wracking year of your high school career. This is the year when teachers demand an indecent amount of homework and thought, and you have to field questions from anxious relatives about your future. Juniors have to prepare for the major scholastic tests and narrow down the wide selection of colleges to consider, and also - foremost in the minds of many - find a date to the Prom. But along with all of this stress and late night frantic studying comes the bittersweet joy of knowing that you have one year left of high school - where mindlessly hanging out with friends and acting somewhat immature is still acceptable, or at least tolerated. After school matches of blitzball are not unheard of in the junior hallway of PHS. This year's juniors, the class of 1996, displayed an unsurpassed amount of spirit, exemplified in their victory of every class competition event during spirit week. Although the junior class meetings (and let's not forget the Junior Bulletin Board on CC: Mail) were often a hotbed of disagreement, the juniors banded together for the important decisions and made this a memorable year for all juniors concerned.

Introducing the

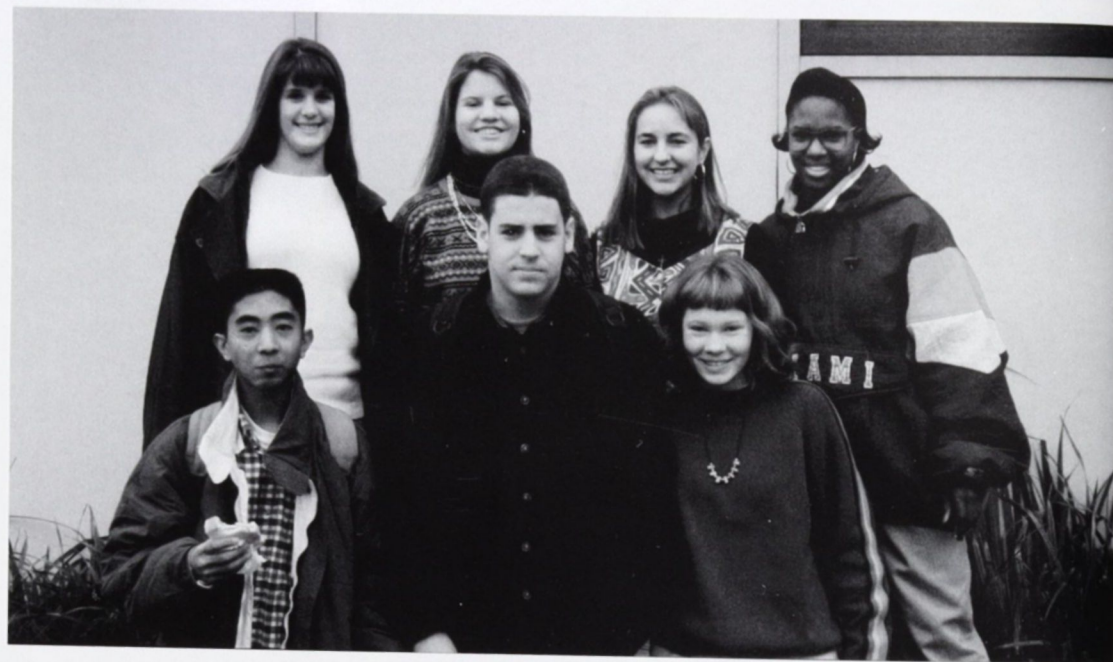

Sophomores

10th Grade Student Council

The Sophomores Student Council was Extremely busy this year with T-shirt sales, egg roll sales, and working on homecoming activities and they also got 3rd place for the skit. I guess that the fact that Brent Bischoff wore a tutu really helped.

Albert Andres, the president, came up with the idea of selling T-shirts and really pushed the sales. He even managed to get a few teachers to buy the shirt. The egg roll sales also helped the class raise a great deal of money and some of it will go toward next year's prom. Mr. Hanks was the sponsor behind the greatness of the Sophomore class and with everyone's help next year, hopefully they'll be able to pull off a great Junior year too.

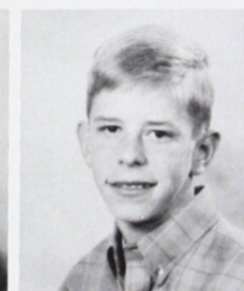

Andee Houser and Jason Rambeck dine luxuriously together in the famous Patch Forum.

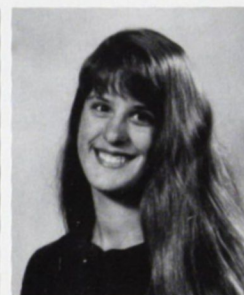

The sophomore year started out with more than 25 new students or 1/4 of the entire sophomore population. With over 100 students, the sophomore class is the largest in the entire high school. The class was also off to a good start after elections. With Albert Andres as the president, along with an outstanding group of officers including Cleopatra Samreny, Brent Bischoff, Megan Bagnall, Caroline Murphy, Lindsay Heller, Angela Nelson, and Ayisha Shepard, the Sophomore class became more involved in the school. During homecoming, the class had a great hall as well as wonderful and memorable skit. (Who could ever forget Brent Bischoff in tights and a tu-tu?) The sophomores had a lot of spirit and a wonderful class to prove it. Let us see if the sophomores will be able to pull it off next year when they are juniors!!!

Clubs and Activities

Future Business Leaders of America

FBLA stands for Future Business Leaders of America. It is a world wide organization that helps students prepare for the business world. Every summer there is a national conference held in the United States. Last summer, Blair Dunn, competed in Business Law. Placing 8th in the nation, he was one of the first students ever to place from DoDDs Europe.

The FBLA chapter here at Patch started out great this year with their new sponsor, Ms. Fairchild. New officers were elected in September, who were Blair Dunn, President; Eva Shen, Vice President; Patrice Scott, Treasurer; Lindsay Heller, Historian; Ann Witt, Reporter; and Brad Roper, Parliamentarian. FBLA has done many activities this year. Members sold candy at break, along with Pop Tarts, Kudos, and chips, as fundraisers for the purpose of doing numerous service projects. The group participated in the Red-Ribbon Week by cutting and passing out ribbons, and helped out with the Pfennig Bazaar bake sales. A stamp drive is also sponsored each winter, in which these stamps are sent to Bethel, a school in northern Germany for the mentally disabled. (Patch Elementary classes actually do the collecting; we just give the winning class a party.) Many of the members attend the Spring and Fall Leadership Conferences to learn more about the business world and to test their skills in business acumen. Such an organization is great for easing the transition from school to work and for developing leadership skills. Besides these benefits, FBLA is rich and members can party however and whenever!!

National Honor Society

"Coffee or tea?" is what Kris Abel wants to know.

Goodwill, dedication and the desire to help others are some of the qualities possessed by National Honor Society members. This year's NHS consisted of seventeen members who were sponsored by Ms. Zekel and Ms. Zank-Rehwaldt. Throughout the year the members of NHS gave their time to hold activities that would be enjoyed by both students and teachers. The National Honor Society held quarterly Teas for Teachers and also began the "Unsung Heroes" teacher recognition program, to honor outstanding teachers who are not always recognized. National Honor Society also organized the Awards Ceremony and Assembly to provide teachers the opportunity to give praise and recognition to students. Other activities included arrangement of a tutoring program for the YS, volunteering at the mail room during the Christmas holiday rush, as well as Secret Santas.

Sara Uriona gives the first "Unsung Hero" awards to Ms. Stockard and Ms. Richard.

BRAIN BOWL: battle of the minds!

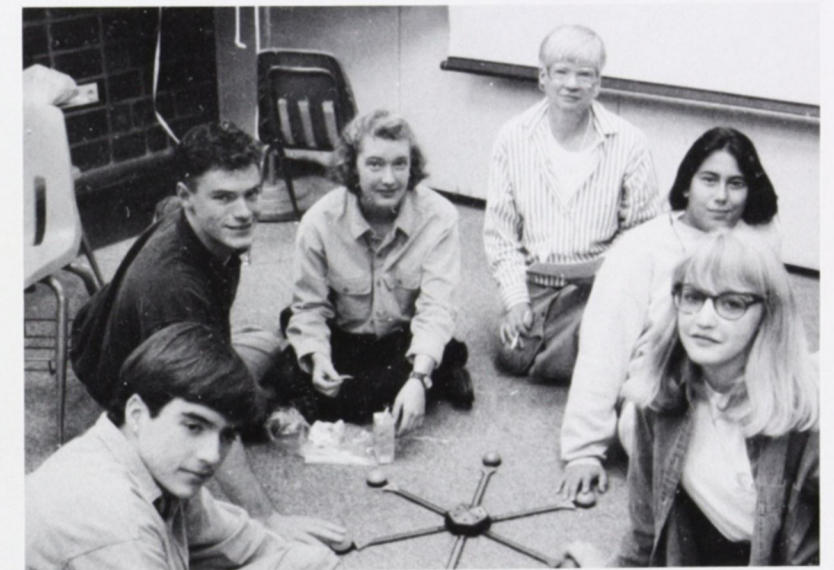

"Whose attack on Russia 100 years before ..." the moderator begins to ask as someone buzzes in without waiting for the rest of the question. "Red three," the moderator calls, waiting for the answer. "Napoleon." "Correct!"

You might have heard these words November 10 and 20 at a German resort near Baumholder, the site of the 1994 Academic Games, otherwise known as the "Brain Bowl."

Captain Sarah Huchel, 12th grade representative, Michelle Durgin, 11th grade, Jason Gagnon, 10th grade, Angela Stevens, 9th grade, and the alternate, Blair Dunn, were all present.

The Brain Bowl is an academic game where one student from each grade and an alternate, represent the school and answer questions on topics such as biology, history, humanities, and mathematics, literature, foreign language ... any subject taught in high school.

This year the "Brain Bowl" didn't place, but won against three other schools, Wiesbaden, Frankfurt, and Mainhelm. The team's only loss was to Ramstein. Out of nineteen schools in Europe, with only SHAPE being an out-of Germany team, Hanau placed first and Vilseck came second.

National Junior Honor Society

The five qualifications for membership in the Neil Alden Armstrong Chapter of the National Junior Honor Society are scholarship, leadership, service, character, and citizenship. Our Executive Branch

The Student's Voice - that would be the perfect definition of the Student Council. This year's Student Council was full of good ideas and hard workers making every activity a success. The Student Council president, Amanda Heller, initiated several new traditions at Patch. The most successful was the court warming; the homecoming winter counter part. The executive board was made up of four seniors and one junior, the only male. The positions vice-president and secretary were held by Donna and Dana Terrel, the position of historian was filled by Taquita Hill, and last but surely not least, the position of treasurer was held by Chris Able.

The student council worked hard all year and they are to be commended for their hard work.

ed Nations

Held annually in the Netherlands, The Hague Model United Nations (THIMUN) is a complicated exercise in international diplomacy. Approximately 3000 students of many nationalities gather together for a week to debate and resolve current global issues. Delegations are assigned a country in October, and spend the months leading up to the January conference collecting background information on their countries, researching the issues on the agenda, and writing resolutions aimed at resolving the issues in ways that reflect the politics of their respective countries. The conference itself is the culmination of months of preparation. Students dress in business attire, and conduct themselves accordingly, demonstrating remarkable maturity in the presentation of their ideas.

This year, the delegation from Patch American High School represented the Democratic Republic of the Sudan; a country torn by civil war, and known internationally for its radical Islamic government and its unadmitted endorsement of state sponsored terrorism. It was an interesting and, at times, challenging nation to represent. Patch's fourteen delegates — Holly Anderson, Michelle Bahn, Nicki Fuller, Lindsay Heller, Tasha Henderson, Laurie Hilliard, Sarah Huchel, Tory Ingalls, Benji Ledford, Sarh Ledford, Brierley Ostrander (ambassador), Eva Shen, Adam Tatusko, and Ann Witt — handled it well. Though not part of the delegation, Roger Stevens was also a representative of Patch, serving as a deputy chair on the Disarmament Commission. Ms. Stockard and Mr. Anderson served as Model United Nations sponsors, devoting a good deal of their time during the first semester to MUN. The effort extended on all parts was well worth it.

Benji Ledford and Michelle Bahn take a breather to exchange stories about the committee meetings.

THE PANTHER PRESS

Panther Press staff has a year to remember

Besides a year of reporting the news, local happenings and memories, The Panther Press staff has also created a few of their own. With a completely new staff except for two, the paper had fresh new talent to work with.

Meeting deadlines, laying out the paper, fighting the computer when it would break down at the last minute and stories coming in late were just a few of the difficult tasks that the staff had to meet every four weeks, at least, sometimes sooner. Despite the pressure and procrastination, the Panther Press came out monthly.

At the 11th annual Journalism Conference on November 28- December 1, 1994, held in Oberwesel instead of Nuernburg this year, Patch brought back various awards. Ann Kulich and Roger Stevens won Honorable Mentions in Features Writing while Laura Torbeck also won an Honorable Mention but in the Captions Writing challenge. The whole team, consisting of: Ann Kulich, Laurie Hilliard (yearbook), Laura Torbeck, Juharia Redd, Roger Stevens, Ruth Morgan and Rob Weibel, won First place in the writing of the Press Conference News article. Their plaque hangs proudly in Room 209, their "press room."

The Panther Press staff had a "... successful year. Our paper has really improved in the past few years. It's everyone's dedication and diverse creativity that keeps making it better," stated Ann Kulich. Many students outside the class, such as Mike Pappa and Josh Belk, also dedicated their time and efforts as our cartoonists. Mike was always being called on at the last minute to provide us with an "emergency cartoon" to add more life to the paper or to fill a hole(!?!)

The Panther Press's year was full of personal memories, hours at the computer screen, debating over whether the world was round or flat and whether Santa Claus was real (Jason and Chris) and other such hilarious incidents. It was a class that demanded great time and effort, yet repayed us all in the satisfaction of using our First Admendment rights to the utmost of our ability.

Ms. Gheysen and Crystal Heuring showing off their work.

More student involvement was an important part of this year's yearbook which was headed up by editor Amanda Heller. Mr. Frese took charge of money matters and photography and Ms. Gheysen advised students on layout and meeting deadlines. The stress on yearbook staff members is to get the right pictures and copy put together for four separate deadlines with the final pages due at the beginning of March. The reward for hard work is a yearbook that is enjoyed by many.

Math Counts

The Math Counts district competition was held in Würzburg on March 10th. Students representing Patch were Natalie Ostrander (8th), Rebecca Short (8th), Dyan Curry (7th), and Michael Cooper (8th). Patch High School placed second in the team competition while Michael Cooper captured first place and Natalie Ostrander finished fourth in the individual competition.

JROTC

Some of the JROTC cadets got to watch and take part in the Field Marshal Rommel Memorial Service on October 16 of this year. The cadets, as well as many other military and civilian people, were at this service honoring one of the great generals of World War II. Attending this service gave cadets a chance to learn more about the history of Germany and it is something that they will always remember.

Cosmetology

Amy Fletcher separates strands of hair in preparation for a trim.

Cosmetology is one of the elective programs offered at Patch High School. This class allows students enrolled a basic insight into the professional aspects of the cosmetology profession. Students are able to experience the profession by demonstrating proficiency in practical skills such as, shampooing, hair styling, manicuring, permanent waving, hair coloring and many other services offered in beauty salons. They must also master the theoretical information which explains the aspects of the practical skills.

Two shows a year are presented by the Cosmetology department; these shows include fashion modeling skills as well as hair styling skills.

Computers

Patch has many opportunities for students to work and interact with others through the use of technology. Patch is a leader among DoDDS schools in the use of computer technologies. Some of these technologies include cc: mail, Lotus Notes, courses via telecommunications, and full Internet access. A pilot program is being tested at Patch, called the Community Learning Network, which allows parents to interact with computer communications such as electronic mail.

"The New Panthers" was our theme this year. Before our new coaches from Hanau came, Patch football was just for fun and the only thing we learned was how to lose and find satisfaction out of it. Well, it was a whole different attitude this year. We learned to have respect for ourselves and to win the game for ourselves. Five and zero was the height of our season! We got there by hard work and determination. It started out with two a day practices and then on to intense practices after school. We learned more about football this season than just how to win. We also learned how to push ourselves and take on leadership with power and force. Pride was something we didn't have much of until "The New Panthers" took over. After we won our first game the community started to look at us again, and by the time Homecoming came we had everybody there supporting us for our undefeated record. Doug Carlton was the most publicized person on our team. Doug took challenges when his fellow teammates couldn't. Jason Liles, Jason D'Amato, Joel Ellison, Alex Cooper, and Matt Babione were the leaders of the team. They helped bring the team together when we were falling apart. They also helped us to better comprehend the word pride. Coach Lambson was definitely one of the best coaches we have had. He had faith in us till the very end. With coaches and the talent we had there was no way anyone was going to stop the Panthers from having one of the best seasons Patch has ever seen.

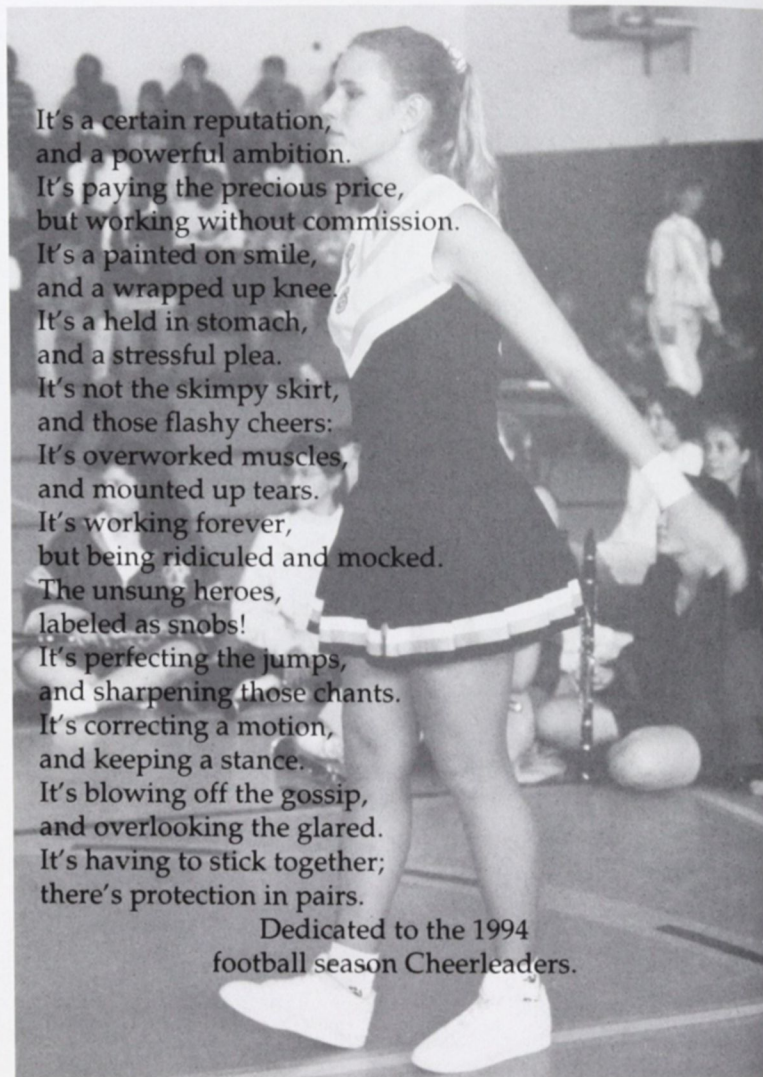

This year Patch had three players make it to All-Conference. They were: Doug Carlton for wing back and corner back, Alex Cooper for offensive guard and line backer, and Alan Lackey for offensive tackle.

It's just a GAME with

With a new coach and a few new girls the Patch Football Cheerleaders were ready to start the season. Their job was made easier with a victorious football team. New dances and new cheers by the cheerleaders got the crowds really spirited at the games and pep rallies.

Cheerleaders just chillin' at half time. Monique swingin' that tail.

It's a certain reputation,
and a powerful ambition.
It's paying the precious price,
but working without commission.
It's a painted on smile,
and a wrapped up knee.
It's a held in stomach,
and a stressful plea.
It's not the skimpy skirt,
and those flashy cheers:
It's overworked muscles,
and mounted up tears.
It's working forever,
but being ridiculed and mocked.
The unsung heroes,
labeled as snobs!
It's perfecting the jumps,
and sharpening those chants.
It's correcting a motion,
and keeping a stance.
It's blowing off the gossip,
and overlooking the glared.
It's having to stick together;
there's protection in pairs.

TENNIS ANYONE

The Patch Tennis Team, led by captains Blair Dunn and Brierley Ostrander, is hard to miss — especially when clad in their blinding, pump-kin-orange sweats, which have retained their stunning color after approximately five-zillion years in service. During the 1994 tennis season, these indestructible items of clothing have been soaked in sweat — and in Kris Johnson's case blood — of both victory and defeat. More often, it is, of course victory, but because DoDDs Europe no longer has any conferences, Patch went up against some of Europe's toughest teams. Coach Wash, who has been coaching tennis at Patch for 12 years, whipped the team into shape with lots of running, jump-roping, push-ups, crunches, and other means of physically beneficial torture; the Panthers couldn't have done it without him.

At Europeans, the Panthers showed everyone what they're made of. Unseeded Sarah Huchel rocked the house, plowing through match after match to the finals of women's singles, and finishing second in Europe. Phil Lamb smashed a couple of unfortunate opponents, and placed third in men's singles. Doubles teams (Blair Dunn and Pat Ash; Michelle Durgin and Brierley Ostrander) fell just short of placing. As a whole, Patch took the Division East title, and placed third overall in Europe.

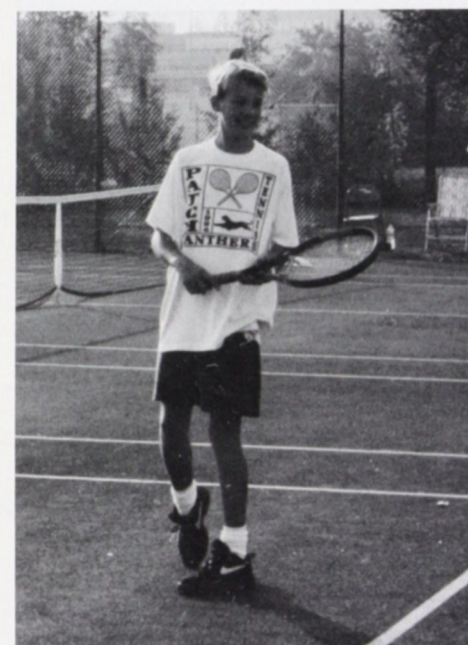

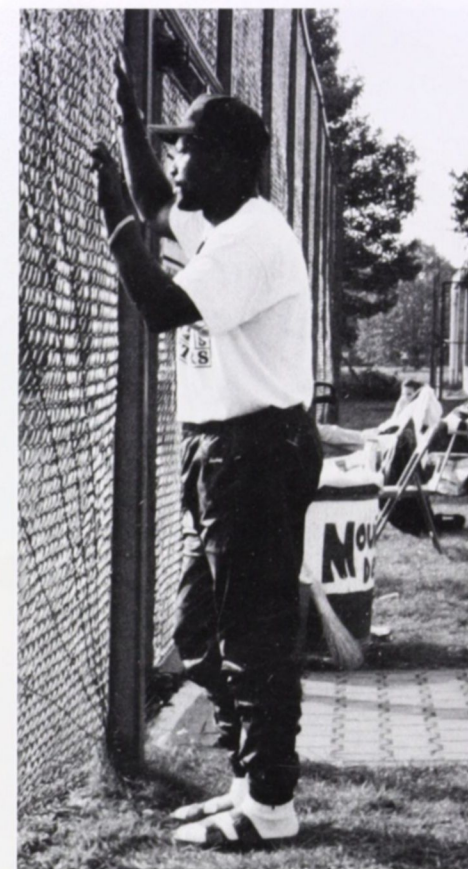

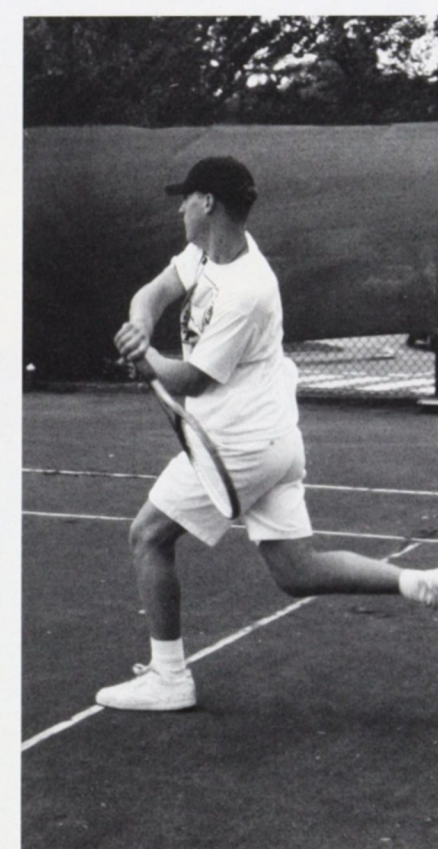

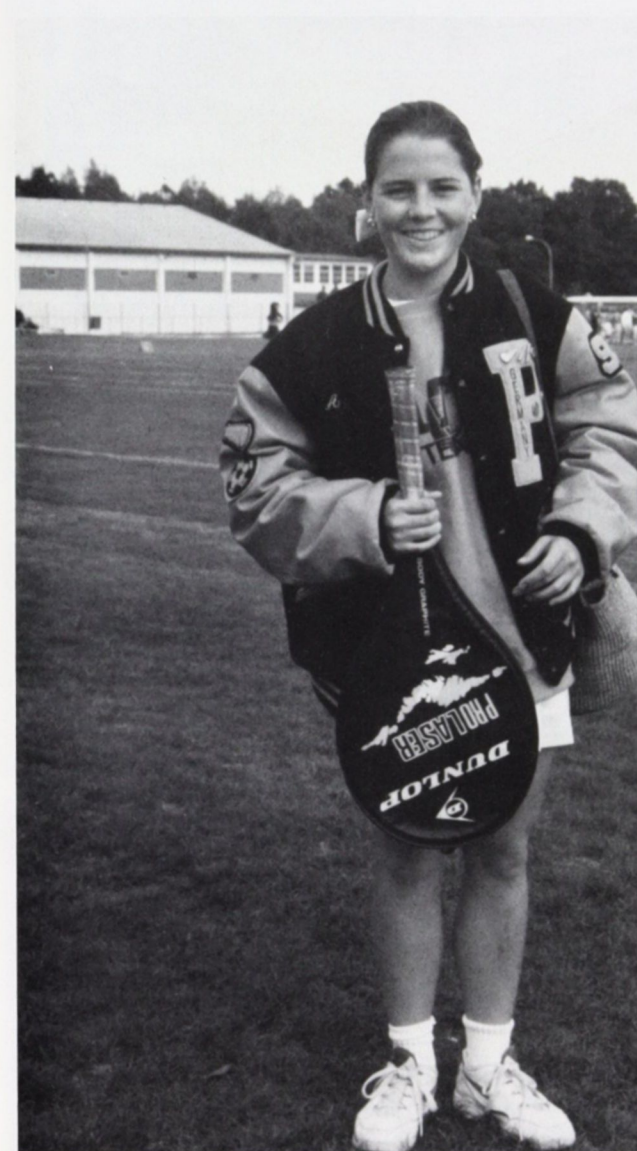

Because of PCSing and Graduation, the Patch tennis team changes radically from year to year. The tennis team of 1994 existed for only a short while in actuality, but will live on for ages in memory. Someday, when tennis rackets involve quantum mechanics and other things that only Blair will be able to understand, we'll look back at the dorky equipment and clumsy tennis shoes we once had. Good luck to everyone — may the hiss of a new can of tennis balls and the heady aroma that follows, forever awake fond memories of the 1994 tennis season.

Patch guys had what was considered one of the best seasons in the last decade. A mixture of raw talent and lots of hard work contributed to the 11-5 record and a ninth seed in the European Championships held in Baumholder. The hard work and leadership of Senior captains Joel Ellison, Phil Lamb, and Anthony Wilson along with Freshman sensation Dorian Johnson made the balance of offense and defense just right. Although Patch suffered a disappointing Post season, the outcome allows for a positive outlook for next season.

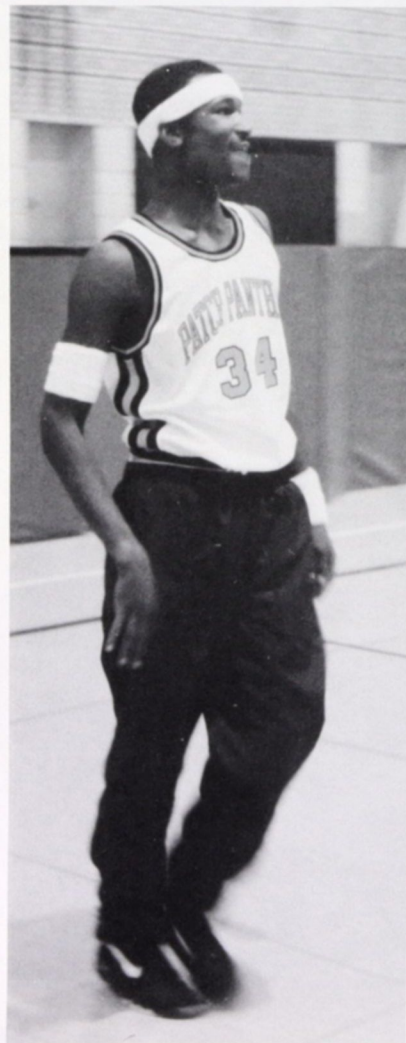

The rest of the team watches their fellow Panthers on the court.

What a season!! The 1994-1995 Patch JV Boys Basketball team finished this year with one of the best records of all time. Our play maker and leader, Richard Griffen, led the team in scoring 191 points and a 13 point average. Another powerful force on the team was co-captain Carl Lott. His strong overall game helped Patch become the power-house of the East.

Despite a controversial loss at the hands of Wurzburg, "the power house of the East" was successful with 13 wins and 1 non-conference loss.

Phil Hartman, Anthony Lyles, Micheal Hedge, Chet Caimlin, and Pat Francescon helped grab vital rebounds. To round out the JV squad; Jamaal Rountree, Dean Quain, Roger Vinson, Hunter Peil, Ryan Bulger, Willie McCaskill, and Mike Scherbel all contributed greatly to the outcome of this great season.

The Lady Panthers had an excellent season. They were coached by Shane Washington who was assisted by Bill Basset. This year's captains were Jessica Garcia, Jennifer Basset, and Autumn Tabor. The Panthers never managed to beat the second place Hanau team, but they won an exciting victory over the first place Wurzburg Wolves at home. The Lady Panthers won their final home game in over-time in a victory against the Vilseck Falcons. Through good and bad, Patch managed to stick it out to the end of the season in third place in the Eastern Division of Europe, with a record of 12 wins and 4 losses.

This year's swim team thrived on effort from all the swimmers. Everyone had their share of getting to practice at 6:00 am on Monday and Thursday and adapting to the frigid water of the Vaihingen Hallenbad with fins and chattering teeth. Long bus rides were also tolerated.

The 1994 soccer season started off on a bumpy road. Beginning the season with a few injuries, and the BIGGEST sin of all: missing the bus. Bus trips were often interesting with writing notes back and forth between the boys and the women's team buses. Tory Ingalls, Amanda Kogle, and Tasha Henderson entertained the entire women's team with their creative raps about their beloved teammates. But it didn't take the women long to reach that SMOOTH road. Proving to everyone, but most important to themselves, that they could go all the way. They ended up being Conference and Division II tournament champs!

"THE SENIOR COUCH"

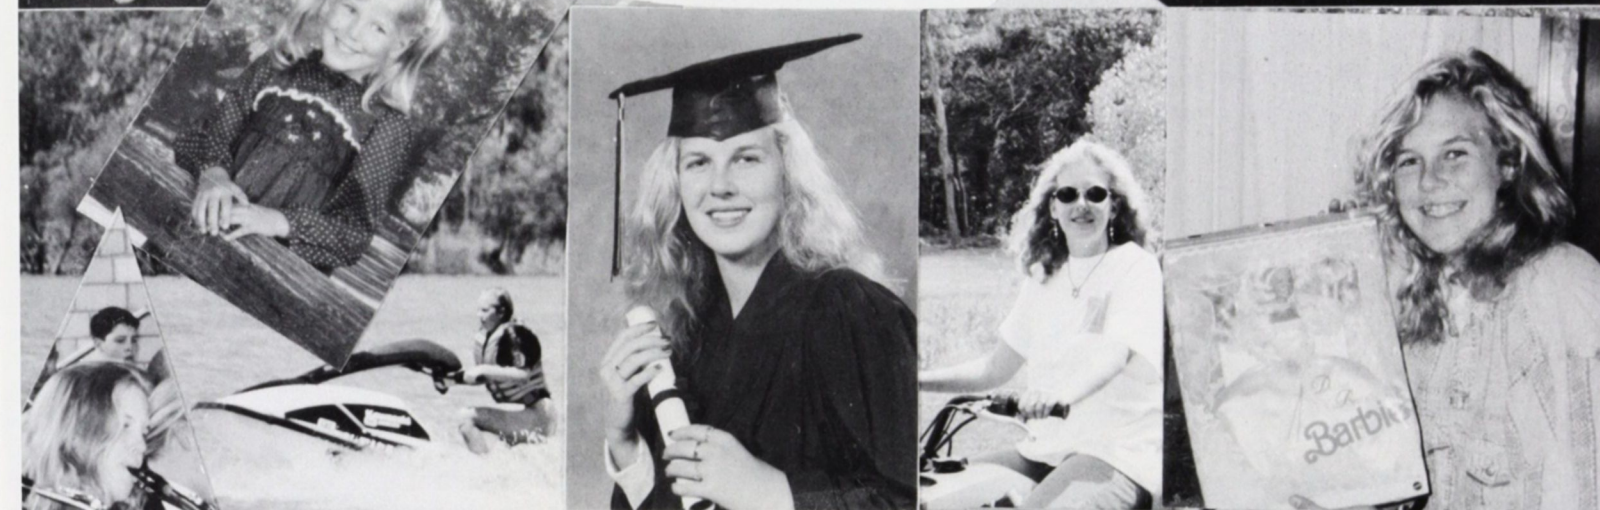

Dear Ann Elizabeth,

Here is to: the heat of Mississippi and the cold of Nebraska and Maine. Here is to our life: the rushing around of Washington D.C., and the country-ness of Illinois and Oklahoma, and back to busy D.C. then to wonderful South Carolina, then again to Washington and now in Germany. High School graduation, family, love, and caring. Remembrances ... flying, beaches, mountains, and cousins. Friends are great but family is greater and you are the greatest. We are proud of you. We love you. We look forward to being with you as you meet your college challenge after High School.

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Randy

Tasha,

You are our shining star and may you always be bright. We are very proud of you and we know you can be anything you want to be. We love you.

Mom and Dad

Congratulations, Matthew Carter Snyder,

Mom and I will always be there for you. If we had one word of advice, it would be paraphrased from God's word, the book of your namesake, chapter 6 verse 33.

"Seek out God's best for you and those around you, keep yourself pure, and the rest of your life will come together by itself."

Dad

My dear Amanda,

The future looks bright, remember your past, but do not dwell on it. Go forth, succeed and be happy. Remember, "You are the master of your fate, and the captain of your soul." Daddy and I were always so proud of you. Keep it up! I love you.

Mom

To Holly,

May there always be work for your hands to do
May your purse always hold a coin or two
May the sun always shine on your windowpane
May a rainbow be certain to follow each rain
May the hand of a friend
always be near you
May God fill your heart with gladness---and cheer you!
Irish Toast

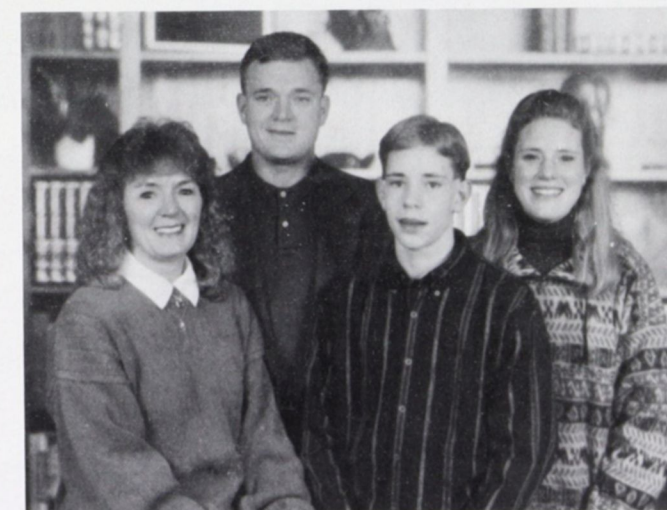

Good luck,
Dad, Mom and Maura

Dear Jaime,

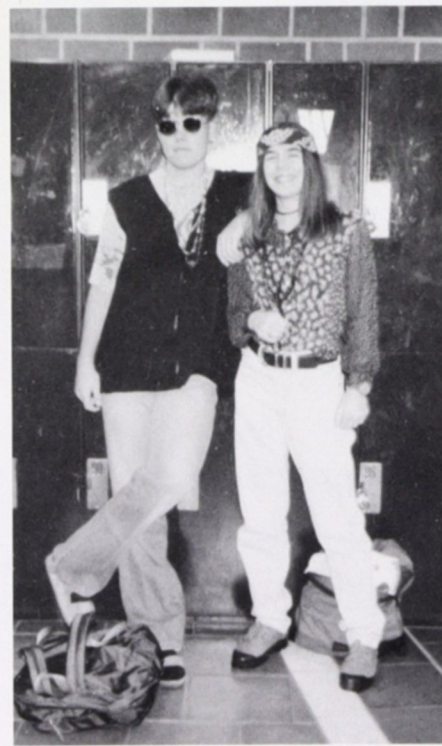

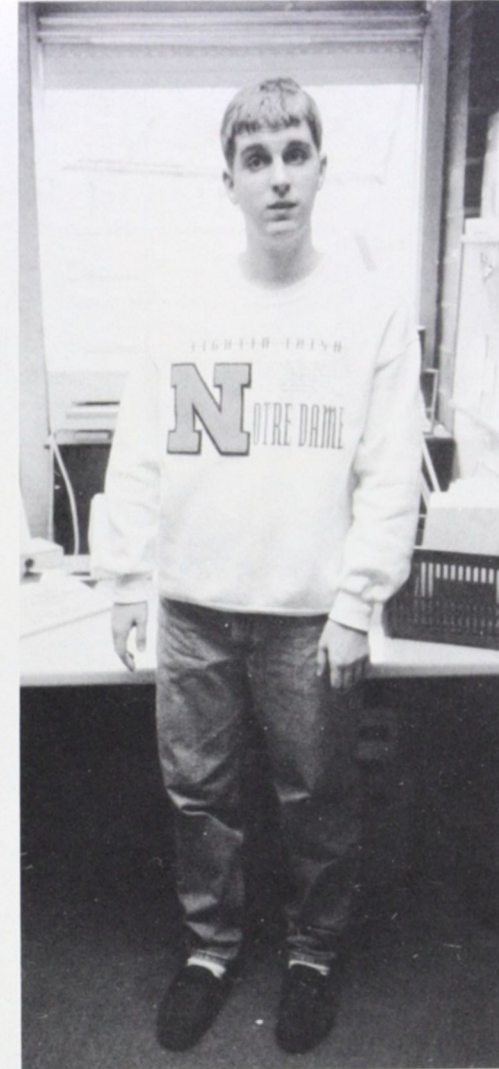

The time has come too quickly for your mother and I to "launch" you into this world. But time will not stand idle for us to even contemplate this moment. In these few short years we have been privileged to have you with us, you have made us proud. God has gifted you in unique ways. You have blessed us and others already. As you search the uncharted path of your future, keep your vision clear and your eye upon the goal. Remember to add virtue, knowledge, self-control, perseverance, godliness, kindness, and love to your faith. The wisdom of Proverbs is still appropriate. "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths." We love you very much!

Momma and Daddy
"Good-bye Patch High School",

Ronda
To our beautiful daughter, sister, and friend

Congratulations!!
We love you,
Mom, Andy, and Ronnie

Michelle:

We are very proud of you. You will carry the wisdom of all your accomplishments throughout your entire life. Thank you for being a part of our lives.

HAPPY GRADUATION.

We love you dearly,

Mom, David, Dad, Granddad, Charlene,

Becky, Uncle Mark.

Editor's comments

When you look back into your past, you see a reflection of your soul. You see pieces of the whole that have made you who you are. Your high school years are supposed to be the best years of your life. For me they have been the hardest. When I reflect on my years at Patch I reflect on tears and smiles, friendships that have endured three years of constant change, heartache, and falling in love. I reflect on saying hello and goodbye a thousand times over. I reflect on late nights, wild parties, cool gray mornings, broken dreams, funerals, travel, and never ceasing rain.

I have grown up a great deal since freshman year, and everything I have had to struggle with has pushed me toward adulthood at full speed.

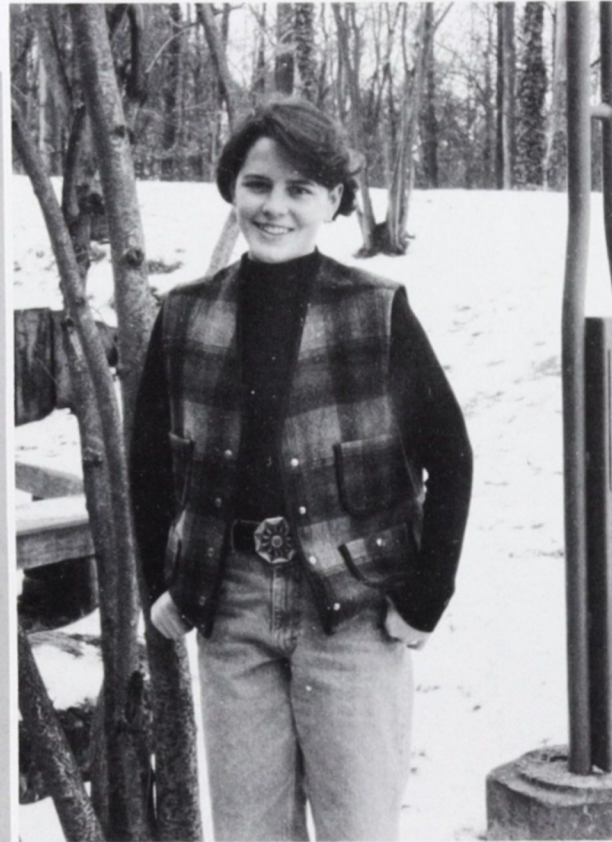

A single photograph means something different to each individual that views it. Photographs are our reflections in freeze frame. They are samples of the memories we hold within the galleries of our minds. When I open this yearbook years from now I want to be able to reflect on my high school years facing a fond or saddening memory with each page I turn.

The year 1994 globally, was for the most part pretty negative. The United States was the ever present peace keeper in Rwanda, Haiti, and more recently Bosnia. In the United States, OJ Simpson became a house hold name, as the trial of the century waged on. In the entertainment industry, Kurt Cobain killed himself, Brad Pitt became a sex symbol, and "Forrest Gump" is the movie "everyone must see". Cult movies are back in the theaters, with "Pulp Fiction" and "Natural Born Killers" taking center stage.

This year has been one I will always remember. Years from now I hope I can look back on it in a more positive light. I just hope that you too are able to reflect and grow from the pictures and memories that this book holds.

So now it is time to pass on the flame to the next journalist who takes on the challenge of being year book editor. Thank you staff for making this book of freeze framed memories possible, PHS owes ya' one.
