Trier

Trier claims to be the oldest city in Germany. It is believed to have existed 1300 years before Rome. It has an interesting history. The Romans left behind many landmarks. The Ampitheatre is dated about 100 A.D.. It is being restored at this point. Trier has many beautiful churches throughout the city.

McDonald's! Our favorite dining spot. Reminds us of home.

The Three King's House, built around 1230, originally had no door in the first two stories. The front door could only be reached by a retractable ladder.

St. Peter's Church on the Market Place, from 1595

The Porta Nigra with the Simeon monastery is the gateway into the more than 2,000 year old history. It demonstrates the power and extension of the Roman Empire.

The Organ Grinder and his monkey

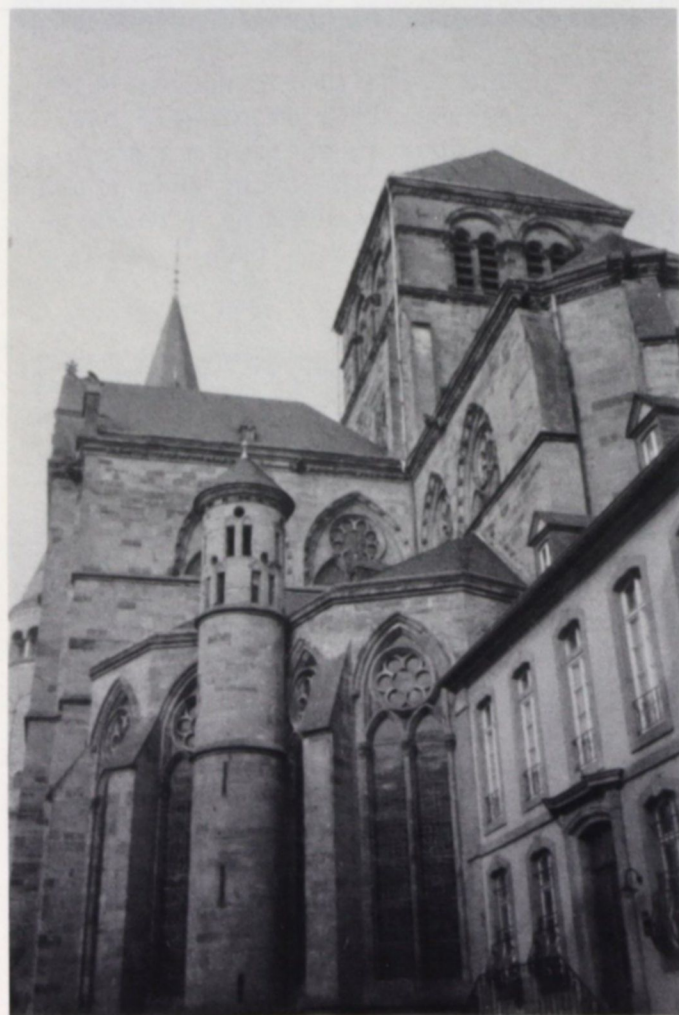

The Market Cross
standing since 958

Constantine's Basilica, now a Protestant Church.

The Abbey of St. Matthias claims to contain the only grave of an apostle in Germany. It was built in 1127.

In 325 Constantine built a mighty double church. The episcopal church was in the north, the parish church in the south, and a baptistery in between.

The Imperial Baths of Emperor
Constantine were never completed.
A visit of the passages is a special experience. It has a complicated passage system.
