the

Year

The assistant principal of West Point Elementary school is Ms. Christian.

AP

Christian

Ms.

Say Cheese

Everyone knows that if you are on the first set of pages in the year book, you are something special. Ms. Christian has been the assistant principal for many years at West Point Elementary, but with great kids coming through those doors every day, how could you walk away?

We Love You!

Here is proof that Ms. Christian is an amazing vice principal. Ms. Butler's first grade class is presenting Ms. Christian with a token of their appreciation. To the left we see her reading letters of thanks from these young students and as you look at the children in the room you can really see the admiration.

Ms. Cryderman is the newly appointed principal of the elementary school.

Cryderman

Ms.

Happy Picture Day

What a contagious smile! The elementary school's principal saying cheese to the camera for a picture.

Brrrrrring!

When Ms. McCreery is extra busy pulling together loose ends on the latest school concert, Ms. Cryderman takes matters into her own hands. A principal has to do what a principal has to do.

A Cheery Smile

Paperwork: the bane of every adult's existence. However, Ms. Cryderman manages to do it with a smile. At least someone won't take the January blues out on their kids.

This is West Point Elementary School's secretary working hard.

Ms.

McCreery

Daily Chores

Ms. McCreery keeps everything running smoothly around this place. Without her, organizing school functions and activities would be near-to-impossible. Actually, it probably would be impossible. We would just be living in some assembly-less abyss.

LOOK LISTEN LEARN

Principals' Welcome Letter

As another successful school year draws to a close at West Point Schools, it is an ideal time to reflect on the many accomplishments of our students, teachers, and parents in reaching for the highest achievement for all students. We are fortunate to live and work in a community with a proud and rich heritage of educational excellence and have seen evidence of its influence all school year. Community members have worked with students in both schools, either as guest speakers in elementary classrooms or as a part of the middle school enrichment program. Teachers have tapped many of the local resources to extend learning opportunities beyond the classroom. Students have brought unique and varied life experiences as the children of military service members to class discussions and projects, expanding and learning of all. While time propels us forward and we move on to other opportunities that life provides us, it is our hope that all learners will look back fondly on this school year and indeed all of their years at West Point Schools as a truly special part of their formative education.

This is our principal, Mr. Rudy, in his natural habitat: work.

Mr.

Principal

Rudy

Up for the Task

Mr. Rudy has only been here two years, but he has already proven himself to be a dedicated principal with all the new goals he set up for our school.

Safety First

Everyday we are greeted by the smiling face of Mr. Rudy. Wearing his brightly colored safety vest, he stops traffic so the students can cautiously stay in the white stripes. When the school bell rings, and the day is done, we can count on him to be there.

A Busy Man

As though he doesn't already have enough to do, Mr. Rudy still finds time to interact with students and help whenever possible.

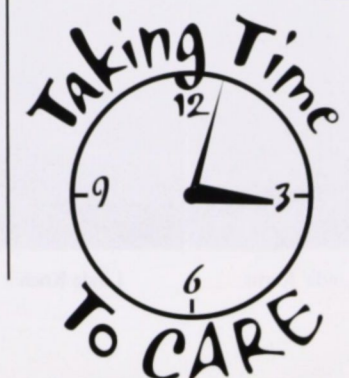

Meet Ms. Fisch, the secretary of West Point Middle school. Where would we be without her?

Mrs.

Fisch

Working Hard

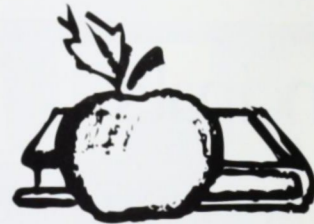

Ms. Fisch is basically the only thing that is keeping our school from falling into an unorganized doom. She not only deals with all the fancy paper work that comes in and out of the office, but the kids, too. If there's something you need to know about Ms. Fisch is your lady.

Commanders of the Middle School Army

The Leaders of the Madness

7th and 8th grade Language arts teacher, Ms. McCaw, works hard grading papers after school. Gotta love those famous spelling and vocabulary tests. Hope I got the extra credit points. (above)

Everybody's favorite historian, Mr. Sherman displays his flawless tactics. You can see the extreme concentration involved to uphold such a happy, half-eaten cookie. Mr. Sherman teaches us well.

Kudos to these brave middle school teachers. They really are the life of the party here at W.P.M.S. Bringing fun to the classroom and knowledge to the students, we can always count on these great teachers.

Mrs. Quilty, Mrs. Reifenberg, and Ms. Mills are all smiles while they raise school spirit at this year's pep rally. Students aren't the only ones that are happy to get out of the classroom!

West Point Elementary

Little Feet, Big Strides

Growing Up at WPES

These grand elementary students are quite the shining stars. When it comes to learning, sharing, and having fun, they always have an open and willing mind set, as well as a great big smile. Every one of these students is wise past their years and prove that West Point elementary really is the place to be. Foundations for these hard working students are being laid by the amazing and dedicated teachers. Not a day goes by that you won't be able to see happy and hardworking students and teachers here at WPES.

Pre-K Steps

Walking into the World of School

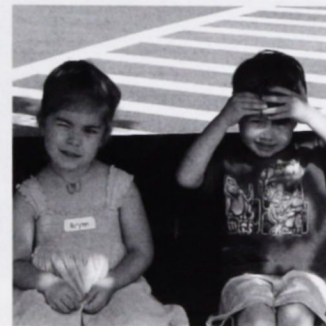

A Day On the Playground.

While Jeff Georges was enjoying his time out at recess with his fellow classmates, we happened to take a snapshot of him and his buddy Victoria Rogers.

Memories...

Pre-K is a time when kids are introduced into the wonderful world of learning, which will hopefully set them off on the right foot to learn and grow. It can sometimes seem scary, but when you have so many friendly faces around you, it's hard to be scared. Everyone has had a ball this year, and even though they will miss their Pre-K days, all the fun of Kindergarten will push them right along the growing path. We can't wait to see these wonderful stars shine as they grow.

Let's Grow Together!

In between all the learning and growing buzzing around school, you have to save time for the important things in life: playing! Everyone loves to use their hands to make something special.

Playground Madness

Every kid knows that the best part of the day is recess! It's easy to see all the fun these youngsters have while playing with friends. With such a wonderful playground, there's no time to be bored!

West Point Middle School

Welcome to the Jungle...

Eager to Learn

This group of cheery gals are happy that the school day is over, and, I'm sure, eager to come back tomorrow and do it all over again. Our West Pointers sure are enthusiastic learners.

Moving Up

It's always a big step coming from the elementary school to the middle school, but it's not so bad when you have a bunch of friends to do it with! With all the clubs and activities here at West Point Middle School, it's easy to keep in touch and make lots of new friends. No animals wander alone in this jungle!

Let's Get Together Yeah Yeah Yeah

Seventh graders sure enjoy their split lunch period. Here you can see the amount of support our team shows for our great school sports, like basketball...and finger puppets.

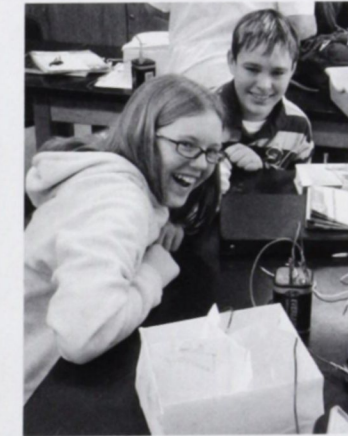

Break time!

Every good worker needs a break in the middle of the day. All students are itching to get outside with friends (and finger puppets) to fool around and let their imaginations soar!

Ordinary Day

Students make a ton of friends just by coming to school everyday. With everyone working together and having a great time, it's hard not to have a blast!

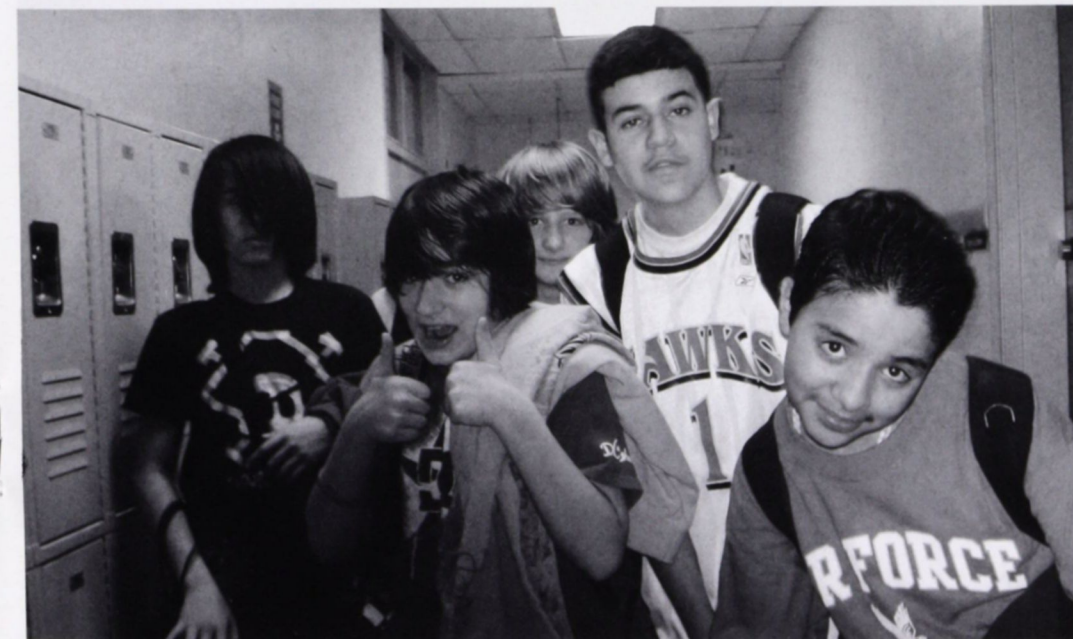

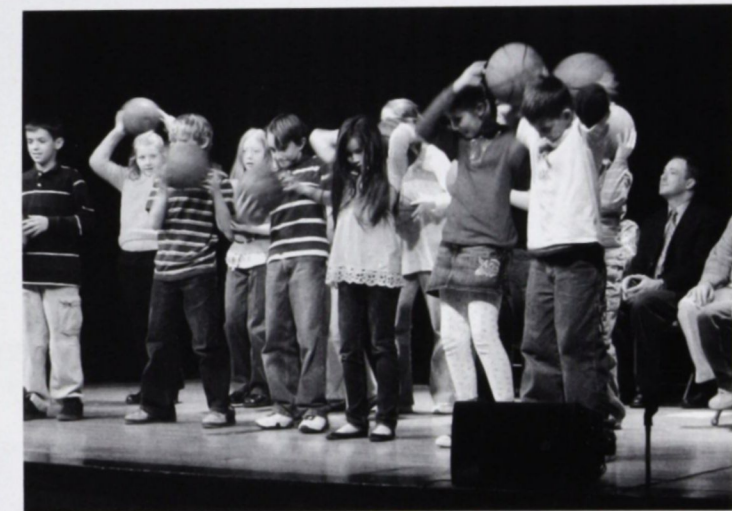

Rube Goldberg Science Projects

Every year, our school spends a lot of time doing scientific experiments. This year the seventh graders had a ball doing their Rube Goldberg projects. With groups full of friendly faces, how couldn't they?

Big Time Basketballers

We love sports here at our school. During the fifth and sixth grade award ceremony, these adventurous b-ballers put on a show for the whole auditorium to see. Great job, bulldogs!

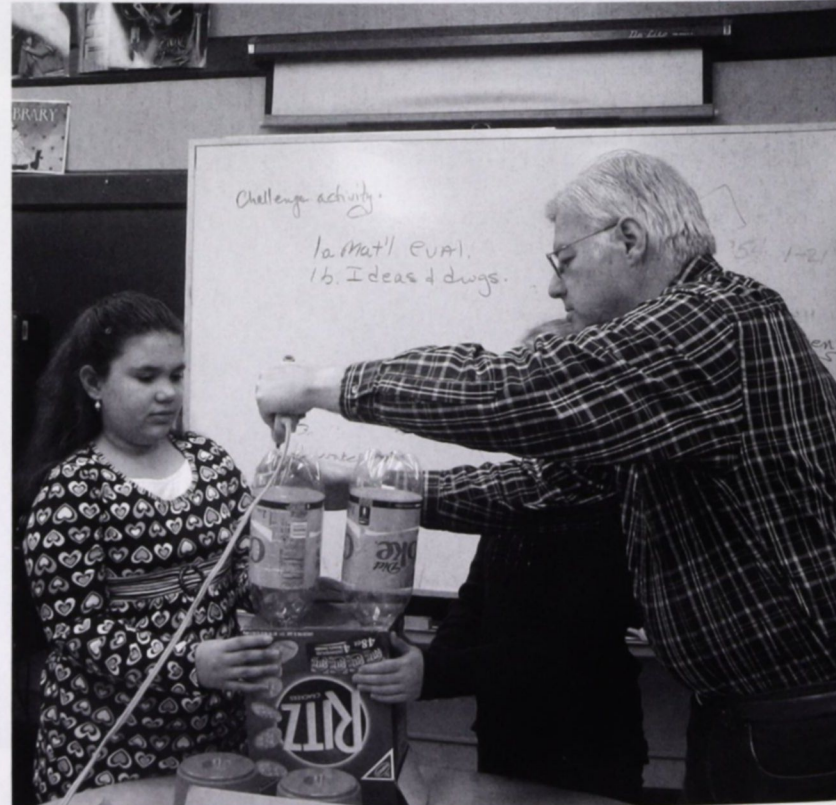

Creativity Counts

Here are West Point Middle School, we take pride in our arts. Kids freely express themselves through many different mediums, including facial expressions.

Saved By The Bell

There's always time for lots of laughs in between classes here at West Point Middle School. Buddies can meet up and hang out on their way to a new and exciting learning experience.

Everybody agrees that sixth graders have been working hard and getting used to deadlines. Ms. Himmelburger for one says that, "... most seem to regularly do their homework..." Deadlines may be important, but that isn't the only thing. If a student is perfect in every way but never tries, than they lack the most important quality in a student. "Sixth graders seem to be into their work, eager, and striving towards perfection..." says an impressed teacher. They even seem to be kind and considerate playing outside! A favorite pastime of the WPMS sixth grader is kickball. Although there are no pictures here depicting this game, nobody can truly doubt the place it holds in students' hearts. However, that is not nearly so great as the memories built and cherished over time of the friendships nourished forever. But, don't get too serious; sixth grade is great for the moments of silliness, being hyper and overall having fun. Let's just hope that the good work continues, the immaturity matures and the happiness stays.

This year's seventh grade has enjoyed wonderful teachers and great friends. This was the first real year that prepares us for high school. The seventh graders enjoyed the dances and the many other advantages of the school year, including new basketball teams for the boys and girls. Go sebies, You ROCK!

8th Graders Have Finally Arrived

Rulers of the Middle School Kingdom

These great 8th graders sure do know how to have a good time. Whether it be acing those algebra tests or exercising upper- classmen privileges they really rule the school (or at least they think they do). The 8th grade students are really quite talented as demonstrated by those awesome assembles and the cluttered bathroom walls. We are sure to miss them next year when they venture into the world of high school. They really seem to brighten up every day here at W.P.M.S.

Class of 2012
Timon Derany and Connor VanEveren strike poses while Lex Loro and Michelle Carver enjoy making the yearbook.

Our Time to Shine
This year's graduating class hangs around outside during recess while Patrick Granger and Braxton Swanke have a blast in science class. And Kayleigh Waters and Sam Newby grab a bite to eat.

Veterans Day Assembly

Dedicated to Veterans of the Korean War

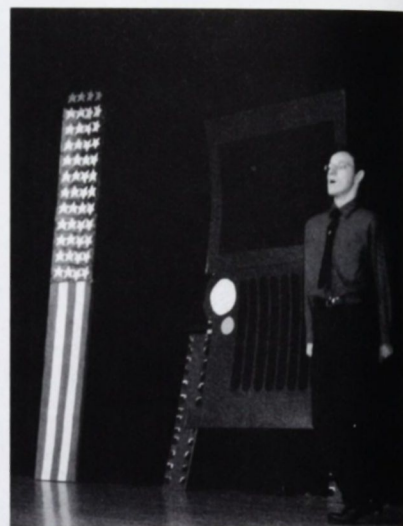

"Ruff, Ruff!"

Our students were proud to present their very own USO show. The band performed, eighth graders danced the Tennessee Waltz, and J.P. Hornbarger was "the doggie in the window".

Soldier Medley

Tae Hyun and Sung Mi (above) perform a traditional Korean greeting before doing a musical duet. The West Point chorus (right) sings a few songs for our honored guests. Sean Kilner greets men of honor before the show.

Students Salute War Time Heroes!

This year's assembly was dedicated to veterans of the Korean War. Almost 100 students participated in the assembly. We were honored to have veterans from World War II and the Korean War present at the show. The performers interacted with the veterans before the presentation and everyone dressed for the occasion. Some of the acts included the senior band and chorus, Bret Whitney as Donald O' Conner, Kurt Weir performed Shakespeare, Shelby Cashman portrayed Bob Hope, along with other drama students and poetry readers.

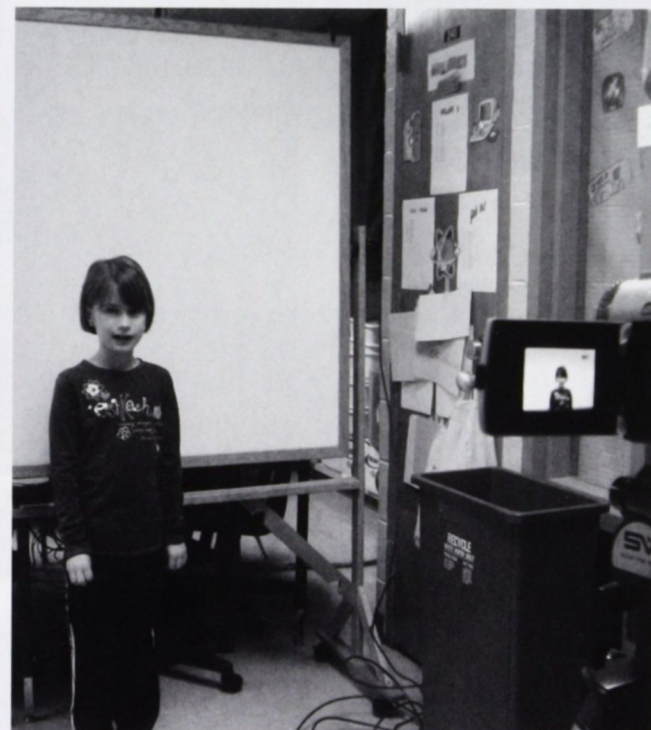

West Point Schools' Clubs

Awesome After School Activities

Going a Step Further

A very important part of middle and elementary school is extra curricular activities. Here at the West Point, a ton of after school clubs are offered for kids of almost every grade. Our middle schoolers participate in a wide variety of educational programs ranging from Spanish, art and music related clubs, to the Gettysburg study group. The elementary students have fun doing the morning news, and in reading and math clubs. These marvelous clubs help to make learning fun and interesting. There's nothing better then hanging out in a club you enjoy with your best friends.

Spanish Club!

These students have done many things from putting on plays, singing in Spanish, given highlights on certain aspects of Hispanic culture, and have shown figures of importance in Hispanic history.

Everything Adds Up

Math Olympiad students sure know this when adding two stuck-out tongues, two hands (with five outstretched fingers respectively) and hearts full of smiles to equal a great time and an everlasting friendship.

News News Its All About News

Morning News

Did you hear...?

West Point Elementary School Morning News is a program that began about seven years ago. Morning announcements including the pledge, lunch menu, birthdays, weather and other important information are broadcast over closed circuit TV throughout the elementary school building. Participation in the Morning News Program is open to all third and fourth grade students and is supervised by Miss Mackey and Mrs. Robinson. NAMES ARE LISTED BY GRADE AND DO NOT MATCH PICTURES.

Leading Students Into Greatness

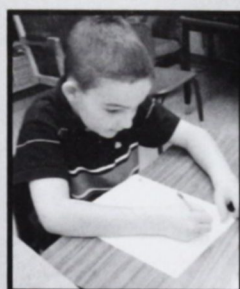

Math Olympiad is a club designed to enhance mathematical skills and is still something to enjoy. It is clear that this has succeeded by the smiling faces of the Math Olympiad elementary stars. Also, it is noted how hard students are working to learn more, faster than past generations. Soon these kids will be running past older generations faster than the speed of light.

Our Junior Mathematicians posing with their ever trusty protractor, and don't forget his best friend, Mr. Ruler. It is clear that this friendship will last until the last digit of pi. It's great to see these mathematic leaders of tomorrow smiling with their helpful buddies.

Book Worms

Book of the Month Club

Mrs. Komitzsky holding up the latest must-read book.

READ!READ!READ!

Reading is something that, like blinking, you simply cannot escape. When people drive, there are road signs that must be read to ensure the safety of the roads. You may have the right knowledge to answer a test question, but if you cannot read properly your answer will not give you a favorable score.

Liberation!

Reading, for many people, is a way of breaking away from the hassles of everyday life. It is good that we are giving students, early on, this means of fun, relaxing and learning. Reading a lot improves writing steadily. Therefore, not only is this club improving reading skills, but also, writing. This may even carry on in their lives to help them not only as scholars, but also to find that sweet escape that many adults seek.

Keeping the Halls out of Harm's Way

Safety Patrol's job is to help the elementary school students by setting good examples. They also help lead students in their crusade against danger. There are hall monitors and others that make sure that their peers don't go into dangerous areas. It's a good thing that we have the Safety Patrol. It is clear that we are in good hands.

Special Olympics

Race To the Finish Line

The Special Olympics is a great program that lets kids do things that they enjoy. This brings happiness because then students get the opportunity to do physically demanding work under the supervision of wonderful student volunteers. It is a very good club promoting fitness and health in our young people.

Seen above are the members of the Special Olympics and the student volunteers who helped out. We are proud of these excellent runners. Just look to the left and right of this picture, to witness their efforts.

Here are six very dedicated runners. If they put this much dedication into everything, they will get far in life.

Band

Our school has three bands that are based on experience. The hard-working band teacher whipped all three groups into shape, and their practice really paid off, because all three bands were amazing! From the beginning to the intermediate to the advanced band, their performances would all get a standing ovation.

Chorus

This year's chorus was wonderful. They even learned to sing a few songs in Hebrew. The chorus had extra practices that were held before school for individual sections to nail the parts of the songs that were really tricky. The set list included: "Here We Come Carolling", "Hashivevenu," "Swingin' With The Saints", and "Ain't A That Good News".

With Liberty and Justice for All...

Student Council is West Point Middle School's government. With a staff of elected student representatives, Student Council plans dances, spirit days, and all kinds of fun activities that happen around our school. Without them, we never would have thought to have "white out" day or "wacky tacky" day. Let's face it: Student Council is basically the fun committee around here.

Drug Abuse Resistance Education

D.A.R.E.

The Great Officer Tim demonstrating for students how things would look to them if they were under the influence of alcohol.

Think Before You Act!

Here you can see Officer Tim using one of our school's many SmartBoards to teach. The D.A.R.E. teachers are always enthusiastic and very knowledgeable, so class was more fun; it felt like an escape from school. Having this program for seventh graders as well is a spectacular idea, since peer pressure really takes it toll during high school.

This picture was taken at the D.A.R.E. graduation. The year was sometimes tough, and the lessons were occasionally hard to understand, but in the end, it was worth it.

Learning FAST Math

Math Olympiad is all about students competing to solve difficult math problems quicker than any other person. In this group, we have many fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth graders. This club is not only productive in education, but is also a lot of fun. Competitions are quite pleasant and it's nice to meet all the people involved. It is obvious that these learners have high aspirations to have joined this club.

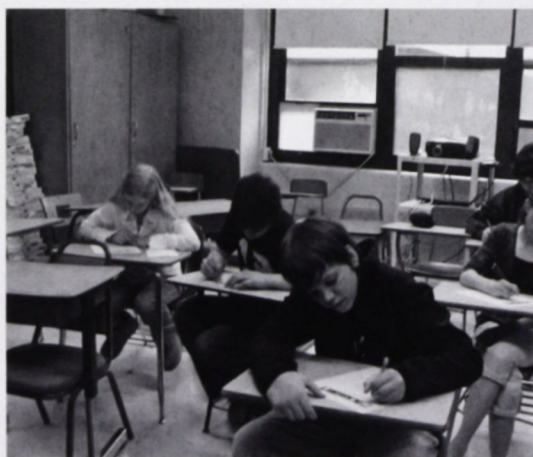

$$2y+4x=10$$

Math Olympiad

Pi equals 3.14159...
Well, I'm sure these kids could tell you the rest.

Everything has math! It is important.

Students have to use all their concentration to do well in Math Olympiad. Not only do they have to do next-to-impossible Math problems, but they have to shoot through them like nothing else.

I want to be a ro-ro-robot.

Lego League

Brandon and Jesse working with their robots. These students learned all kinds of things about programming robots and mechanics. In addition, an energy audit of our new gym revealed ways to conserve energy usage.

2008 was the first year West Point Middle School participated in Lego League. In this club, students built actual robots to accomplish missions established by competition rules. Then, two teams travelled to Pace University to compete in a local tournament. Mrs. Willis, our phenomenal science teacher, led the teams to victory.

The mechanical mascot created by Brandon Jones and Timon Deraney !! Isn't it cool?

Legos forever!

Our Cheerleaders Have Paint Brushes

There's nothing better than walking up the staircase (make sure you're walking up the "up" staircase!) and seeing the beautiful art of our students hovering above your heads. The art club is open to all grades and they brighten up the school and help everyone make it through those days.

There are some things that are better left unsaid.

The Art Club is made up of wacky kids with a creative streak. Some people might think painting to be a chore, but this gang does it with style! This picture was taken just before the Art Club started on a poster that now hangs over the "up" staircase and bears our mission statement, which just about every person in this school has imbedded into their head. At least it's catchy.

The Status Quo

Here at West Point Middle School, students can excel in their second language (or sometimes their third) with extra help from our wonderful Spanish teacher, Mrs. Conte. Spanish club suits those students who are needing more practice with the language and for those students that just love to be involved!

The Spanish club is known for their animated hats. I think this one is my favorite.

Even though it looks like Meg's pretty freaked out by the picture-taker, the two friends in the background don't appear to be exactly interested in the extra help. There's only so much a teacher can do...

Yearbook deadline parties

Yearbook Club

Extra! Extra! Journalism at its finest!

We have a yearbook club here at West Point Middle School, but those deadlines come up fast and sometimes the school day isn't enough. Thankfully, there's a small staff of students that are dedicated to having the best yearbook ever this year, so they have yearbook deadline parties that sometimes last until 6:00 at night. Talk about dedication.

Meet the editor with two friends working extra hours on the yearbook.

iMacs rock!!!

Since this is the eighth graders' last year at West Point Middle School, it's only expected that they would want this year's yearbook to be perfect. Here are four eighth grade girls working hard to make all of this year's memories really count.

You can see Josie and Courtney working extra hours on the yearbook during seminar. No time can be wasted when you have a thirty page deadline in a week.

For all of those history nuts

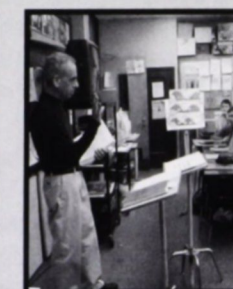

Gettysburg

Here are some students at one of the many Gettysburg meetings. It's probable that none of them even realized that this picture was being taken, they were so focused on the lesson.

At the beginning of the eighth grade year, students are given the opportunity of going to Gettysburg. It's a three-day field trip where kids go to Pennsylvania and come face-to-face with the history lessons that they've been learning all year. You learn loads about what happened, but one thing stands out above the rest, and all eighth graders would agree: it's all about trust.

Mr. Sherman caught in the act of being an awesome teacher!

USMA RAH RAH, USMA RAH RAH.....

On Friday, October 5th, the USMA cheerleaders and spirit band came to the West Point Schools. Both schools ran to the bus loop and got fired up for the Army vs. Tulane football game. The cheerleaders taught us some traditional Army cheers, while the band played in the background. Thanks to the spirit of the Pep Rally, the Army Black Knights brought home a victory.

This area is for all you WPMS sports lovers. These are great shots of the cross country team at Nationals, the boys and girls basketball teams, and the track team. All of these pictures have been collected over this 2007 and 2008 school year. We have impressive snapshots of seventh and eighth graders all having splendid times doing what they like to do with their friends. These marvelous students are having fun, hanging out, and staying fit. Let's hope they keep up their grades!

Shoot Some Hoops!

This year WPMS welcomed a new sport with open arms. In partnership with the Youth Center, we brought this grand American pastime to the eldest students at West Point Middle School. Lead by Coach Woodworth, the girls team played their way to the top with quite a bit of improvement to go around. The beginning of the season was spent learning the fundamentals and everyone had a ton of fun in the process. These girls not only picked up great basketball skills, but great friends, too. Let's go lady bulldogs!

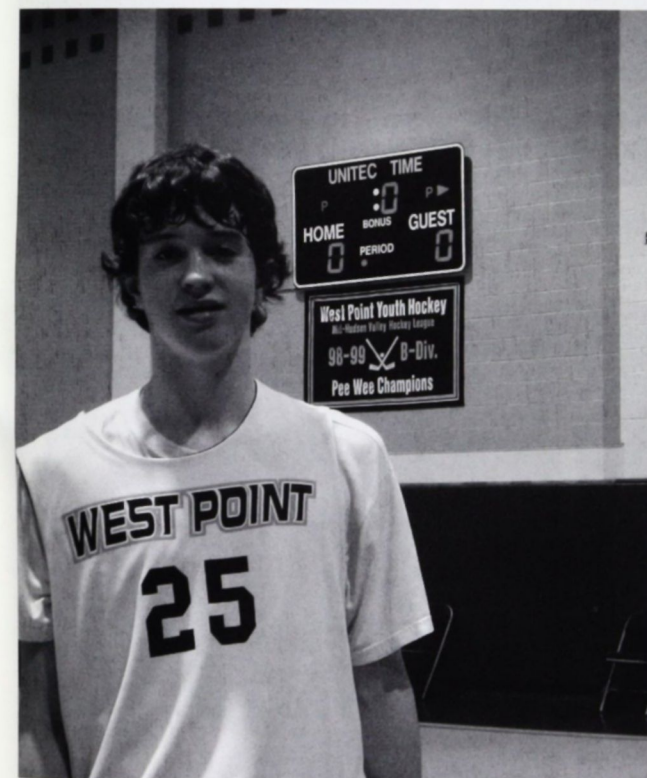

Soo Sleepy

Lots of smiles all around on the school bus after a game well played. These girls smile, despite having worn themselves out. (However, Suzy Henderson seems to be falling asleep on us.)

Boys Basketball

Mr. Sutherland leads our guys through a great season

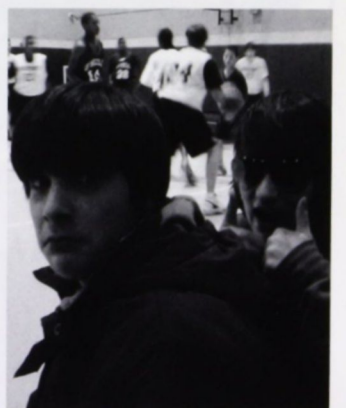

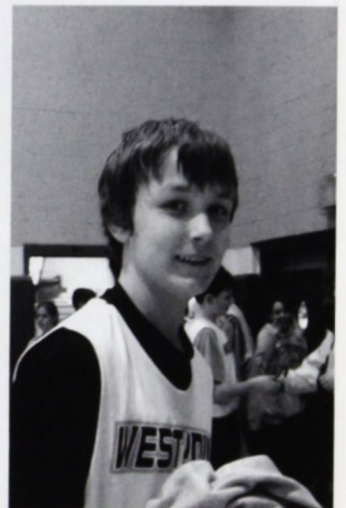

He Shoots, He Scores

The boys on this year's basketball team really made our inaugural season a success. These guys had a truly successful season and had fun along the way. Win or lose, every WPMS player showed amazing sportsmanship on and off the court. The boys' basketball games were the place to be and were never disappointing. These bulldogs were ready to play hard and we were always there to cheer them on. For the record, the West Point Middle School basketball teams rock!

Practice Makes Perfect

Malcom Timmons is playin' ball in the recess yard of the school. He must be having fun if he's smiling so wide. Soon enough, he'll like practicing so much that he'll do it all the time and go on to join the NBA.

Patrick Granger and Braxton Swanke are 'Point loyal fans they cheer on the guys during a heated basketball competition. Patrick looks as though he fears the thought of his team possibly losing. Thank goodness they didn't.
