ABOUT THE ARTIST

Meet Lena Morris, the designer behind The Printed Square Studio, a Berlin-based pattern design studio cultivating nostalgia through whimsical and cheerful artwork.

Before The Printed Square Studio days, Lena studied Journalism in Hamburg, Fashion in London and Textile Design in Berlin, Paris and Winchester. She discovered screen-printing during her studies in London and then found herself elbow deep in dye and soaking wet from washing screens in Philadelphia, this made her fall in love with patterns and textiles and the process of printing.

After long stints as an in-house designer for several Fashion and print design studios in London, she set up her freelance surface pattern business in the summer of 2023.

A love of pretty pastels, vintage novelty prints, delicate florals and retro typography are at the heart of her work. With this in mind, Lena designs patterns for kid's and Women's apparel and illustrations for paper goods and home décor. Everything is designed on her sunny and plant filled desk in Berlin's Prenzlauer Berg, occasionally interrupted by her son in need of a cheesy sandwich.

Her designs have been featured on a wide range of products by companies around the world.
