Turnstone

2010-11
ANNUAL REPORT

Tim Leonard and Neal Niezer.

Teaming up

A look at two of Turnstone's athletes and the friendship they've forged.

Neal Niezer and Tim Leonard have a lot in common. They both have spinal cord injuries and use a wheelchair for mobility. They're both students at IPFW. And, they're both among the athletes who've found a place to train, an outlet for their competitive spirit, and camaraderie at Turnstone.

Neal survived a "lap-belt injury" when he was just 13. It was December 1992 when the car driven by a family friend crashed into a tree along an icy road in Kosciusko County. One person died in the crash. Neal was instantly paralyzed from the waist down when he was thrown forward in an old-style seat belt that lacked a shoulder harness.

After Neal underwent physical therapy and became accustomed to using a wheelchair, he discovered the Fort Wayne Bandits, the nationally ranked wheelchair basketball team that calls Turnstone home. Neal joined the Bandits in 1995, and he now calls Turnstone his second home.

"I basically live at Turnstone," Neal says. "Turnstone offers all kinds of programs for people with disabilities. The place keeps getting bigger and better. Of course, I especially like the sports aspects. Turnstone even provides a place and the tools to maintain our equipment. Sports are pretty hard on wheelchairs."

From October through March, basketball is Neal's life. In addition to his studies at IPFW, that is; he's majoring in sociology. He's still playing for the Bandits, and he assists the coaches of the Turnstone Flyers, the center's prep and varsity wheelchair basketball team. He also serves as a scorekeeper and a statistician during tournaments.

Neal training at the Health and Wellness Center.

"In my opinion, basketball is the sport that translates best for people in wheelchairs," Neal says. "And it's a team sport—you meet a lot of people and make new friends."

Among those new friends is Tim Leonard, who became a member of the Turnstone community last spring. Tim, 25, survived a spinal cord injury while on active duty with the U.S. Army. A native of Port St. Lucie, Florida, Tim came to Fort Wayne with a Veteran's Administration educational program for veterans with disabilities. He's also a student at IPFW, and wants to teach high school.

Tim—or "Hoss" as he's called by people who think he's the spitting image of Dan Blocker, one of the stars of the old TV standby Bonanza—participated in the inaugural Valor Games Midwest in August. The Valor Games was a three-day athletic competition for wounded, ill, or injured veterans and active duty service members. Venues included Soldier Field, home of the Bears, and U.S. Cellular Field, home of the White Sox.

"Kevin Hughes and Tina Acosta at Turnstone pointed me toward the Valor Games," says Tim, already a powerlifter. "I only had two-and-a-half months to train, but I saw it as an opportunity to show that Turnstone is helping vets. If there's any way to get Turnstone's name out there, I'm all for it. I want to be a part of building a bridge between the VA and Turnstone."

Tim's training at IPFW as well as Turnstone's accessible Health and Wellness Center paid off. At the Valor Games he took first in the bench press, second in the shot put, and eighth in the archery competition.

Meanwhile, Neal was in the homestretch of preparing for the Fort4Fitness. From May until September, Neal was among the Turnstone athletes who trained together for the Fort4Fitness half-marathon, 10K, and 4-mile race. The trained in local parks, working their way up to wheeling 13-miles on race day.

After finishing second in the wheelchair division of the half-marathon in 2010, Neal won the division this year. "The Fort4Fitness is a great way to stay in shape for basketball,"

INSPIRED TO CHANGE

Nancy Louraine

It's been a remarkable year of positive change at Turnstone. Much of this change began after an Inspire Grant from the Foellinger Foundation enabled us to explore how we could improve and meet the ever-growing demand for our services.

Through a more recent Foellinger Foundation grant, the board of directors had the opportunity to address areas in which they could strengthen their governance. The board developed a process to better identify people in the community who could serve as directors to help achieve our goals in the future. They also made some changes to our bylaws and improved the director performance self-evaluation and peer-review processes. And, we identified capabilities that we consider "mission critical." For example, we need to strengthen our focus on consumers, better manage innovation and change, and work to develop our leadership abilities.

Our board and staff also worked on identifying infrastructure needs. Out of that came our new, 10,400-square-foot Madge Rothschild Pediatric Therapy Wing. In about three years, when we're at full capacity, we hope to serve an additional 300 children a year and eliminate the long waiting lists for occupational, speech, and physical therapy.

The new pediatric-therapy wing is just the beginning, however. We're in the process of planning for the "Turnstone of Tomorrow," which will enable us to serve more people with disabilities through therapy, sports and recreation, health and wellness, and adult day services. We're working to address the needs of veterans and the growing number of aging baby boomers who will be learning to live with a disability.

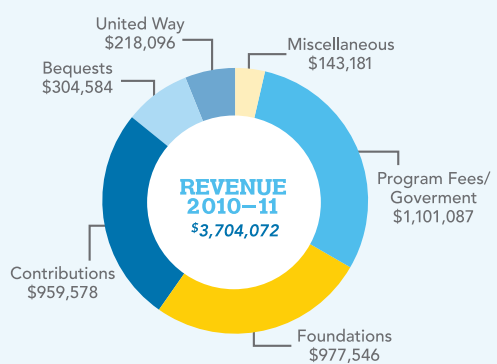

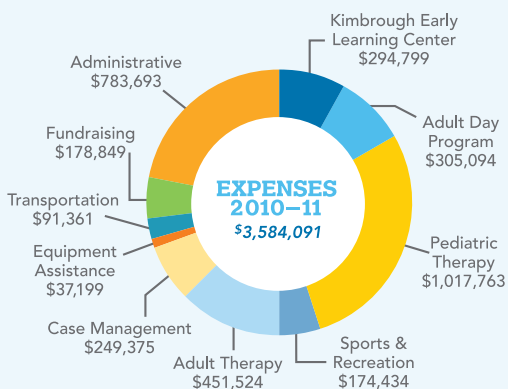

We've accomplished a lot this past year. Our board, staff, and volunteers—and you, our generous donors—make it all possible. But our work is far from done. We'll be calling upon you again next year, asking you to help us create the "Turnstone of Tomorrow."

In the meantime, find inspiration, as we do, in the strength and determination demonstrated by people with disabilities each and every day. With your support, Turnstone is creating possibilities. Thank you for all you do.

Nancy J. Louraine

Nancy Louraine
Executive Director

Turnstone's fiscal year is July 1 to June 30. Below is a review of the agency's expenses and revenue for its 2010–11 fiscal year.

Neal says. "The hills are hard on everyone, whether they're walking, running, or rolling. The general strategy is to push as hard as you can on the uphill and recover on the downhill and flats. Finishing at home plate in Parkview Field makes it a little tougher.

You have to make a final lap around the inside of the stadium, and the dirt in the outfield warning track can be a challenge in a wheelchair. But it's a good course."

Tim also did well in the Fort4Fitness, taking fourth in the four-mile event for wheelchair users. "The Fort4Fitness was great," Tim says. "I was there to represent Turnstone; that was the most important thing for me."

Along the way, Tim provided encouragement to young Tyler Sarrazine, another Turnstone basketball player. "I pushed him all the way, telling him he could do it," Tim says. "He ended up beating me by 13 seconds. 'I beat you—I beat you,' Tyler told me afterward. 'Yeah, you beat me,' I told him. It was worth it to see the smile on his face."

Tim and Neal got to know each other during their frequent workouts at Turnstone's Health and Wellness Center. They've formed a bit of a mutual admiration club, but most of their praise goes to what Turnstone provides its athletes.

"Neal won the half-marathon in just over an hour-and-a-half—that's really fast," Tim says. "Turnstone has so much to help athletes train. When I first saw the place, I was taken aback. What a great place. Everything is set up in the weight room so that wheelchair users don't even have to get out of their chairs. You just strap yourself in and work out. And my doctor's been trying to get me to do aquatic therapy, and Turnstone has that, too."

Neal counters: "Tim has a lot of enthusiasm. I wasn't that enthusiastic after my injury; it took me a year or two to adjust. I think Tim would have done even better in the Fort4Fitness if he had a better chair. Since his is a new injury, he doesn't have a chair yet that will maximize his performance."

It's a different story in the weight room. "Tim maxes out on all the weight machines—he's just big and strong," Neal says. "The weight room in the Health and Wellness Center at Turnstone has the most accessible equipment in the city, and probably in the state. And it's set up so everyone can use it—people with and without disabilities."

Neal and Tim are pretty good friends now—and teammates, too. The Bandits' season runs through March. Come and cheer for "Hoss," Neal, and all the team. Go Bandits! 🍌

Tim and Neal play a little one-on-one.

NEWS TO NOTE

Luke with his father, Jim Labas.

LABAS IS WORLD CLASS

Turnstone athlete Luke Labas was a member of Team USA in the Cerebral Palsy International Sports & Recreational Association Boccia World Cup 2011 in Belfast, Ireland, August 18-27. Team USA held the No. 1 seed, but failed to advance from pool play. In his first international competition, however, an unranked Luke did fabulously as an individual, holding some of the top-ranked opponents to 1 or 2 points in each "end" (or 13 balls played) that he lost. This was very impressive, considering these same athletes were scoring 6-plus points against all other opponents. Luke moved up 10 spots in the tournament, advancing to No. 35. Good job, Luke!

HEALTHY MINDS HEALTHY BODIES

This September, Turnstone was awarded a grant from The Olympic Opportunity Fund to implement the Healthy Minds Healthy Bodies program. This fund, which is provided through a partnership between the U.S. Olympic Committee and the Department of Veterans Affairs, will help Turnstone expand its Paralympic-sports and physical-activity programs for veterans and members of the Armed Forces with physical disabilities. For more information about the Healthy Minds Healthy Bodies program, contact Michelle Kimpel at (260) 483-2100 or michelle@turnstone.org.
