ADVANCED SUPPLEMENTATION

Nerve & Neuropathy - Device Protocol

Phase 1 — Active Treatment Cycle (Initial 90-use program)
Patients follow a structured daily routine using the therapies shown in the protocol wheel. Most modalities are used approximately 20-30 minutes per day, targeting about 90 total uses per modality.

Phase 2 — Maintenance & Ongoing Support
After completing the initial treatment cycle, providers typically transition patients to a maintenance schedule based on symptom stability and clinical response.

Frequency and modality selection may be adjusted to support long-term nerve comfort and function.

Phase 3 — Reinforcement Cycle
Repeat Phase 1 and Phase 2 annually to reinforce the program results and keep any nerves in the state of degradation in an active state of progressive improvement. Treatment schedules and supplement use are directed by the provider.

Nerve & Neuropathy - Supplement Protocol

Phase 1: Nerve Regeneration — Targeted daily supplementation is used during the initial 3-4 month period and then revisited annually for 3-4 months of use. Start the program at the onset of treatment.

Phase 2: Neuro Protection Phase — Continued long-term supplementation is recommended to support circulation and ongoing nerve health. Start the program at the onset of treatment.

Joint & Mobility - Device Protocol

Phase 1 - Consistent Treatment Cycle (1-hour per day 5X/week - 6-12 months)
Patients complete a structured program targeting approximately 120 total sessions, typically performed 1 hour per day, about 5× per week. Results are driven by the cumulative therapeutic exposure and regenerative nature of the stim.

Consistency across the full program is the key driver of optimal outcomes.

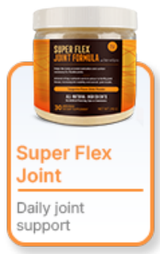

Phase 1 - Maintenance Phase - Intermittent Treatment Cycle (1-hour per day - on an as-needed basis)
After the treatment milestone is reached, providers may transition patients to a reduced maintenance schedule based on clinical response, symptom stability, and long-term joint goals.

100-use program plus maintenance - revisit use as needed

Joint & Mobility - Supplement Protocol

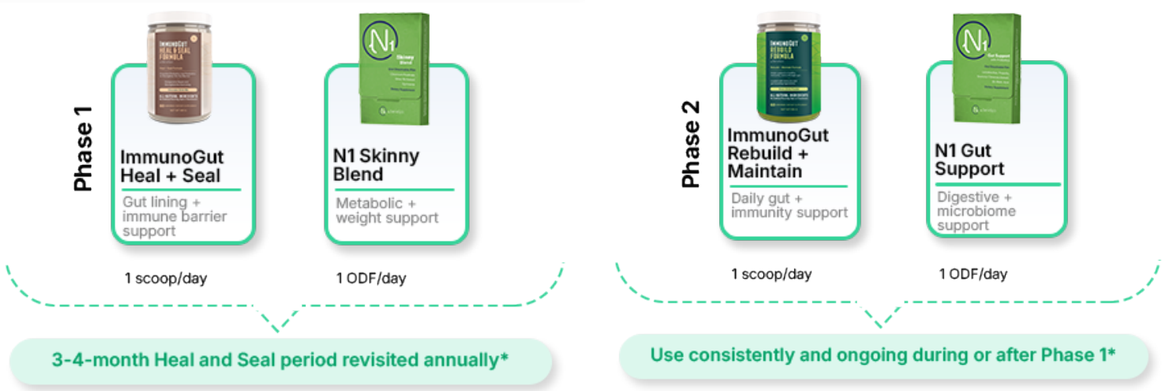

Targeted joint supplementation is recommended for daily use as part of the overall care plan. Many patients continue supplementation long-term under provider guidance.

Continual daily use supplementation plus targeted relief as needed.*

Immunity & Gut - Supplement Protocol

Phase 1 — Heal & Seal
Daily supplementation focuses on supporting the gut barrier, microbial balance, and systemic inflammatory regulation. This phase establishes the foundation for digestion, absorption, and immune response.

Phase 2 — Rebuild & Maintain
Continued daily supplementation supports long-term microbiome stability, metabolic regulation, and immune resilience.

Duration and dosing are determined by the provider.
