Dental Flossers

Dental Flossers

We are often asked by our readers whether a dental flosser should complement dental care.

We are convinced that an oral flosser it is an important part of good oral hygiene. We always recommend flossing in addition to brushing your teeth. However, the handling is cumbersome and annoys many users. The consequence is that it is no longer used after a short time.

A dental flosser promises better handling and is definitely better than no cleaning of the interdental spaces at all.

UV Sanitizers

UV-Sanitizers

The UV light kills the microorganisms by damaging their DNA. In principle, the more intensive and longer the irradiation, the higher the number of germs eliminated.

Cleaning with UV light leaves neither chemical nor other traces and can therefore be used completely harmlessly. However, if the brush comes into contact with the hand or the opening of the toothpaste tube, the toothbrush may become contaminated again.

Electric Toothbrush Replacement Heads

Replacement Heads

No matter how good an electric toothbrush may be - if you don't change the brush head at regular intervals, it won't be able to provide full power either.

- Change brush head every 6 - 8 weeks
- Clean the brush heads after each cleaning
- Use the UV sanitizer if available

Some manufacturers have designed the brush heads in such a way that they lose their colour if they are used for a longer period of time. So when the colour fades, you know that it is time to change the brush head.
