Description

After bolstering its presence in Northern California through a merger, Fox Rothschild LLP's San Francisco office needed more space and the desire to be closer to the city's financial district to better serve its growing client base. The SF office is a key component in servicing the firm's west coast clients. FCA partnered once again with Fox Rothschild in providing strategic real estate pre-lease and full design services. In balancing availability of space, location and building class, the team selected a location with partial reuse. It was FCA's challenge to renovate the floor, while adhering to a very aggressive schedule and creating a pallet which speaks to the local city, office culture and client mix. Extensive renovations were performed throughout the elevator lobby, reception, conference areas and staff work areas. Existing attorney office construction was repurposed, creating a workplace that meets firmwide aesthetics, planning and space guidelines.
