Cintas

On January 16, the Pathways Scholars traveled to the Cintas Distribution Center to visit the supply chain team and learn about their supply chain process.

Cintas is a Fortune 500 company with over 48,000 partners and more than one million customers. It was founded in 1929 in Cincinnati, Ohio, and is headquartered in Mason, Ohio. Cintas has more than 10.3 billion in revenue and 12 distribution centers.³

Cintas

The entire Cintas team was very welcoming! The team shared the history of Cintas and the culture, importance of safety, the sustainability objectives, their services and commitment to community, citizenship and inclusion with their everyday approach to

READY FOR THE WORKDAY®

Matthew Meyers, DC Manager and Emily Sparkman, Director DC Operations welcomed the Pathways Scholars and prepared the group for a tour of the facility.

Pathways Scholars put on their high-resolution vests and gathered for a tour of the Cintas facility.

During the tour, the Scholars learned about Cintas operations, product selecting, packing for transit and the supply chain process at this Cintas distribution center. They also gained a glimpse of how this facility fits into the larger Cintas global picture.

Thank you to the entire Cintas team for a great day and a shout out to The Ohio State University alumni - Max Langenkamp, Cristin Cline, Emily Sparkman and Ryan Nelson!
