The Future of KCI: A Kansas City Week in Review Special

Friday, July 26, 2013 at 7:30pm

A $1.2 billion proposal to replace KCI's three terminals with a single terminal as seen in most U.S. airports has become one of the metro's most publicly divisive issues of 2013. Might it really happen this time? Will passenger convenience suffer? Backers say the hefty price tag will be paid by the federal government and the airlines. But will the airlines end up passing the costs on to us? With air travel decreasing locally and nationwide, is this a smart move for the city?

Join Nick Haines and experts on all sides of the issue. Filmed at the Kansas City Downtown Library in front of an audience of engaged citizens, this hour-long special is a joint partnership between KCPT, The Citizens Association.
