KANSAS CITY, MO, February 24, 2015

Show Me: KCPT’s new digital series premieres online March 2, 2015

KCPT will launch a new digital series, Show Me, on KCPT.org Monday, March 2. The 6-part series highlights six passionate influencers in Kansas City (Lean Lab, Quixotic Fusion, Gimme Some Oven, Niall Luxury, Sean Malto, and J. Rieger & Co. Whiskey). Each piece is scored with the music of an area band. The series is produced in partnership with Live KC, an organization whose stated mission is “to make Kansas City a more attractive place for Millennials to live, work and play.”

Eric Wullschleger, Director of LiveKC said “The Show Me Series is a great sampling of the People, Places and Things that are making KC an attractive destination. Whether it’s the future of education, our arts community or even cocktail culture; each of the stories featured here are people making a global impact on KC’s brand identity.”

Each week after the launch of a new video, KCPT and LiveKC will host a weekly MeetUp to help connect the community to the story in person.

“We continue to look for new ways to engage with audiences of all ages,” says Kliff Kuehl, CEO and President of KCPT. “This includes creating digital first series and then getting out into the community with partners like LiveKC to talk about and experience the great things happening in our city every day. Telling the story is one thing, but helping connect people to that story is an even bigger part of our mission.”

Show Me will also be included in KCPT’s weekly Bridge TV, Saturdays at 10pm beginning March 21.

New videos go live every Monday. Discussions and more information about weekly MeetUps can be found at kcpt.org/showme.
KCPT is a nonprofit, community-owned television station serving the greater Kansas City area that provides programming and services—on air and off—that entertain, educate and enrich the community. SHOW X ME

Kansas City is no longer fly-over, its fly-to, and the best kept secret in the USA. For now.
Show Me is a new digital series highlighting six passionate influencers with tons of local pride and almost crazy national ambition. Are these the shakers and movers that 10 years later people will point to as the ones who made KC what it is?

VIDEO DEBUTS MARCH 2

The Lean Lab is looking to innovate education by incubating startups. Their goal is to make a world-class education system in KC, driven to make sure kids have the equal opportunity to learn no matter what zip code they reside in.

VIDEO DEBUTS MARCH 9

Quirotic Fusion combines aerial acrobats, dance, music, lights, and projection to make an immersive choreographed performance. They produce shows from their headquarters in KC for the national and international arts scene.
