Insider's Tips for a Great Visit to Ojo Caliente:

- Soaking:
 - Bathing suits are required in all public pools. Clothing optional is available in the Private Outdoor Pools which may be reserved for an extra fee at the Spa entrance.
 - Bring 2 swimsuits. Putting on a wet suit is not fun.
 - Bring oil-free sunscreen (only type allowed in pools.)
 - Have a suit you don't mind getting muddy and stained. The mud bath is worth a bit of mess!
 - The quietest and least crowded times to soak are early morning.
 - Ojo soaking is quiet time. If you want to soak, socialize and chat, consider renting a private pool.
- Weather:
 - Bring a hat – the high desert sun is intense. And we may have outdoor sessions or coaching.
 - Evenings and early mornings can be very cool:

April	28 Average Low	65 Average High
-------	----------------	-----------------
 - This time of the year snow, or rain, is possible. Be prepared.
- Hiking:
 - Bring sturdy hiking shoes.
 - If you plan hiking while at Ojo, go early in the day to avoid the heat. Sunrise is awesome from the mesa.

- Or, bring a headlamp and hike at night – star gazing is at its best in the desert southwest. And we'll be there during the new moon, so it should be spectacular!

- Personal Notes:

- Check twice to bring everything you need – the closest town for supplies is a 1-hour drive.
- The gift shop has some toiletries and other essentials but is limited in variety.
- The toiletries supplied in the rooms are from Ojo's signature product lines. Very nice.
- Don't bring valuables and don't take them to the pools. Bring a lock for the locker or buy one at the Spa entrance for $5.
- Wi-Fi is available in all guest rooms, the spa entrance/lobby, wine bar, and lounge.
- Cell phone use is limited to your room or the large parking lot only. There are no phones in guest rooms.
- Ojo is a non-smoking facility. Smoking is restricted to the large center parking lot only. No smoking within 60 feet of any building.

About Altitude Sickness

Elevation at Ojo Caliente is 6,261'. Altitude sickness can be a real health issue that people don't recognize. Here are common symptoms:

Headaches ❁ Dizziness ❁ Loss of appetite ❁ Nausea/vomiting ❁ Fatigue/loss of energy ❁ Insomnia

To help counter the effects of altitude sickness:

- Hydrate before, and especially during your visit. This is the BEST remedy. Start BEFORE you arrive!
- The 3 S's: Slow down, Seek shade and Stay cool.
- Increase potassium-rich foods (broccoli, bananas, avocado, cantaloupe, celery, greens, bran, chocolate, granola, dates, dried fruit, potatoes, and tomatoes).
- Decrease salt.
- Eat complex carbs.
- If all else fails, take aspirin or ibuprofen, or a mild pain reliever of your choice.

We look forward to seeing you in April 2019 at Ojo Caliente – where we can all truly embody the work / play mindset of our Lifestyle Businesses. ~ Karen and Michelle
