Emergency room visits for opioid-involved overdose substantially increased for all drug categories from 2019 to 2020, excluding heroin which remained stable.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, as of June 2020, 13% of Americans reported starting or increasing substance use as a way of coping with stress or emotions related to Covid-19. A reporting system called ODMAP (Overdose Detection Mapping) shows that the early months of the pandemic brought an 18% increase nationwide in overdoses compared with those same months in 2019. The trend has continued throughout 2020, according to the American Medical Association, which reported in December that more than 40 U.S. states have seen an increase in opioid-related mortality along with ongoing concerns for those with substance use disorders.
