advanced therapy that was not previously available in Massachusetts.

The Joint Program also focuses on researching and implementing new cancer treatments that improve outcomes and quality of life for its young patients. The team offers an average of 60 clinical trials investigating new therapies for all forms of childhood cancer. Many of these trials are founded on basic research findings from laboratory studies completed at Children's and Dana-Farber. DF/CHCC continues to grow its clinical research by integrating the world class basic research being done in cancer and blood diseases within a translational infrastructure in Pediatric Hematology/Oncology. In 2010, our researchers opened an exciting gene therapy protocol for patients with SCID-X1 that uses a novel self-inactivating (SIN) vector.

DF/CHCC educates future generations of pediatric hematologists/oncologists through one of the nation's largest and most prestigious fellowship programs. Its clinical and research teams continue to foster collaboration by actively presenting their innovative research in key hematologic/oncologic organizations such as the American Society of Hematology and the American Society of Pediatric Hematology Oncology.

Through the David B. Perini, Jr. Quality of Life Clinic and the Stop and Shop Family Pediatric Neuro-Oncology Outcomes Clinic, the Joint Program provides access to long-term care for childhood cancer survivors. Clinicians deliver medical care, such as genetic counseling and secondary cancer screenings, and conduct research studies focused on developing more effective, less toxic approaches by understanding late-effects of today's treatments.
