Form 990 (2016)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

See Schedule O Southern Sector Health Initiative (SSHI) is organized to improve care for people with chronic conditions, including diabetes, by operating a new care model focused on health care, education and research in South Dallas. SSHI operates and maintains the Baylor Scott & White Health and Wellness Center (BSW HWC) (formerly known as the Diabetes Health and Wellness Institute) at the Juanita J Craft Recreation Center in southern Dallas where 42 percent of the city's population are considered having the worst health in Dallas County. BSW HWC is the area's first and only diabetes health and wellness facility addressing the region's health care needs relative to chronic disease management, including diabetes management, specifically for the underserved and underinsured. As a collaborative effort between Baylor Scott & White Health and the City of Dallas, the goal of BSW HWC is to weave chronic disease and management into the fabric of the community so that it is a natural and convenient part of life in the neighborhood. SSHI is affiliated with Baylor Scott & White Health (BSWH), a faith-based nationally acclaimed network of acute care hospitals and related health care entities providing quality patient care, medical education, medical research and other community services to the residents of North and Central Texas. As the largest not-for-profit health care system in Texas and one of the largest in the United States, BSWH was born from the 2013 combination of Baylor Health Care System and Scott & White Healthcare. Today, BSWH includes 48 hospitals, approximately 1,000 patient care sites, more than 7,800 active physicians, over 48,000 employees and the Scott & White Health Plan. In seeking opportunities to serve this community, BSWH acknowledged the rising need for comprehensive healthcare in southern Dallas, where health disparities are high and residents struggle economically compared to the rest of Dallas County. A case illustration published in 2012 profiled the Frazier neighborhood and discussed how this impacts their disease makeup. In 2011, 66 percent of residents in southern Dallas were African American and 32 percent were Hispanic, both of which are populations at high risk for chronic disease. 33 percent of families live below the poverty line. 2010 data from Texas Health Care Information Collection shows that 89 percent of the 75210 zip code where the Frazier Court neighborhood is located is uninsured. Of those who have insurance, 35 percent are on Medicare and 38 percent have Medicaid. Approximately 13 percent of adults in the area have diabetes compared with the Dallas County average of 9.2 percent. As stated in its Mission Statement "the Baylor Scott & White Health and Wellness Center exists to serve all people by providing personalized health and wellness through exemplary care, education and research as a Christian ministry of healing." The Vision statement is "to be the most trusted name in giving and receiving safe, quality, compassionate health care." BSW HWC is built on four fundamental principles: collaborative financial support and governance, integration of social, cultural, political and economic initiatives, clinical care in the neighborhood, and community-based, multidisciplinary research. Existing resources are leveraged in order to prevent and treat chronic disease, incorporating four core competencies: 1) prevent the onset of chronic disease, including diabetes, by offering physical activity classes, nutrition and cooking classes, wellness education, and primary care, 2) identify and treat asymptomatic people who have risk factors for developing chronic diseases including diabetes or who have pre-diabetes, with the goal of helping people reduce their risk of complications, reduce their health care costs, minimize hospital visits, and reduce lost work or school time, 3) care for people who have chronic conditions by helping them regain their highest functional level, minimize the negative effects of the disease, and prevent complications, and 4) measure the impact and outcomes of this unique health care delivery model. BSW HWC provides an integrative care model including an on-site physician and nurse practitioner, visiting medical specialists, referral coordinators for specialty and ancillary care, diabetes management educators, access to affordable chronic disease and diabetes medications, nutrition and healthy cooking classes and physical activity programs including aerobics, walking clinics and weight training. The efforts already have paid huge dividends for this underserved population. More than 5,500 community members have participated in BSW HWC programs. In the face of adversity, progress is being made. A 2015 analysis showed a 17.3% reduction in emergency room use among a sample of BSW HWC members using a pre and post enrollment comparison. Additionally, a 37% reduction was shown for inpatient visits among a sample of BSW HWC members using the same pre and post enrollment comparison. To increase our impact, BSW HWC has a robust outreach program with an average of 16,560 encounters a year at numerous community and special events. The BSW HWC also enlists the assistance of Community Health Workers also known as Diabetes PEERS (Prevention, Empowerment, Education, Resources, Support) program, a program initially funded through a grant from Sanofi. With four staff members certified by the State of Texas as CHW Instructors, the BSW HWC is able to offer 160-hour fee-based Community Health Worker Training and Certification courses, as well as CHW Instructor training. The training programs are approved by the Texas Department of State Health Services and are offered to interested residents of the community. The role of a Community Health Worker is defined as a member of the local community who acts as a mediator between health care and social services and the community to assist with a range of activities such as outreach, patient navigation and follow-up, community health education and information, informal counseling, social support, advocacy and participation in clinical research. The Diabetes PEERS program allows the BSW HWC to tackle the myths about chronic diseases including diabetes and to provide needed education and support in the prevention and management of chronic disease in the high-risk communities of southern Dallas. These individuals and the BSW HWC Ministerial Advisory Board have also been instrumental in helping the staff connect with pastors and church leaders at over 50 churches in the surrounding zip codes. The BSW HWC has expanded to seven Farm Stands offering fresh fruits and vegetables at low-cost to residents of the community to address the lack of local healthy food options. Poor food access is a major contributor to health disparities, disproportionately high rates of disease, and other health problems among low-income communities. People who live in a neighborhood without access to grocery stores are less likely to have healthy diets, increasing their risk of diet-related diseases. The community surrounding the BSW HWC does not have a chain grocery store within a 1-mile radius and the only other food suppliers are small corner stores, gas stations, etc. The BSW HWC's Farm Stand offers pre-bagged produce items as well as healthy recipes with tasting samples to patrons using produce sold at the weekly Farm Stands with the goal of promoting healthy cooking and eating at home. Two of the Farm Stands located at churches in partnership with BSW HWC also have demonstration gardens to educate youth about planting, cultivating, and processing freshly grown produce to support the curriculum of the Junior Master Gardener. Merchant sales (credit, debit, food stamps) across all seven Farm Stands account for 30 percent of weekly sales, 5 percent of which is attributable to SNAP benefits. There are typically between 200 or more people who purchase fresh produce weekly from the seven Farm Stands. BSW HWC is among the few programs in Texas fully recognized by the Centers for Disease Control for its Diabetes Prevention Programs. In addition to this recognition, BSW HWC has received national and local awards including the Healthcare Leadership Council's Wellness Frontiers Award for its public-private partnership with the City of Dallas, the American Hospital Association's Nova Award for community-based innovation, and the D CEO Magazines' Excellence in Health Care Award for its Healthy Cities initiative, a collaborative partnership between BSW HWC, Dallas Park and Recreation and United Way. BSW HWC has established itself as an incubator for population health with a goal to improve the health of the city one person, one family, and one community at a time.
