| Grant Monitoring Process | Organizations receiving youth development grants are selected through a pre-scYeening and application process. These organizations sign a three year youth development agreement and are required to raise matching funds to receive their grants. Each organization is visited annually and contacted quarterly. They also undergo an annual evaluation process and must score above a certain level to remain eligible to receive matching grants. Organizations receiving tournament grants are required to submit detailed reports of how grant funds were spent. Individuals receiving development grants are selected by achieving various goals and/or meeting certain criteria. Individuals are required to participate in USTA Player Development (PD) programs and meet regularly with PD staff to evaluate development progress and continuing program eligibility. Seminar and event participation grants are awarded to individuals meeting certain criteria and are paid after participation in the specific seminar or event. |

|-------------------------|---|
| Part III, Line 4a | The goal of Player Development is to implement a systematic, player-centric approach in developing world-class American players in partnership with private sector coaches and programs. Player Development strives to be the best in the world, developing and deploying educational, training and coaching resources, to serve Team USA. The Player Development program is based at the USTA National Campus in Orlando, FL and also utilizes the USTA Training Center - West in Carson, CA and the USTA Training Center - East in Flushing, NY. Player Development also has a Certified Regional Training Center program as part of its expanded efforts to develop future American Tennis champions, which has expanded Player Development's program reach throughout the USA by working with academies, clubs and tennis centers that have a proven record of identifying and developing young tennis players. At the end of 2016, 5 such Training Centers had been certified. Player Development has hired national coaches who will have contact with 10 to 15 top players in all age groups and an in depth knowledge of another 20 to 30 players. These coaches provide information, advice and attend to tournaments with these players. The coaches are required to be certified and continue their coaching education in order to provide the necessary support to the players with whom they work. Financial support to the players is an integral focus of this program. In 2016 grants were distributed to 90 players. In coordination with the National coaches the players use these grants for training. The funds can be used in a variety of ways for tennis development (e.g., academies/coaching). In addition, focus is placed on supporting young touring pros as well as developing exposure of young American players at the international junior and professional levels. For players who participate in this program every effort is made to provide them with resources and support to foster their continued success. American tennis players, at both the professional and junior levels, made prominent headlines in 2016. By the end of the year, 7 US players were ranked in the top 50 juniors, while 5 men were ranked in the top 50. There were 15 players between the ages of 18-24 ranked inside the top 300, 9 of those players being 20 years old or younger, leading the world. US Women took the board at Wimbledon, with Serena Williams taking the singles title, the Williams sisters taking the doubles, and Usue Arconada and Claire Liu winning the juniors doubles championship. Amanda Anisimova reached the French Open Junior Finals, while Kayla Day took the championship at the US Open Juniors. At the end of 2016, 5 US girls were ranked in the top 50 juniors, while 16 women were ranked in the top 100 internationally, with Madison Keys breaking the top 10 for the first time. Player Development seeks to work with the private sector to develop world class American players, supporting players, parents and coaches, leading the world in establishing |
