Form 990 (2017)

---

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

Green Schools Certification Washington Green Schools leads a green certification system for schools Schools certify at different levels when they complete sustainability projects in their schools From conserving natural resources to cultivating gardens, certified schools engage the whole community and track results Washington Green Schools trains and supports school leaders and gives recognition and rewards to schools when they certify

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b:

Environmental Leadership Washington Green Schools offers additional programs that engage students and school communities as leaders for the environment. For example, community partners volunteer to create and improve gardens on campus through our Days of Service. Student Summits bring young leaders together for learning and inspiration. Other programs are tailored to the needs of specific communities in collaboration with WGSs partners.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

Washington Green STEM Toolkit The educational resources in the Washington Green STEM Toolkit align with the Next Generation Science Standards and promote sustainability practices in schools. One example is Zombie Guacamole, a fifth-grade science unit that addresses academic standards about food and waste systems. The resources in the Toolkit are designed for implementation at the district level in schools across the state.
