Mission Into Action

The Poetry Foundation defined 2020–2021 as a time for transformation. Transformation does not have a clear endpoint but is an ongoing process key to our organization’s future relevance and sustainability. The Foundation’s effectiveness requires a guiding light—a collective mission.

In partnership with Lord Cultural Resources, members of poetry communities, and the Poetry Foundation Board of Trustees and staff, we reflected on who we were and are as an organization to determine who we wanted to be. The result was a new strategic plan grounded by a new mission, vision, and defined set of values. This strategic plan is not the end of our work but a new beginning, and the new mission allows us to embrace and celebrate the Poetry Foundation’s legacy while reimagining our impact and future:

The Poetry Foundation recognizes the power of words to transform lives. We work to amplify poetry and celebrate poets by fostering spaces for all to create, experience, and share poetry.

2022 was a year of putting this mission into action. Reopening our doors in April allowed us to foster spaces for all through poetry readings, exhibitions, workshops, our library collections, and more with continued opportunities to connect from anywhere online. We celebrated the power of words to transform lives with the 110th anniversary of Poetry and a celebration of the lifetime achievements of 12 remarkable poets and one poetry criticism writer at the annual Pegasus Awards. We launched our first-ever grantmaking strategy that, among other goals, seeks to amplify poetry and celebrate poets by investing in building and strengthening the capacity of BIPOC leadership at nonprofit literary arts institutions, publishers, and programs associated with poetry. And finally, we furthered our mission to create, experience, and share poetry by hiring accomplished poet Adrian Matejka to serve as Poetry’s new editor—the first editor of color in the magazine’s 110-year history. Under Matejka’s direction, many emerging poets are being published for the first time.

The past few years were challenging, but our organization emerged wiser, our connections to the communities we serve deepened. We are invigorated and revitalized by this renewed focus that enables us to continue fostering spaces for all to create, experience, and share poetry.

We hope you share our excitement about what we accomplished in 2022. With your continued support, we look forward to living out our new mission, achieving our vision, and embodying our values alongside our community.

Yours in poetry,

2022 Key Updates

- Rolled out and adopted the new strategic plan, mission, vision, and organizational values.
- Increased diversity in leadership with new staff promotions and hires, including Adrian Matejka as editor of Poetry magazine, the first editor of color in the magazine’s history.
- Welcomed five new board members: Deborah Gillespie, Marguerite Griffin, Andy Jacobs, Parnesha Jones, and Marc Bamuthi Joseph.
- For the first time ever, two poets joined the board: Parnesha Jones and Marc Bamuthi Joseph.
- Poetry hosted several poets as guest editors, including Esther Belin, Suzi F. Garcia, and Srikanth Reddy, who edited eight issues.
- Staff returned to the office in April, and the Poetry Foundation opened its doors to the public shortly after, welcoming guests from Chicago and beyond to enjoy in-person events, exhibitions, library workshops, and more.
- Awarded $3 million in grants, including $1 million in continued pandemic relief funds, the largest amount the Poetry Foundation ever awarded to the literary community.
- Michelle T. Boone, Adrian Matejka, and Fred Sasaki appeared on the cover of Newcity when the Foundation was included in the publication’s “Lit 50” issue.
- Poetry celebrated its 110th anniversary!
- Hosted the biggest Pegasus Awards ceremony ever, with 300 guests celebrating the Pegasus Award for Criticism winner, Young People’s Poet Laureate, and in honor of the 110th anniversary of Poetry, 11 Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize honorees instead of the usual one each year.
- Awarded more than $1.1 million in prizes to the Ruth Lilly honorees.

2022–2025 Strategic Plan Priorities

Strategic Goal #1: Accountability

Improve transparency through evidence-based evaluation and open communication.

Strategic Goal #2: Purpose

Establish a clear organizational purpose that supports an equitable and sustainable future for poets and poetry.

Strategic Goal #3: Focus

Focus on collaborating with poets and creative communities.

Our Vision

The Poetry Foundation supports poetry in all its diversity. We envision a world where poetry is vital to building a better future for everyone.

… we have smashed sound barriers between us.
we have dared again and again and yet again to dream,
and our dreams have finally taken material form.
we have changed our hearts.
we have altered and changed our minds, and because of this, we now have some valor and strength,
and we are threatening to change the world …

Poetry Magazine

Founded in Chicago by Harriet Monroe in 1912, Poetry continues to be recognized as an influential space for verse. As the oldest monthly devoted to verse in the English-speaking world, in 2022 Poetry supported the Foundation’s Commitment to the Community by welcoming several poets as guest editors, including Esther Belin, Suzi F. Garcia, and Srikanth Reddy.

We poets are a capacious, hungry crew, and this incarnation of Poetry will be in service both to those needs and the needs of our readers.

—Adrian Matejka, Poetry, October 2022

In 2022, Poetry published:

- 444 poems
- 366 poets
- 11 issues, including eight by guest editors
- 29 visual/multimedia poems
- 77 prose pieces
- 27 episodes of the Poetry Magazine Podcast

Additionally, Poetry:

- Received more than 15,100 submission packets
- Paid $344,588 to poets*
- Donated more than 3,500 issues
- Published 256 first-time contributors, which is 70% of poets published
- Shared poetry with 27,568 subscribers

*This does not include the salaries paid to Poetry guest editors, monthly payments to the podcast producer, or the fellows, all of whom are poets.

Adrian Matejka Joins Poetry as New Editor

Adrian Matejka joined Poetry as the new editor on May 16, 2022. Matejka, who was selected through a national search, is the first Black editor to lead Poetry.

Born in Nuremberg, Germany, Matejka grew up in Indianapolis, Indiana, and served as 2018-2019 Poet Laureate of Indiana. A seasoned professor and writer, Matejka has authored several collections of poetry, including his most recent collection, Somebody Else Sold the World, which was a finalist for the 2022 UNT Rilke Prize, and his first graphic novel, Last On His Feet.

Matejka’s honors include a Eugene and Marilyn Glick Indiana Authors Award, Pushcart Prize, Julia Peterkin Award, and fellowships from the Academy of American Poets, the Guggenheim Foundation, the Lannan Foundation, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Rockefeller Foundation, and a Simon Fellowship from United States Artists. Matejka earned an MFA at Southern Illinois University Carbondale and graduated from Indiana University Bloomington, where he served as a Ruth Lilly Professor of Poetry.

Library

The Poetry Foundation library is the only library in the Midwest dedicated to poetry. Library visitors may browse a collection of 30,000 volumes, experience audio and video recordings in private listening booths, and view exhibits of poetry-related materials. In addition to providing public access to its collections in the form of a reading room, the library hosts interactive programs to inspire a wider poetry readership in people of all ages.

Book Clubs

Library staff moderate an online book club featuring works by a wide range of classic and contemporary poets. Continuing with the virtual format established in 2020 allows guests to join from anywhere. Participants in the US receive copies of the discussion book free of charge.

- 12 book clubs (one each month)
- 166 participants
- 11 of the 12 books discussed were by BIPOC poets
- 12 of the 12 books discussed were by living poets

Writing Workshops

Forms & Features, the library’s longstanding writing workshop, has been offered online since 2020. Participants come together to learn about different poetic forms and aspects of poetry from the work of a wide variety of poets, teaching artists, and each other. Celebrating the Poets of Forms & Features, an event held seven times a year, provides past participants with the opportunity to share work they have developed in Forms & Features workshops. Two readings featured the 12 poets of the Visiting Teaching Artists series.

- 113 sessions
- 1,825 attendees

I struggle to express how vital your workshop sessions have been to my education as a reader of poetry—all those hours of discussing and listening and considering together (in a sensitively led space) have flowed directly into my first attempts at criticism.

Exhibitions

Reopening meant that the Poetry Foundation could welcome people back not only with poetry and events but also artist exhibitions celebrating poetry and poets. Two special exhibitions did just that.

Planetaria Monica Ong

Planetaria, an exhibition of visual poems by Monica Ong, used the visual language of astronomy to explore the precarious territories of motherhood, women in science, and diasporic identity. Playfully taking poetry off the page as handheld volvelles, broadsides, and vinyl installations, this series sought to imagine the sky from a female perspective.

If poetry and astronomy were to throw an art party, this one invites audiences across disciplines and cultures to imagine new cosmographies where everyone belongs.

Diana Solís: Encuentros

Diana Solís: Encuentros presented photographs by queer Mexicana Chicana feminist artist Diana Solís, documenting poetry communities in Chicago—including the Guild Complex, La Decima Musa, Weeds, and Hothouse—throughout the 1970s–1990s. Curated with Oscar Arriola and Nicole Marroquin, this exhibition featured books, photographs, and ephemera exploring a unique moment in Chicago’s literary history, illuminating the legacy of Solís’s life in arts and literature.

Summer Poetry Teachers Institute

In July 2022, we hosted 302 kindergarten through 12th-grade and community college educators for two days of invigorating performances, breakout sessions, and virtual panels led by 20 poets. Participants were invited to consider how poetry plays a central role in one’s ability to transform oneself and the world, and what practices educators can engage to use poetry to transform the classroom. The Poetry Foundation worked with longtime partner O, Miami to plan and facilitate the Institute.

Fantastic institute! The enthusiasm and the positivity around education; all the shared resources and links; the variety of student ages addressed by different presenters; the ability of all presenters to take concepts like transformation and joy and make them tangible for the classroom—so many good things.

Poetry Out Loud

Poetry Out Loud is a national arts education program that encourages the study of great poetry by offering free educational materials and a dynamic recitation competition for high school students across the US. A partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts and state and jurisdictional arts agencies, this program helps students master public speaking skills, build self-confidence, and learn about literary history as it relates to contemporary life. Since 2005, Poetry Out Loud has grown to reach more than 4.1 million students and 68,000 teachers from 17,000 schools and organizations in every state, American Samoa, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the US Virgin Islands.

2021–2022 School Year

• 139,028 participating students
• 1,448 schools
• $45,500 in prize money was awarded to competing students and their schools
  • Six national finalists each received a $1,000 prize
  • The schools of each of the top nine finalists received $500 to purchase poetry materials

2022 Champions

• First place: Mia Ronn, junior at the Archer School for Girls in Los Angeles, California, received a $20,000 prize.
• Second place: Aidyn Lorin Jai Reid, senior at Fountain Valley School of Colorado in Colorado Springs, Colorado, received a $10,000 prize.
• Third place: Oscar Manuel Landa Samano, a senior at Coconino High School in Flagstaff, Arizona, received a $5,000 prize.

Performing a piece of writing can kind of connect you to it, to the text and to the poet themselves. You just can’t get the same understanding from reading a poem, no matter how many times you do, as you can from when you bring it to life.

Media Partnerships

Through a variety of collaborations, the Poetry Foundation invests in poetry programming to reach audiences across the full media spectrum. Our current partners help extend our efforts to foster spaces for all to create, experience, and share poetry through podcasts, video, print, digital publications, and beyond.

Podcast listeners continued to love connecting with poetry every weekday via The Slowdown, pushing it to the top one-percent of podcasts with more than 200,000 tuning in to each episode. Produced in partnership with American Public Media, season three of The Slowdown was downloaded nearly four million times. In 2022, host Ada Limón became the new US Poet Laureate, which kicked off a search for her replacement. Before the end of the year, award-winning poet Major Jackson was selected to carry on the tradition of offering listeners the opportunity to find calm through poetry.

I’ve been using [The Slowdown] in class, and it’s been really successful at getting kids to engage with new types of poetry.

—Teacher and The Slowdown listener

Ours Poetica, an online video series hosted on a dedicated YouTube channel, captures the intimate experience of holding a poem in one’s hands and listening as it is read by a distinctive voice. Ours Poetica features poets, writers, artists, and sometimes unexpected—yet familiar—guests who have an interest in poetry. Curators include Charlotte Abotsi, Sarah Kay, and Paige Lewis. Ours Poetica is presented by the Poetry Foundation in partnership with Complexly.

The Poetry Foundation has partnered with the Chicago Reader since 2020 to bring poetry to a local audience via Poetry Corner. Every other week, the free print and digital publication shares a poem from a Chicago poet, providing emerging local writers with a platform and readers with a chance to engage with new poetry. The poems for this section are selected by acclaimed Chicago poets with regularly rotating curatorships.

After 17 years of bringing weekly poems to people around the US as a free weekly column for newspapers and online publications, we bid farewell to American Life in Poetry. The online archive of contemporary poems selected by founder Ted Koosser and editor Kwame Dawes remains available for all to enjoy on the American Life in Poetry and Poetry Foundation websites.

Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize

The annual Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize is typically awarded to one living US poet for outstanding lifetime achievement. In 2022, in honor of Poetry’s 110-year anniversary, the Poetry Foundation awarded 10 additional Ruth Lilly Poetry Prizes, resulting in a total of $1,132,500 in prizes to the 2022 Pegasus Awards winners. It is the largest prize that the Poetry Foundation has ever awarded to a cohort of living poets at one time.

Young People’s Poet Laureate

$25,000 prize for a two-year term

The Young People’s Poet laureateship and $25,000 prize are awarded every two years to a living writer in recognition of a career devoted to writing exceptional poetry for young readers. Naomi Shihab Nye served an extended tenure due to the cancellation of many of her readings and programs during the COVID-19 pandemic. In 2022, Elizabeth Acevedo, the bestselling author of The Poet X, was named the 2022–2024 Young People’s Poet Laureate. Acevedo will promote poetry to children and their families, teachers, and librarians throughout her two-year tenure.

Pegasus Award for Poetry Criticism

The Pegasus Award for Poetry Criticism annually honors one book-length work of criticism published in the prior calendar year and includes a $7,500 prize. Kevin Quashie was the 2022 recipient for his book Black Aliveness, or A Poetics of Being, which draws on Black feminist literary texts, including work by poets Lucille Clifton, Audre Lorde, and June Jordan.

2022 Pegasus Award for Poetry Criticism Finalists

- Anahid Nersessian for Keats’s Odes: A Lover’s Discourse
- Syd Zolf for No One’s Witness: A Monstrous Poetics

Ruth Lilly and Dorothy Sargent Rosenberg Poetry Fellowship

Every year, the Poetry Foundation’s Ruth Lilly and Dorothy Sargent Rosenberg Poetry Fellowship recognizes five outstanding young poets, providing support early in their careers to encourage the further study and writing of poetry. In 2022, Tarik Dobbs, Diamond Forde, Alan Pelaez Lopez, Tariq Luthun, and Troy Osaki each received $25,800. The $129,000 awarded makes the fellowships among the largest, most prestigious awards available for young poets in the US.
Director of grants and awards, Chris Guzaitis, and vice president, programs and engagement, Ydalmi Noriega
Grants

The grants program is part of the Poetry Foundation’s commitment to supporting the field of poetry and the literary arts more equitably and transparently. In 2022, the Poetry Foundation instituted a new grants program with an initial commitment of $9 million over the first three years. Grantees are selected through a community-based grant proposal review process consisting of 23 external reviewers from the arts and culture community. The reviewers then make funding recommendations to an internal committee at the Poetry Foundation.

2022 Grants Priorities

- Relief funding to nonprofit poetry and literary arts organizations impacted by the pandemic
- Investing in building and strengthening the capacity of BIPOC leadership at literary arts and publishing organizations and in nonprofit programs in poetry
- Cultivating and engaging new, diverse audiences for poetry
- Fostering new collaborations, partnerships, innovations, and technologies in the field

It is exciting to end 2022 having launched the Poetry Foundation’s new public grants program and awarding $3 million in grants in support of poetry across the US. Our 2022 cohort of grantee-partners are doing phenomenal work to increase access to poetry for all, and we are proud to be supporting each of them. Given that the literary arts receive the least amount of funding among the five major art forms, the Poetry Foundation is hopeful that the new grantmaking program encourages others to invest in poets and poetry more robustly.
