Since our inception, Stealth has specialized in proactive remote video surveillance for commercial properties across North America.

Our three, in-house video monitoring centers are set up to tackle challenges by industry, vertical and location.

We combine the latest technology, human intelligence and years of experience to provide customers with an enhanced level of security while minimizing business risk and reducing costs.

Live video monitoring involves a team of trained security operators who monitor multiple video cameras simultaneously in real time.

Video analytics software, located in the camera, can be set up with specific parameters that can target people and vehicles in each area.

If an activity occurs outside of those parameters, the system will automatically alert an operator who can take appropriate action.

Our security specialists will customize a solution that best fits your needs and objectives.

Trained video operators watch commercial properties in real-time for unusual activity.

Operators can activate an on-site speaker warning and call local police.

Police will be kept informed of suspects' location and activity by our security operators.
