

Gravy

DOCUMENT • CELEBRATE

ABOUT GRAVY

A publication of the Southern Foodways Alliance, a member-supported institute of the Center for the Study of Southern Culture at the University of Mississippi. Visit www.southernfoodways.org.

Editor:

Sara Camp Arnold
gravy.sfa@gmail.com

Designer:

Devin Cox
devincox@gmail.com

TABLE OF CONTENTS

- ▶ PAGE 2
More Than Moonshine
Lora Smith
- ▶ PAGE 6
Big Bad Pastry Chef
Vanessa Gregory
- ▶ PAGE 9
South by Southeast
as told to Kate Medley by
Hieu Pham
- ▶ PAGE 12
A Family Tradition
Chris Chamberlain
- ▶ PAGE 14
A Cardinal from the Ashes
Jed Portman

PUBLICATION OF GRAVY is underwritten
by Mountain Valley Spring Water.

EDITOR'S NOTE

IN THIS ISSUE OF GRAVY, we introduce you to five men and women (well, really six: we fudged the numbers with a set of twins) who are thirty-five years old or younger and making their mark on Southern food and beverage. Kahlil Arnold, Anna Bogle, Dwayne Ingraham, Alex and Charlie Mauney, and Hieu Pham are among the up-and-comers in their profession who happened to enter grade school during the Reagan era. We're not trying to give you the definitive list of "5-under-35" in Southern food; we just want to tell you five compelling stories you probably haven't heard before.

If these individuals share a common thread, it's a strong sense of where they come from paired with the creativity—and courage—to do things their own way. Welcome to the black, white, Asian, male, female, sweet, spicy, boiled, boozy, farm-fresh, foraged, locally inspired, globally inflected future of Southern food and drink.

—Sara Camp Arnold

