Appalachian Athletics promotes an inclusive culture that fosters equitable participation for student-athletes and equitable career opportunities for coaches, administrators and support staff from diverse backgrounds and perspectives.

The Department of Athletics at Appalachian State University believes in maintaining the intercollegiate athletics program as an integral part of the University's overall program of education, with emphasis on and priority given to the high academic quality and standards and the complete development of the student.

Appalachian State University provides opportunity and encouragement for student-athletes to progress toward degrees of their choice and to develop athletic abilities in an environment consistent with high standards of academic scholarship, leadership and institutional loyalty. The Department of Athletics is committed to ensuring the general welfare of the student-athlete and to encouraging the highest standards of sportsmanship on behalf of student-athletes, the student body and the University's supporters. The intercollegiate athlete representing ASU is both a bona-fide student pursuing a degree program and an amateur competitor.

Appalachian Athletics is committed to insuring equitable recruitment, participation and treatment of individuals including members of under-represented populations through its athletics administration, staff, coaches, programs and policies. The University's policy of non-discrimination represents a moral and ethical, not merely a legal, imperative.

The University has determined that its athletics program will meet the necessary qualifications, guidelines and funding to hold membership in Division I of the NCAA. The athletics administration, the faculty athletics representative and the Athletics Council work together to insure that all teams and coaches follow the rules and regulations governing this division.

A sound program of intercollegiate athletics should benefit the institution through its effects on students, alumni and the institution itself. Specifically, it should maintain and improve the loyalty and esprit de corps of the student body, and in strengthening the pride and enthusiasm of the alumni; it should serve as a favorable public relations factor and provide benefits to the participants.

Bill Dicus Head Coach 20th season Campbell University

The 2011-12 season marks Bill Dicus' 20th year at Appalachian State University and his 18th at the helm of the men's golf program.

With a young squad in 2010-11, Dicus' team surpassed its modest expectations in what was thought to be a rebuilding year.

In March, sophomore Josh Nichols matched a program record with a 65 in the opening round of the Don Benbow/North-South Invitational and carried the Apps to their first tournament title since 2002-03 with a 36-hole tally of 585 (+17). Nichols cruised to a five-stroke individual win at the event, while Daniel Walsh tied for third place and two others notched top-20 finishes as well.

That tournament was ASU's third-straight top-10 finish in the spring as a mix of veterans and newcomers combined for a 301.3 stroke average on the season, the third-best in program history.

Freshman Casey Komline made a splash in his rookie year, ranking third on the team with a 75.81 stroke average in 16 rounds to go along with a pair of top-10 finishes.

In 2009-10, the head coach saw his hard work pay off as senior Casey Johnson won the Spring Hill Suites Intercollegiate and later placed second at the Mission Inn Intercollegiate. The senior graduated as one of the top golfers in the Southern Conference and one of the best in ASU history.

Johnson graduated with four of the five lowest single-round scores in program history, as well as the best 54-hole tournament score (207). His stroke average is also the best in ASU history, at 74.79 spread over 112 rounds. (He narrowly edges Bern Gregory's mark of 74.90.)

The Apps placed in the top-10 in eight out of 11 tournaments for the season, including a third-place finish at the Mission Inn Intercollegiate. ASU's 298.79 team stroke average in 2009-10 stands as the second-best in program history, behind only 2000-01's 298.12.

In 2008, Dicus led the team to a season-best finish of fifth place at the North-South Intercollegiate in Jacksonville, Fla.

During his tenure with the men's team, Appalachian has finished as high as fourth (in 2001) in the Southern Conference, one of college golf's most prestigious conferences.

Dicus led Bern Gregory onto the all-conference team in 2000 and also led the team to fourth place in 2001 in the Southern Conference.

While at Appalachian, he also coached the women's team for fifteen seasons. The Mountaineers placed second in the SoCon three times, placing behind only national-power Furman.

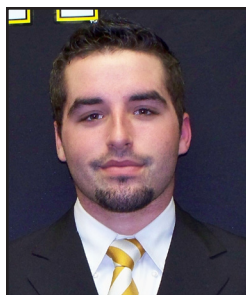

Dicus also coached the league's Freshman of the Year, Kelly Clements, in 1996. Dicus mentored two All-conference performers, Merryll McElwain (1994-96) and Brittany Winterton (1997). He led the Mountaineers to consecutive sixth-place showings in the very competitive SoCon Championship in 2006 and '07, the Apps' best finish since 2003.

A native of Honolulu, Hawaii, Dicus is a class A member of the Professional Golfers' Association of America. He received a Bachelor of Science from Campbell University and has done post-graduate work at Appalachian.

In addition to his duties at ASU, Dicus serves as a golf professional at Linville Ridge Country Club in Linville, N.C., one of the premier courses in North Carolina. The Dicus family is heavily involved in charity work throughout the High Country, as well.

Dicus and his wife, Pepe, reside in Boone.

Appalachian State Mountaineers

Heather Brown Head Coach Fourth season Appalachian State

Heather Brown begins her fourth season at the helm of Appalachian State University women's golf after leading the team to unprecedented success over the past two seasons.

A rapidly-maturing team took giant steps in 2010-11, as the Mountaineers claimed their first team title since February 2004 at the Low Country Intercollegiate in March. Three sophomores earned the event's top finishes, as Yue Xu carded a 147 (+3) to earn her second-career title while Kristina Boo and Rumbidzai Masamvu took the second and third places, respectively.

The Apps notched five top-three team finishes in nine tournaments on the season and posted the lowest team score in program history (313.14) for a second-straight year.

In a season full of team and individual accomplishments, Xu became the first all-SoCon honoree since 2006, Kristina Boo took over the career stroke average lead at ASU with a 79.26 and four different players combined for 21 top-20 finishes on the season.

In 2009-10, senior Brooke Dehart and four freshmen recorded a pair of second-place finishes, at the Campbell Fighting Camel Classic as well as the Mimosa Hills Intercollegiate. It marked the first time that the Apps placed second or better twice in a season since 2001-02.

Newcomer Yue Xu then single-handedly rewrote the record books with her performance at the Southern Conference Tournament. The freshman became the first ASU woman to win the event, with a three-stroke victory, which earned her freshman all-SoCon honors. Under Brown's tutelage, Xu set ASU's single-round record (69) and 54-hole record (69-72-76=217) at the SoCon Championship and the single-season stroke average at 75.6 (previously 77.8).

All told, Xu placed in the top-10 in all six spring tournaments in 2010. Brown's solid recruiting efforts began to pay off with team depth, as fellow newcomers Rumbidzai Masamvu (79.3) and Kristina Boo (80.4) ranked second and third on the team in stroke average for the season.

In her first season at the helm, Brown's Mountaineers posted four top-10 team finishes, including fourth place as the host team at the Mimosa Hills Women's Intercollegiate. She helped Kerri Dice and Brooke DeHart to breakout seasons in 2008-09 as the duo shaved a combined four strokes off their averages from the year before.

Under Brown's guidance, Appalachian has posted 10 rounds of 305 or lower. Prior to her arrival, ASU had reached that mark just eight times in program history.

Brown was tabbed to lead the Appalachian State University women's golf program on Friday, May 16, 2008. Brown, a 1989 ASU graduate, brings 18 years of professional golf experience with her back to the High Country.

From 2002-08, the Madison, Conn. native headed up the Golf Juniors program at Richter Park Golf Course in Danbury, Conn., where she mentored dozens of young golfers, coached high school golfers and taught several hundred private lessons on an annual basis. Additionally, Brown helped lead the Danbury High School girls team to a state championship in 2004-05.

Prior to her time in Danbury, Brown served as a golf professional throughout Connecticut at Tamarack Country Club from 1994-95 and 1998-2001, Rolling Hills Country Club from 1996-97, Cabarrus Country Club from 1992-93 and Klein's Driving Range from 1995-96.

As a student-athlete, Brown played for ASU head coaches Tom Adams and Peter Rucker from 1984 to '88. She was both the captain and team MVP in 1988. Her former teammate, Angie Ridgeway, is the women's golf coach at Southern Conference-rival Wofford College.

Brown replaced Bill Dicus, who coached both the Mountaineer men's and women's programs the previous 13 years.

Appalachian's Home Courses

Boone Golf Club

Deep in the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains lies one of the South's premier golf facilities. For nearly half a century golfers from all parts of the country have come to Boone Golf Club to enjoy its beautiful layout and spectacular scenery.

Designed by architect Ellis Maples, who created some of the south east's finest courses. Boone Golf Club has been the venue for many professional and amateur events. Today it continues to be a popular course for "seasoned" golfers, beginners, and players of all levels in between.

Hound Ears Club

Hound Ears Club, one of North Carolina's finest gated golf communities, offers a tranquil retreat for those who wish to enjoy the crisp cool air of the mountains and the luxurious amenities associated with a private club. Nestled in the Blue Ridge Mountains near the resort towns of Blowing Rock, Boone and Banner Elk, Hound Ears Club embraces a scenic 750 acres, and provides a precedent for comfort and tradition in its more than 40 year history.

Hound Ears opened in the spring of 1964. George Cobb is the course architect. Tom Jackson redesigned a portion of the back nine in the mid 1970's. The pinnacle of his design was the addition of the 15th hole.

Mimosa Hills Golf and Country Club

Donald Ross, the famed Scottish-born golf course architect, created Mimosa Hills Golf and Country Club in 1929, taking painstaking advantage of Morganton's natural beauty and phenomenal panoramic mountain views. We recently completed a thorough restoration of the entire course, preserving the integrity of his design while keeping an eye on the future of the game. Visit Mimosa Hills Golf and Country Club — where history and tradition meet timeless perfection. The Blue Ridge Mountain skyline that captivated Ross provides one-of-a-kind backdrops for golfers. Seven holes lead back to the clubhouse.

The course plays host to the annual University Cup in March.

WHO WE ARE

Nestled in the majestic Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina, Appalachian State University combines the best attributes of a small liberal arts college with those of a large research university. Known for its value and affordability, Appalachian enrolls about 17,200 students and offers more than 140 undergraduate and graduate majors. Small classes and close interactions between faculty and students create a strong sense of community, which has become an Appalachian hallmark.

EDUCATING NORTH CAROLINA'S CITIZENS AND LEADERS

Appalachian State University is located in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Boone, N.C. At an elevation of 3,333 feet, Boone began as a frontier outpost named after pioneer Daniel Boone, who first explored the area in the 1760s. Boone now attracts those seeking a breathtaking location, adventure and a quality education.

Appalachian is a member of the 16-campus University of North Carolina system and offers a challenging learning experience. The university combines a small-town atmosphere with a strong academic reputation. Appalachian's academics are supported by an accomplished faculty, close, personal interaction between students and faculty, and intimate class sizes that average 25 students.

Originally founded as a teachers college, Appalachian now cultivates leaders in business, science, the arts, communication, music, nursing, education and other careers. Innovation and creativity are hallmarks of Appalachian graduates, many of whom are leaders in communities in North Carolina and around the world. Appalachian also emphasizes the importance of sustainability and service to communities, both locally and globally. Today, Appalachian is a leader in the fields of energy-focused green technology and the health sciences.

Consistently ranked among U.S. News and World Report's best public universities in the Southeast, Appalachian is also noted as a "best value" by Kiplinger's Personal Finance magazine and other publications.

Appalachian's 411-acre main campus includes 19 academic buildings, 20 residence halls, four dining facilities and 11 recreational and athletic facilities. Appalachian also operates a living-learning center in New York City and off-campus programs in 10 counties through collaboration with area community colleges.

Appalachian supports a broad-based athletics program, featuring 10 men's and 10 women's intercollegiate teams. The Mountaineers hold NCAA Division I status and have been members of the Southern Conference since 1971.

The Mountaineers won their 31st Southern Conference Commissioner's Cup for overall excellence in men's athletics during the 2010-11 academic year. Appalachian has claimed six-consecutive Commissioner's Cups and eight total Germann Cups, recognizing overall excellence in women's athletics. In football, the Mountaineers won three consecutive NCAA Division I FCS national championship titles in 2005, 2006 and 2007. Appalachian is the only school to ever win both the Commissioner's Cup and the Germann Cup in the same academic year.

Since joining the Southern Conference, the Mountaineers have earned league titles in football, men's and women's basketball, volleyball, men's and women's cross country, men's and women's indoor and outdoor track, wrestling, baseball, men's soccer and men's tennis.

Nearly 35 percent of Appalachian student-athletes earn a place on the department's Honor Roll, with a minimum GPA of 3.25. Five athletic programs have received NCAA Public Recognition Awards for their Academic Progress Rate scores being ranked among the nation's top 10 percent.

APPALACHIAN ATHLETICS MISSION STATEMENT

The Department of Athletics at Appalachian State University believes in maintaining the intercollegiate athletics program as an integral part of the University's overall program of education, with emphasis on and priority given to the high academic quality and standards and the complete development of the student.

Appalachian State University provides opportunity and encouragement for student-athletes to progress toward degrees of their choice and to develop athletic abilities in an environment consistent with high standards of academic scholarship, leadership and institutional loyalty. The Department of Athletics is committed to ensuring the general welfare of the student-athlete and to encouraging the highest standards of sportsmanship on behalf of student-athletes, the student body and the University's supporters. The intercollegiate athlete representing ASU is both a bona-fide student pursuing a degree program and an amateur competitor.

Appalachian Athletics is committed to insuring equitable recruitment, participation and treatment of individuals including members of under-represented populations through its athletics administration, staff, coaches, programs and policies. The University's policy of non-discrimination represents a moral and ethical, not merely a legal, imperative.

The University has determined that its athletics program will meet the necessary qualifications, guidelines and funding to hold membership in Division I of the NCAA. The athletics administration, the faculty athletics representative and the Athletics Council work together to insure that all teams and coaches follow the rules and regulations governing this division.

A sound program of intercollegiate athletics should benefit the institution through its effects on students, alumni and the institution itself. Specifically, it should maintain and improve the loyalty and esprit de corps of the student body, and in strengthening the pride and enthusiasm of the alumni; it should serve as a favorable public relations factor and provide benefits to the participants.

APPALACHIAN ATHLETICS DIVERSITY STATEMENT

Appalachian athletics promotes an inclusive culture that fosters equitable participation for student-athletes and equitable career opportunities for coaches, administrators and support staff from diverse backgrounds and perspectives.

POINTS OF PRIDE

RELEVANT DEGREE PROGRAMS

Originally founded as a teachers college, Appalachian now cultivates leaders in business, science, the arts, communication, music, nursing, education and other careers. Today, Appalachian is a leader in the fields of energy-focused green technology and the health sciences.

QUALITY ACADEMICS

In its 2011 America's Best Colleges Guide, U.S. News & World Report ranked Appalachian No. 3 among the top public master-degree granting universities in the South. Appalachian was also included in The Princeton Review's 2011 "The Best 373 Colleges" publication based on academics as well as student surveys that praised the accessibility of the university's faculty, quality of academic programs and value.

VALUE AND AFFORDABILITY

Appalachian has been named a best value by Forbes, The Princeton Review, Consumer's Digest and Kiplinger's Personal Finance Magazine for providing a high quality education at the lowest cost to students. Committed to making higher education affordable for every N.C. student, Appalachian offers the ACCESS scholarship program, which has supported students from the state's lowest-income families by offering a debt-free, four-year university education. The university also includes a textbook rental program that saves a student hundreds of dollars over four years.

OUTSTANDING FACULTY

Ninety-nine percent of Appalachian's full-time faculty hold doctorate, first professional degree, or other terminal degrees.

SMALL CLASSES, PERSONAL ATTENTION

Personal attention from faculty is a hallmark of the Appalachian experience. Classes average 25 students. This close-knit "community of learners" contributes to Appalachian having a freshman-to-sophomore retention rate of nearly 87 percent.

INTERNATIONAL CONNECTIONS

With study abroad opportunities on nearly every continent, Appalachian students have access to approximately 200 foreign sites for semester and year-long programs of study.

CONTRIBUTORS TO KNOWLEDGE

Each year, Appalachian receives nearly $20 million in external grants and contracts, which fund research projects that improve lives in North Carolina, across the nation and around the world. Appalachian values undergraduate research, so many of these projects generate special opportunities for students. The number of students engaging in research activities has increased 127 percent since 2005.

ENVIRONMENTALLY RESPONSIBLE CAMPUS

Appalachian was included in The Princeton Review's 2010 "Guide to 286 Green Colleges" among the nation's most environmentally responsible campuses, as well as Sierra Club Magazine's 2010 list of 100 "Cool Schools," a list of schools doing the most for the planet. Appalachian has an electricity-generating wind turbine on campus, a biodiesel-powered public transportation system and research and academic degree programs that focus on issues related to energy, economics and the environment. It also has a commitment to new buildings that are efficiently designed and LEED® certified and that use 100 percent green housekeeping supplies.

PASSIONATE AND SUCCESSFUL ALUMNI

Appalachian has more than 100,000 living alumni with 73 percent remaining in North Carolina after graduation. They are leaders in their communities and professions, exemplifying how Appalachian can and does make a difference in the world.

DR. KENNETH E. PEACOCK CHANCELLOR

Dr. Kenneth E. Peacock became Appalachian State University's sixth chancellor in July 2004. During his tenure, Appalachian has experienced significant growth in several areas, and the quality of the university's academic programs has continued to advance, directing extensive national attention to Appalachian. The university has become a destination of choice among the brightest and best high school graduates, with freshman SAT scores averaging 1136 and grade point averages 3.92 in the 2010-11 academic year.

Since Chancellor Peacock assumed office, Appalachian has raised more than $93.5 million in private funding. Appalachian ACCESS, a university scholarship program offering North Carolina's low-income students living at or below the poverty level a four-year university education debt free, was first awarded to members of the freshman class in 2007. Capital improvements and new construction under Chancellor Peacock's leadership have included the Student Recreation Center, Central Dining Facility, Athletics Center, new on-campus housing as well as residence hall renovations, steam system upgrades, and the opening of Belk Library and Information Commons and a new college of education building. Construction is under way on a new facility for the Honors College and an expansion to Plemmons Student Union.

Prior to his appointment as chancellor, Peacock served at Appalachian as interim provost and executive vice chancellor. He joined the faculty in Appalachian's Walker College of Business in 1983, was appointed assistant dean of the business school in 1987, associate dean in 1989, and served as dean of the college from 1992-2003. Previously, he taught at the McIntire School of Commerce at the University of Virginia and worked for the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse & Co. in their Winston-Salem and Charlotte offices.

Chancellor Peacock received his undergraduate degree in accounting at Mars Hill College and his master's and doctorate degrees in accounting at Louisiana State University. In September 2006, he received the Outstanding Alumnus Award from Mars Hill College.

Chancellor Peacock is a native of Rocky Mount. He and his wife, Rosanne, have two grown sons.

Chancellor Peacock serves on the NCAA Division I Presidential Advisory Group, Appalachian Regional Healthcare Foundation Board of Directors, Homes for Children Board of Directors, Leadership North Carolina Board of Directors, and he chairs the North Carolina Campus Compact Executive Board. He has been named a Paul Harris Fellow by the Rotary Foundation of Rotary International. He also is the recipient of the Golden Eagle Award for Leadership from AdvantageWest and the L. Richardson Preyer Alumni Award from Leadership North Carolina.

In addition, the Peacocks are involved in a variety of civic/community programs and activities.

FACULTY ATHLETICS REPRESENTATIVE DR. ALAN HAUSER

Dr. Alan J. Hauser is in his 26th year as Faculty Chairperson of Athletics at Appalachian State University. Appointed to the position in October 1986, Hauser has served on the Athletic Council since 1979.

Hauser came to Appalachian as an assistant professor of philosophy and religion in 1972. He served as chairperson of Appalachian's Philosophy and Religion Department from 1982 until 1997. A member of numerous committees since joining the faculty, Hauser served 12 years on the Faculty Senate, including two years as chairperson. He also chaired the Faculty Assembly for three years.

A 1967 graduate of Concordia Teachers College, Hauser earned a master's degree from Concordia Seminary in 1968 and his doctorate from the University of Iowa in 1972.

Hauser currently chairs the NCAA Academics, Eligibility and Compliance cabinet and is also a member of its Degree Completion committee. He formerly served as the Southern Conference's delegate to the NCAA Division I Management Council.

Hauser and his wife Gail, who is the Assistant Director of Summer Sessions at Appalachian State University, have four daughters: Debi, Staci, Elizabeth and Jacqueline.

BOONE NORTH CAROLINA

Boone lies in a small valley in the heart of the Southern Appalachians. It is named after the hunter and explorer Daniel Boone, who spent time in the region during the 1760s. Watauga County was formed in 1849 and the Town of Boone incorporated in 1872.

Among its accolades are inclusion in National Geographic Adventure magazine's "Best Places to Live and Play," Norman Crampton's "100 Best Small Towns in America," USA Today's "10 Great Small Towns with Huge Backyards" and U.S. News and World Report's "10 Best Places to Retire in the U.S."

Boone is a college town, home to Appalachian State University. Originally Watauga Academy, the institution was formed to educate the mountain children and to ultimately prepare teachers for service through western North Carolina. It became Appalachian State Teachers College in 1929 and joined the University of North Carolina system in 1971. The university serves as a top economic driver followed by a combination of tourism, small business and residential home construction.

The Boone area is characterized by mountain culture and casual living. Outdoor activities, cultural events, local dining and unique shops attract visitors from all over the world year-round. From breathtaking scenic views to Boone's eclectic downtown area, known as King Street, there is something for everyone.

One of the highlights of downtown Boone is the university's Turchin Center for the Visual Arts. It features six gallery spaces and a community education and outreach program. Its exhibitions focus on a blend of recent and historically important artwork and feature nationally and internationally renowned artists as well as many of the finest artists of the region.

A wide array of quality arts and cultural events enhance the Boone community. The university's month-long celebration of performing and visual arts, known as An Appalachian Summer Festival, has brought notable performers such as Paul Taylor Dance Company, London City Opera, Charlie Daniels and the Glenn Miller Orchestra. During the academic year, Appalachian hosts the Performing Arts Series with artists such as Garrison Keillor and the National Symphony Orchestra.

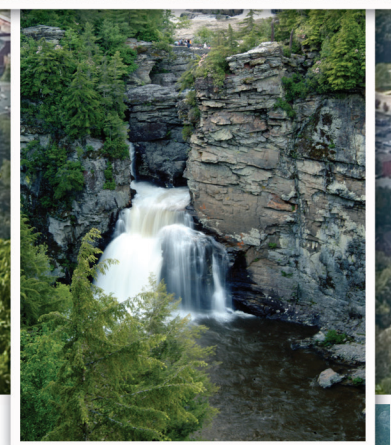

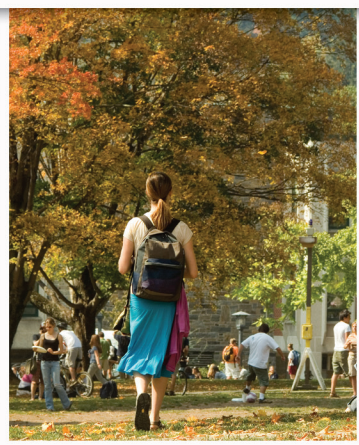

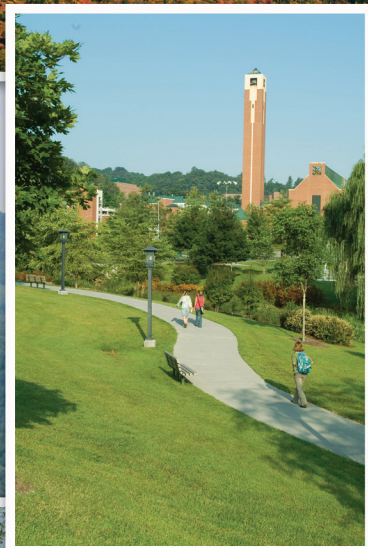

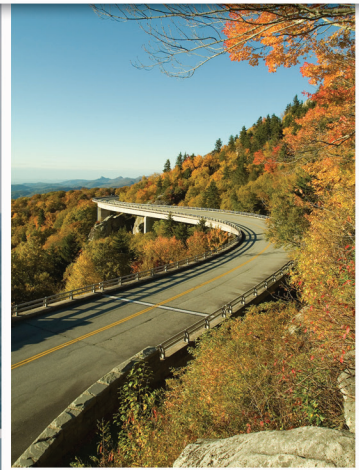

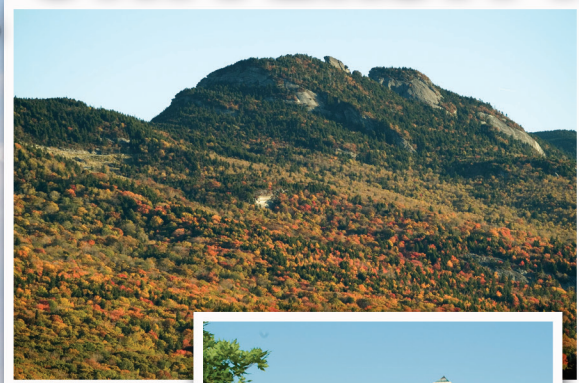

Boone offers an uncommon quality of life — that's why many visitors come for a weekend and stay for a lifetime.

BOONE AT A GLANCE...

- The county seat of Watauga County
- Population: 14,942
- Incorporated in 1872
- Named for its most famous seasonal visitor, Daniel Boone
- One of four North American Adventure Destinations – Adventure Sports magazine
- Average summer temperature: 70 degrees
- "Choose and Cut" Christmas tree industry sells approximately 13,000 Fraser Fir trees annually
- One of the lowest annual unemployment rates in the Southeast
