There's a feeling of confidence hovering around the Whiteman Tennis Center as the 1998-99 Sun Devil men's tennis program prepares for its upcoming season. When your program returns five starters, adds an All-American to the lineup and plays every non-conference match on your home court, 17th year head coach Lou Belken believes several years of hard work is coming to fruition. "We are at the end of the cycle, meaning this is a team we have been working on for three years to get to this point."

As Arizona State takes to the courts this season, they will be represented by six seniors, four juniors and one sophomore. "We've had a group of young players come in together at one point and now they have all worked over the years to become mature players," noted Belken. "We have had some successes along the way and its our hope that we will have a lot more success this year."

Leading the charge for the Sun Devils will be senior Gustavo Marcaccio. A second-team All-Pacific-10 pick in '98, Marcaccio advanced to the second-round of the NCAA singles championship last year, finishing with a 28-12 singles record and a 20-10 doubles mark. Ranked 23rd by the ITA in the preseason, Marcaccio advanced to the finals of the ITA Region VIII singles championship and the quarterfinals of the T. Rowe Price Clay Courts this past fall.

Junior Alex Osterrieth, who has posted consecutive 24 win seasons, will definitely be in the upper-half mix. Recording 13 dual wins at the No. 2 position, Osterrieth also posted 14 doubles victories at the No. 2 spot. An honorable mention All-Pac-10 selection in '98, Osterrieth will again compete in the upper half of the lineup in singles and doubles.

Enter senior All-American Jeff Williams. A local product from Phoenix, Arizona (Greenway HS), Williams comes to Tempe from the University of New Mexico where he tallied a 53-32 singles mark and a 53-20 doubles record. "Jeff transferred to ASU because of the caliber of the school and conference," explained Belken. "He did it for a reason so he could test himself against the best competition in the country." Williams' earned All-American acclaim last year after making it to the NCAA doubles semifinals. Along the way, Williams and his teammate eliminated the No. 13, eight and the tournament's top-seeded duo of Roddick/Baladas (Georgia). Williams also advanced to the second-round of the NCAA singles championship and won the Region VII singles championship.

Belken views Williams' infusion into the lineup as a great motivation factor. "Whoever is going to play at the top slot will be pushed by two other guys and Jeff will be in that mix. Jeff will also make the two other players better and in turn make him a better player."

One of the team's top doubles players is junior Ed Carter. In two years of action, Carter is the team's leader in doubles victories with 35. This past summer, Carter won the 1998 Intercollegiate Tennis Association National Summer Doubles Championship, earning a qualifying spot at the U.S. Open. Coming off a career-high 22 singles wins in '98, Carter will also add stability to a strong middle lineup.

Senior Tim Hammond adds another solid presence to the middle of ASU's lineup. A tough and persistent player, Hammond posted 17 wins both in singles and doubles play last season, including 12 wins at the No. 1 doubles slot.

Ending a quality four-year career for the Sun Devils is senior Casey Was. A four-year letterwinner from Scottsdale, Arizona, Was recorded the second-best singles record during fall action. Was advanced to the consolation finals of the ITA Region VIII Championships after eliminating four players. Additionally, Was posted a career-high 12 singles wins last year and has 31 career doubles wins to his credit.

Fortifying the lineup for Belken will be an assortment of capable players. Seniors Hiroshi Nagashima and Brian O'Grady, juniors Amir Ran and Miles Rogers and sophomore Matt Jacobs all have had significant playing time in the past.

In addition to playing in arguably the toughest conference in the country, Arizona State's non-conference schedule will be just as strong (Fresno State, Auburn, South Alabama, UCSB). However, easing it some will be the fact that 16 of ASU's 21 matches will be played at home, including every non-conference game.

As the fall season ends and the spring term comes over the horizon, head coach Belken knows he has a collection of inspired players with aspirations of going a long way. "All year we have talked about developing habits and doing things that will make us successful. We don't want to get too result oriented, but process oriented. Stick to the process and the results will come."

HEAD COACH LOU BELKEN

Lou Belken enters his 17th season as head coach of the Arizona State men's tennis program, one which has been known over the years for its prowess on the national level. During Belken's tenure, he has guided the Sun Devils to NCAA postseason berths in eight of the last 11 years. In addition, Belken has tutored and produced three All-American players on five different occasions, and has also produced two All-American doubles teams on three occasions.

Academically since 1991, Belken has placed seven players on the Pacific-10 All-Academic Teams, including two first-team players and one second team performer in 1998. Additionally, 1998 featured Belken's 25th-ranked Sun Devil squad secure him his 200th career victory by defeating the University of Washington Huskies, 4-3 in Seattle. Also in 1998, Belken coached three players to 20 or more overall wins, as well as four players with double digit dual wins. Already competing in arguably the toughest conference in the country, Belken also won't back down from scheduling top flight competition. Alone in '98, Belken's team competed against seven top-10 teams in the nation, and of the 22 total matches, 19 were against nationally ranked opponents.

1995 was a banner year for Belken's tennis team as Sargis Sargsian gave the Sun Devils not only its first No. 1 ranked player in the country, but its first NCAA champion as well. Under Belken's tutelage, Sargsian also became the first player in NCAA history to win four ITA Grand Slam crowns. He was showered with acclaim, including Player of the Year and All-America honors. As a team, the Sun Devils made it to the round of sixteen in the NCAA tournament before being eliminated by Georgia. ASU defeated Colorado and Indiana State in regional action to reach that point.

Over the years, Belken has steadily built the Arizona State program, guiding it to one of its finest seasons in 1991. The Sun Devils finished No. 8 in the country and advanced to the quarterfinals of the NCAA tournament, posting an overall record of 21-10.

Brian Gyetko and Dave Lomicky garnered All-America acclaim in doubles while Gyetko also earned All-America status in singles. It was the second year in a row the duo had accomplished that feat. Gyetko went on to represent Canada at the 1992 Summer Olympics in Barcelona.

Four of Belken's pupils won national titles in 1990. Dave Lomicky was the first, winning the National Amateur Indoor singles championship, followed by doubles partner Bryan Gyetko, who captured the Canadian National men's singles championship. Ross Matheson then won the singles and doubles titles at the Scottish National Championships and Joel Finnigan concluded the run with a singles title at the U.S. Amateur.

Belken also guided his squad to the NCAA championships in 1988, its first trip since the dual match format was introduced. Belken's Sun Devils posted an 18-10 mark and were ranked among the nation's top-10 for the first time in a decade, eventually finishing the campaign ranked 11th. Among those 18 victories was a 5-4 triumph over top-ranked Southern California. It was ASU's first win over the Trojans since 1979 and the initial conquest of USC for Belken. That same year, Doug Sachs became Belken's initial All-America selection by downing two of the top three ranked singles players in the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association (ITCA) rankings.

Belken took over the Sun Devil program in August of 1982 after a nine-year stint as head professional at Scottsdale (Ariz.) Racquet Club. Belken took that position in 1973 with no nationally-ranked players in the club, and within several years had developed two Wimbledon final eight participants, two national champions and numerous nationally-ranked juniors.

Former ASU star Gary Donnelly and two-time All-America Jim Grabb were Belken's top students at the club. Both were ranked among the top-40 in the Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP) singles rankings and top-10 in doubles.

Donnelly has been a doubles finalist at Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and French Open. His best singles effort was an appearance in the round of 16 at the 1985 U.S. Open.

Grabb won the 1992 U.S. Open doubles title with Richey Reneberg and won the 1990 French Open doubles title with Patrick McEnroe. Grabb was ranked No. 1 in the world in ATP doubles and among the top-30 in singles. Grabb has also posted singles wins over Stefan Edberg, Ivan Lendl, Andre Agassi, Michael Chang, Brad Gilbert, Andres Gomez and Mats Wilander.

Belken's first Arizona State team in 1982 posted an 8-19 overall record, but within three years, the Sun Devils made their first seasonal appearance in the nation's top-20.

Belken is a member of the ITCA and United States Professional Tennis Association (USPTA).

A native of Rockford, Ill., Belken graduated from Carroll College in Waukesha, Wis., in 1972 with a bachelor's degree in business administration. He graduated from Guilford High School in 1968.

Belken and his wife, Toni, have three children, Frederick, Cori and Matt.

Assistant Coach Laurie Warder

Laurie Warder begins his third season as assistant coach at Arizona State University. Warder's impact on the ASU tennis program has been felt his last two years, helping the Sun Devil team achieve post-season play for the fourth consecutive year.

In addition to intense individual instruction, Warder also helped tutor the doubles teams to 60 victories last year. ASU's top three doubles teams all posted double digit wins, including a 40-24 dual record.

Warder, a native of Sydney, Australia, comes to Arizona State from the Association of Tennis Professionals Tour (ATP) where he was one of the most consistent doubles players on the circuit.

Warder's wealth of experience on the ATP Tour covers a span of 13 years from 1982-1994 where he captured 12 doubles titles, including the 1993 Australian Open. In 1987, Warder reached a career-high six finals, winning a lone title at Indianapolis.

In addition to the Australian Open title, Warder reached the doubles quarterfinals at the French Open (1991) and Wimbledon (1989). In 1991 he finished ranked No. 12, as well as qualifying for the year-end ATP Tour World Doubles Championship.

Men's tennis started as a club sport in 1902, making it the third oldest sport to be played on ASU's campus, following only baseball (1891) and football (1896).

From 1903 to 1931, men's tennis was undergoing a metamorphosis from a club sport to an intercollegiate sport, as seen in 1913 when there was competition in both. In that year, the Tempe Normal team lost a dual match to the University of Arizona while the interclass senior team won the cup for the third year in a row.

In 1932, Arizona State Teachers College (ASTC) became part of the Border Conference and hired its first full-time coach, Earle Pomeroy. Pomeroy led the Bulldogs to a 7-3-1 record the following year, the first winning tennis season in ASU history.

Sketchy or nonexistent records typify Arizona State's experience in the Border Conference. However, coaches Pomeroy and Marlowe Keith, who boasts the longest tenure as head tennis coach (11 years), each posted back-to-back fourth-place finishes, Pomeroy in 1941 and '42 and Keith in 1957 and '58.

Charles Roach (1951-52), Fred Hickernell (1951-53) and Bob Gilbert (1952-54) were stalwarts in the Sun Devil lineup during the Border Conference days.

In 1963, Arizona State moved to the Western Athletic Conference under the guidance of coach Ted Bredehoff, who also coached wrestling at Arizona State from 1962-71.

Among numerous others, former Sun Devil all-Americans John Fort (1971) and Mark Joffey (1975) helped ASU accumulate a 253-107-1 (.700) record in the WAC.

ASU was represented by four singles players and two doubles teams at four NCAA Championships in a row (1973-76). At the 1978 NCAA, ASU downed Oklahoma State 6-3 to advance to the quarterfinals before being ousted by eventual champion Stanford.

From 1973 to 1979, Marty Pincus coached the men's tennis team to three first-place finishes in the WAC (1975, '76, '78). In 1976, the Sun Devils posted their best NCAA finish ever — fifth.

During the Pincus era, ASU compiled a 161-31 (.839) record, giving him the second-highest winning percentage among coaches of NCAA-sanctioned sports at ASU. He trails only former football coach Dan Devine who had a percentage of .887.

In 1979, ASU's men's tennis program entered the Pacific-10 Southern Division, the most competitive conference in the country. Since 1946, when the first Division I team champion was crowned, Pac-10 Southern Division teams have captured 40 of the 48 national titles.

Also in 1979, ASU produced its third all-America, Alan Waldman. He led his Sun Devil teammates to a 17th-place finish at the NCAAs that year.

As ASU men's tennis entered the 1980s, Myron McNamara was named head coach and Gary Donnelly was just beginning his ASU tennis career. Donnelly, who played under the watchful eye of ASU's current head coach Lou Belken at Scottsdale Racquet Club, went on to achieve fame as a doubles finalist at Wimbledon in 1986. He also competed in the doubles semifinals at the 1985 U.S. Open and the 1987 French Open. Donnelly also competes in singles play. His singles career has been highlighted by his appearance in the round of 16 at the 1985 U.S. Open.

Lou Belken was named head tennis coach in 1983. He is the second-winningest coach in Sun Devil annals with 192 victories. In 1988, Belken's Devils, led by Doug Sachs, posted an 18-9 record, a fourth-place finish in the conference (ASU's best ever), and an 11th-place finish at the NCAAs. ASU was ranked 11th in the nation and Sachs earned all-America accolades.

Dave Lomicky and Joel Finnigan won the 1989 U.S. Amateur doubles championship, while future Sun Devil Chris Gambino reached the semifinals in singles action.

In 1990, ASU had four national champions: Finnigan, Lomicky, Brian Gyetko and Ross Matheson. Finnigan captured the U.S. Amateur singles crown, while Lomicky won the 1990 National Amateur Indoor singles championship. Gyetko was crowned the Canadian National singles champion and Matheson earned the Scottish National singles and doubles titles.

In 1991, Belken led the Sun Devils to their best season ever during his reign, compiling a 21-10 record, and a quarterfinal berth at the NCAAs. Brian Gyetko, who in 1990 became the first ASU tennis player to earn all-America acclaim in singles and doubles in the same year, duplicated the feat in 1991. Gyetko reached the quarterfinals of singles action at the NCAAs (the farthest advancement by an ASU player since Mark Joffey in 1975) and the round of 16 in doubles with Lomicky.

Arizona State earned NCAA Tournament berths in 1988, '90 and '91. Also, since 1983, the Sun Devils' final postseason ranking has been higher than the preseason ranking every year but four.

In 1995, Sargis Sargsian became the first Sun Devil to win the NCAA Tournament, defeating USC's Brett Hansen in the finals 3-6, 6-3, 6-4. It was Sargsian's fourth collegiate Grand Slam title which is more than any other player in collegiate tennis history. He finished the year as the NCAA Player of the Year, an All-American and the top-ranked player in the country.

The 1997 doubles tandem of Ed Carter and Sergio Elias entered the first round of the NCAA doubles championships with an at large bid, and proceeded to defeat the second-seeded team from Fresno State 6-3, 6-4. The duo went on to the second round of the championships, but were defeated. Earlier in the season, Carter and Elias not once, but twice defeated the second-ranked doubles team from UCLA. The Sun Devils No. 1 doubles team ended the season ranked 18th in the nation.

The 1998 Sun Devils earned an NCAA postseason berth for the eighth time in the past 11 years. Junior Gustavo Marcaccio advanced to the second-round of the NCAA individual championships, finishing with a 28-12 record. Additionally, ASU posted its biggest win in several seasons, knocking off No. 6 ranked USC, 4-3.

1999 opponents are bolded.

After coming off a career year, senior Casey Was will seek to duplicate his singles and doubles performance.

Senior Tim Hammond will look to have another outstanding year after posting consecutive 17 win seasons.

Arizona State University, the fourth largest public university in the United States, is the model metropolitan research university for the next century. By matching university talents and expertise with the vision of community leaders, ASU provides indispensable research and support to address the major issues affecting the quality of life in the Valley of the Sun and throughout the nation.

ASU accepts the responsibility of offering all the benefits that a diverse, rapidly growing population center expects from higher education:

- * highest quality teaching and research;
- * readily accessible education; and
- * community and neighborhood partnerships

The university has three anchor campuses and an extended campus in the Greater Phoenix metropolitan area.

ASU Main: The original campus founded in Tempe in 1885 enrolls more than 44,000 undergraduate and graduate students from all 50 states and more than 100 countries. ASU Main offers 104 bachelor's, 94 master's, one law and 48 doctoral degree programs.

ASU West: Established in northwest Phoenix in 1984, ASU West serves approximately 4,800 upper division and graduate students, and offers 28 bachelor's and four master's degree programs.

ASU East: The university's newest anchor campus, ASU East has more than 1,000 students in the College of Technology and Applied Sciences, the Morrison School of Agribusiness and Resource Management, and East College, which provides general studies and general education courses. In addition, ASU East is offering a new Bachelor of Applied Science (BAS) degree.

ASU Extended Education: Extended Education brings university services into the community from a variety of locations as well as through flexible programs, schedules and technologies.

Undergraduate education provides the foundation for everything ASU does, and the faculty and staff intend that foundation to be among the best of any public university in the nation. ASU combines the wealth of program options and resources with the supportive environments of smaller communities within the larger university.

The Freshman Year Experience program focuses academic support and other resources directly to the students in a residence hall community designed especially for freshmen.

Campus Communities programs provide the opportunity for students to develop academic communities with other students and faculty outside the classroom.

A new freshman advising program, begun in 1996 to improve integrated advising, serves more than 3,000 students each fall.

Numerous ASU graduate programs consistently rank among the best in the nation in U.S. News & World Report's listing of America's Best Graduate Schools. In the 1998 report, the ASU Master of Business Administration degree ranked 13th among MBA programs offered at state institutions and 31st among the 300 accredited MBA programs nationwide. The College of Education graduate program moved up 12 points from last year, ranking 27th for 1998. ASU's College of Law ranked 44th, which is unchanged from the previous year. Over the past 20 years, ASU Main has had the largest percentage increases of all Pac-10 universities in total doctorate degrees granted, federal research and development expenditures, and total research and development expenditures.

ASU has been named a Truman Scholarship Honor Institution, one of only 17 schools to be selected nationwide. The Harry Truman Scholarship Foundation selected ASU from among 454 institutions that have had students named as Truman Scholars since the awards began in 1977. The university's Honors College is at its largest enrollment, 1,689, making it one of the largest and most sought-after honors colleges in the country. The 1997-98 freshman class had 52 National Merit Scholars, the largest number in ASU history. And, for the sixth time in seven years, ASU has a student on USA Today's list of the nation's top 20 undergraduates. No other public institution in the country has had so many students win the award.

ASU actively seeks community partnerships that promote economic development, address metropolitan issues such as quality of life, provide linkages with K-12 education and develop innovative approaches to solving problems of concern to both.

The university also provides Greater Phoenix and the state of Arizona with some of the best performing arts and fine arts venues in the world. Gammage Auditorium on ASU's main campus, a Frank Lloyd Wright-designed landmark center for the performing arts, seats 3,000 and regularly attracts the nation's finest performers and productions to the Valley of the Sun.

The Sundome Center for the Performing Arts in Sun City West is America's largest single-level theater with more than 7,000 seats. ASU's Kerr Cultural Center in Scottsdale offers smaller-venue cultural events.

The television station at ASU main, KAET, Channel 8, is an award-winning Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) affiliate, operated by ASU and broadcasting 24 hours daily.

Arizona State University will continue to set the standard as the university for the next century by expanding areas of community involvement, developing innovative undergraduate education and by strengthening its world class research portfolio.

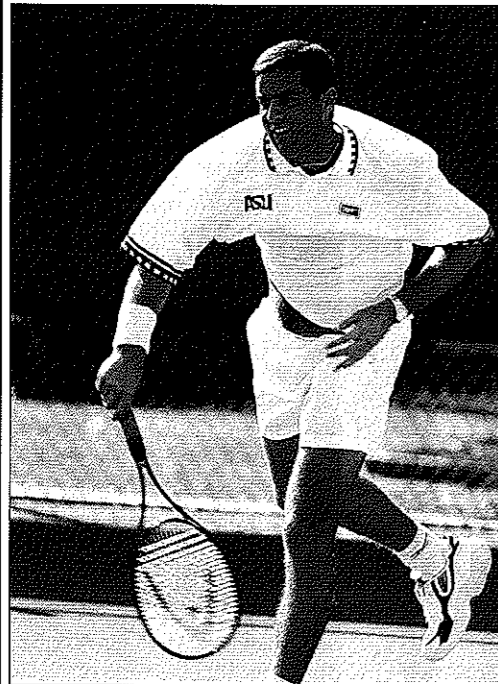

For ASU, the future has never been brighter.

ARIZONA STATE UNIVERSITY

Junior Ed Carter has proven his ability to combine academics and athletics. Carter is enrolled in the ASU Honor's College where he holds a 3.78 GPA in history.

Arizona State University's approximately 450 student-athletes are guided through their academic careers by the Intercollegiate Athletic Department's Academic Services Office. Academic support services include "student-athlete centered" orientation programs, academic planning and organizing towards graduation, advising, registration, tutoring, study habits, study halls and use of the ICA computer site and laptop computers.

Senior Associate Director of Athletics Betsy Mosher oversees the areas of academics, student services, compliance, eligibility and personnel within the Athletics Department. Academic Services and the advising staff are coordinated by Assistant Athletic Director Jill DeMichele, who is also President of the National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletes. Student Services programs for student-athletes, which include the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC), Sun Devil HEAT (Help Employ Athletes Today), career programs, educational workshops, conduct and the UNI 100 class are under the direction of Associate Athletics Director for Student Services Sandy Hatfield-Clubb. Former ASU football player Jean Boyd oversees Sun Devil HEAT, the career program designed to help student-athletes find internships, summer jobs and career opportunities. Bill Kennedy, the assistant to the senior associate, handles the student-athlete housing, financial aid and administrative responsibilities, including the team dinners at Director of Athletics Kevin White's home.

Thirty-two football student-athletes were 1998 Maroon and Gold Scholar-Athletes at the annual luncheon hosted by President Lattie E. Coor. These student-athletes earned a 3.0 or higher GPA in the previous fall or spring semesters, or had a cumulative GPA of 3.0 or higher. Strong safety Damien Richardson, a bioengineering major, was a featured speaker to the 213 student-athletes, representing all the sports teams, the coaches, faculty and staff.

Twice a year, graduates, their families and ASU faculty and staff are invited to celebrate at a special Athletic Department Graduation Luncheon, hosted by Director of Athletics Kevin White.

The NCAA has provided full scholarships to 30 former student-athletes to return to ASU and finish their degrees.

From the time a freshman student-athlete comes to the ASU campus, services are available to keep the student on a steady course of academic progress toward graduation. All freshmen and transfer students receive the ASU Student Athlete Handbook and their own Academic Advising Workbook, which highlight academic services, student services and important University information. Freshmen also participate with other student-athletes in UNI 100, the University's academic success course especially designed by ICA's Student Services to help student-athletes adjust to college.

Throughout their academic careers, ASU student-athletes consult with academic advisors in the Athletic Department and on campus. The strict academic and NCAA demands placed on a student-athlete differ from all other students; therefore, the Athletics Department staff maintain regular communication with student-athletes to assist them with course selection and plans or programs of study. They work with student-athletes only, and are specialized in complying with the NCAA requirements placed on student-athletes.

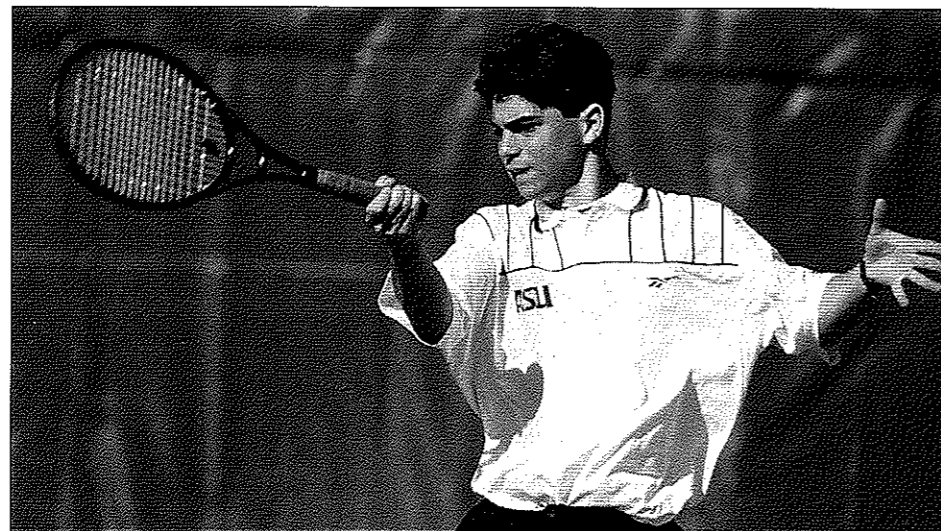

All new football freshmen and transfer student-athletes are required to attend study hall and study cluster sessions. Study hall provides an opportunity for the student-athletes to maximize their time and develop good study habits. The ICA Building in Sun Devil Stadium houses the Academic Services and Student Services offices on the third floor. On the sixth floor, an academic computer site allows student-athletes to use word processing or spreadsheet software and complete academic assignments on the internet and through e-mail. Student-athletes may checkout laptop computers to use on campus. Coaches check out laptops for student-athletes to use on road trips. Study hall rooms provide space for studying and working with tutors.

A student-athlete needing additional help in a specific subject may request a tutor. Tutors assist student-athletes on an individual or group basis, as well as run small study cluster groups throughout each semester. Grades and attendance are also closely monitored through an academic progress report filled out by classroom instructors two times per semester.

Success in the classroom provides the student-athlete with a number of opportunities. The Summer School Enrichment Program, which allows student-athletes to attend summer school on scholarship, helps student-athletes move toward our goal of graduation in a shorter period of time. Student-athletes who have not graduated after their last season and are eligible for a fifth year of aid can qualify for ASU's post-eligibility program, sponsored by the Board of Regents and the Sun Angel Foundation Endowment. This program provides the student-athletes with athletic scholarships to finish their degrees at ASU.

Throughout their academic careers, ASU student-athletes are expected to take responsibility for their education and developing their career goals. This includes realizing that dedication and self discipline are as important in the classroom and their careers as on the playing field. Maintaining a positive attitude toward academics and the privilege of being an ASU student-athlete is emphasized, as well as developing the desire to succeed semester after semester. ASU recruits student-athletes with academic and athletic goals and the personal discipline to achieve them in the "student-athlete centered" environment of ASU Athletics.

Junior Miles Rogers, who is also in the honor's college, has maintained a 3.41 GPA while turning in solid results on the court.

Lattie E. Coor became the 15th president of Arizona State University Jan. 1, 1990 and immediately made his mark.

In his March 1990 inauguration address, Coor described his vision for ASU as a world-class university serving the Valley of the Sun through multiple campuses and facilities.

The manifestations of his vision have been unfolding ever since. He has strengthened the role of ASU West, and he has opened ASU East at the site of the former Williams Air Force Base to meet anticipated enrollment growth.

He has launched a set of bold new initiatives to improve graduation rates, expose students to the very best faculty and guarantee them the opportunity to earn their degrees in four years.

ASU's progress has been substantial already. After just a quarter-century as a university, ASU joined the ranks of Research I institutions, the elite of American universities, in 1994. Throughout Coor's term, ASU's national reputation has continued to grow in all endeavors.

From the beginning, Coor's priority has been to attract and retain the best faculty and staff available, and he has fought to make ASU salaries competitive. He also has insisted that ASU emphasize diversity in its communities and in its scholarly endeavors. The Anti-Defamation League of Phoenix honored Coor in

Dr. Kevin White, in just one year, has made vast improvements to the face of Arizona State University athletics. The Director of Athletics at Tulane University for the previous five years, White was named as ASU's 17th Athletic Director on Wednesday, March 27, 1996 at a news conference.

In just one short year, White has balanced a budget that showed a $2,970,000 deficit when he began. The original plan to balance the deficit called for a 10-year elimination period (beginning in 1992 and ending in 2000). He also reorganized the athletic department administration to enhance his plan for ASU's future, putting an emphasis on fundraising. White has renegotiated ASU's radio rights contract which increased the annual rights fees 57-percent and added programming in women's basketball and baseball. The radio deal is believed to be one of the top 10 Division I contracts in the country. White has added nine full-time positions to the athletic department support staff, in an attempt to remedy understaffing problems. He also has orchestrated a plan that includes five major capital projects which will be added to ASU's already impressive athletic physical plant.

One of White's first initiatives at Arizona State was to reorganize the structure and dynamics of fundraising for the ASU athletic department. White moved to consolidate what had been numerous clubs and foundations into one organization and bring their efforts in-house, under ASU's direct supervision.

The Sun Angel Foundation — a non-profit corporation that had contributed over $42 million to various University projects, grants and scholarships since its inception in 1947 — assumed control of all fundraising activities in support of ASU athletics in 1997. A separate entity from ASU since its incorporation, the Sun Angel Foundation will become part of Arizona State's athletic department in 1998.

Furthermore, White modernized ASU's fundraising efforts by linking the amount of contributions an individual or group makes to the benefits they receive.

White has also assembled an academic task force to evaluate existing policy and propose ways to increase graduation rates among student-athletes at Arizona State.

On the field of competition in 1996-97, ASU won a national championship (women's golf), finished second in another (women's gymnastics) and participated in the 1997 Rose Bowl. Three coaches were recognized with national coach-of-the-year honors: football coach Bruce Snyder (consensus), women's tennis coach Sheila McInerney (Intercollegiate Tennis Association/Wilson) and women's golf coach Linda Vollstedt (GolfWeek). The Sun Devils posted one individual collegiate champion in women's gymnastics and had 29 student-athletes earn all-America status. Two student-athletes were named CoSIDA GTE Academic All-Americans as well. Three coaches — Bruce Snyder (football), Lee Roy Smith (wrestling) and Sheila McInerney (women's tennis) — earned Pac-10 Coach-of-the-Year accolades. Arizona State finished 13th in the Sears Directors' Cup.

Under White's tutelage, Tulane's athletic program flourished. The Green Wave men's basketball team advanced to the 1996 NIT semifinals in New York City. In 1994-95, four Tulane teams advanced to postseason competition. Both the men's and women's basketball teams advanced to the NCAA Tournament, with the women making their first trip ever.

Prior to becoming Director of Athletics at Tulane, White served in that same capacity at the University of Maine from 1987 through 1991. While there, White directed a program which excelled on the field and in the classroom and one that many described as the most progressive in the Northeast.

In 1989-90, Maine captured conference championships and qualified for postseason play in football, baseball, ice hockey, women's basketball and golf.

White cut his teeth in college administration at Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa, where he served as Athletic Director and Vice President for Development from 1982-87. He supervised the college's $15 million capital campaign, in addition to a $1.2 million annual fund, planned giving, alumni relations, college publications and public relations.

During his coaching career, White served as head track and field coach at Southeast Missouri State and Central Michigan University, coaching several NCAA all-Americans and two national champions. He began his coaching career at Gulf High School in New Port Richey, Fla.

White holds a Ph.D. in education from Southern Illinois and a master's degree in business athletic administration from Central Michigan and a bachelor's degree in business administration from St. Joseph's College in Rensselaer (Ind.) in 1972, while competing as a sprinter on the track and field team. In 1985 he completed post-doctoral work at the Institute for Educational Management at Harvard University.

White was born in Amityville, N.Y. His wife Jane holds a master's degree in physical education from Central Michigan. The first family of ASU athletics has five children — Maureen, (who recently graduated from Tulane), Michael (a senior point guard at the University of Mississippi), Daniel, Brian and Mariah.

SUN ANGEL FOUNDATION

The Sun Angel Foundation is a support group that has served Arizona State University since 1947. It was officially incorporated as a non-profit agency for the purpose of promoting Sun Devil athletic programs and recently came under the direction of Arizona State's intercollegiate athletics department.

The Foundation seeks to join the energy and resources of business leaders, ASU alumni and members of the Valley community with the goals and objectives of Arizona State University to benefit the community at large. Over the past 51 years, Sun Angels have contributed over $60 million in private funding to ASU Athletics.

Annual contributions from Sun Angel members are the lifeblood of ASU Athletics. Contributions from more than 9,000 members support all of the university's 21 varsity teams and over 400 student-athletes.

The umbrella of the Sun Angel Foundation is large and includes specific clubs that strive to meet the needs of specific programs. The Wings of Gold (women's & Olympic sports), On Deck Circle (baseball) and Slam Dunk Club (basketball) are part of the Sun Angel Foundation and donations to the Sun Angel Foundation can be earmarked for specific programs and purposes.

The support Sun Devil athletics has received from its fans and community in the past is greatly appreciated. The Sun Angel Foundation stands ready to meet its half-century long goal of promoting excellence in both academic and athletic programs while becoming the best collegiate support group in the country.
