BEAR TRAX: A Youth Tennis Advantage

COLLEGE PATHWAYS PROJECT

In October 2000, Youth Tennis Advantage launched a new college-based learning center at Cal to serve children from low-income communities in Oakland. This center offers 40 YTA participants intensive tutoring and advanced tennis training with Cal college students. The objective of this project is to form a link between diverse, low-income communities and higher education campuses to increase the number of Oakland children who go to college.

Tennis instructors and after-school educational staff at four neighborhood-based programs will maintain this link. Laney College will serve as an intermediate site between the neighborhood programs and UC Berkeley. Through a partnership with the tennis program at Cal, YTA envisions a pathway from disadvantaged communities to the university campus.

A similar program at Stanford provides intensive tennis and tutoring to 100 children from East Palo Alto. This program has proven to be a successful model for increasing the number of low-income children who attend college. Problem Statement Children from low-income families do not get the academic support they need to perform well on college entrance exams and admissions applications.

Neighborhood-based programs can provide support and activities that both keep children from getting in trouble and help them in school, but regular exposure to a rich educational environment helps participants understand the value of learning and see the pathway to college. Without these programs, children drift toward negative activities, failure in school and dead-end choices.

PROGRAM PLAN

YTA will create linkages between its neighborhood program sites that serve low-income children and the university community. Staff at neighborhood sites will select 40 youths to participate in the Cal program on a weekly basis during the school year. A linkage coordination team, comprised of both academic and tennis staff, plan and implement programs for outreach to parents and children in Oakland.

Participants are picked up by a UC Berkeley bus and taken to the tennis complex on the Cal campus. Two YTA program staff escort participants on the trip. Participants will arrive and receive tennis instruction, followed by meeting with Cal students who will provide academic tutoring until participants are taken home. A partnership with the Cal men's tennis team anchors the program at the university.

Service learning and student activities programs on campus supply college student tutors.

OBJECTIVES

1. Increase the awareness among YTA participants of the university, its educational resources and criteria for admission.
2. Provide a supportive environment for participants to improve their study skills and understanding of educational resources.
3. Form mentor relationships between college students and YTA participants.
4. Guide YTA participants to web-based educational resources that they can access from neighborhood learning centers and from home.
5. Develop strong tennis players and strong students who can qualify for athletic and academic scholarships.

Progress reporting will include measures of: The number of nights students do homework, reading level, math level, attitude toward school, grade point average and understanding of college entrance criteria. Over the course of two years, we intend to track actual college entrance data for high school students. Outcome data from younger children will be collected for the reading, math and attitude toward school. This program is part of the network of programs operated by Youth Tennis Advantage. Tennis and academic activities are provided during the school year and summer months to children at six sites in Oakland and San Francisco.
