FROM THE DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

DEAR SPARTAN FAMILY,

The Case Western Reserve University Department of Physical Education and Athletics maintained its standard of excellence during the 2025-26 academic year, continuing its years of record-breaking achievements in the 200th year of CWRU. All 19 of our varsity sports teams enjoyed success academically, athletically, and in the community, while embodying our core values of compete, win, respect, and unite, building on a tradition of success that started in 1826. As Athletic Director, I am proud to present the Annual Report documenting the success of our varsity teams this academic year. Together, we will build on this momentum and continue to prepare student-athletes for continued success for the next 200 years.

COMPETE

Our highest priority for success is in the classroom, where our student-athletes build their foundations for future careers outside of sports. We had three NCAA Elite 90 Award honorees for the second consecutive year, an accolade that celebrates the player with the highest cumulative grade point average at an NCAA Championship. Since the creation of the award, CWRU ranks third in Division III in total honorees. In addition, 10 of our student-athletes were recognized as Academic All-Americans for their accomplishments in the classroom and on the field, the fourth consecutive year the department has had at least 10 awardees. Overall, Case Western Reserve student-athletes had a combined 3.62 GPA during the academic year, and more than 100 student-athletes received their degrees during the year.

WIN

Case Western Reserve was represented at 11 different NCAA Division III Championships during the academic year, highlighted by a national semifinal appearance by the men's tennis team in their sixth consecutive appearance at the finals site. The wrestling team didn't just return to the national meet for the first time in 14 years, it sent three student-athletes to the championship for the first time since 2003, capped off by an All-America finish from senior Art Martinez. Women's track and field sent first-year Gianna Phipps to both the indoor and outdoor national championships, where she secured an All-America finish, and the men's and women's swimming and diving programs sent a combined 12 student-athletes to the finals site with both teams placing in the top 35 in Division III. Additionally, the women's soccer, softball, and women's tennis teams all advanced to at least the second round of their NCAA Tournaments, and both the men's and women's cross country teams had national qualifiers.

RESPECT

We continue to provide growth opportunities outside of the classroom for our student-athletes, helping them become model members of society. This year, we continued to offer the Conquer Life Games Program, an eight-week initiative that improved student-athlete mental health through improv games. Additionally, we provided our student-athletes time to meet with Carlie Grandjean, a certified mental health counselor who specializes in high performing individuals. Our chapter of The Hidden Opponent, an organization that raises awareness around mental health challenges facing student-athletes, hosted a presentation by NFL quarterback and national champion Will Howard. The group was also the beneficiary of the funds our department raised through the Spartan Stronger Together Fun Run/Walk. Finally, our entire coaching staff received mental health first aid training during the academic year.

UNITE

As a valued community partner, we strive to provide outstanding services to support uplifting the city and surrounding region. Multiple area high schools, sports teams, and non-profits were able to use our facilities to support their missions. We are also proud to be the home of NYSP, now in its 56th year, a five-week camp that combines sports activities, educational enrichment, nutrition, and health services to more than 300 Greater Cleveland participants ages 8-16. At the beginning of the summer, we hosted the ASICS Beat the Streets National Enrichment Camp and Duals, where more than 500 teen wrestlers spent a week challenging themselves mentally and physically while also competing at a high level.

After four successful years serving the Case Western Reserve University Department of Athletics and Physical Education, our students, coaches, staff, and faculty maintained their standard of excellence during the university's bicentennial year, and I am looking forward to continuing the pursuit of comprehensive excellence in 2026-27.
