REMEMBERING SCOTT WINKLER

Scott Winkler always was a favorite among his teammates and fellow students, as well as Tiger Hockey fans, members of the media and Colorado College staff.

When Winkler passed away unexpectedly in his native Norway on June 12, 2013, less than a month after graduating with the rest of the senior class, it was a shock to everyone whose lives he had touched.

Of Scott's 63 career points at CC, 10 were either game-winning goals or assists on game winners. His third-period tally as a sophomore forced overtime of what became a 4-3 victory over Wisconsin in Game 2 of a first-round WCHA playoff series with the Badgers in March 2011. A year earlier, he struck for the decisive goal late in a 5-3 post-season triumph at Minnesota Duluth.

"Winks" lit the lamp a total of 24 times and helped set up teammates on 39 more occasions altogether during his four years at Colorado College while significantly increasing his offensive production each season. He finished his final campaign with a career-high 13 goals and 28 points.

THE PIKES PEAK REGION

Colorado Springs and the Pikes Peak Region

When our city's founder, Civil War General William Jackson Palmer, first gazed upon Pikes Peak and the region at its base, he knew that he wanted to call Colorado Springs home. He believed Colorado Springs and the surrounding area was a place worthy of development and also of preservation. Since that time, the city has been a bright shining star throughout all of Colorado. Indeed, President Teddy Roosevelt once said it bankrupts the English language to describe the Colorado Springs area, as it is a place of such exceptional beauty, opportunity and recreation.

Every year, nearly six million people visit this area for a variety of reasons. Families come here for vacations that are fun and affordable. Business people from all over the country attend meetings and conventions and often stay a little longer to enjoy the breathtaking scenery. Group tours head our way to experience the many attractions and historical sites. Ski enthusiasts have only a short drive from Colorado Springs to the surrounding ski resorts. Golf can be enjoyed almost year-round on the 12 public courses available throughout the city.

Even Colorado residents choose Colorado Springs as a place to visit on weekends. For decades, military personnel assigned to duty here have decided to return and make Colorado Springs their permanent residence. And, thousands more have moved mountains to live at the foot of our mountain, Pikes Peak.

Our area is well known for its spectacular natural beauty and outdoor scenery. From the 14,115-foot summit of Pikes Peak to the incredible sandstone rock formations of the Garden of the Gods, our spacious landscape serves as a stage for many outdoor recreation opportunities, including mountain biking, trail hiking, horseback riding, rafting, fishing and picnicking, or just napping on a sun-drenched rock amid a backdrop of pine trees, wildflowers and trickling streams. Our climate – mild, sunny and dry most of the year – gives visitors a large window of opportunity when planning a vacation.

Our region's rich historical, cultural and architectural points of interest attract many visitors every year. We honor our city's founders by preserving and maintaining the structures that make up our community, including beautiful Victorian homes, churches and businesses that were built decades ago, and historical districts in downtown Colorado Springs and Old Colorado City. Just an hour's drive away are historic Cripple Creek and Victor, mining ghost towns brought back to life by limited-stakes gambling.

A wide range of cultural programs are available to our residents and guests, including sculpture and painting exhibits, plays, operas, symphony concerts, film festivals and dance recitals. Our local government works to develop the region while preserving those parts of our city that remind us of our earliest beginnings and the spirit in which this community was founded. General Palmer and the early residents most assuredly knew they were polishing a diamond in the rough.

ABOUT COLORADO COLLEGE

Innovative Teaching & Learning in the Rocky Mountain West

Right where the short grass prairie meets the foothills of the Rockies, there is a place where, with a certain amount of guts and an open mind, students can study the liberal arts and sciences in the mountain air.

A private, four-year college, Colorado College is located on a 90-acre campus in downtown Colorado Springs near the base of the 14,115-foot Pikes Peak. It's the only college of its kind in the Rocky Mountain region and one of only a handful of its type located in a metropolitan area.

Getting lost in a good book...Learning at CC is kind of like that. Under the school's unique and intensive "Block Plan," students take one course at a time for three and a half weeks. This means smaller classes, with more writing, discussion, and in-depth investigation of one subject at a time.

During a block, students immerse themselves in environmental science or chemistry, Chinese or Spanish, poetry or medieval history, or any of our stimulating courses on campus or around the world.

Our students come from many ethnic, religious and socioeconomic backgrounds. They typically are independent-minded adventurers who love a challenge. At CC, they find the encouragement, opportunities and inspiration they need to reach their greatest potential.

A full range of the performing arts, special interest clubs and organizations, student publications and intramural and intercollegiate athletics rounds out the rigorous academic program at CC. The college encourages freedom of expression through an independent student press, as well as student and faculty forums on current issues and programs representing widely ranging viewpoints, often presented by distinguished visitors to the campus.

More About the Block Plan

Teaching and learning are at the heart of all activity. Students never sit in a jam-packed lecture hall. With an enrollment of barely 2,000 and a nine-to-one ratio with faculty, our students get to know accomplished instructors who teach first and foremost – all in seminar-style classes. They may choose to work on a student/faculty collaborative research project, or create their own independent study. Students learn to venture their own opinions and begin the process of shaping their own direction and destiny.

President Teddy Roosevelt once said it bankrupts the English language to describe the Colorado Springs area, as it is a place of such exceptional beauty, opportunity and recreation.

TIGERS & RESULTS OF THE PAST

ABOUT COLORADO COLLEGE

The student body typically is composed of men and women from all 50 states and more than two dozen foreign countries. A large majority hails from states other than Colorado. A significant percent are either American ethnic minority or international students, and most live on campus. All but a very small percent participate in community service, play intramural sports or study abroad at some point during their collegiate career.

Speaking of Athletics

Colorado College has a long and proud tradition of intercollegiate athletics and today offers competition in eight varsity sports for men, as well as nine for women. That includes NCAA Division I soccer for women in addition to ice hockey for men. Otherwise, the Tigers compete at the Division III level.

While the hockey team plays and practices at the Colorado Springs World Arena located six miles from campus, all other intercollegiate, intramural and recreational athletics programs are centered in an easily accessible area consisting of the spectacular El Pomar Sports Center, Washburn and Stewart Fields, and Honnen Ice Rink.

Among the many dazzling features at the renovated El Pomar Sports Center are the Kellogg Climbing Wall (right) and the Ingersoll Shooting Room (below), where hockey players can tune their skills away from the rink.

The recently renovated Burghart Tennis Courts are available for use by the entire campus community as well as serving as home to CC's intercollegiate tennis teams.

El Pomar Sports Center, whose $27 million renovation and expansion project was completed early in 2013, houses the athletics department offices as well as Reid Arena, home court for the CC basketball and volleyball teams and Schlessman Natatorium. Other state-of-the-art facilities within the building, now available to all Colorado College students, faculty, college administrators and their immediate families, include a new fitness center; a cardio conditioning room and strength area; separate space for varsity training; a yoga studio; squash courts; two auxiliary gyms; expanded physical therapy space; indoor and outdoor lounge spaces for socializing and separate locker rooms for students, faculty and staff.

Washburn Field serves as the home stadium for men's lacrosse and track and field teams, as well as an occasional venue for the men's and women's intercollegiate soccer squads. A six-lane, quarter-mile, latex track borders the perimeter, lights accommodate night activities and bleacher seating allows for 2,500 spectators. Adjacent to Washburn lies Stewart Field, primary home to the soccer teams as well as women's lacrosse.

Colorado College believes participation in sports to be an integral part of a well-ordered program of liberal education and, therefore, encourages the widest possible participation in its programs by members of the college community. The college is committed to a philosophy of sport that stresses the value and enjoyment of participation in the physical testing of oneself, and that challenges individuals to develop their physical and mental capacities.

ABOUT COLORADO COLLEGE

Patrons of the new Adam F. Press Fitness Center enjoy state-of-the-art conditioning equipment along with a spectacular view of the mountains west of campus.

Shaping Tomorrow's Leaders

A number of Colorado College alumni were tapped by President Obama for positions in his administration. They include:

- Former Colorado Senator Ken Salazar '77, who served as secretary of the interior through March 2013
- Jane Lubchenco '69, head of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration
- Lori Garver '83, deputy administrator of NASA
- Marcia McNutt '74, former director of the U.S. Geological Survey
- Harris Sherman '64, former agriculture undersecretary for natural resources and environment

These individuals are among the long list of notable CC alums that also includes William J. Hybl '64, past president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, member of the International Olympic Committee, and nominated delegate to the United Nations General Assembly; Lynne Cheney '63, news commentator and wife of former Vice President Dick Cheney; Tara Nott Cunningham '94, the United States' first Olympic gold medalist in women's weightlifting (2000 Games); Olympic gold medalist Peggy Fleming '70; Olympic cyclist and World Mountain Bike Champion Alison Dunlap '91; William "Bro" Adams '69, Colby College's 19th president and former president of Bucknell University; Neal Baer '78, an executive producer/writer for "ER" and "Law & Order SVU"; Jay Engeln '74, 2000 National High School Principal of the Year and formerly CC's director of alumni & parent relations; U.S. Congresswoman Diana DeGette '79; Glenna Goodacre '61, a sculptor who designed the image of Sacagawea on the golden U.S. dollar coin and Peter Neupert '78, Microsoft executive and founder of Drugstore.com.

Other features of El Pomar Sports Center's recent facelift include a sun-lit Great Hall (right) just inside the main entry, as well as private classrooms (below) where CC's athletics staff and varsity teams can hold uninterrupted meetings.

Cutler Hall, built circa 1878, is the oldest building on the Colorado College campus.

President Jill Tiefenthaler

Jill Tiefenthaler became Colorado College's 13th president on July 1, 2011.

During her first year, she began the extensive process that has led to the strategic plan titled "The Colorado College Plan: Building on the Block." Over the course of her first 12 months, which she referred to as "The Year of Listening," she met with students, faculty, staff and community members, and heard from hundreds of alumni in over a dozen cities, about the experiences and aspirations of the college.

In year two, President Tiefenthaler worked with the community and Board of Trustees to finalize a strategic plan that focuses primarily on supporting engaged teaching and learning, strengthening the college's definition and profile as a distinctive place of learning, and extending the international reach of the college. In addition to making a deeper investment in the pioneering Block Plan and developing both a nationally recognized summer program and winter Half Block program, the strategic plan also supports creativity with a new innovation institute, enhances the campus with both regional and global perspectives in mind, and fosters a culture of workplace excellence.

Tiefenthaler is a leading scholar in the field of the economics of higher education. Her essay on the shifting economic and financial models for liberal arts colleges appears in Remaking College: Innovation and the Liberal Arts (Johns Hopkins University Press, October 2013), and she has offered her expertise on this issue in numerous presentations across the country, including for the Institute for College Futures. As professor of economics at the college, she regularly teaches a block class on the economics of higher education.

After receiving her Ph.D. from Duke University, she joined the faculty of Colgate University in 1991, rising through the ranks to become associate dean of the faculty and senior adviser to the president. Before becoming president of Colorado College, she served as provost and professor of economics at Wake Forest University, where she led the implementation of the university's strategic plan and key initiatives, including diversity in admissions and enrollment, establishing new models for enhanced interdisciplinary research and collaboration, and integrating the university's undergraduate and graduate business schools.

President Tiefenthaler is originally from Iowa, where she grew up on a farm and worked for her family's popcorn business before attending Saint Mary's College in South Bend, Indiana. She is married to Kevin Rask, a college research professor in economics at Colorado College. They have two children, Olivia, 14, and Owen, 12.

New League, Established Powers

National Collegiate Hockey Conference Braced for Debut Season

Josh Fenton

The hour of truth is at hand. Finally, more than two years after its formation in summer of 2011, the National Collegiate Hockey Conference makes its long anticipated debut this fall with the launching of a 24-game league schedule and an automatic NCAA Tournament berth on the line for its playoff champion.

Fully committed to remaining competitive at the highest level while staying true to their institutional missions, the eight members of the NCHC historically have intermingled among the country's most elite Division I programs while claiming no fewer than 17 national championships. They've combined for 50 Frozen Four appearances and produced 11 Hobey Baker Award winners including the last three. More than 300 former players from teams in the fledgling conference have gone on to play on the National Hockey League.

Joe Novak

Joining Colorado College in establishing the NCHC on July 13, 2011, were the University of Denver, Miami University, University of Minnesota Duluth, University of North Dakota and University of Nebraska Omaha. St. Cloud State University and Western Michigan University accepted invitations to come two months later, as the original six quickly became eight.

Six of the schools formerly competed in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association, which CC co-founded more than six decades ago. Two others – Miami and Western Michigan – were members of the now-defunct Central Collegiate Hockey Association.

Verna Toller

With commissioner Josh Fenton now at the helm, the NCHC is headquartered in Colorado Springs, near the Broadmoor Hotel, the same building that houses the city's local sports corporation. The conference has partnered with CBS Sports Network, which will air live telecast of 18 games, including all three from the league's inaugural post-season tournament at the Target Center in Minneapolis, in 2013-14.

NCHC Teams have ...

- Combined for 17 national championships
- Produced 12 Hobey Baker Award winners including the last three (2011, '12 and '13), as well as 266 All-Americans
- Made 50 appearances in college hockey's Frozen Four and more than 100 altogether in NCAA tournament play
- Claimed 76 playoff and regular-season titles as members of their previous leagues
- Sent more than 300 players to the National Hockey League
- Consistently ranked among the nation's leaders in attendance during the last decade furthering the academic enterprise at each institution

THE NCHC

Key Operational Goals of the NCHC

1. Build a tradition and legacy of excellence which fosters the development, growth and popularity of collegiate hockey
2. Develop the most widely recognized brand among college hockey athletic conferences highlighted each year by a prominent conference championship
3. Provide the widest possible media exposure for the conference and teams
4. Establish and sustain the most competent officiating crews and system for developing officials in collegiate hockey
5. Support the hockey programs in the conference to achieve competitive and academic excellence at the highest levels of collegiate athletics
6. Build a sustainable revenue generation model including a robust sponsorship platform
7. Position intercollegiate hockey as a means of furthering the academic enterprise at each institution

It is the vision of the National Collegiate Hockey Conference to be the best single sport conference in the NCAA. It is the mission of the National Collegiate Hockey Conference to facilitate and foster competitive, academic and operational excellence collectively and individually for all institutions that comprise the conference. The conference will maintain a culture of integrity reflecting its commitment to the well-being of the student-athletes and fans it serves.

A fixture in the heart of downtown Minneapolis' vibrant Warehouse District since 1990, the Target Center will serve as home to the NCHC's post-season tournament for at least the next five seasons.

COLORADO SPRINGS WORLD ARENA

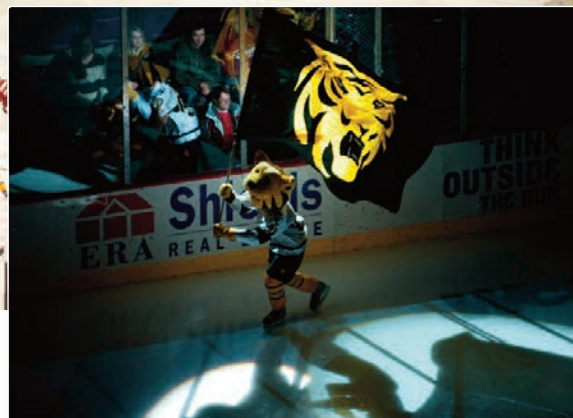

Two-time Venue for the NCAA West Regional

Fifteen years after opening its doors as CC's new home in January of 1998, the Colorado Springs World Arena remains one of the finest college hockey facilities anywhere. The World Arena, which has been on national display as site for the 2004 and 2008 NCAA West Regionals, also played host to the annual IceBreaker Invitational in 2005. The Tigers, meanwhile, aim to continue taking full advantage of their state-of-the-art surroundings after boasting a .698 winning percentage (231-99-18) there entering the 2013-14 season.

Everything about the facility is first class, and the Colorado College program is a major benefactor of the amenities. Part of a $58.8 million complex located in the southern end of the city's business district off Interstate 25, the main arena features an Olympic-size sheet of ice (100 by 200 feet) and now seats 7,380 spectators for hockey. The complex also includes an ice hall with two additional sheets of ice that have been in operation since summer of 1995, giving CC the option of practicing at a smaller NHL-size rink in preparation for any upcoming opponent.

Tiger Hockey is the top attended winter collegiate event in the entire state of Colorado, outdrawing Air Force basketball and hockey, University of Colorado basketball, University of Denver hockey and Colorado State University basketball.

Colorado College boasted a .698 winning percentage (221-91-16) in 328 all-time games at the World Arena entering the 2013-14 season.

COLORADO SPRINGS WORLD ARENA

The Tigers will continue to use facilities at the National Strength and Conditioning Association's headquarters, just south of the World Arena complex, in 2013-14.

From a fan's perspective, the World Arena earns high marks as every seat features an unobstructed view. The rise per row of the stands helps everyone feel right on top of the action, with concessions and restrooms conveniently nearby, whether you're in the lower or upper level. Of course, accommodations for the media are top-notch. Hanging from the ceiling above the ice are large banners commemorating Colorado College's championships and NCAA tournament appearances. The outer concourse is adorned with beautiful tiles as well as murals and additional memorabilia honoring CC's rich hockey history. Sellouts are common, and the large crowds have plenty to experience in addition to action on the ice.

Under the stands, the Tigers enjoy their own custom facilities including an oversize locker room that leads directly to the ice and home team's bench. Adjacent to the locker room at opposite ends are spacious areas for the medical staff and equipment storage and maintenance. Just across the hall, head coach Scott Owens and his assistants occupy private offices with a door leading directly to a team meeting room.

In addition to showcasing Colorado College Hockey, the technically-equipped, multi-use World Arena serves as host for a wide variety of other indoor sporting and public events. As the facility's anchor tenant, however, CC has established a presence there rivaled by none. Certainly, when one sees or thinks of the CSWA, the Tigers also are likely to come to mind.

Past 2.3 Million and Counting

In 348 home dates since opening the Colorado Springs World Arena midway through the 1997-1998 season, the Tigers have attracted more than 2.3 million spectators, with an average attendance of 6,650 per outing. Fourth nationally their first full season at the CSWA (1998-99), when they drew more than 160,000 fans, they have sustained the momentum while finishing no lower than seventh in total attendance the last 14 campaigns. In 2012-13, the average attendance for 19 NCAA home games was nearly 95 percent of capacity. The record for a single contest was set in March 2005, when 7,881 packed the stands for a late-season showdown with the University of Denver.

HEAD COACH SCOTT OWENS

A Perfect Fit Who Knows the Territory

by Dave Moross

As he leads Tiger Hockey into yet another exciting era, Scott Owens already has stamped an indelible mark in the annals of the storied program. The 2013-14 campaign marks his 15th at the Colorado College helm, the longest tenure of any head coach in the team's history. And, while founding member CC helps launch the new National Collegiate Hockey Conference, Owens undoubtedly will continue to burnish his reputation and status among the school's most successful bench bosses ever.

The numbers themselves tell a compelling story. Fourteen seasons, 317 victories and a .599 winning percentage. Not to mention three regular-season championships in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association and seven appearances in the NCAA tournament, including a trip to the Frozen Four in 2005 and return to the quarterfinals in 2011. Oh, yes – don't forget 16 All-America selections, two Hobey Baker Award recipients and 15 players earning WCHA Scholar-Athlete distinction a total of 27 times from 2005-06 through 2012-13. To say that Owens is a perfect fit at his alma mater would be an understatement.

His teams have averaged better than 22 victories per season since he accepted the position in 1999. The 31 triumphs in 2004-05 and 28 in 2007-08 represent the team's second and sixth highest totals ever. It's no mere coincidence that the Tigers have maintained a firm foothold among Division I hockey's elite, while attendance figures at the Colorado Springs World Arena also continue to rank among the nation's best.

True, Owens has compiled an impressive list of coaching credentials now spanning more than two decades. But when he returned to campus in April 1999 after four stellar seasons in the Junior "A"-level United States Hockey League, he also brought with him an intimate familiarity with the college that few other individuals could possibly possess.

A 1979 graduate with a bachelor's degree in business administration, Owens lettered for four seasons as a goaltender with the Tigers. He later spent four campaigns (1991-95) as a member of the CC coaching staff, serving as recruiting coordinator and playing a key role in the program's revival in the mid '90s. He was promoted to associate head coach for the final two years of that stay. Before leaving to become head coach and general manager of the Des Moines Buccaneers in 1995, he had helped lead Colorado College to its first of five consecutive appearances in the NCAA playoffs as well as two of three straight regular-season championships in the WCHA.

He understands the school, its students and its athletics philosophy. Having experienced, as a player and a coach, what works and what doesn't at Colorado College, he knows what the ingredients of success have been in the past and is able to trust his instincts approaching the future. He's at home in the community, and his achievements everywhere he's been are testimony to his knack for motivating players.

In his four years at Des Moines, Owens posted an overall record of 179-76-9 and winning percentage of .695, including a record-setting 62-12-1 (.833) mark in 1998-99 when the Buccaneers claimed the USHL's regular-season and playoff titles. Also national Junior "A" champions a year earlier, they came within one victory of repeating the feat in 1999 when they finished as runner-up to Detroit Compuware.

In 22 seasons combined, as a head coach in the USHL and at Colorado College, Owens has won 645 official games.

Prior to his first return to CC in 1991, he spent six years as general manager (1984-90) and head coach (1986-90) of the USHL's Madison Capitols, followed by one season (1990-91) as an assistant coach at the University of Wisconsin. A native of Madison, he guided the Capitols to four consecutive appearances (1987-90) at nationals. His four-year coaching record with the club was 149-97-9 (.602), including a 41-18-3 (.685) mark in 1989-90, its best ever. He was voted USHL General Manager of the Year in 1986-87 and 1997-98, as well as the league's Coach of the Year in 1987-88.

The 57-year-old Owens, who coached the South at '86 and '87 U.S. Olympic Festivals, also spent five years as a player, assistant coach and youth program coordinator for the Kempten Ice Hockey Club in Kempten, West Germany, after graduating from Colorado College in 1979.

He appeared in 50 games for the Tigers during his collegiate playing career, backstopping 12 victories as the team's No. 1 goalie his senior season in 1978-79. He attended and played hockey at Madison's Memorial High School under coach Bill Howard, another former CC goaltender. Owens then played one year for the St. Cloud (Minn.) Blues of the Mid-West Junior League. He also represented the United States at the 1975 Junior World Championships, competing against teams from Canada, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Russia and Sweden.

He and his wife, Sally, were married on New Year's Eve, 2001. He has two stepsons, Evan and Sean, ages 28 and 25.

Q&A WITH SCOTT OWENS

Q. Let's talk a little about last season. Looking back, despite finishing a game under .500 overall, you ultimately had to be pleased with the late run and second half in general, right?

A. "The theme of the season – and this was consistent with our fans, our players and our coaches – was that everybody stuck with it. Everybody stayed 'til the very end. Everybody battled and competed and stayed with the script. And it was a nice reward – not the ultimate, perfect reward. But you know what? I'll take facing five elimination games – at Denver twice, against North Dakota, against Minnesota at Minnesota, and then Wisconsin – and the first four of those contests were battles that we won. Not only did we win them and find a way to win them, but we won them with a little bit of strong play and class."

Q. How would you rate the senior class that graduated in May?

A. "It was a good group. Senior classes generally can go one of two ways. They either can start to lose interest, start to get phased out, phase themselves out, start to get selfish, start not to care. Or they can stick with it and have pride. I think a lot of that was through the leadership of William Rapuzzi, who was one of our best captains and leaders in a number of years, and a lot of it's the character of the kids. They stuck together, all the way through the very end. I think they all were rewarded for that. The other thing it does is really help next year's group – because they learned how to win, they learned how to compete, they learned the things to do, maybe even a couple things not to do."

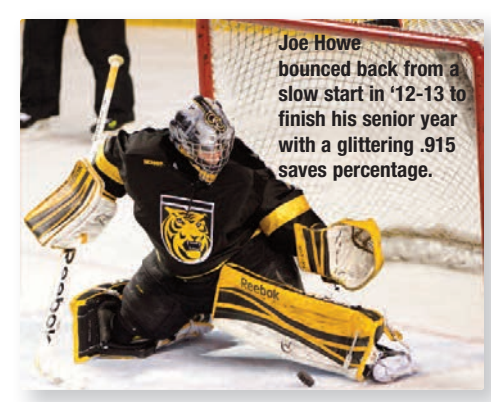

Q. What did it mean to you to upset Denver in the opening round of the playoffs?

A. "We were closing out an era in the WCHA, of which Colorado College had been a significant part for 61 years. On a personal level, and from a historical perspective, I was very proud to get to St. Paul for our last Final Five. Obviously, it was great the way we did it – to win up there (in Denver), having an unbelievable six to seven to eight hundred fans for each game, with passion and energy. It certainly felt wonderful from that standpoint."

Q. If you could pinpoint one specific shortcoming that prevented the team from experiencing more success in 2012-13, what would that be?

A. "That would have to be overall team defense. We never seemed to get on the same page defensively. Early in the year, for example, the forwards were coming back hard, coming back well, but our penalty killing and our goaltending wasn't great. Then in the middle part of the year, with the tough part of our schedule, the penalty killing struggled, just overall 'd' zone play struggled. Then, at the very end of the year, we saw it all coming together a little bit. The goaltending, the penalty killing improved, and all that, so that would be my primary area of concern."

Joe Howe bounced back from a slow start in '12-13 to finish his senior year with a glittering .915 saves percentage.

Q. Do you feel comfortable heading into your first season in the National Collegiate Hockey Conference?

A. "We've finished off our time in the WCHA and are very excited about the new league. Since the '40s and '50s, when we hosted the first 10 NCAA national championships at The Broadmoor, CC has been an integral part of college hockey. I think we stay relevant, stay current, stay top-notch by being among the pioneer teams going into the NCHC, as one of the teams that will lead this charge in an outstanding league. It's going to be tough and it's going to be challenging. It's going to be a tough schedule. Plus we're trying to keep some relationships with other top-notch programs so we can bring in good non-conference games for our fans. We're staying with Wisconsin for three years. We signed an agreement with Boston College. We've signed agreements with New Hampshire. We've signed agreements with UMass Lowell and Norm Bazin. We're going to bring some good teams in here, and it's going to be tough. There's going to be all kinds of discussions publicly as to if we should do this, if it's too tough of a schedule or if we're good enough on certain weekends. But it doesn't matter, because we are one of the premier programs in the nation and we're doing it."

Q. Are you concerned at all that the strong finish last March will result in higher and perhaps unrealistic expectations in 2013-14?

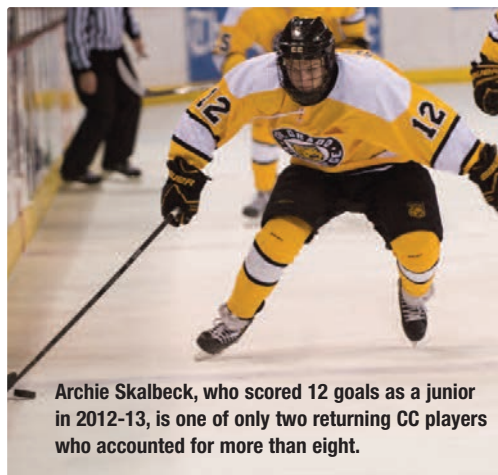

A. "I don't know. That's interesting to look at. I think the strong finish will give our team, give our returning players a lot of confidence."

Obviously, every year you've got to start over because you've got a new group of people coming in. It's a whole new set of circumstances. As far as what the expectations are from the fans, there's no way of predicting that. There's a lot of uncertainty, though, going into this new league, you know, with Miami of Ohio coming in, Western Michigan coming in, North Dakota and Denver. So I think it's a little bit of an unknown in terms of what the expectations are going to be from the public and from the media."

Q. Considering the graduation losses from last season, which are significant (68 of 133 goals, 170 of 355 points, plus Joe Howe), what are your main concerns in terms of personnel?

A. "It's a big concern when you lose 50 or 55 percent of your scoring, no doubt. That class had a very good senior year. Joe Howe was very strong, especially the second half. But I'm hoping, as some of these underclassmen get thrown into key positions this year, that they'll be able to pick up the slack. Krushelnyski will be a senior. Skalbeck will be a senior. We saw Fejes and we saw Bradley at the end of the year start to contribute more and more. Hopefully, with regard to our goaltending, Josh Thorimbert hopefully is hungry and been waiting in the wings through the second half of last year, to emerge this year. Tyler Marble's very talented. Courtney Lockwood's a junior now. So I do have some concerns. I do think we'll be better defensively, which I think will help offset the loss of some of that offensive firepower we had, but I do think the other guys will step in. Plus we have eight or nine incoming freshmen."

Archie Skalbeck, who scored 12 goals as a junior in 2012-13, is one of only two returning CC players who accounted for more than eight.

Q. Other than Krushelnyski and Skalbeck, who scored 27 goals between them, no other returning player had more than eight. Who's going to pick up the slack?

A. "Potential-wise, I would say Bradley, Fejes, Taft, Skalbeck – you know, those guys are capable of scoring. I think we'll have a little more of a question back at the blue line, as far as generating offense, because (Mike) Boivin was the leading goal scorer in the country."

We're going to need for that to be done via scoring by committee. But we've also got six incoming freshmen [forwards] who are pretty talented. I just think that if everybody can increase their scoring by 15 to 20 percent, and we can improve defensively, it will help us overall."

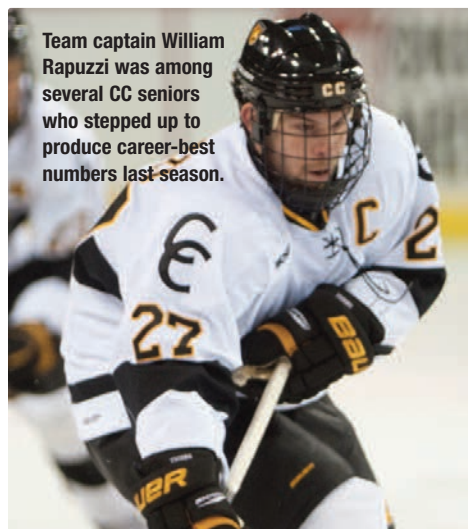

"We don't think we're going to have quite the offensive firepower, so we're going to have to be much more cognizant defensively."

Q. Do you anticipate any "dark horses" emerging?

A. "I think Jared Hanson, who scored 20 goals in the USHL in 2011-12 then had two or three for us last year, is very capable. I think Jeff Collett is capable of improving his scoring a little bit. From that standpoint, generally speaking, I also would like to see Harstad's, Stoykewych's, and McDermott's offensive numbers improve a little in terms of generating goals. Eamonn did a real nice job, as far as assists go, but I really think it's going to be, again, a lot of people improving by 15 percent. And being better defensively."

Q. What is your assessment of the incoming class as a whole?

A. "I really like it. I think assistant coaches Eric Rud and Joe Bonnett did a really good job of putting this group together. It's got a really good blend. I mean, we've got two talented defensemen coming in – in Olofsson and Slavin. And you know, Tyler Marble is an older, established goaltender. Then we've got a really nice cross section of centers and wings, speed and skill, who I think have all done well in the USHL, and that generally translates into the college game pretty well."

Team captain William Rapuzzi was among several CC seniors who stepped up to produce career-best numbers last season.

Q&A WITH SCOTT OWENS

Q. How do the freshmen compare, size-wise and skill-wise, to last year's rookie group?

A. "Last year's class had four forwards and two defensemen. I think this year they're a little bit smaller and a little bit more skilled, if I had to just generalize. The two defensemen are good size. But I'm thinking of Alexander Roos, Sam Rothstein, Matt Hansen – little bit smaller but skilled. Obviously, Christian Heil's got some size. And I think they're pretty versatile. Some can play wing, some can play center, and I like having that versatility."

Q. Were you happy with the years Bradley, Fejes and Hanson had?

A. "I was really happy. I thought that all three contributed, and that they contributed down the stretch when it was an important time. Fejes just kept getting better and better. You know, he's right out of high school. Bradley's right out of high school. I mean, those two are '94s. Those are two of the younger kids in the league, and I thought they kept getting better. Hanson has character and plays a role for us. Hopefully that role will be expanded this year. He was a significant penalty killer. And I think Peter Maric was pretty good, too, down the stretch. He was playing a very strong role for us with the fourth line, contributing, and did a nice job. So, all in all, those four forwards in particular had nice freshman years."

Q. Have we come anywhere close to seeing their potential?

A. "I think Bradley and Fejes, as young as they are, will just keep getting better and better. I think Hanson's so smart, he's going to figure things out and that Maric's always going to provide a really good role for you and be a valuable piece to the team. As far as (Russell) Finch and (Michael) King go, we could really get a good chance to see King this year. He missed most of last season because of his injury, and he'll start this year injured, but he's got potential, with his size and his skill. And I thought Finch was very similar to Maric in that he provided a very good role for us, especially at the end of the year."

Q. Do you expect this year's team be more defensive minded than offensively explosive?

A. "It's going to have to be. One, I think it's going to continue to improve on everything we did last year. We started to rely on the offense right from the beginning, when we scored 10 goals against Clarkson. We thought that we could score pretty much at will. We were anywhere from one through 10 nationally in scoring all season long. I don't think it was until the very end that we worked on some of the finer things. I mean, we worked on them but we didn't do as many of the little things we need to do defensively as we did at the end of the year. I think this year there's going to be a necessity that we have to go in and be defensive-minded right at the beginning, if we're going to have success, because as we said we have lost 50-55 percent of our scoring."

Q. With eight defensemen, is more rotation than in 2012-13 likely?

A. "Yes, I think more rotation could be likely because you've got Finch proving he can play, you've got King still a project and somebody that we're working on. I thought Ian Young had a pretty good year. Then you've got those two incoming NHL-draft-pick defensemen, so I think we're going to utilize the whole D corps and that it's a pretty good group to work with."

Q. You mentioned Tyler Marble a little earlier. Is there anything else you can tell us about him?

A. "He's good sized, very focused, and has played a lot of hockey over the years. He comes in here hungry and eager. He had a really good season [last] year in the Soo. It'll be really interesting to see how he does. I think he's not going to have that great of a learning curve, because he's older and established and has some size, so I think our goaltending situation is going to be wide open."

Jared Hanson looks to expand his role after a promising rookie season in 2012-13.

Eamonn McDermott, who led the team's defensive corps with 20 assists in 2012-13, hopes to contribute more in the scoring column as CC's senior captain in '13-14.

Q. If you could pinpoint two or three major keys to success in advance, what would they be?

A. "I would say it would be, one, it's going to be much improved defensive numbers – first, that defensive mentality. It's also going to be goaltending, which is often the case and goes hand-in-hand with the defense, and diversified scoring. I've said that every year. Some years we call it secondary scoring, some years it's scoring by committee. It's just going to have to be really spread out, and this is no different than many, many of the college teams today. It's the same situation."

Q&A WITH SCOTT OWENS

Q. How do you expect Eamonn McDermott to handle the added responsibility of serving as team captain?

A. "I think he's going to do very well. He had a chance to watch and learn from Rapuzzi last year. I also think he's a very intelligent kid who 'gets it.' Early indications are good that he's going to approach and take it very seriously. I think he's respected by his teammates, that he's a good player. So I think that all those things combined with the learning last year are going to make him very effective."

Q. What else were you able to observe from spring drills?

A. "Good team unity. Good team morale. The emergence of Krushelnyski, Stoykewych, Collett as leaders. Good personality. Good work habits."

I think the end of last year really gave a lot of guys a taste of it and really helped in terms of giving that extra incentive. It was a pretty good taste. They were pretty excited about how everything played out at the end of the year, and I think they wanted to carry that into the summer."

Q. Are there any portions of real concern on the schedule, or periods you especially do or do not look forward to?

A. "It's another challenging schedule. Providence comes in here with the World Juniors goaltender and a very strong team. New Hampshire – we saw how good they were last year, and they return. We go to Wisconsin. We saw how good they were at the end of the year. I think the non-conference schedule is very challenging. Then, of course, with the first year of the NCHC, there's just a lot of unknowns. Miami is awfully good – that's a very, very good program. It's going to be challenging, but I think we're all excited for it."

Q. Who do you think will be the teams to beat in the NCHC, and do you think the rest of the teams stack up?

A. "For me, I think it probably will be North Dakota and Miami. But you know, St. Cloud State is coming off a very good season and then Nebraska

In addition to being part of the National Collegiate Hockey Conference's debut season in 2013-14, the Tigers also will face a very challenging non-conference schedule.

Jeff Collett will wear an 'A' on his jersey as a senior in 2013-14, when he'll also shoot to increase his goals production from past seasons.

Omaha returns almost all their scoring, a very good offensive team. But I think it's going to be Miami and North Dakota. I think those are going to be two of the stronger ones. Western Michigan comes in – they've been pretty strong. Duluth is coming off kind of a rebuilding year. Denver lost a lot, but they've got a lot still here. You just don't know at all. When you do your pre-season poll selections, it's just a guess. You just don't know."

"They were pretty excited about how everything played out at the end of the year, and I think they wanted to carry that into the summer."

Q. Have you learned any lessons as a coach during the last year?

A. "We've got to continue to work at our defense every single day. I think we did a pretty good job of playing young guys last year, and learned that it paid off at the end. We had Fejes and Bradley – we just stuck with them. And Hanson, too – we just stuck with them all season long. And Taft, who didn't play much his freshman year – I think that paid off for us at the end of the year when we were waiting to see which of these freshmen were going to get themselves established right away. I also think it would be awfully nice to have some weeks off during the season. From a scheduling standpoint, going 11 straight weeks last year in the middle part of the season with the schedule we had was incredibly grueling. I know we have a few off this year, which should help us be able to regroup. That's more from the general manager's standpoint, as far as scheduling is concerned. It's a long season. We tried to build a team that would get better at the end of the year, and I think we did that. The problem was that the middle part of the year was so tough schedule-wise, that it put us in a hole. We stuck a lot with the things we wanted to stick with, in terms of playing guys, and I thought we had a pretty good team and foundation at the end of the year."

ASSISTANT COACHES

JOE BONNETT

ASSISTANT COACH

An invaluable source of continuity and mentor for the team's blue-line corps since joining the Colorado College staff in 2000-01, Joe Bonnett has helped launch the professional careers of more than a dozen defensemen during his tenure with the team.

Three of his protégés – Tom Preissing, Mark Stuart and Jack Hillen – earned All-America accolades before leaving CC. Preissing set an NCAA single-season goal scoring record for defensemen with 23 tallies as a senior in 2002-03, while Stuart and Hillen both were honored as Defensive Player of the Year in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

Those three are among seven former Tiger "D" men who have competed at the sport's highest level, joining Richard Petiot, Lee Sweatt, Kris Fredheim and Nate Prosser in reaching the National Hockey League for various durations. An ever-increasing number of others – including Brian Salcido, Brian Connelly, Jake Gannon, Ryan Lowery and Gabe Guentzel – continue to pursue that ultimate goal while under professional contract with NHL minor-league affiliates.

Heading into the 2013-14 season, Bonnett's 14th as an assistant coach under Scott Owens, Colorado College has reaped seven bids to the NCAA playoffs, claimed three WCHA regular-season championships and won 299 games – an average of 23 victories per campaign – since his arrival.

His impact is felt in all aspects of the program. Not only is Bonnett active in recruiting and on-ice instruction, but he also plays a major role in practice preparation, team video, advanced scouting reports and individual teaching clips for the players. His main focus lies in team transition, defensive schemes and skill development of the blue-line corps. Under his guidance, CC's team defense has finished as high as sixth and its penalty kill fourth nationwide at seasons' end.

While helping to maintain the flow of top hockey talent at Colorado College, Bonnett has been involved in recruiting quality students as well. More than five dozen players were named to the All-WCHA All-Academic Team in the last 13 years. In addition, 15 garnered WCHA Scholar-Athlete distinction a total of 27 times before the Tigers left the league.

Bonnett previously served as recruiting coordinator at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio (1997-01), where he helped fuel the program's future and secured the 2003-04 CCHA Player of the Year. He started his coaching career as associate head coach of the Kalamazoo Jr. K-Wings (NAHL), guiding them to an appearance in the 1994 junior "A" national tournament. Bonnett served as a volunteer assistant at Miami from 1995-97. While there, he earned his master's degree in sport organization and helped guide the RedHawks to the NCAA tournament in 1997.

Bonnett was a four-year letter winner as a forward at Western Michigan University (1989-93) and an assistant captain his senior year. A 1993 graduate of WMU, where he received a bachelor's degree in secondary education, he was named Western Michigan's Most Improved Player as a junior in 1991-92, then was named recipient of the program's Catherine Lawson Sportsmanship Award as a senior in 1992-93.

Over the years, Bonnett has built extensive experience as a volunteer with USA Hockey during the summer months. That includes work with the Rocky Mountain Festival in Salt Lake City, which annually attracts top players – such as recent Tiger standouts Richard Bachman and Mike Testwuide – from throughout the region. He also has served as a head coach for Team Michigan and Rocky Mountain districts at national select -14, -15, -16 and -17 festivals. In 1999, his select-16 team Michigan won a gold medal in St. Cloud, Minn. In 2003, Bonnett served as an assistant coach with the United States under-17 select team that won the gold medal at the 2003 Five Nations Tournament in Prievidza, Slovakia.

The Canton, Mich., native and his wife, Laura, celebrated their 13th anniversary in June. They are the proud parents of two sons, Noah and Samuel, as well as a daughter, Vivian, born in late March 2011.

ERIC RUD

ASSISTANT COACH

One of the most decorated defensemen in the history of Tiger Hockey and a rising star in the sport's coaching fraternity for the last decade, Eric Rud returned to the CC staff in 2011-12 after a six-year absence.

Rud served as head coach and general manager of the United States Hockey League's Green Bay Gamblers during the 2010-11 season, guiding them to an overall record of 41-15-4 and a spot in the Clark Cup finals. He resigned in July, 2011, to become an assistant coach at CC for the second time. He has been involved with numerous USA Hockey camps and clinics since the early 2000s, and has helped coached a pair of select teams that competed internationally in Slovakia (under-17) and the Czech Republic (under-18).

Known for his acute hockey sense, commitment to academics and positive manner with which he relates to student-athletes, Rud launched his coaching career as an assistant with the USHL's Cedar Rapids Roughriders in 2002 after playing professionally for five years and six different minor-league teams. He returned temporarily to his alma mater for the 2004-05 campaign, when the Tigers posted a 31-9-3 record en route to the program's most recent Frozen Four appearance, then went on to spend the next five seasons on Bob Motzko's staff at St. Cloud State University. There he helped the Huskies earn four appearances at the Western Collegiate Hockey Association's Final Five as well as three trips to the NCAA Tournament.

Before reuniting with Scott Owens and Joe Bonnett at CC in the summer of 2011, Rud enjoyed remarkable success in his debut as a head coach. In addition to its glittering record and post-season achievements, Green Bay allowed just 131 goals – the fewest by any team in the entire USHL – during his year at the helm. Defenseman Aaron Harstad, one of his top players with the Gamblers and a 2011 draft pick of the Winnipeg Jets, emerged as Colorado College's top rookie in '11-12.

A native of Inver Grove Heights, Minn., Rud enjoyed an outstanding playing career (1993-97) with the Tigers, who claimed a then-unprecedented three consecutive WCHA regular-season titles his first three years and reached the Frozen Four his last two. He ranks 25th on the school's all-time assists list, with 90, as well as ninth among blue-line specialists in overall points, with 112. The two-time WCHA Defensive Player of the Year appeared in 168 consecutive games, third most ever in program history. As a junior in 1996, his first of two seasons as team captain, he helped lead CC to the national championship game – a 3-2 overtime loss to Michigan at Cincinnati's Riverfront Coliseum.

Rud and his wife Amy are the proud parents of Gabbie, as well as two sons, Sam and Max.

JASON BUSHIE

TEAM TRAINER

Jason Bushie returns in 2013-14 for his seventh season as Colorado College's team trainer.

A native of Crookston, Minn., Bushie is a 1999 graduate of the University of North Dakota, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in athletic training. He then continued his education at Minnesota State University, where he completed a master's program in athletic administration in 2002. He previously worked at Douglas County Sports Medicine in Alexandria, Minn., for two years before enrolling at MSU.

Bushie is a member of the National Athletic Trainers Association (NATA), certified by the NATABOC, and has earned strength training certification from the National Academy of Sports Medicine (NASM). He and his wife, Beth, have been married for 11 years and are the proud parents of a young daughter, Ella.

GORD "SPUD" HAMILTON

EQUIPMENT MANAGER

Spud Hamilton returns in 2013-14 for his sixth season as CC's equipment manager.

A 30-year veteran of the professional and junior hockey ranks in both the United States and Canada, Hamilton came to the Tigers from the San Antonio Rampage, the top farm club of the National Hockey League's Phoenix Coyotes.

He began his career at age 15 and has worked for the Augusta Lynx of the East Coast Hockey League, the Elmira Jackals of the United Hockey League and the El Paso Buzzards of the former Western Professional Hockey League. He also spent seven seasons in the Ontario Hockey League, four with the Sarnia Sting and three with the Newmarket/Cornwall Royals.

A 1991 graduate of Sheridan College in Oakville, Ont., Hamilton is a member of the Society of Professional Hockey Equipment Managers. The Ottawa, Ont., native and his wife, Yvonne, celebrated their 13th anniversary in May.

TERRY KLEISINGER

VOLUNTEER ASSISTANT COACH

Terry Kleisinger returns to the Tigers' staff for his ninth season overall as a volunteer assistant coach. He served in that capacity the last four campaigns, as well as for four years (2000-04) previously.

Kleisinger, who lives in Edwards, Colo., near Vail, again will continue to work primarily with CC's goalies – Josh Thorimbert, Courtney Lockwood and Tyler Marble.

The former University of Wisconsin goaltender was a member of two NCAA championship teams, in 1981 and 1983, as well as UW's national runner-up squad in 1982. Before graduating in 1984, he set a school record with nine career shutouts and became just the third UW net minder to amass more than 2,000 career saves. A native of Nanaimo, British Columbia, he subsequently was named to the roster of Canada's national team.

Kleisinger went on to play professionally in the New York Rangers organization (1985-88) before injuries sustained in an automobile accident forced him to retire. He began his coaching career with the Madison (Wis.) Major AAA team in 1989 and in the early 2000s served on the staff of the Vail (Colo.) AAA squad.

Kleisinger and his wife, Laurie, have two sons – Casey, who currently plays at Air Force, and Cody.

HOCKEY STAFF

DAKOTA EVELAND

STUDENT ASSISTANT COACH

Dakota Eveland has served as a student assistant on the Tiger Hockey staff since his playing career came to an abrupt halt mid-way through his sophomore season at CC.

Eveland, who is scheduled to graduate in May 2014, collected 25 points (6g,19a) in 60 games as a forward for Colorado College in 2010-11 and 2011-12.

Originally from Anaheim, Calif., he spent three years with the Omaha Lancers of the United States Hockey League, helping them win the Clark Cup as USHL playoff champions his rookie campaign in 2008-09.

Although his ice hockey playing career has ended due to a neck injury, Eveland earned a spot on the Team USA roster for the 2013 IIHF InLine Hockey World Championship in Dresden, Germany, last spring and helped the Americans win a gold medal.

SCOTT CAULFIELD

STRENGTH & CONDITIONING COACH

Scott Caulfield, manager of the Human Performance Center at the National Strength and Conditioning Association's headquarters in Colorado Springs, is in his third season as a member of the Tiger Hockey staff.

Caulfield previously served for two and a half years as a strength and conditioning coach for football, rugby and swimming at Dartmouth College. A 2000 graduate of Castleton State College in Vermont, where he earned a bachelor's degree in physical education, he now is a certified strength and conditioning specialist with distinction, registered through the NSCA, as well as a USA Weightlifting level 1 coach.

He has more than 20 years of "under-the-bar" lifting experience and participates in both powerlifting and strongman competitions.

COLORADO COLLEGE SPORTS MEDICINE

IAN WOOD

DIRECTOR OF SPORTS MEDICINE

Ian Wood, who previously spent six years as chief of sports medicine for the United States Army World Class Athlete Program, joined the CC staff as coordinator of sports medicine in July 2012.

Wood supervises a staff of five professionals, in addition to a number of interns and student athletic trainers, who serve the college's 17 official varsity athletics programs. He worked at the U.S.

Military Academy (West Point, N.Y.), then as head football trainer at the University of Wisconsin, before heading to Fort Carson, where he directed a program that prepares elite military athletes for major international competitions including the Olympics. He also has worked the last two Military Olympic Games in India (2007) and Brazil (2011). He is a 1994 graduate of Purdue University.

ATHLETICS ADMINISTRATIVE STAFF

KEN RALPH

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Whether he's conducting a staff meeting, interviewing candidates for an open position or diligently working behind the scenes on the latest leap forward involving sports and recreation at Colorado College, Ken Ralph clearly has infused a spirit of enthusiasm, heightened sense of accountability and widespread commitment to excellence during his six years as director of athletics.

An energetic, well-spoken and approachable leader with a resolute attitude, uncompromising work ethic and common-sense approach to any situation, Ralph has demonstrated not only the vision to steer the department in exciting directions, but also the instincts, motivational abilities, perseverance and professionalism to see those dreams through to fruition. Recent completion of the spectacular $27 million El Pomar Sports Center renovation and expansion project in early 2013, followed by CC's debut as a member of the new National Collegiate Hockey Conference, provide the latest testament to his effectuality. Earlier during his tenure, the school successfully launched a new, dynamic athletics website and implemented live video streaming of home games for nearly half of its 17 varsity programs.

The 44-year-old Ralph currently manages a department with a budget of $8.5 million. A member of the Colorado Springs Sports Corporation board of directors, he also has been appointed treasurer of the eight-team NCHC, which he was instrumental in forming from its conceptualization. He served as tournament director for the 2008 NCAA Men's Ice Hockey West Regional at the World Arena after running two previous regionals – in 2004 and 2006, both in Albany, N.Y.

Before returning west in 2007, he spent five years as AD at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Like Colorado College, Rensselaer also is a Division III school with two Division I teams, so Ralph was no stranger to the athletic department's multi-divisional status upon his arrival. He'd been involved in January 2004 when the NCAA voted overwhelmingly in favor of amended legislation that permits both schools and six other Division III institutions to continue granting financial aid to student-athletes who compete on their Division I teams. For CC, the outcome preserved men's ice hockey and women's soccer at the Division I level. For RPI, it was Division I men's and women's hockey. Other schools affected were Clarkson University, Hartwick College, Johns Hopkins University, Rutgers-Newark, St. Lawrence University, and SUNY-Oneonta.

Prior to his stint at Rensselaer, Ralph served as senior assistant director of athletics, head swimming coach and head water polo coach at Connecticut College; director of aquatics, head swimming coach and physical education instructor at University of Evansville; assistant swimming coach and physical education instructor at the U.S. Air Force Academy; director of aquatics and head swimming coach at Kutztown University; director of aquatics and head swimming coach at Georgetown University; assistant swimming coach at the University of Missouri; and assistant swimming coach at the University of Alaska Anchorage. He has served on committees for ECAC Hockey, USA Hockey, and the Liberty League.

Ralph is a 1991 graduate of Alaska Anchorage, where he earned five NCAA Division II All-America awards in swimming, was twice named UAA Swimmer of the Year, and was a USS Senior National Qualifier. In 2005, he was inducted into the school's Athletics Hall of Fame. He earned his bachelor's degree in political science and a master's in sports management studies from California University (Pa.). He and his wife, Mary, have been married for 18 years.

GREG CAPELL

SENIOR ASSOCIATE AD

Associate director of athletics for nearly a decade now, Greg Capell serves as Colorado College's NCAA rules compliance and eligibility officer and liaison with the school's admission office. He provides administrative oversight for 11 of CC's 17 varsity programs including volleyball, men's soccer, men's and women's cross country, men's and women's swimming and diving, men's lacrosse, men's and women's tennis and men's and women's track and field. A member of the athletics senior staff, he serves on numerous committees – both for the athletics department as well as for the college as a whole.

The recent renovation and expansion of the El Pomar Sports Center, completed early in 2013, further attests to Capell's value. He worked closely with architects on multiple facets of the $27 million project, with an overall focus on access issues as well as sports surfaces including design and installation of the new Frank Flood Track along with the synthetic turf system on Washburn Field.

A wealth of experience and professional diversity accompanied Capell when he arrived in Colorado Springs in July 2004. Prior to a five-year stint as AD at Division III Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa, he worked at the University Minnesota – first as director of athletics publications (1994-96) then as an assistant to the director of men's athletics (1996-99). A 1981 graduate of Loras, he worked for 10 years at the University of St. Thomas in St. Paul, Minn., filling a variety of roles including assistant coach, SID and assistant AD.

In his position at Loras, Capell managed an athletics program that rose to 37th nationally among 425 Division III schools in the 2004 USSA Director's Cup rankings. He also served as tournament director for the 2004 NCAA Division III Wrestling Championships, an event that drew the second highest attendance in its history and generated $1.5 million in revenue for the city of Dubuque.

Capell, who earned his master's degree in athletics administration from St. Thomas in 1989, is a member of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, the National Association of Division III Athletics Administrators, and the Colorado Springs Sports Corporation. He and his wife, Marcy, have a daughter, Erin, who will turn 11 in January, and a five-year-old son, Gabriel.

ATHLETICS ADMINISTRATIVE STAFF

RALPH BERTRAND

FACULTY REPRESENTATIVE

Ralph Bertrand, a tenured professor in the biology department, has held the position of Colorado College's NCAA faculty representative since 1999. After completing his term as president of the NCAA Faculty Athletics Representative Association during the 2012-13 academic year, he accepted an official one-year appointment as advisor to the National Collegiate Hockey Association's FAR Board of Directors in May and currently is serving on the NCAA Minority Opportunity and Inclusion Committee. He was CC's faculty rep for the Western Collegiate Hockey Association for the previous 14 years.

Bertrand joined the CC faculty in 1991, and in 1993 earned distinction honoring him as a John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Professor. He has received many prestigious citations, including the Botanical Society of America's Margaret Menzel Award in Genetics (1993), the University of California's Presidents Postdoctoral Fellowship and the National Hispanic Scholarship. He's written or co-authored numerous publications, abstracts and book reviews, and is a longtime consultant for the National Institute of Health/General Medical Sciences Committee for Genetics.

Before arriving at Colorado College, Bertrand spent four years (1987-91) as a research associate at the University of California, Berkeley, preceded by five years as a research assistant at University of California, Riverside (1982-87). He was named Outstanding Teaching Assistant at the University of Nevada, Reno in 1982, was cited in the Who's Who Among America's Teachers in 1998, and received an award for teaching and service in Colorado School District 14 in 2003.

Bertrand is a 1978 graduate of the University of Nevada-Reno, where he received bachelor's and master's degrees in biology before going on to earn his Ph.D. in botany from UC-Riverside. He and his wife, Dianne, live in Cascade, Colo., west of Colorado Springs on the northern slope of Pikes Peak.

JESSICA BENNETT

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS MARKETING

The 2013-14 academic year marks Jessica Bennett's ninth as a member of the athletics marketing staff at Colorado College, where she handles a multitude of behind-the-scenes functions involving all 17 of the school's NCAA Division I and III varsity programs.

In addition to managing game-day master charts along with specific aspects of ticketing for CC's most visible sports, as well as operations for the Tiger Pride Fund and Athletics

Hall of Fame, Bennett is the go-to person for licensing and merchandise, community events, advertising campaigns and matters relating to the Center Ice Club. Responsible for securing and maintaining sponsorship agreements, she also oversees production of promotional materials including schedule cards, brochures, posters, magnets and giveaway items.

Bennett, a native of Sherrill, N.Y., collaborates closely with World Arena personnel to ensure adequate staffing, security and concessions at all home hockey events. Her duties related to Tiger Hockey entail hiring, training, providing work direction and problem solving assistance for more than 30 student workers, will-call attendants, program sellers and volunteers. She and her husband, Geoff, are the parents of a young daughter, Grace, age 4.

SCOTT LOWENBERG

ASSOCIATE AD / EXTERNAL OPERATIONS

A member of the athletics senior staff since December 2005, Scott Lowenberg is in his second year as associate AD for external operations. He oversees the corporate sponsorship program, all marketing and sales campaigns, the Tiger Pride Fund and Center Ice Club fundraising organizations, the licensing and sales of merchandise, event management and athletic equipment. He also directs the campaign that has increased sponsorship cash revenue by more than 240 percent to its current annual total of more than $450,000 and in excess of $3.5 million total spanning the last nine years. As a result of his season, group and single-game ticket sales campaigns, Tiger Hockey is the top winter collegiate event in all of Colorado as well as a consistent top six nationally in college hockey attendance.

In 2006, he created the CC Tiger Sports Radio Network and in summer of 2013 negotiated the current flagship station agreement with KRDO NewsRadio 105.5 FM and 1240 AM. Lowenberg also has increased television exposure for CC hockey by negotiating agreements with the CBS Sports Network, NBC Sports Network, Root Sports, Fox Sports Net, ESPNU, Altitude, KRDO ABC, KOAA-NBC, KKTU-CBS, CET and KXTU-The CW.

Responsible for conceptualizing, planning and carrying out all game-day activities and promotions, Lowenberg's office annually receives national and local accolades for its radio and TV marketing campaigns. In fact, for the 2008-09 academic year, his staff won six awards (three gold and three silver) – more than any other NCAA program in the country – from the National Association of Collegiate Marketing Administrators.

A native of Iowa, Lowenberg previously served as assistant vice president and general manager for Tulane University International Sports Properties (ISP), after earlier holding assistant AD positions at Northern Illinois University and the University of Maine. He is a 1993 graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi, where he also went on to earn a master's degree. He and his wife, Christine, are the proud parents of three daughters – Britney, Jenna, and Ashlynn.

ATHLETIC MEDIA RELATIONS

DAVE MOROSS

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETIC MEDIA RELATIONS

Dave Moross has served as director of athletic media relations at Colorado College since 1986. He previously worked as a writer and assistant sports editor at the Colorado Springs Sun newspaper, where his duties included covering Tiger teams for eight seasons through the mid-1980s.

A charter member of the CC Athletics Hall of Fame selection committee, Moross has publicized the accomplishments of 23 hockey players who have earned a total of 28 All-America honors during his tenure at the school. He also coordinated promotional campaigns that culminated in Peter Sejna (2003) and Marty Sertich (2005) winning the Hobey Baker Memorial Award.

He served as media coordinator for the 2004 and 2008 NCAA Hockey West Regionals held at the Colorado Springs World Arena, and has worked as a statistician for NHL and college hockey telecasts by ESPN, Fox Sports, CBS and a variety of other networks.

A member of the College Sports Information Directors of America, Moross oversees press-box activity at all Tiger Hockey home games, as well as writing, editing and distributing press releases throughout the season. He is heavily involved with keeping the athletics website up to date year-round.

He assisted annually in press-box operations at the Western Collegiate Hockey Association's premier event – the WCHA Final Five – and will work National College Hockey Conference events in the future.

Moross is a graduate of Michigan State University, where he earned a bachelor's degree in advertising communications. A native of the Detroit area, he has served as a contributing writer and done freelance work for several national magazines during his professional career.

An avid hiker and mountain climber, Moross moved to Colorado in 1974. He and his wife, Amy, are actively involved in a local support group affiliated with the National Parkinson's Foundation. Between them, they have five grown daughters and six grandchildren.

DAVE REED

ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF ATHLETIC MEDIA RELATIONS

Dave Reed, now in his 15th year at Colorado College, handles media relations duties for women's soccer as well as 10 of the school's 15 Division III programs. He also manages the athletics department website on a year-round basis, as well as coordinating the live video streaming of Tiger sports.

A member of the College Sports Information Directors of America, Reed recently completed a three-year term as a College Division Representative on the organization's board of directors and was a charter member of the College Division Management Council.

Reed is a vice-chair of the CoSIDA Membership Committee, serves on the Program Committee for the organization's annual convention and is a member of the Division III Leadership Group that helps select the Capital One Academic All-America Teams. He also is in the final year of a three-year term on the NCAA Statistics and Records Advisory Board.

Reed was honored by the American Volleyball Coaches Association as recipient of its prestigious Grant Burger Media Award for the 2009-2010 academic year in recognition of his work as a national NCAA Division I volleyball columnist for ESPN.com.

A frequent public-address announcer for the CC volleyball, men's and women's basketball, and men's and women's lacrosse teams for the last 12 years, he also was behind the microphone when the U.S. Women's National Team played host to top-ranked Brazil in a three-match series that proved to be a preview of the Gold Medal showdown at the 2008 Summer Olympic Games in Beijing.

Prior to his arrival at CC, he worked in athletic media relations at the University of Dayton (1989–91), The Ohio State University (1992–93) and the University of Notre Dame (1993–96). He has served as media coordinator for several Big East, Midwestern Collegiate Conference and NCAA Division I championships.

He left Notre Dame in 1996 to join USA TODAY.com and serve as a content editor/stringer manager for three years. He was part of an 11-member team that specialized in the coverage of collegiate athletics, emphasizing basketball, football, ice hockey and volleyball.

A 1991 graduate of the University of Dayton with a degree in communications, Reed is a native of Piqua, Ohio. He and his wife, Gerri Anne, were married in May 2005 and are the parents of a young son, Jackson.

Tradition and Commitment

Poised to usher in yet another new era with the launching of the National Collegiate Hockey Conference in 2013-14, Tiger Hockey keeps purring along as one of the nation's most elite Division I programs. With 12 NCAA tournament bids, six regular-season league titles and 17 home-ice playoff berths tucked away during the last two decades alone, Colorado College continues to add chapter after chapter to its fabled history.

CC's recent string of success, which includes trips to the national "Frozen Four" in 1996, 1997 and 2005, speaks volumes for the modern-day version of a program that has spanned eight decades. Sure, when Scott Owens took over as head coach in 1999, he inherited a perennial powerhouse. But where does the tale really begin? How has little Colorado College, a private liberal arts and sciences college with an enrollment of barely 2,000 students, maintained such elite status in a sport filled with Division I giants?

Two concepts come to mind: Tradition. From its pre-World War II roots, to its hosting of the first 10 NCAA Tournaments and co-founding of the WCHA, the school has influenced college hockey's growth from infancy. Commitment. Proving that academic and athletic excellence can co-exist in a small campus environment, CC has relied on vision, hard work and creativity to revive, nourish and sustain a program that many others across the nation aspire to imitate.

Humble Beginnings

Colorado College Hockey got its start in January 1938, when the Broadmoor Hotel converted its seldom-used indoor riding academy into an ice rink. The Broadmoor World Arena, originally called the Broadmoor Ice Palace, served as CC's home for 55 seasons before being demolished at the conclusion of the 1993-94 campaign.

In 2013-14, after 54 seasons as a charter member of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association, the Tigers helped launch the NCHC's inaugural campaign and their 75th overall with an all-time record of 1,141-1,128-119 (.503) in 2,388 games played against outside competition. They were 675-839-78 (.448) in 1,592 WCHA regular-season outings, as well as 52-69-1 (.430) in the league playoffs.

Back in 1938, thanks to sponsorship from local business firms, eight inexperienced teams including one from CC were able to organize the Pikes Peak Hockey League.

Tiger Hockey officially made its debut on January 21 of that year in an 8-1 loss to a team sponsored by Giddings department store. Colorado College finished the campaign with three victories and nine defeats under player-coach and team captain John Atwood, of Watertown, Conn.

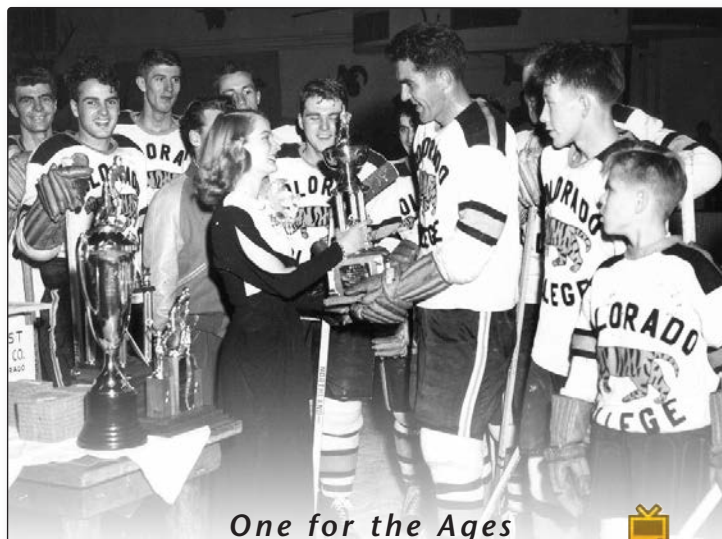

BOB SCARLETT

CHICK ROSS

The program made significant strides forward the following season under new coach Garrett Livingston, whose leadership the next four years helped vault CC to national prominence. While several New England students with backgrounds in high school hockey joined the team, the strongest addition was Ernie Young of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. When Young returned in the fall of 1939 for his second year at the school, he brought four more Canadian players with him — Jack Chamney, John “Chick” Ross, Wilmer “Spike” Wilson and Harold McClay — all from his home province. Bob Scarlett of Quebec, an experienced goaltender, also enrolled at Colorado College that year.

With Livingston at the helm, those players helped the Tigers sweep the University of Michigan, 4-2 and 4-3, in their first-ever intercollegiate series early during the 1939-40 season. Colorado College also played games against Colorado School of Mines, the Montana School of Mines and the University of Southern California, champion of the Pacific Coast League, that season. Enthusiasm reached a feverish pitch among CC hockey supporters for the next few years, with games at the World Arena selling out on a regular basis. By winter of 1942, the Tigers had earned a

One for the Ages

Spring of 2014 marks the 64th anniversary of a victory that arguably ranks as Colorado College’s greatest ever.

On March 18, 1950, having blasted Boston College by a 10-3 count in the NCAA semifinals two nights earlier, the Tigers found themselves in a dogfight after 40 minutes of play in the national championship game at the old Broadmoor Ice Palace.

Three second period goals – including a pair by Harry Whitworth and Carl Lawrence just 12 seconds apart, had wiped out a 1-0 deficit and given CC a 3-1 lead over Boston University entering the final frame.

What transpired is, to this day, probably the most glorious single period in the history of Tiger Hockey.

Relentless in its pursuit of the title, Colorado College blistered BU net minder Ike Bevins with 18 shots on goal and scored on 10 of them while treating the partisan crowd to a 13-4 victory.

All-America forward Chris Ray, who finished with four tallies altogether, struck for three of them in the third-period uprising while Ron Hartwell and Tony Frasca each notched a pair. Whitworth, who added his second of the contest, set up three others. Hartwell, by the way, remains to this day the program’s all-time leading goal producer with 112 overall for his three-year career.

“Maybe we didn’t expect to win, but we sure wanted to. When we did, it was a real accomplishment – as unique a team experience as anyone will ever have. We didn’t think of any one player getting more points or anything. It was just win, win. It was total team spirit, cooperation, coordination, and all the rest. That’s what you need to have.”

reputation as one of college hockey's "Big Four," along with USC, the University of Illinois and Dartmouth.

The Evolution as a Powerhouse

Due to World War II, no games were played in 1942-43 or '43-44, but the sport was rejuvenated at Colorado College and nationwide in 1944-45. With the return of former players and the addition of seven more Canadians, the Tigers quickly were on the rise again. Cheddy Thompson, who came to Colorado Springs when he was assigned to 2nd Air Force Headquarters here, took over the coaching duties in the fall of 1945 and held the position for the next decade.

In cooperation with the Broadmoor Hotel, Colorado College sponsored the first National Collegiate Athletic Association Hockey Championships at the end of the 1947-48 season. The tournament would be held at the Ice Palace for the next decade, with CC participating seven times — in 1948, '49, '50, '51, '52, '55 and '57. Thompson was at the helm when CC won its first NCAA crown in 1950 and finished as runner-up in 1952 and '55. He was named national Coach of the Year in 1952 by the United States Hockey Coaches Association.

In 1951, Colorado College helped found the Mid-West Collegiate Hockey League, which changed its name to the Western Intercollegiate Hockey League in 1953. Other charter members were the University of Denver, Michigan, Michigan State, Michigan Tech, Minnesota and North Dakota. The WIHL evolved to become the Western Collegiate Hockey Association in November of 1959, with the 2012-13 version of the WCHA consisting of five of its original seven teams plus the University of Alaska Anchorage, Bemidji State, Minnesota-Duluth, Minnesota State, Nebraska-Omaha, St. Cloud State and Wisconsin.

Colorado College has competed in the NCAA championship game five times – winning it in 1950 and '57.

HISTORY OF CC HOCKEY

The 1938-39 Tigers were the first CC team to play a full season of competition.

The Tigers hoisted the MacNaughton Trophy as WCHA regular-season champions for the ninth and final time in March 2008. It was their third title in five years and sixth since 1994. They won an unprecedented three consecutive crowns in the mid-1990s (1993-94, '95-96 and '96-97).

The previous three came during the 1950s (1951-52, '54-55 and '56-57). In 1956-57 Colorado College also wrapped up its second NCAA championship under coach Tom Bedecki. CC made history again in 2013-14 as the new "super" conference, originally created in July 2011, made its long awaited debut. Other members of the NCHC include the University of Denver, Miami University, Minnesota Duluth, Nebraska Omaha, North Dakota, St. Cloud State and Western Michigan.

Launch Pad to Success

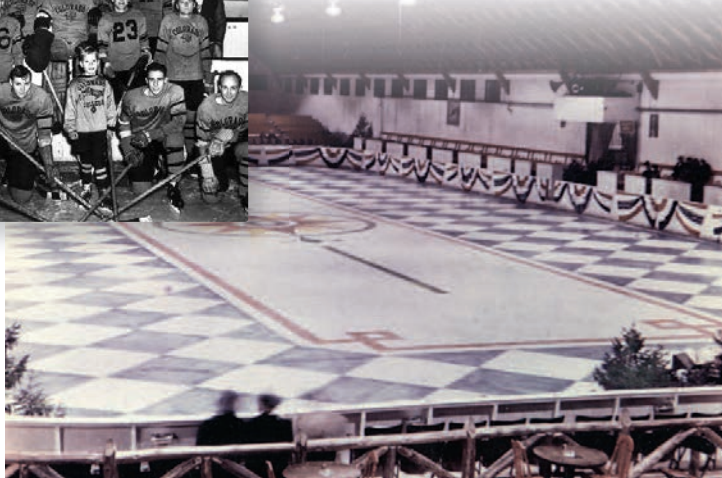

Four Colorado College coaches – John Matchefts (1968-69), Jeff Sauer (1971-72 and '74-75), Brad Buetow (1991-92) and Don Lucia (1993-94 and '95-96) – have earned WCHA Coach of the Year honors. Matchefts (2007) and Sauer (2003) both have been named recipients of the prestigious John "Snooks" Kelley Founders Award for their contributions to the overall growth and development of ice hockey nationwide. Sauer, head coach of the U.S. National Sled Hockey Team that has won gold (2012) and silver (2013) medals at the last two International Paralympic Committee World Championships, also received the NHL's Lester Patrick Trophy in 2011 for outstanding service to the sport in the United States.

Colorado College Rhodes Scholar Paul Markovich '88

The first and only Rhodes Scholar ever to emerge from the Western Collegiate Hockey Association, former CC defenseman Paul Markovich went on to study at the Plekhanov Institute of Economics in Moscow before earning his master's degree in philosophy, politics and investment from Oxford University in England.

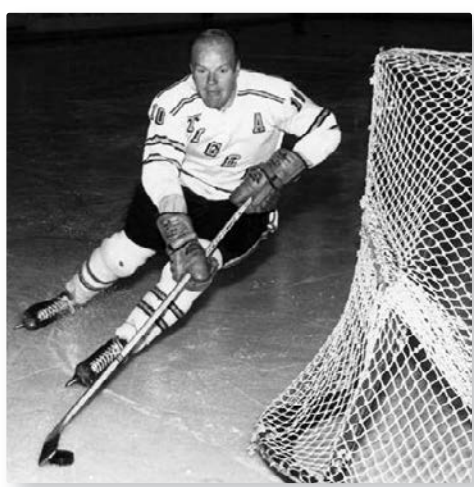

Markovich, a two-time member of the All-WCHA Academic Team, played in 68 career games for the Tigers, including 35 as a senior in 1987-88 after recovering from knee surgery a year earlier.

In the early 1990s the Grand Forks, N.D., native began a distinguished career in the field of health care and insurance, and ever since has held high-profile corporate positions from coast to coast – in New York City, Oakland and San Francisco. He currently serves as president and chief operating officer for Blue Shield of California, a not-for-profit health plan with $9.7 billion in annual revenue.

"Attending such a terrific liberal arts school while competing in Division I hockey was a formative experience for me," Markovich says of his four years at Colorado College. "You can't help but learn and grow when you are pushing yourself to perform both academically and athletically. Out of necessity I learned the importance of organization, persistence, and resilience – all skills that have helped me in my career."

Markovich and his wife, Lisa, are the proud parents of a 13-year-old son, Tyler, and 10-year-old daughter, Jasmine. Both of his parents are retired faculty members at the University of North Dakota.

ART BERGLUND '63, a CC player in the early 1960s, has managed more than 30 United States teams in a variety of tournaments worldwide, spanning five decades. Now retired as senior director of international administration for USA Hockey, Berglund served as director of player personnel for the 1992, '94 and '02 U.S. Olympic teams. He most recently became a member of the Colorado Sports Hall of Fame after earlier inductions into the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF), the Colorado College Athletics, Northwestern Ontario Sports and U.S. Hockey HOFs.

OTHERS with COLORADO COLLEGE CONNECTIONS

A number of CC coaches, as well as other team personnel, have served on Team USA staffs at elite international competitions since the mid-1970s.

Greg Cronin, an assistant with the Tigers in the early 1990s, was an assistant coach for the American squads at the 1997, 2011 and 2012 World Championships, as well as the 1997 and 1998 World Juniors. Formerly a head coach at the University of Maine (1995-97) and Northeastern University (2005-11), Cronin now is an assistant with the Toronto Maple Leafs. Mike Gibbons, who spent two seasons (1988-90) at Colorado College and currently is a member of the coaching staff at St. Cloud State University, helped guide the U.S. to a fourth-place finish at the Junior World tournament in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Mike Guentzel, who served on Scott Owens' staff at CC in 2008-09 while his son Gabe played for the Tigers, has been an assistant coach under Dean Blais for the U.S. entry at three Junior World Championships (1994, '95 and '96). Guentzel returned to the University of Minnesota, his alma mater and previous employer for 14 seasons, to become associate head coach in 2011-12 after a three-year hiatus. The late Dave Peterson, a volunteer goaltending coach for Colorado College in the mid-1990s, served as head coach of the United States Olympic Team in 1988 and 1992, as well as for three national teams (1985, '86 and '87) and two national junior teams (1986 and '87). He also was an assistant for the U.S. junior squad in 1982, '85, '85, '87, '95 and '96.

The late Mike Radokovich began a three-year stint on Jeff Sauer's staff at CC in 1975 after serving as an assistant with the U.S. juniors in 1974. Sauer, who spent 11 seasons (1971-82) at the Tigers' helm, himself guided the American sled hockey team to a gold medal at the 2010 Paralympic Games and will try again this winter in Sochi, Russia.

Longtime Colorado College sports medicine director Bruce Kola, who retired in 2012, was a member of the United States staffs for the 1980 (head trainer) and 1984 Winter Olympic Games in Lake Placid and Sarajevo. Dr. Tom Mahony, one of CC's team physicians for many years, served in that capacity at the 1988 Winter Games in Calgary. Former Tigers equipment manager Walt Predovich, who was at the college from 1971 though 1975, took his skills to the 1976 Olympics in Innsbruck.

Bob Mancini, a former Colorado College forward (1978-82), served as an assistant coach for Team USA at the World Championships in 1998, the Junior World Championships in 1997 and 1999, and the U-18 World Championships in 1999 and 2000. Jeff Sauer, who played for (1962-65) and coached (1971-82) the Tigers, was Team USA's head coach at the 1995 World Championships as well as an assistant in 1985, 1986, 1987, 1991, 1992 and 2003.

HISTORY OF CC HOCKEY

Cheddy Thompson (1951-52), Don Lucia (1993-94), Tony Frasca (1962-63) and former CC assistant Norm Bazin (2012-13), now the bench boss at UMass-Lowell, each have been named national Coach of the Year by the American Hockey Coaches Association. Another legend, Bob Johnson (1963-66), went on to the National Hockey League where he guided the Pittsburgh Penguins to the Stanley Cup in 1991. Johnson earlier had served as head coach of the 1976 United States Olympic Team and the NHL's Calgary Flames, as well as a three-year stint as executive director of USA Hockey. Guy Gadowsky, who skated for the Tigers in the late 1980s, has gone on to serve as head coach at the University of Alaska, Princeton University, and now the new Division I program at Penn State.

CC has launched dozens of players into the professional ranks during the last six decades. While 36 former Tigers had played in the NHL prior to the 2013-14 season, several more are destined to make their debuts at the sport's highest level in the near future. Two Colorado College products – Bill “Red” Hay with the Chicago Blackhawks in 1961 and Doug Lidster with the New York Rangers in 1994 as well with the Dallas Stars in 1999 – have had their names engraved on the Stanley Cup. Tom Preissing reached the Cup finals with the Ottawa Senators in 2007. Preissing and Gord Whitaker, meanwhile, are among very few North Americans ever to compete in the Russian Elite League, while mid-2000s grads Addison DeBoer and Scott Thauwald have taken their talents to Australia. Many others, including Hobey Baker Award winners Peter Sejna and Marty Sertich, are competing in Europe.

Tiger Hockey also is well represented in the Colorado College Athletics Hall of Fame. In fact, two entire teams – the 1949-50 national champions in 1998 and the 1995-96 NCAA runners-up in 2013 – have been inducted. Hay, a former president of the Calgary Flames, was honored among the inaugural class in April 1995. Doug Palazzari, who spent most of his professional playing career with Salt

DAVE DELICH

Lake City of the Central Hockey League and in 1997 was designated as the CHL's all-time greatest player, joined the HOF in 2000 after serving as executive director of USA Hockey. Dave Delich, CC's career points leader, became a member in 2002 while Gambucci, who skated for the 1950 NCAA champs but starred as a baseball and football player as well, was recognized on an individual basis in 2004. Lidster followed suit in 2009.

Delich, Hay and Palazzari, along with fellow Colorado College alumni Eddie Mio and Brian Swanson, also were included among the WCHA's all-time top 50 players in conjunction with the league's golden anniversary season in 2001-02.

HISTORY OF CC HOCKEY

CC Hockey Timeline

- 1938 First game played (January 21).
- 1940 Intercollegiate competition begins with two-game sweep over University of Michigan.
- 1942 Spike Wilson's goal with three seconds left produces a 6-6 tie and gives Tigers their first point ever against the powerful University of Southern California. CC is rated among the nation's top four college teams after going undefeated (3-0-3) in the final six games against USC, Michigan and Illinois.
- 1948 In cooperation with the Broadmoor Hotel, Colorado College sponsors first NCAA Championship Tournament.
- 1950 Tigers erupt for 10 goals in the third period to rout Boston University, 13-4, at the Broadmoor Ice Palace and win their first NCAA championship. They'd beaten Boston College, 10-3, in the semifinals two days earlier, on March 16. And, in January of that same season, CC blanked the University of Denver, 16-0, in the first-ever meeting between the two archrivals-to-be.

- 1951 Mid-West Collegiate Hockey League organized (renamed Western Intercollegiate Hockey League in 1953 and Western Collegiate Hockey Association in 1959).
- 1952 League champions.
- 1955 League champions.
- 1957 League and NCAA champions. Crushed the University of Michigan, 13-6, to claim the program's second national title after beating Clarkson, 5-3, in the semifinals two nights earlier. Won 27 games overall, a school record that stood for 38 years, until 1994-95.
- 1964 Won title at Brown Invitational Tournament.
- 1972 Doug Palazzari finishes season with 57 points in WCHA play, third highest total in league history behind Minnesota's John Mayasich (78 in 1953-54) and Michigan's Red Berenson (68 in 1961-62). Tigers defeat Denver (9-7) at DU Arena for the first time in 15 years. CC also beats Denver, 9-6, on Broadmoor ice in meeting number 100 between the schools.

Colorado College, which co-hosted the first 10 NCAA hockey tournaments, has reached the national quarterfinals 10 times since 1996.

- 1974 Palazzari ends his four-year collegiate career as CC's all-time leading scorer (226 points) and is named the WCHA's Most Valuable Player. Palazzari earns first-team All-WCHA and All-America honors for the second time.
- 1975 CC finishes with a 23-14 record. Jim Warner named WCHA Rookie of the Year and joins goaltender Eddie Mio as second-team All-WCHA selections.
- 1978 Tigers upset Minnesota and Denver on the road in the WCHA playoffs then advance to an NCAA wild-card playoff game against Bowling Green. Greg Whyte sets two CC single-season records with 54 assists and 82 points.
- 1979 Dave Delich breaks Whyte's single-season scoring record with 84 points and ends career with 111 goals, 174 assists and 285 total points, the latter two representing school records that still stand. Delich named to three different all-star teams after winning WCHA scoring title with 70 points in league play.
- 1980 Tigers earn home-ice playoff berth after finishing third in WCHA standings with 16-13-1 record, and finished season with overall mark of 21-17-1.
- 1981 CC stuns Wisconsin (the eventual NCAA champion), 11-4, in the second game of first-round WCHA playoffs to win total-goals series at Madison, 13-12. Tigers also upset Minnesota, 9-7, in final game of season but lose second-round playoff series by total goals.
- 1987 Tigers upset Denver in opening round of WCHA playoffs. CC is eliminated from post-season action the following weekend, losing to North Dakota in total goals, but not before handing Fighting Sioux a 2-1 loss in second game of series at Grand Forks. The Sioux go on to win NCAA title, with Colorado College the only team in the nation to beat them twice.
- 1992 A second-half rampage earns CC fourth place and home ice in the WCHA playoffs, where the Tigers beat Minnesota-Duluth twice in triple overtime and take a record of 18-16-5 to the league's Final Four championship in St. Paul, Minn.
- 1994 CC wins WCHA championship on final night of regular season. Senior defenseman Shawn Reid earns first-team All-America honors. Don Lucia is named WCHA and national Coach of the Year.
- 1995 The Tigers win their second consecutive WCHA title, finish second in the league playoffs and earn a bid to the NCAA tournament. Jay McNeill becomes the program's first-ever Hobey Baker Award finalist. CC winds up with 30 victories overall, smashing a school record that had stood for 38 years.
- 1996 Colorado College reaches national championship game after winning an unprecedented third consecutive WCHA crown. Peter Geronazzo becomes CC's second-ever Hobey Baker Award finalist and joins Ryan Bach as first-team All-Americans. Eight Tigers earn All-WCHA honors and the team's 33 victories overall shatters the school record again.
- 1997 After tying for fourth place in the WCHA, Colorado College earns an at-large NCAA playoff bid. The Tigers upset New Hampshire and Clarkson at the East Regional, advancing to the "Frozen Four" for the second consecutive season.
- 1998 The Tigers open the new Colorado Springs World Arena at mid-season, then go on a late rampage that produces a third-place finish in the WCHA standings and their fourth consecutive berth in the NCAA tournament. CC defeats Clarkson again at the East Regional before bowing out to Boston College in the national quarterfinals.
- 1999 CC completes first full season at the World Arena, winning its last nine games there, and earns its fifth consecutive NCAA playoff bid after finishing second in the WCHA.

HISTORY OF CC HOCKEY

Scott Owens and former CC head coaches Jeff Sauer, John Matchefts and Mike Bertsch celebrate Matchefts' receiving the John "Snooks" Kelley Founders Award in spring of 2007.

The Tigers beat St. Lawrence at the West Regional before falling to Michigan State in the national quarterfinals. Brian Swanson and Scott Swanson are named first-team All-Americans.

- 2000 The Tigers and World Arena learn that they will serve as co-hosts for the NCAA West Regional in 2004, when the national post-season tournament returned to Colorado Springs after a 35-year absence.
- 2001 Colorado College reaches the NCAA quarterfinals with a 3-2 double-overtime victory over St. Lawrence University at the East Regional. Mark Cullen is named a second-team JOFA West All-American.
- 2002 The Tigers reach the NCAA quarterfinals again with a 2-0 opening-round victory over Michigan State at the West Regional. Mark Cullen is named WCHA Student Athlete of the Year, as well as a second-team All-American for the second consecutive season.
- 2003 CC earns its eighth NCAA playoff bid in the last nine years and 16th overall, then advances to the national quarterfinals yet again with a 4-2 victory over Wayne State University at the Midwest Regional in Ann Arbor, Mich. After being ranked No. 1 for nearly two months, the Tigers see their season end with a 5-3 loss to the University of Michigan. Peter Sejna wins the Hobey Baker Award and is one of four Colorado College players named to the West All-America Team.
- 2004 The Tigers finish seventh in the WCHA standings but upset arch-rival and eventual national champion Denver in the opening round of the league playoffs. The NCAA West Regional is held for the first time at the Colorado Springs World Arena, but without CC as a participating team.
- 2005 Regular-season co-champion of the WCHA, Colorado College beats Colgate then stuns Michigan at the NCAA Midwest Regional to earn its first trip to the Frozen Four since 1997. Marty Sertich and Brett Sterling finish first and second nationally in overall scoring, with Sertich emerging as CC's second Hobey Baker Memorial Award winner in three years.
- 2006 The Tigers earn their 10th NCAA playoff bid in the last 12 seasons but are eliminated by Cornell University in the tournament's opening round. Marty Sertich and Brett Sterling emerge as Hobey Baker Top-10 Finalists for the second consecutive year, with Sterling repeating as a First-Team All-American.
- 2007 In a major rebuilding season, Colorado College finishes just two points out of third place and hosts a first-round WCHA playoff series for the 14th time in 16 years.
- 2008 While skating to its sixth regular-season title in the last 15 years, Colorado College produces three All-Americans and first-team All-WCHA selections in freshman goaltender Richard Bachman, senior defenseman Jack Hillen and junior center Chad Rau. Bachman becomes just the second player ever to be voted both WCHA

Player of the Year and Rookie of the Year. He also is named national Rookie of the Year by the Hockey Commissioners' Association. Hillen is honored as WCHA Defensive Player of the Year. Despite losing their last three games, including a 3-1 decision to Michigan State on their home ice at the NCAA West Regional, the Tigers post 28 victories overall including 21 in league play.

- 2009 After tying a WCHA and NCAA single-season record with 10 ties, the Tigers earn a home-ice playoff berth for the 16th time in 18 seasons only to be eliminated by Minnesota Duluth. CC goes undefeated (1-0-3) in four games against the University of Denver, however, to claim possession of the Gold Pan for the third consecutive year. Senior center Chad Rau repeats as an All-American and first-team All-WCHA selection.
- 2010 A young Colorado College blazes to a 10-2-1 start, including a 7-1-1 mark in league play, before finishing sixth in the WCHA standings. The Tigers hang tough in a first-round WCHA playoff series at Minnesota Duluth before being eliminated in Game 3 of the best-of-three series.

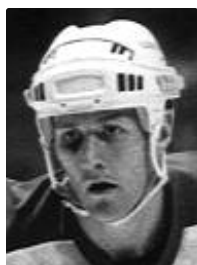

The late Bob Bartlett, Colorado College's original goaltender back in 1938, dropped the ceremonial first puck when the Tigers celebrated their 70th anniversary in February 2008.

- 2011 Refusing to fizzle down an extremely challenging home stretch of the regular season, Colorado College wins a best-of-three playoff series against Wisconsin to reach the WCHA Final Five, where it beats Alaska Anchorage to clinch an NCAA tournament bid. The Tigers then stun defending national champion Boston College, 8-4, in the opening round before bowing out with a 2-1 loss to Michigan in the national quarterfinals. Later that summer, in July, CC announces that it will leave the WCHA after the 2012-13 season and be a founding member of the new National Collegiate Hockey Conference starting in 2013-14.
- 2012 The Tigers go 2-1-1 against archrival Denver to regain possession of the Gold Pan for the first time since 2008-09, finish fifth in the WCHA standings and earn home ice for the opening round of the league playoffs for the 17th time in 19 years. Their post-season ends abruptly, however, when eighth-seeded Michigan Tech upsets them with a two-game sweep at the World Arena. Sophomore Jaden Schwartz, a first-round draft pick of the St. Louis Blues two summers earlier, signs a professional contract within days and later is named a first-team All-American.
- 2013 After finishing eighth in the WCHA standings, Colorado College upsets DU in the first round of the league playoffs and earns a trip to the Final Five in St. Paul, Minn., where it stuns both North Dakota and Minnesota before dropping a 3-2 decision to Wisconsin in the championship game. Senior Rylan Schwartz's 53 points overall leads the entire nation while Mike Boivin's 14 goals ranks No. 1 among Division I defensemen. Both Boivin and Schwartz emerge as All-WCHA selections.

Colorado College and the Hobey Baker Memorial Award

by Dave Moross

PETER SEJNA

The Hobey Baker Memorial Award (HobeyBaker.com), college hockey's equivalent of the Heismann Trophy in football, is presented annually at a nationally televised ceremony held in conjunction with the NCAA Frozen Four. The 2014 event will take place April 11th at Wells Fargo Center in Philadelphia, Pa., before the national championship game.

The award was initiated more than three decades ago, in 1981.

An impressive field of candidates, representing Division I schools nationwide, typically emerges by mid-season and is narrowed down to a Top 10 list a week or so before the NCAA playoffs get under way. The Hobey Hat Trick, a list of three finalists who attend the presentation ceremony, is announced prior to the Frozen Four. The winner is kept secret until the moment his name is announced at the ceremony.

Colorado College has produced two recipients of the coveted award, with Peter Sejna emerging as CC's first winner in 2003 and Marty Sertich following suit in 2005. Each earned the distinction during his junior season as a Tiger, en route to claiming a national scoring championship and All-America honors. Teammate Brett Sterling joined Sertich, who also was honored among the Top 10 finalists a year later, in the Hobey Hat Trick group in '05.

The Tigers have consistently put forth candidates for the Hobey Baker Award since the mid-1990s as former All-Americans Peter Geronazzo (1996), Jay McNeill (1996), Brian Swanson (1999) and Tom Preissing (2003) all have advanced to the Top 10.

MARTY SERTICH

Peter Sejna became the first Colorado College player ever to win the Hobey Baker Memorial Award after claiming a national scoring title in 2002-03. Marty Sertich became the second Tiger to win the Hobey Baker Award while claiming a national scoring crown in 2004-05.

Three former Colorado College players – Jay McNeill in 1995, Peter Geronazzo in 1996, and Brian Swanson in 1997 and 1999 – were named finalists for the Hobey Baker Memorial Award before Peter Sejna became the first Tiger ever to win it in 2003. CC's Tom Preissing also was a finalist during the 2002-03 season.

BRETT STERLING '05 CC's leading scorer earned First-Team All-America honors for the second consecutive season as a senior in 2005-06. His 108 career goals ranks third all-time at Colorado College. He joined teammate Marty Sertich as a "Hobey Hat Trick" finalist in 2005.

PREVIEWING THE 2013-14 SEASON

Big Skates to Fill Graduates Leave Scoring Void That Will Need Replacing

by Dave Moross

The 2013-14 season, officially Colorado College's 75th since the Tigers played their first game in January 1938, promises to be as challenging as it is historic.

More than six decades after co-founding the Western Collegiate Hockey Association, CC not only finds itself in a new "super league" comprised of perennial powerhouses with national championship potential, but also will be making that transition with less than half of its scoring production from a year ago.

That's right. Less than half.

Of the team's 133 goals in 2012-13, 68 came off the sticks of seniors who graduated last May. But, as daunting a task as it may seem to replace that offensive firepower, panic is the last thing on Scott Owens' mind.

"It's a big concern when you lose more than 50 percent of your scoring, no doubt," said Owens, who enters his 15th season as head coach. "But I'm hoping, as some of these underclassmen get thrown into key positions this year, that they'll be able to pick up the slack."

A total of 19 veterans, including goaltenders Josh Thorimbert and Courtney Lockwood, return as the eight-team National Collegiate Hockey Conference makes its much-anticipated debut. And, while a new senior class features forwards Alexander Krushelnyski (15g,28a) and Archie Skalbeck (12g,11a) who combined for 27 goals and 66 points as juniors in '12-13, no other returning player scored more than eight times.

At the top of that group are junior Charlie Taft (8g,10a) and sophomore Hunter Fejes (8g,6a). They are among 13 Tigers overall, and eight who are back this season, who recorded double-digit points a year ago. Throw sophomore Cody Bradley (4g,9a) into the mix, and Owens sees a potential nucleus for filling the gap left by four graduated forwards who accounted for 54 goals.

"But we've also got six incoming freshmen who are pretty talented," he said. "I just think that if everybody can increase their scoring by 15 or 20 percent, and we can improve defensively, it will help us overall."

Replacing the offensive production of Mike Boivin, whose 14 red lighters led all defensemen nationwide last campaign, presents a challenge although the returning blue-line foursome of senior Eamonn

McDermott (20) along with juniors Peter Stoykewych (9), Ian Young (6) and Aaron Harstad collectively amassed 39 assists in 2012-13. Owens hopes for a little more "scoring by committee" from that group, which lit the lamp only eight times in Colorado College's 42 games.

Up front, he also anticipates improved numbers from senior Jeff Collett (3g,7a), who joins Krushelnyski and Stoykewych as alternate captains, as well as from sophomore Jared Hanson (2g,3a). While highly touted freshmen and Colorado natives Gustav Olofsson and Jaccob Slavin round out an eight-man defensive corps, senior Josh Thorimbert will battle for the No. 1 goaltending spot with rookie Tyler Marble and junior Courtney Lockwood. Joe Howe, who carried the team through the second half of the season and its Senior winger Alexander Krushelnyski (left) returns after amassing a career-high 43 points in 2012-13. He will serve as one of three alternate captains his final season with the Tigers.

Senior forward Jeff Collett, who will join Krushelnyski as an alternate team captain this season, looks to improve his production and emerge as an offensive threat.

PREVIEWING THE 2013-14 SEASON

Cinderella playoff run to the WCHA championship game last spring, is gone after backstopping 54 career victories.

"I think it's definitely going to be open," Owens said of the competition in net. "Tyler Marble is very talented. He comes in, and he's a '92 birthday just like Josh.

"Remember, Josh was an all-league goaltender his sophomore year ... Hopefully, he's hungry from waiting in the wings through the second half of last year, and is ready to emerge.

— Scott Owens, on Josh Thorimbert

Josh Thorimbert hopes to bounce back and regain the form he displayed in 2011-12 while earning all-league recognition and posting an overall goals-against average of 2.35 as a sophomore.

But you know what? Remember, Josh was an all-league goaltender his sophomore year and had a good start his junior year. Hopefully, he's hungry from waiting in the wings through the second half of last year, and is ready to emerge. But I think it's pretty much open, and I wouldn't discount Courtney, either, now that he's been around the block a couple times."

All told, CC returns a list of 11 forwards that also includes senior Michael Morin, juniors Jordan DiGiando and Scott Wamsganz, and sophomore Peter Maric. On defense, sophomores Russell Finch and Michael King round out what promises to be a solid nucleus of veterans to help bring Olofsson and Slavin along.

The six incoming forwards – all products of the Tier I junior ranks – are Zach Aman, Luc Gerdes, Matt Hansen, Christian Heil, Alex Roos and Sam Rothstein.

The Tigers will play a 24-game NCHC schedule highlighted by four games apiece against the University of Denver, Minnesota Duluth, Hunter Fejes, above, and Cody Bradley, below, enjoyed stellar seasons as freshmen in 2012-13 and take aim at an even better sophomore year.

Nebraska Omaha, St. Cloud State and Western Michigan University. CC takes on its other two conference opponents – Miami University at home and North Dakota on the road – just twice each. The non-league slate features a trip to upstate New York for a two-game series at Clarkson University in late October, as well as home dates with Air Force, Brown, New Hampshire and Providence.

"We're going to bring some good teams in here, and it's going to be tough," said Owens. "There's going to be a lot of public discussion as to whether we should do this, if it's too tough of a schedule or if we're good enough on certain weekends. But it doesn't matter, because we are one of the premier programs in the nation and we're doing it."

Highlights as a Tiger:

2012-13: One of eight Colorado College players to skate in all 42 games, Collett also was among 13 Tigers to record double-digit points...factored in on a pair of game-winning goals against the University of North Dakota, scoring one in a 4-3 victory at Englestad Arena on Jan. 11 and assisting on another in overtime of another 4-3 triumph at the WCHA Final Five in St. Paul, Minn.

2011-12: Doubled his offensive production from the previous season while posting a pair of three-game point-scoring streaks as a sophomore...collected a goal and an assist in a 4-1 victory over the University of Wisconsin in mid-November that helped cap a weekend sweep of the Badgers...his second-period tally against the University of Denver in early February completed a come-from-behind effort at the World Arena that earned the Tigers a 2-2 tie and possession of the Gold Pan they surrendered two years earlier.

2010-11: Appeared in 14 consecutive games for CC at mid-season of his freshman year...scored the game-winning goal in a nationally televised (CBS College Sports) 4-2 victory over the North Dakota in late January...struck for the first tally of his collegiate career in a 5-4 win over Michigan State University at the Great Lakes Invitational in Detroit...picked up an assist on a key goal in the third period of a 4-3 overtime triumph against the University of Wisconsin in the opening round of the WCHA playoffs.

High School/Juniors:

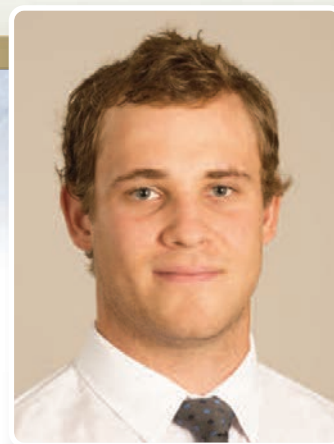

A three-year veteran of the Alberta Junior Hockey League, Collett led the Calgary Royals in scoring during the 2008-09 and 2009-10 seasons...collected 56 points (20g,36a) in '09-10, when the Royals lost an exciting first-round playoff series to the Camrose Kodiaks...recorded 47 points (24g,23a) in '08-09 after finishing with 18 (10g,8a) as an AJHL rookie a year earlier...two-time AJHL all-star and team MVP.

Personal Notes:

Born Jeffrey James Collett, son of Jim and Trish Collett of Calgary...a graduate of Ernest Manning High School...enjoys wakeboarding and playing golf in his leisure time.

Highlights as a Tiger:

2012-13: Krushelnyski enjoyed a breakout year as a junior, more than doubling his points production of the previous season while finishing eighth in scoring among all league players and emerging as a WCHA Scholar-Athlete...recorded a dozen multiple-point games, including four with three or more...led Colorado College and the entire conference with three shorthanded goals, raising his career total to six...factored in on four game winners, scoring one just 25 seconds into overtime of a 5-4 sudden-death victory at the University of Wisconsin and assisting on three others.

2011-12: Factored in on three game-winning goals as a sophomore, scoring one against the University of Denver for the second consecutive season and assisting on two others in victories over NCAA semi-finalist Union College (2-1) and St. Cloud State (3-1), all at the World Arena...the decisive red lighter against DU in early December was his second of the nationally televised (CBS Sports Network) contest and came on a penalty shot in overtime...co-recipient of the team's annual Dave Peterson Award as most improved player...recorded a goal and an assist in the same outing on four occasions, for a total of five multiple-point performances.

2010-11: One of the team's most effective penalty killers his freshman season, Krushelnyski struck for a pair of shorthanded tallies including one in an 8-4 victory over Boston College at the NCAA West Regional...factored in on the game-winning goal on consecutive Fridays in January, scoring one in a 3-2 victory over Denver a week after assisting on the GWG in a 4-2 triumph against North Dakota, both on national TV (CBS College Sports)...recorded four multiple-point outings.

Personal Notes:

Born Alexander Michael Walter Krushelnyski, son of Mike and Areta Krushelnyski of Bloomfield Hills, Michigan...attended Andover High School in Bloomfield Hills, where he served as captain and earned all-league, all-district and all-area honors as a shortstop on the baseball team his senior year...his father is a former NHL standout who won three Stanley Cups as a player with the Edmonton Oilers and a fourth as an assistant coach with the Detroit Red Wings.

High School/Juniors:

A two-year veteran of the United States Hockey League, Krushelnyski collected 41 points (14g,27a) in 58 games combined with the Chicago Steel and Sioux City Musketeers in 2009-10...finished plus-7 with both teams...served as assistant captain during Sioux City's 12-1-3 run to end the regular season, logging 16 of his points (5g,11a) after being traded to the Musketeers.

Highlights as a Tiger:

2012-13: An assistant captain and WCHA Scholar-Athlete his junior year, McDermott patrolled the blue line in all but one game while amassing career highs for goals, assists and points...recorded four multiple-point outings, highlighted by a three-assist performance in a 5-4 overtime victory at the University of Wisconsin...assisted on three game-winning goals including one in a 2-0 triumph over No. 1-ranked University of Minnesota in the semifinals of the WCHA Final Five.

2011-12: Maintained a regular spot in the lineup for 19 of the first 20 games of his sophomore season before being sidelined with an injury in mid-January...was effective as a penalty killer as well as on the power play, recording both of his tallies with Colorado College holding a manpower advantage...two of his eight assists came on game-winning goals in early victories over Bemidji State University (3-1) and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (4-1).

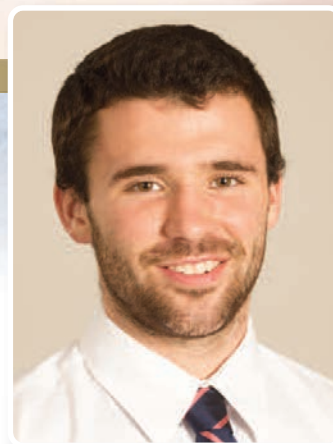

2010-11: Paired up for most of the campaign with senior captain Ryan Lowery, McDermott skated in all but one of CC's 45 games his rookie season, playing in all situations...scored his first career goal, on the power play, in a 9-2 victory over the University of Denver in early November...assisted on the game winner in a 2-1 triumph at Minnesota State University in mid-February, as well as in a 5-4 win at home over national champion University of Minnesota Duluth in late February.

High School/Juniors:

Collected 25 points (2g,23a), including 16 (1g,15a) on the power play, in 44 regular-season games for the Clark Cup finalist Fargo Force in 2009-10 before adding six assists in 13 playoff outings...an offensive-minded defenseman with 13 power-play assists in Fargo's first 31 games of the season...collected 23 points, with a +14 plus-minus rating, in 69 games overall with the Force in 2008-09...played for Team USA at the 2009 World Junior Challenge, scoring a goal and adding an assist in a 2-1 victory over Canada West in the championship game.

Personal Notes:

Born Eamonn John McDermott, son of Kevin and Marybeth McDermott of Shaker Heights, Ohio ... has a younger brother who will play his first year of junior hockey for the Chicago Steel in 2013-14 after graduating from Salisbury University, as well as two sisters who competed in field hockey while earning their degrees at Endicott College and the University of Michigan..

Highlights as a Tiger:

2012-13: One of only three non-seniors to skate in all 42 of Colorado College's games, Skalbeck bounced back strong from a disappointing 2011-12 season while doubling his production of the previous two combined...factored in on a team-high seven game-winning goals, scoring four and assisting on three, all against WCHA opponents...scored three times in a season-opening sweep of Clarkson University at the World Arena, and recorded five multiple-point performances through early December.

2011-12: Took on more of a defensive role while alternating between left wing and center on CC's third or fourth lines for most of his sophomore year...finished strong, collecting half of his four assists in the final four outings of the campaign.

2010-11: Struck for the first goal of his collegiate career early in the third period of a 9-2 victory over Denver in early November...factored in on three game winners as a freshman, scoring one in a 2-0 triumph over Alaska Anchorage and setting up both in a sweep at St. Cloud State University...played most of the season on a line with senior assistant captain and 20-plus goal scorer Tyler Johnson...scored twice in a game on two occasions.

High School/Juniors:

Skalbeck set a single-season record at Hopkins High School with 32 goals and 61 points as a senior in 2009-10, when he served as team captain and was voted most valuable player...earned all-conference accolades his final two years with the Royals, as well as third-team all-Metro recognition and all-state honorable mention in '09-10 ...also led the Minnesota High School Elite League with 23 tallies last fall...once scored a natural hat trick in 47 seconds against rival Minnetonka as a peewee in Ottawa, Ontario, that same campaign.

Personal Notes:

Born Archie Gavin Skalbeck, son of Steve and Debi Skalbeck of Hopkins, Minnesota...an honors student interested in eventually pursuing a career in business...enjoys fishing, hunting and wakeboarding in his leisure time.

Mark Stuart, shown here delivering a crushing hit against a University of Michigan player in CC's 4-3 victory over the Wolverines at the 2005 NCAA Midwest Regional, was one of 11 former Tigers to play in the National Hockey League in 2010-11. Now with Winnipeg, Stuart was a first-round draft choice of the Boston Bruins in 2003.

The Tigers have hoisted the MacNaughton Cup, as WCHA regular-season champions, six times since 1993-94 after finishing first in the league standings in 2007-08. CC also went 1-0-3 in four meetings with arch-rival Denver that campaign to claim possession of the Gold Pan for the 10th time.

Tigers on the Air

CC TIGER SPORTS NETWORK

Renewing an old partnership that will make its hockey broadcasts available on both radio dials for the first time, Colorado College skates into the National Collegiate Hockey Conference's inaugural season with KRDO 1240 AM/105.5 FM serving as flagship station of the CC Tiger Sports Network in 2013-14.

KRDO's broadcasts can be heard loudly and clearly throughout the greater Colorado Springs and Pueblo areas as well as worldwide via the Internet and on mobile phone applications. In addition its coverage of all Tiger games, home and away, KRDO will continue to air the hour-long (6:30-7:30 p.m. MT) Scott Owens Coach's Show once each month (see schedule below) during the season.

All CC home games in 2013-14 also can be viewed on-line, courtesy of SIDEARM SPORTS and accessible via the following link on CCTigers.com: www.cctigers.com/showcase.

There are three ways to pay for watching games – a 24-hour all-access pass ($6.95); a monthly re-occurring subscription ($10.95); and a yearly pass ($89.95) that includes all Colorado College streamed sports.

Tuesday, Feb. 18	6-7 p.m.	Denver
Tuesday, March 12	6-7 p.m.	TBD (NCHC playoffs)

Note: The monthly Coach's Show is broadcast live from Tony's Bar and Grill in downtown Colorado Springs.

A number of CC's games will be telecast live – locally, regionally and/or nationally – again in 2013-14. This season's TV schedule features at least seven regular-season outings and potentially could expand by two to nine more in the playoffs.

KEN LANDAU

PLAY-BY-PLAY BROADCASTER

Ken Landau, an award-winning 23-year veteran of the college hockey broadcast scene, returns for his eighth season as official "Voice of the Tigers" in 2013-14.

A 1982 graduate of Michigan State University, where he earned a bachelor's degree in telecommunications, Landau called the play-by-play for MSU hockey from 1979 through 1985, then again from 1990 through 1997. He also spent three seasons serving in a similar capacity at the University of Michigan.

In 2013, Landau won his fourth Award of Excellence – one of the Colorado Broadcast Association's most coveted honors – on the heels of his seventh year in the CC radio booth. The CBA awards are presented annually for "Best Sports Coverage" by an individual or broadcast team.

In 1992, Landau earned the Associated Press of Michigan broadcast award for best play-by-play. And, in 2003, he called the first college hockey game ever for College Sports Television and hosted CSTV's wall-to-wall coverage of the Frozen Four in Buffalo.

Landau has worked extensively as a sports talk-show host and television sports anchor and reporter. In addition, he helped form a sports marketing company that published the first two books ever devoted to the history of a college hockey program – "Awe Inspiring: The Storied History of Spartan Hockey" and "Shot and A Goal: The Tradition of Wisconsin Badger Hockey."

Away from the rink, Landau is self-employed as president of his own consulting firm.

MEDIA COVERAGE

General Information for the Press

Directions to Colorado Springs World Arena

Located in the south end of the Colorado Springs business district, the World Arena is adjacent to Interstate 25, accessible via exit 138 at Circle Drive. From I-25, go west on Lake Avenue and turn left (south) on Venetucci Blvd. From the Colorado Springs Airport, take Powers Blvd. north to westbound Fountain Blvd., then branch onto the Martin Luther King bypass to I-25 south.

Credentials & Admittance

Working press box credentials shall be issued only to accredited newspaper, radio and television reporters. Credentials requested the week of the game will be held for pick-up inside the media entrance on the southeast side of the Colorado Springs World Arena. Please display your pass at all times, as it is required for access to the press box and locker room areas, as well as to the elevator connecting the two. The press box is located at the top of the east-side stands. All requests for credentials should be directed to:

Dave Moross, Director of Athletic Media Relations
Colorado College • 14 E. Cache La Poudre
Colorado Springs, CO 80903
719-389-6755 or 719-389-6256 fax
dmoross@coloradocollege.edu

Among Ken Landau's guests in the broadcast booth last season was Major League Baseball Hall of Famer Rick "Goose" Gossage, who is a Colorado Springs native and loyal fan of Tiger Hockey.

Parking

Parking passes for use in the general lot are available to members of the media. Although these passes provide free admission to the lot, they do not allow you to park in "permit" areas. Please avoid using those areas, as your car will be ticketed or towed.

Photographers

Credentials must be arranged prior to each game through the Colorado College athletic media relations office (719-389-6755 or dmoross@coloradocollege.edu). Photographers are permitted to shoot from the penalty boxes and other selected locations in the arena, but must check in at the working press box beforehand.

Radio Services/Telephone Lines

The center TV booth in the press box at the Colorado Springs World Arena is equipped with one analog line and one ISDN line for a station officially designated by the visiting team to be granted use for its broadcast. Installation of additional lines or lines for other stations must be approved by the CC athletic media relations office, then arrangements made through Jon Berglund at CenturyLink (1-800-301-9220, ext. 2, or jon.berglund@centurylink.com).

Coach & Player Interviews

Interviews with the Colorado College coaching staff and team must be arranged through the athletic media relations office. Special requests generally will be honored with 24 hours notice. Head Coach Scott Owens is available for pre-game interviews up until an hour before the opening faceoff. As a rule, pre-game interviews with players will not be granted. After a game, coaches and players will be available for comments outside the locker room at the Colorado Springs World Arena. Since Colorado College maintains a closed locker-room policy, a member of the CC media relations staff will be designated to summon players from the locker room once Coach Owens is finished addressing the team. Practice sessions, which typically are held from 3:45-5:45 p.m. weekdays, are open to the media. However, practices can not be interrupted for interviews. All interviews should be completed 15-20 minutes before practice begins, or after it is completed. Tuesdays and Wednesdays generally are the preferred days.

St. Louis Blues

A first-round draft pick of the St. Louis Blues in June 2010, when he was chosen 14th overall, Jaden Schwartz emerged among half a dozen former Colorado College standouts making their presence felt in the National Hockey League during the 2012-13 season.

Schwartz, who led the Tigers in scoring as a freshman and sophomore before turning pro in April 2012, joined the likes of Richard Bachman, Joey Crabb, Jack Hillen, Nate Prosser and Mark Stuart in competing at the sport's most elite level. Entering the current 2013-14 campaign, 36 CC stars of the past had experienced playing in "The Show."

With several others under contract in the minor leagues, eagerly awaiting their turns, that number is likely to climb even higher in the near future. This year's roster features five players – including freshmen defensemen Gustav Olofsson and Jaccob Slavin – who have been drafted and are destined to get their shot someday.

While Schwartz and defenseman Mark Stuart are the only first-rounders ever to play for Colorado College, more than 75 current or former Tigers have had their names called in the NHL draft. The Boston Bruins made Stuart, now with the Winnipeg Jets, their No. 1 pick and the league's 21st overall in June 2003.
