HORNER BALLPARK

The 2013 season marked the debut of the Joan and Andy Horner Ballpark, the new home for Dallas Baptist University's Patriot Baseball team. Construction of the ballpark began in the summer of 2012 and was completed in time for the start of the 2013 season. The new stadium was built around the existing baseball field, preserving its original location while significantly enhancing the fan experience. The 2,000-seat facility features premium amenities, including club seating, a state-of-the-art press box, two radio booths, a TV booth, guest suites, coaches' offices, a reception area, sunken dugouts, and improved field lighting. For fans, the ballpark offers an outdoor pavilion along the left field line and multiple party patios on the upper concourse and beyond the left field wall. After the 2015 season, new outfield turf was installed. Horner Ballpark also hosted its first NCAA Regional Tournament that same year, with the Patriots welcoming Oregon State, Texas, and VCU for an exciting showcase of postseason college baseball.

HORNER HEROICS

Since opening its gates in 2013, Horner Ballpark has become one of the most challenging venues in the nation for visiting teams. Over the past 14 years, the Dallas Baptist Patriots have posted an impressive .748 win percentage at home, ranking 12th in the country among teams that play an average of 25 or more home games per season. In addition to their dominance on the field, DBU has earned a reputation for dramatic late-inning performances. Throughout this stretch, the Patriots have staged comebacks 34 times when trailing in the seventh inning or later, while also securing 26 thrilling walk-off victories in their final at-bat.
