

RENEE SLONE

HEAD COACH // 10TH SEASON

Former Fighting Illini great Renee Slone completed her 10th season as the University of Illinois head women's golf coach in 2015-16. Slone was named the third women's golf coach in school history on June 8, 2006. She replaced her former coach and mentor Paula Smith, who retired at the conclusion of the 2006 season after 28 years directing the UI golf program. Slone, formerly Renee Heiken, played for the Illini from 1990-93 and is the most decorated golfer in UI history.

The 2015-16 season generated great excitement for the years to follow, as Slone saw an Illini team that wouldn't lose anyone to graduation close the season with four-consecutive top-five team finishes in addition to the best showing at the Big Ten Championship since the 1994-95 season. Freshman Bing Singhsumalee tied the school record for best 18-hole round at 6-under par in her debut round with the Illini. Singhsumalee went on to become just the second Illini named All-Big Ten following her first collegiate season. Slone oversaw the team post the lowest team round season stroke average in school history at 296.79, a mark nearly three strokes better than the previous record.

During the 2014-15 season, Slone led the Fighting Illini crew to a Big Ten-best six "Golfer of the Week" accolades. The Illinois unit also rewrote a slew of individual and team records over the course of the season in Slone's ninth season as head coach. Illinois won back-to-back tournament titles for the first time since the fall of 1993.

During the 2013-14 season, Slone welcomed new assistant coach Jenny Coluccio as a new era for Illinois golf was underway. In the fall, the Orange and Blue finished in the top-five in each of the five tournaments they competed in and rose as high as No. 22 in the polls. The Illini missed out on the crown at the Minnesota Invitational by a single stroke but responded with a victory at the Diane Thomason Invitational followed by another runner-up finish, this time at the Hoosier Invitational. In the spring, at the Lady Jaguar Intercollegiate, Samantha Postillion battled to a career best second place finish. Illinois tied its highest finish in the past 19 seasons with a fifth place outing at the Big Ten Championships. Both Stephanie Miller and Ember Schuldt competed at the NCAA Central Regional where they finished T-51st and T-66th respectively.

In 2012-13, Coach Slone helped develop rookie Samantha Postillion into a contender while guiding the experienced junior Ember Schuldt to a good year. Illinois' season was highlighted by a third-place finish at the Wolverine Invitational, in which Schuldt and Michelle Mayer finished in the top 10, and the fifth-straight victory over Illinois State at the Illinois Challenge in February.

In 2011-12, Illinois earned a berth to regionals for the second year in a row and fourth time in school history, tying for 14th at the NCAA West Regional. The Illini placed fifth at the Big Ten Championships, which was the program's best finish since 2002 and top showing at the conference tournament under Slone. The Orange and Blue won a team title to start off the spring and recorded eight top-five team finishes. The Illini also twice set the team school record for a 54-hole tournament total and turned in the top two individual tournament and team single round performances in school history.

The 2010-11 season was full of milestones. The Illini advanced to the NCAA Regional Championship for the third time in program history, as well as set new team records at the time. At the first tournament of the season, the Parmigan Ram Fall Classic, Illinois set the then-lowest team round in school history, carding a three-under 285. Later in the fall, the Illini shot a one-over 281 during the Challenge at Onion Creek, the seventh lowest team round in school history.

In 2009-10, Illinois won its first tournament since the 2007-08 season at the UC Spring Invitational, shooting the sixth lowest 54-hole tournament total (893) in the program's history. At the Big Ten Championships, the Illini made program history finishing the 72-hole tournament with a total of 1230, the lowest score to date. Not only did Slone coach Illinois to record breaking team finishes, but each individual golfer posted or tied her career low round and experienced her career low 54-hole tournament total during the 2009-10 season.

In the 2008-09 season, the Illini boasted the ninth-lowest season scoring average (315.09) in school history with a youthful lineup, including seven freshmen, one sophomore and one senior. The team made history at the season-opening tournament, sending five freshmen to the event for the first time in the program's history.

During the 2007-08 season, Slone coached the Illini to two tournament victories at the Gainesville Shootout III and the Illini Spring Classic as well as a second consecutive runner-up finish at the Shootout at the Legends. The Orange and Blue had a stretch of six straight top-five finishes during the year and posted the fifth-best season scoring average in school history (308.44). The Illini also matched the ninth-lowest team round (291) at the 2008 Samford Intercollegiate and the team's tournament total of 898 at the 2008 Indiana Invitational ranks eighth in school history for a 54-hole tournament.

In 2006-07 the lady golfers finished third at the Indiana Invitational and notched the school's sixth-lowest 72-hole tournament total at the 2007 Big Ten Championships with a 1255.

Illinois quickly made strides in Slone's first year. In the fall of 2006, the Fighting Illini shattered the 54-hole school record by firing a cumulative total of 890 (now 9th best overall) at the Shootout at the Legends to finish second overall. Additionally, the Orange and Blue's final-round total of 292 was just one shot off the single-round school record at the time.

To add to the excitement around the golf program, the Illinois athletic department opened the 16,000-square foot Demirjian Golf Practice Facility back in January 2007. The facility features large chipping and putting areas, heated hitting bays that open onto an outdoor driving range and full locker rooms, complete with a lounge and study areas for the players.

"The Demirjian Facility is an excellent practice venue for our team," Slone said. "The building has been a tremendous asset for both the men's and women's golf programs and has played a key role as we continue to move the program to new heights."

As a player, Slone had an unparalleled career while donning the Orange and Blue. During her senior season in 1993, she averaged a school-record 74.33 strokes per round, claimed a school-record eight medalist titles - including the Big Ten Championship - and was named the 1993 National College Player of the Year by both the National Golf Coaches Association (NGCA) and Golfweek Magazine. Throughout her career she was a three-time All-American, claiming three straight top-10 finishes at the NCAA Championships (1991 - 3rd, 1992 - t-4th, 1993 - t-6th). She also was a two-time Big Ten Player of the Year (1992, '93), two-time Big Ten Championship Medalist (1991, '93) and two-time UI Dike Eddleman Female Athlete of the Year (1991, '92).

Slone remains Illinois' career-stroke average leader (75.53) and owns the top single-season stroke average in school history. In addition, she holds two of the top six single-round scores, two of the top-four 54-hole scores and the top three 72-hole scores.

Slone also earned notoriety when she tied the LPGA 9-hole record of 28 at

In September 2013, Coach Slone was inducted into the Illinois Women's Golf Association Hall of Fame, becoming just the fifth member in the prestigious group the Jamie Farr Kroger Classic. After her stellar Illini career, Slone continued playing as a member of the LPGA Tour from 1995-97 and also spent time on the Futures Tour and Ladies Asian Tour.

Following her playing career, Slone moved into coaching as assistant coach for both the men's and women's golf teams at Bradley University during the 1999-2000 season. The following season, she returned to the University of Illinois and served as an assistant coach under Smith during the spring of 2001 while finishing up her bachelor's degree in business administration-marketing. In addition to customary assistant coach duties, Slone was designated as the team's head coach for two tournaments, the Illini Spring Classic and the Big Ten Championships.

Since that one-year stint as an assistant at Illinois, Slone served as an Assistant Golf Professional at two different courses in the south. She has served as the manager and golf professional at Sherwood Forest Golf Club in Brevard, N.C. Prior to that, she was an Assistant Professional at Connetsee Falls Country Club in Brevard, N.C., where she established a "Clubs in the Classroom" campaign introducing hundreds of young children to the game of golf. She also was responsible for clinic development and instruction, in addition to helping with all daily golf operations and personnel.

A native of Metamora, Ill., Slone had an outstanding junior career before coming to Illinois, finding success at the area, state and national levels. She won an unprecedented four consecutive Peoria Women's City Titles (1987-90), was a two-time IHSA Individual State Champion (1987, '89), and was a three-time American Junior Golf Association (AJGA) All-American.

In 2004, Slone was inducted into both the National Golf Coaches Association (Now WGCA) Players Hall of Fame and the Greater Peoria Sports Hall of Fame.

JENNY COLUCCIO

ASSISTANT COACH // THIRD SEASON

Jenny Coluccio concludes her third season as the assistant women's golf coach at the University of Illinois after being hired on July 8, 2013.

The 2015-16 season saw Bing Singhsumalee become the second Illini to earn All-Big Ten Team honors during Coluccio's three seasons at Illinois. During the season, the team posted the lowest team round season stroke average in school history at 296.79, a mark nearly three strokes better than the previous record.

During the 2014-15 season, Coluccio helped the Fighting Illini crew to a Big Ten-best six "Golfer of the Week" accolades. The Illinois unit also rewrote a slew of individual and team records over the course of the season in Coluccio's second season on staff.

In her debut season, the Illini demonstrated growth across the board. Ember Schuldt became just the eighth Illini to be named All-Big Ten. The Illini also qualified two golfers to NCAA Regionals -- Schuldt became the first three-time qualifier and Stephanie Miller became the first freshman qualifier in program history. In all, the team recorded the lowest scoring average in school history (at the time) (301.36).

Before her arrival to Champaign, Coluccio spent three seasons as the head men's and women's golf coach at NCAA Division II University of Sioux Falls. Coluccio led the USF men's golf team to a third place finish at the 2013 Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference Men's Golf Championship, while the women took fourth.

In 2011, Coluccio led her men's and women's teams to second and third place finishes, respectively, in the Great Plains Athletic Conference. The men's program reached new heights by earning the first ever trip to NAIA National Championship. Also in 2011, she produced six All-GPAC selections (four men, two women) while her teams set impressive grade-point averages in the classroom (3.2 for the men, 3.5 for the women).

Before she became head coach at USF, Coluccio served two seasons as a graduate assistant for Dakota Wesleyan University. During her tenure, both the men's and women's teams claimed the 2008-09 GPAC regular-season championship. In addition, the Lady Tigers made their sixth and seventh NAIA National Championship appearances while the men made their first and second ever trip to the national tournament.

Coluccio began her collegiate career at NCAA Division III Rhodes College in Memphis, Tenn. She attended Rhodes for one season and helped the Lynx achieve a No. 15 national ranking before transferring to NCAA Division II Drury University in her hometown of Springfield, Mo.

Coluccio was named a three-time All Great Lakes Valley Conference player for the Drury Panthers. She tallied 12 top-15 tournament finishes for a Panthers squad that was ranked as high as No. 6 in the country during its run to three consecutive Great Lakes Valley Conference crowns. Coluccio led the Panthers to an NCAA D-II West Regional Championship in 2005 and the program's first trip to the NCAA D-II National Championship, and returning again in 2007, earning a fourth place finish.

Coluccio's golf career has given her the opportunity to travel throughout the country while competing in dozens of prestigious tournaments including the Women's Western Amateur, Women's Trans National Amateur, Duramed Futures Tour and LPGA Qualifying Schools.

Jenny is married to Brett Coluccio, Assistant Golf Professional at Urbana Country Club and also served as her assistant coach at USF. They are both Springfield, Missouri, natives. The couple has one son, Braden, who was born on January 9, 2015.

2015-16 SEASON OUTLOOK

Following a summer that saw the Fighting Illini travel the world, Illinois women's golf head coach Renee Slone has gathered her squad to take on the 2015-16 season, her 10th at the helm. With Jenny Coluccio at her side for the third season, Slone has returned six players from last year's campaign and brought in a pair of new faces as well.

"We are very excited for the possibilities this season presents," shared Slone. "With our starting five returning and the addition of Bing and Katherine, practices and qualifying are going to be very competitive with team members challenging each other to continue to improve each day. By following our commitment to get a little better every day, we will be in a great position by season's end."

New to the Orange and Blue this season are Bing Singhsumalee, a freshman from Naperville, Illinois, and Katherine Hepler, a native of Lincoln, Illinois. Hepler, enters graduate school at Illinois with one year of eligibility remaining after competing at Mizzou. A senior in terms of eligibility, Hepler will redshirt the season and close out her career as a redshirt senior during the 2016-17 campaign.

"Both Bing and Katherine have been wonderful additions to our team and seem to fit into the team dynamic rather well after only one week," Slone said of the newcomers. "Katherine will be redshirting this year but has a wealth of knowledge to draw from and can share her past experiences for the benefit of the entire team. Bing is making a seamless transition to college and is managing all of her responsibilities very well. Both are a pleasure to have in the program and are very motivated, competitive people who have experienced much success in a number of different areas in their lives."

OPPORTUNITIES WITH A TEAM OF EIGHT

With just two new faces to the program this season, Illinois will have one of its smallest squads in years with just eight student-athletes listed, including Hepler, who is redshirting the season.

"This group will definitely push one another to perform to their highest level," said Slone. "Every player on this team has the potential to play in every tournament this year; that is how competitive it will be. A small squad provides us with the opportunity to develop even stronger relationships with each team member as well as give each more attention throughout the season."

Additionally, Illinois lists just one senior on the roster this year in Hepler, who is redshirting the season. A team that will not lose anyone to graduation, Illinois finds themselves with a valuable opportunity.

"This is a unique situation that the team members have already discussed and embraced," offered Slone. "They find this to be a tremendous opportunity in which to build the program and their legacy over the next two years and make a lasting impact. I think this has created an even stronger bond between the team members."

SUMMER PLAY

Many of the Illini saw success over the summer competing individually at tournaments. Singhsumalee was in that mix, as she picked up a sixth place, one-over par, finish at the Illinois Women's Open and additionally finished 10th at the Porter Cup. The Waubonsie Valley High School graduate also finished eighth at the AJGA Junior at Forest

Lake event.

Dana Gattone and Stephanie Miller also competed at the Illinois Women's Open in late July. Gattone finished in fifth place after posting a final round of 69 (-3) for an even 216 finish. Miller finished with a share of 22nd at the event.

In the single-round U.S. Women's Amateur Championship qualifier, Miller carded the second-best reading of the field to earn a trip to Portland, Oregon. Miller was even through 15 holes, but locked up a spot in the August event as she shot three-under par on the final three holes including a par-five birdie and then an eagle on the final hole. At the U.S. Women's Amateur Championship, Miller shot rounds of 78 and 73, but missed the cut.

Grace Park had an eventful summer as well. The sophomore finished in 10th place at the U.S. Women's Amateur Championship qualifier, missing the cut by a mere stroke. Earlier in the summer, Park earned the first alternate spot in the U.S. Women's Open after posting rounds of 71-73 at the qualifier.

FALL SCHEDULE

Action this fall for the Illini will spread across five tournaments and five different states. Illinois kicks off the 2015-16 campaign at the Minnesota Invitational, a tournament the team will compete in for the third-straight season. Last season, the Orange and Blue finished 10th in the field and was led by current junior, Stephanie Miller, who finished with a share of 21st individually while carding eight birdies at the event.

The next stop on the fall tour for Illinois will be the Mercedes-Benz Collegiate hosted by the Tennessee Volunteers from September 21-22. For the second week in a row, the Fighting Illini will compete, following the weekend, on Monday and Tuesday.

After two weeks, Illinois will be back on the road for the third competition of the season, this time at the Jim West Invitational hosted by Texas State in Boerne, Texas. The Orange and Blue competed at the event last season as well, finishing eighth. Miller led the Illini at the event, tying for 10th individually. As a team, Illinois registered 31 birdies at the competition and led all squads with a pair of eagles off the clubs of Dana Gattone and Samantha Postillion. The Jim West Invitational is slated for Sunday, Oct. 4 and Monday, Oct. 5.

Next, for the Fighting Illini unit, will be the Louisville-hosted Cardinal Cup, which is slated for Monday, Oct. 19 and Tuesday, Oct. 20 in Simpsonville, Kentucky.

To close out the fall campaign, Slone and company will head to the Palmetto Intercollegiate, an event hosted by the College of Charleston in Kiawah Island, South Carolina. The Illini competed at the event during the 2013-14 season and finished with a share of fifth place in the 19-team field. Senior at the time, Ember Schuldt, led Illinois as she tied for 16th on the individual board.

OPENING PLAY CLOSER TO CAMPUS

Prior to this season, Illinois opened fall play at the Colonel Wollenberg Ptarmigan Ram Classic hosted by Colorado State. This season, Illinois will not make the trip to Colorado, opting to open much closer to home, in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

"When you look at the tournament landscape and consider the long term benefit and the way that a team improves in the rankings, it behooves us to play in tournaments with the greatest number of highly ranked teams participating," stated Slone. "Our schedule reflects that; with Labor Day being later this year, a number of tournaments were pushed back a weekend, which resulted in a large number of events taking place from September 12-19. We made choices that will set us on a path for term success."

UNDERCLASSMEN IN BIG ROLES

Last season, Illinois traveled two sophomores and three freshmen to all but one tournament. Miller and Emily Joers, current juniors, recorded the first- and fifth-best scoring averages for the Orange and Blue. Chayanid Prapassarangkul, Dana Gattone and Grace Park filled the spots between the juniors respectively.

Following two seasons of action with Illinois, Miller owns two spots on the single-season low stroke average list. Her freshman year, Miller posted the third-best mark in program history, averaging 75.00 strokes per round. A year later, last season, Miller again broke into the top-five marks, registering an average of 75.10 across the season.

"Steph and Em obviously have the most experience within our program and are willing to step up to the plate to lead the team," Slone shared of the juniors. "They complement each other very well as they have different strengths and have a strong relationship with each other. They have an understanding of each team member and realize what approach is needed in different situations and who between the two of them would be best suited to handle the task."

Prapassarangkul, Gattone and Park all earned spots on the single-season low stroke average top-10 list following their debut campaigns. Prapassarangkul owns the sixth-lowest single-season average in program history at 75.29. Gattone and Park sit in the eighth and ninth slots, respectively, with readings of 75.58 and 75.74.

"This class experienced tremendous growth last season," Slone added of the sophomores. "Since they were able to gain a vast amount of tournament experience, it will enable them to hit the ground running this season. All four sophomores are hard workers and continue to build their confidence. This group is extremely excited to put what they have learned into action this year and I know we are going to see some incredible things from them."

ILLINI SET TO HOST PRO-AM

On Friday, Oct. 9, the Illinois Women's Golf program will host a Pro-Am event to benefit the Orange and Blue program. The event will take place at the Lincolnshire Fields Country Club in Champaign, Illinois. The event features a scramble format comprised of a three-member team that will play with an Illinois PGA Professional. A hole-in-one shootout is also on the agenda with a chance to win $100,000.

BIG PLAYERS TO WATCH

The Fighting Illini women's golf team landed a trio of players on the list including: Dana Gattone, Chayanid Prapassarangkul and Stephanie Miller.

Miller, a junior from Elgin, Illinois, is on the list for the third time in her career, while Prapassarangkul earned the honor for the second time in as many years. This marks the first Big Ten Player to Watch accolade for Gattone.

After putting the Demirjian Golf Practice Facility to good use during the winter break, Illinois Women's Golf will return to action with a full spring slate awaiting it. The Fighting Illini will play in five spring tournaments before beginning postseason play at the Big Ten Championships.

"Winter training has been the terrific," shared head coach Renee Slone. "Every team member has fully bought into the process of getting better and doing those little things that will enable her to be successful. The team has worked hard to get in the best physical and mental condition possible and I look forward to seeing that dedication pay off. The biggest improvement over any team that I have coached is the team's willingness to work on the mental side of their games."

The Fighting Illini finished the fall campaign with four top-10 tournament finishes, including a third place finish at the Minnesota Invitational. UI concluded the fall on a strong note as well, tying for fifth place in the 20-team Palmetto Intercollegiate field.

Posting the lowest stroke average for the Illini was freshman Bing Singhsumalee with a 74.07 average. The Naperville, Illinois, native also tied Illinois' lowest single round score in team history in her first career round at six-under (66).

"To be honest, we sputtered a bit down the stretch of the fall season," stated Slone. "We have emphasized the importance of staying healthy both physically and mentally as we had some challenges during the last few tournaments of the fall. With the help of the Director of Integrated Performance, Randy Ballard, we introduced a wellness survey to the team to provide valuable feedback and stay on top of things. Expectations can become burdens if you allow them to. We have done a great job of compartmentalizing those first three tournaments and building off of those results while cleaning up the issues that hindered us those last two tournaments."

The Fighting Illini will open 2016 action at the eighth annual Illinois Challenge, an exhibition competition against Illinois State held in Venice, Florida, on Saturday, Feb. 13. Illinois has won the contest every year since its inception, including last season's 8-4 victory over the Redbirds.

"This year the tournament is several days later, which was purposely done to take advantage of the proximity of the start of our first official tournament," Slone said. "It's always a plus to be able to play before the first event to regain your competitive edge. The format is also useful, since the NCAA championship has moved to match play. This will be the only competition we have against an opponent to prepare for that."

In their first non-exhibition action of 2016, the Orange and Blue will head to the Westbrook Spring Invitational in Peoria, Arizona. This marks the fifth-consecutive season Illinois Women's Golf will open the spring slate at the University of Wisconsin hosted event. Six Big Ten teams will be present in the 15-team field. Additionally, six teams that rank in the top-50 of the Golfstat ranking will compete at the two-day event.

Following a two-week break, Illinois will head to Augusta, Georgia, for the 3M Augusta Invitational from March 11-13. The event will be hosted by GRU Augusta at the Forest Hills Golf Club.

Upon return from Georgia, the Fighting Illini will host their sixth-annual Mid-Season Celebration. The event, sponsored by Flex-N-Gate Corporation, serves as a celebration of the Illinois Women's Golf program's past accomplishments, current team and bright future. The occasion will take place Tuesday, March 15, at the Urbana Country Club.

Just a week later, the Fighting Illini will head outside of the continental U.S., traveling to Oahu, Hawaii, for the Dr. Donnis Thompson Invitational. Action will take place over the two-day span of March 22-23.

Illinois will return to Georgia for the second time in the month of March to take part in the Henssler Financial Intercollegiate, hosted by Kennesaw State. Competition will be played on Monday and Tuesday, March 28-29.

"Our schedule is designed to prepare us for the postseason," shared Slone. "Having back-to-back events will help us get ready for the Lady Buckeye, Big Ten Championship, NCAA Regional trio. Our conditioning will have us well prepared and Randy Ballard will be assisting us with a sleep program that will aid in recovery time. After enjoying a highly successful tournament in Hawaii, our spirits should be sky high. We are leaving Hawaii 12 hours earlier than originally planned so that we have two days to recover from any jet lag we may face. These 18-21 year olds can be pretty resilient and I know our team will embrace this amazing opportunity to spend spring break in Hawaii and play a pair of terrific tournaments with stout competition."

Regular-season competition will wrap up in Columbus, Ohio, at the Lady Buckeye Invitational. This season will mark the 11th-consecutive season that the Fighting Illini will participate in the Ohio State event hosted by Ohio State. Illinois finished sixth as a team at last year's event, led individually by now-junior Stephanie Miller who finished 10th.

"There is not a better tournament or golf course for us to play in preparation for Big Tens and the NCAA tournaments," Slone said of the Lady Buckeye Invitational. "Weather and course conditions are very similar to what we will face at The Fort in Indianapolis for the Big Ten Championship. It is a great measuring stick for us."

Postseason play begins on April 22 at the Big Ten Championships in Indianapolis, Indiana. The Illini will seek to improve on last season's ninth place finish. At last year's Championships, the Orange and Blue were led by then-freshman Chayanid Prapassarangkul, who turned in a 16th place performance.

"We focus on getting better every day; if we do that, individually and as a team, the goals that might be in the back of our minds will be achieved," Slone said of the team's spring expectations. "We want to do things that have never been done in the history of the women's golf program at the University of Illinois. If we get better every day and believe in the process those things will come."
