DANIEL RIBEIRO

HEAD COACH // 1ST SEASON // TENTH WITH TEAM

Daniel Ribeiro enters his first year as head coach and tenth year as a member of the Illini men's gymnastics coaching staff. For the first four seasons, Ribeiro served as an assistant coach under former head coach Justin Spring. In July 2015, Ribeiro was promoted to the position of Associate Head Coach. He earned National Assistant Coach of the Year and Central Region Coach of the Year honors in 2012 after helping lead the Illini to their first national championship since 1989 and fourth-consecutive Big Ten championship.

In the nine seasons combined as an assistant and associate head coach, Ribeiro has helped oversee a program that has produced seven national champions, 68 All-Americans, 18 Big Ten Champions, two Big Ten Gymnasts of the Year, two Big Ten Freshmen of the Year, Nissen-Emery award winner and a two National Champion on pommel horse. He has also produced World Championship team members in Tyson Bull (AUS), Clay Mason Stephens(AUS), and Alex Diab (USA). As well as an Olympic high bar finals (Tyson Bull) in the 2020 Olympics in Tokyo.

As a member of the Fighting Illini men's gymnastics team from 2008-11, Ribeiro won two NCAA titles and three All-American honors on pommel horse (2009, 2011) and was a three-time captain, starting his sophomore year.

The Chestnut Ridge, New York, native is also a three-time Big Ten pommel horse champion, taking the conference crown in his freshman (2008), junior (2010) and senior (2011) seasons, while earning first-team All-Big Ten accolades in each of those years as well.

Ribeiro's success was not limited to the collegiate stage, however, as the former All-American captured pommel horse gold at the 2010 U.S. Visa Championships between his junior and senior seasons.

Ribeiro also garnered academic honors during his time at Illinois, earning a spot on the Academic All-Big Ten list in 2010 and 2011 and achieving College Gymnastics Association All-America Scholar-Athlete status in 2010.

Within the first six months his interim role, Ribeiro brought in two more coaches to the staff in Wes Haagensen and Tim McNeill. Shortly after, he announced the largest signing class in recent years.

"I could not be more excited to add Tim to our coaching staff," Ribeiro said. "I can say with confidence that Illinois has the best coaching staff in the country. I now have two assistant coaches that both have Division I, Power 5, head coaching experience. Tim ticked every single box I was looking for along with boxes I didn't even know I was looking for."

Considered one of the most successful gymnasts in the history of Cal's program, McNeill earned All-American honors each of his four years as a Golden Bear from 2005-08. He captured the first of his school-record five NCAA individual championship titles as a sophomore when he won the pommel horse competition in 2006. He later the parallel bars titles at the NCAA Championships in both 2007 and 2008. At the end of his senior season, McNeill received the Pac-10 Medal as the most outstanding senior male student-athlete at Cal.

After graduating from Cal in 2008, McNeill spent the 2009 season as a graduate intern with the Bears before training full-time with the U.S. National team.

FACILITIES

HUFF HALL

Huff Hall is a versatile, multi-use facility that serves as the home for the Illini men's and women's gymnastics and volleyball squads. It has a seating capacity of 3,800 for gymnastics meets. Huff Hall, once the longtime home of the Illinois State High School Association state basketball tournament, is known for creating the circus-like atmosphere that fostered the term "March Madness." This historical building on the U of I campus continues to make lasting memories in the hearts of all Fighting Illini fans.

Illinois athletics enjoy a proud tradition in Huff Hall. Huff served as the host venue for the 2009 Big Ten Women's Gymnastics Championships and previously served as host for the 1991, 1995 and 2003 Big Ten Women's Gymnastics Championships. The historic building also hosted the 1992, 1995, 2004 and 2011 Big Ten Men's Gymnastics Championships, and was the site of the 1993 and 1999 NCAA Men's Gymnastics East Regional. It has also been the site of a 1994 NCAA first-round volleyball match, a 1995 NCAA second-round volleyball match, the first and second rounds of the 1997 NCAA Women's Basketball Tournament and the first and second rounds of the 1998, 2001, 2008-11, 2013 and 2014 NCAA Volleyball Tournaments.

Huff Hall is named for longtime Illinois athletic director and coach George Huff. Huff was Illinois' athletic director from 1901 to 1935, during a time in which Fighting Illini athletic programs enjoyed unparalleled success. Huff was the driving force behind the construction of Memorial Stadium. He also served as football coach from 1895 to 1899, and baseball skipper from 1896 to 1919. Known by many of his close friends and business associates as "G," Huff served as manager of the Boston Red Sox in 1907.

Huff Hall contains two volleyball practice courts and the volleyball game facility, as well as four basketball courts and a main court. In addition, the building contains spacious locker and squad rooms which were completely renovated in 2004.

Huff Hall also houses a weight room, equipment rooms, locker rooms, a training room and one squash court, as well as many offices and classrooms. In 2004, Huff received several enhancements with the renovation of its training room and weight room. Within the last decade, Illinois has made multiple improvements to Huff Hall with the addition of a new scoreboard, a new sound system, new bleachers and new lighting. Most recently, Huff Hall has been equipped with a state-of-the-art video board.

KENNEY GYM

Historic Kenney Gym, one of the university's oldest and most revered buildings, houses a unique training atmosphere and represents nearly a century of exercise tradition at the University of Illinois.

The upper level of Kenney Gym houses the Illinois gymnastics workout facilities. In this extensive facility, both the men's and women's gymnastics teams practice in a harmonious environment.

Kenney Gym accommodates Illinois gymnasts with its large variety of FIG specification equipment. Women's equipment includes four balance beams, two sets of ELITE uneven bars, two vaulting horses, a Palmer spring floor and a 40-foot long Tumble Trak. The historic building also features a weight room, running track, locker facilities and basketball and volleyball courts.

Named after former wrestling coach H.E. Kenney, Kenney Gym has long been a focus of innovative techniques and equipment in gymnastics training. The world's first foam-lined, in-ground "pit," developed for added safety in the instruction of tumbling and vaulting, was built here in 1963 and updated in 2016. In the summer of 2016, Kenney Gym underwent a renovation that improved training capabilities, especially on vault and floor. The addition of the brand new foam pit, along with a "makeover" has greatly enhanced the ability to utilize more gym space on all four events.

ALL-TIME RESULTS (SINCE 1972)

All-Time results begin in 1971, starting with the first year the modern events of floor exercise, pommel horse, still rings, vault, parallel bars, high bar and the all-around became the seven NCAA recognized events. Before 1971, the NCAA recognized championships in flying rings until 1961, rope climb (1962), tumbling (1964) and trampoline until 1970.

Note: Illinois did not compete as a team at the NCAA Championships and only sent individuals during the following seasons: 1977-78, 80, 82, 85-87, 90-92, 94-97, 99, 2000.*

All-Time Results Key

NA: Not Applicable; either there were insufficient results and records kept for the specific season or the event was not a team scoring event.

DNA: Did Not Advance; at NCAAs after 1968, a select number of teams had to qualify before advancing to the final round where the national champion was decided. In 1968, four teams advanced to the final round. From 1969-99, three teams advanced, while in 2000, the format changed to the present day system of six teams advancing to the final round to contend for the taeam national title.

Note: Starting in 1982, UI-Chicago Circle became known as Illinois-Chicago after its medical campus and main campus joined to form one institution.*

BOLD indicates active DI men's gymnastics programs.*

Illinois Gymnastics Coach Spring Moving on to Alabama Women's Gymnastics Staff

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. – Illinois men's gymnastics icon Justin Spring, who has served the Fighting Illini as head coach for the last 12 seasons and led the program to the 2012 NCAA Championship, is leaving the Illini in a move to the University of Alabama as an assistant coach for the Crimson Tide women's program. He joins new Alabama head coach Ashley Johnston, who served as an assistant coach at Illinois under Coach Nadalie Walsh during the 2018 season.

"I want to thank Justin for his many years of tremendous leadership and service to the University of Illinois and Fighting Illini Men's Gymnastics," said Director of Athletics Josh Whitman. "Justin's legacy as an Illini is beyond reproach. He is a multi-time national champion as both a competitor and a coach. He is an Olympic medalist, and he is a member of the Illinois Athletics Hall of Fame. He has been a positive influence on this program since the day he arrived on campus, and his contagious energy is felt throughout our department. His departure leaves a void that will not be easily filled. He has been a tremendous friend and colleague, and we wish him, Tori, and their children all the best on their newest adventure."

Spring joined the Illinois program as an assistant coach for four seasons immediately upon conclusion of his eligibility and, beginning with the 2010-11 season, he ascended to the head coaching position. In his 12 seasons as the head coach of the men's gymnastics program, Spring guided 11 gymnasts to NCAA event titles, including three NCAA champions in 2010, 2011 and 2012, while Illini gymnasts racked up 79 All-America honors.

"It's impossible to sum up my 20-year experience that I've had at the University of Illinois," Spring said. "Just trying to put thoughts into words for this press release brings heavy tears to my eyes. When I made a decision to come here back in 2001, I never dreamed that I would have the opportunities and success that I have had, as well as making life-long friendships within this amazing community. I'm moving on to an exciting new opportunity but the Fighting Illini and Champaign-Urbana will always have a special place in my heart."

Spring's teams earned four Big Ten championships in 2010, 2011, 2012 and 2018, and he was named National Coach of the Year in 2012 after guiding Illinois to its 10th NCAA team championship, becoming the youngest coach in NCAA history to earn National Coach of the Year honors.

As a student-athlete, Spring was one of the most decorated gymnasts in school history. He was a four-time NCAA champion, 13-time All-American, three-time Big Ten champion, two-time Illinois Athlete of the Year, and, following his senior season, Spring was selected for the Nissen-Emery Award, bestowed annually upon the nation's top male gymnast. He enjoyed similar success in international competition, culminated by his participation in the 2008 Beijing Olympics, when he helped USA Gymnastics capture a surprising bronze medal.

Spring was a two-time UI Dike Eddleman Athlete of the Year award winner, and, in 2018, Spring was inducted into the University of Illinois Athletics Hall of Fame. He was a five-time U.S. Senior National Team member with an extensive international competition record.

Ribeiro off to Israel for Maccabiah Games

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. – Illinois men's gymnastics interim head coach Daniel Ribeiro will serve as Team USA's director of gymnastics for the Maccabiah Games, July 5-26 in Israel.

"I am very excited to be representing Team USA as the gymnastics director " Ribeiro said. "I will be overseeing the senior and junior men's and women's teams at this year's Maccabiah Games. We have an incredibly talented group of athletes this year that will be fighting for medal opportunities on the world stage."

Roughly 10,000 athletes participate in the three week competition in three tours – the junior tour (athletes 18 years old and younger), the open and para tour, and the master tour.

About the Maccabiah

The first Maccabiah was held in Ramat Gan in 1932 with 390 athletes from 18 countries taking part. Traditionally held every four years, interrupted only by World War II, by 2017 the Games had grown to include nearly 10,000 Jewish athletes from more than 75 countries competing in 40 sports, making it the third largest international multi-sport event in the world following only the Olympics and the FIFA World Cup. The Maccabi USA delegation to the 20th Maccabiah in the summer of 2017 numbered 1,131 members, the largest traveling delegation in the history of not just Jewish sporting events but all international multi-sport competitions.

Ribeiro, Team Earn 31 Medals in Maccabiah Games

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. - Illinois men's gymnastics interim head coach Daniel Ribeiro helped lead Team USA's senior and junior men's and women's teams to 31 total medals at the Maccabiah Games in Israel.

"I am so proud of the success Team USA had at the 21st Maccabiah Games in Israel, earning 31 medals," said Ribeiro. "While the athletic accomplishments of these dedicated, hardworking, young athletes brought honor to their country, their pride also shined from what they learned through their exploration and experiences throughout Israel. As Jewish athletes from around the world gather in Israel to celebrate their love of sports, the resilience of the Jewish people is front and center. The pride runs deep and is overflowing."

"For thousands of years, the Jewish people across the globe have endured through persecution and slavery, antisemitism and a devastating genocide. It has only been 77 years since the Holocaust, the systemic effort to target Jewish people that was designed to exterminate them. This resulted in the murder of over six million Jewish men, women, and children which equals a third of the worldwide Jewish population at the time," Ribeiro continued. "Worldwide, the Jewish population has yet to recover to the numbers prior to World War II. Today, the coaching staff and athletes representing Team USA in the Maccabiah Games gather proudly in Israel, standing shoulder-to-shoulder with over 10,000 other Jewish athletes from 82 different countries competing in the second largest sporting event in the world."

While the competition does not conclude until July 26, the men's and women's teams competed on July 18 and 19, respectively.

The junior women's team won one individual bronze medal in beam as well as a team silver. The seniors women's team had three individual silver medals in balance beam, floor and all-around, and a bronze medal in vault and earned the team silver.

The junior men's team earned three gold medals on floor, pommel horse and vault with five silver medals in pommel horse, still rings, vault, parallel bars and all-around and two individual bronze medals in high bar and all around as well as earning a team gold medal.

For the seniors men's team, three gold medals were awarded for floor, vault and high bar, three silver medals for still rings, vault and parallel bars as well as four bronze medals in pommel horse, vault, high bar and all around. The team also won a team silver medal.

Illini Advance at Commonwealth Games

BIRMINGHAM, England – Fighting Illini rising senior gymnast Josh Cook and a trio of program alumni – Tyson Bull, Hamish Carter, and Clay Mason Stephens – opened competition at the Commonwealth Games with all four moving on to individual finals following preliminary and team finals on Friday.

"Not only did we have four Illini in Commonwealth Games competition, but the fact that each one of these talented athletes earned a spot in the finals is a massive accomplishment," Illini interim head coach Daniel Ribeiro said. "I am so proud of these guys and can't wait to watch them fight for medals in the all-around and event finals."

The top 18 qualifiers in the all-around, and the top eight in each event will now move on to vie for medal contention, Sunday-Tuesday, with a maximum of two athletes representing each country.

Mason Stephens (Team Australia) and Cook (Team Wales) will each compete in the all-around finals on Sunday. Mason Stephens posted the highest score among the Illini, finishing seventh in the all-around with a tally of 78.550. Cook, finished 15th with a score of 75.900.

Mason Stephens also finished seventh in the floor exercise, posting a score of 13.400, just 0.45 points outside of the top five. Finals for the floor exercise are scheduled for Monday.

Carter was the second-rated Illini in the all-around competition, posting a score of 78.450. His tally was good enough to match countryman, Pavel Karnejenko. However, Carter slid to 10th overall, and narrowly missed out on advancing to the all-around finals, by virtue of a tie-breaker, a system where whoever has the highest event score advances, with Karnejenko, who earned the second qualifying spot for Team Scotland.

Carter will now set his focus on the high bar finals after scoring a 13.500 and placing seventh in the prelims. The finals are scheduled for Tuesday.

Bull, who also competed in the Tokyo Olympics last year for Team Australia, placed eighth on the parallel bars, and advances to compete in the finals on Tuesday.

In the team finals competition Bull and Mason Stephens helped Australia to a fourth-place finish, just missing out on a bronze medal by 0.65 points. Carter and Team Scotland finished in fifth place, one slot ahead of Cook and Team Wales.

Skirkey Advances to U.S. Gymnastics Championships

SALT LAKE VALLEY, Utah. – Illinois men's gymnast Ian Skirkey qualified for the U.S. Championships following weekend action at the U.S. Classic, while Connor McCool was named alternate.

Skirkey competed on the pommel horse, scoring a 13.843 and placing first in the preliminaries to qualifying for nationals.

"The fact that Ian was able to qualify to U.S. Championships with two falls is a testament to how incredible he could be when he hits his routine," interim head coach Daniel Ribeiro said. "Now we have two weeks to work out the kinks before the championships."

McCool scored a 13.970 in floor to place fourth, good enough for an alternate spot. He also competed in vault, scoring a 13.300.

"Connor did a phenomenal floor routine, just narrowly missing out on qualifying to championships," Ribeiro said. "As the alternate, we will continue to push his routine for the next couple weeks as we wait to see if a spot opens up for him."

The 2022 U.S Gymnastics Championships will take place Aug. 18-21 in Tampa Bay, Florida.

Bull Wins Silver in Commonwealth Games

BIRMINGHAM, England – Illinois men's gymnastics alumnus Tyson Bull won a silver medal in high bar on Tuesday (Aug. 2) at the Commonwealth Games, while fellow alumni Hamish Carter, and Clay Mason Stephens, and current Illini Josh Cook all earned top-15 finishes in their respective events.

"I am so proud of our Illini who competed at the Commonwealth Games," interim head coach Daniel Ribeiro said. "All four of our athletes made it to finals and Tyson finishing with a silver medal on High Bar will be a moment that he will never forget."

Bull initially did not make the cut to compete in high bar finals, but due to a last-minute scratch the former Olympian made the most of his opportunity and captured the silver medal for Australia, scoring a 14.233 to finish just .23 points behind gold medalist Ilias Georgiou of Cyprus. Bull also posted a score of 13.133 to finish eighth in parallel bars.

Carter, competing for Team Scotland, finished three spots behind Bull in sixth place in the high bar finals with a score of 12.433.

Mason Stephens, representing Team Australia, and Cook, competing for Wales, both participated in the all-around finals on Sunday. Mason Stephens scored a 76.800 to finish in 11th place, one spot ahead of Cook in 12th with a score of 75.900.

Mason Stephens also posted a seventh-place finish in the floor finals with a score of 12.366.

Ribeiro Tabs McNeill as Assistant Coach

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. – Illinois men's gymnastics interim head coach Daniel Ribeiro announced Tim McNeill will take on the role as assistant coach on Friday (Aug. 6). McNeill, a decorated gymnast turned head coach at the University of California, Berkeley, returns to coaching after stepping away in 2013.

"I could not be more excited to add Tim to our coaching staff," Ribeiro said. "I can say with confidence that Illinois has the best coaching staff in the country. I now have two assistant coaches that both have Division I, Power 5, head coaching experience. Tim ticked every single box I was looking for along with boxes I didn't even know I was looking for."

Considered one of the most successful gymnasts in the history of Cal's program, McNeill earned All-America honors each of his four years as a Golden Bear from 2005-08. He captured the first of his school-record five NCAA individual championship titles as a sophomore when he won the pommel horse competition in 2006. He later claimed both the pommel horse and parallel bars titles at the NCAA Championships in both 2007 and 2008. At the end of his senior season, McNeill received the Pac-10 Medal as the most outstanding senior male student-athlete at Cal.

After graduating from Cal in 2008, McNeill spent the 2009 season as a graduate intern with the Bears before training full-time with the U.S. National team.

McNeill returned to his alma mater as Cal's head coach for three seasons from 2010-2013. As Cal's coach, McNeill was named the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation (MPSF) Coach of the Year in 2011. He guided the Bears to fourth-place NCAA finishes in both 2011 and 2012, with one individual pommel horse champion in 2012.

Four of his student-athletes became members of the U.S. National Team, two became members of the Filipino National Team, and one became a member of the Swiss National Team, all under his tutelage. McNeill went on to coach at the Olympic Trials in 2012, and he was chosen by USA Gymnastics to coach the U.S. delegation at the 2012 World Cup competition in Croatia.

Prior to his time at Cal, McNeill competed in three Junior Olympic National Championships in 2000, 2002 and 2004. In 2000, McNeill placed third on parallel bars, and in 2002 he finished fourth on pommel horse. In 2004 he broke through for a first-place finish on pommel horse, while also capturing third in all-around and fourth in the parallel and high bar competitions.

A fixture on the U.S. Senior National team from 2006-11, McNeill boasts an impressive resume on the international stage. He won his first international medal in 2010 when he placed third on parallel bars at the Moscow World Cup. Other highlights include competing in the finals of the 2008 Olympic Trials, winning pommel horse at the 2009 Winter Cup Challenge, and taking home the parallel bars title and finishing second in the all-around at the 2009 VISA Championships. McNeill earned a place on the U.S. team for the 2009 World Championships where he placed fifth on pommel and seventh in the all-around. In 2010, he was voted as the U.S. Gymnast of the Year.

Aside from gymnastics, McNeill is a voice in the community for mental health. He interned at both an HIV clinic, and a residential substance abuse facility. He also spent time as a mental health counselor at a substance abuse facility for adolescent boys. Later, McNeill opened his own private practice, helping adolescents and adults with mental health and substance abuse issues, while also providing sports guidance to help athletes perform at their highest potential.

"Tim is young and passionate; he has a brilliant gymnastics mind and a ton of experience." Ribeiro added. "His work in mental health and sports psychology will also be a huge asset for our athletes."

Hungry to win: McNeill Brings New Energy

In 2010, Tim McNeill was faced with a difficult dilemma. The opportunity to coach at his alma mater, University of California, Berkeley, where he remains one of the most decorated gymnasts in program history, emerged, but he was in the middle of competing for the U.S. National Team, just two years away from the 2012 London Olympics.

McNeill was confident he was going to make Team USA and represent his country on one of the biggest stages in sports. He had the right combination of events that the team was weakest, pommel horse and still rings.

But the chance to return to Cal Berkley as its head coach was simply too good an opportunity.

"I knew I wanted to be a collegiate coach. That's what I wanted to do for my career," McNeill said. "Being the head coach at my alma mater was just too good to turn down, so that took me out of competing. I had high hopes thinking I could do both -- coach and still compete. I actually was still on the senior national team for the first year that I was coaching, but it didn't work out that way."

While competing at Cal Berkley from 2005-2008, McNeill earned All-America honors in each of his four seasons and was a five-time NCAA individual champion, winning titles on pommel horse thrice and parallel bars twice.

After competing on the junior national team, McNeill was a member of the U.S. senior national squad from 2006-2011. He won bronze on parallel bars in his first international medal, the Moscow World Cup in 2010, the same year he was named U.S. Gymnast of the Year.

McNeill then returned to Cal Berkley and served as the team's head men's gymnastics coach from 2010-2013. In his first two years at the helm, McNeill led the Golden Bears to back-to-back fourth-place finishes at the NCAA championships, and he coached several future national team members.

Though the program was in good shape, McNeill himself wasn't. He had fractures in his back that continued to worsen, and his spine became unstable. He needed surgery to fix the issues, and he now has a spinal cord stimulator implanted that allows him to be much more active, but the rehabilitation and recovery processes temporarily took him out of coaching.

Once he left the gym to focus on himself, he knew he would be back. McNeill, who majored in psychology in undergrad, spent four years engaging with the mental health community, working in a federally funded HIV clinic and substance use facility before ultimately starting his own private practice.

McNeill says the work he did was fulfilling and rewarding, but he also knew he wanted to get back into coaching.

"Gymnastics is my passion. That's where my heart is," McNeill said. "I knew the whole time I was working as a therapist that I wanted to get back in the gym at some point, and I'm glad that I did."

"I always thought in the back of my mind, I knew that I'd end up back in the gym."

McNeill found out about the assistant coaching vacancy while scrolling through Facebook, and he immediately reached out to interim head coach Daniel Ribeiro to express his interest.

The pair competed against each other quite often, with McNeill calling Ribeiro his "main competitor by the end of my career."

"(Ribeiro) was the person that I sought to beat," McNeill said. "I beat him a couple times; he beat me a couple times. We were pretty evenly matched. I would have liked to see our careers go further and see where things ended up, but I knew Daniel really well."

Once McNeill and Ribeiro connected, they immediately "hit it off and it kind of took off from there." McNeill says his established coaching and athletics successes were big sells, but he thinks his master's degree in mental health counseling and his work as a therapist are what sets him apart.

"I thought that piece was a perfect addition to my coach's resume," McNeill said. "It's not always the best gymnast that wins or the best team that wins. It's the team that shows up on that last day when it really counts, and that's all mental. I think with my mental health knowledge, I'll be able to really steer the team in a really positive direction."

The opportunity to coach at Illinois also allowed him to reconnect with Wes Haagensen, who now serves as the Illini' volunteer coach. Their friendship began around the age of 15 due to the fact that they were "both at the top of our game." Though they went their separate ways in college -- Haagensen to Illinois and McNeill to Cal Berkley, they went on recruiting trips together and remained good friends.

The pair took a visit to Illinois together while still in high school, and McNeill has now come full circle as he enters his first season as an assistant coach.

Though he still has some regrets about not competing in the Olympics 10 years ago, he is 100% certain that Champaign-Urbana is where he wants to be.

"It's kind of nice," McNeill said. "For a long time wanting to be an Illini, and now I am. It's a perfect place to end up. If every school offered me a coaching position and I could pick between any of them, I would pick Illinois."

Hungry to Win: Osborn Adds Experience

When Illini assistant coach Don Osborn finished competing at Indiana State, coaching was not immediately in the cards. Though he coached throughout his time in college and won a team national championship, the school's lone title, he worked as a wallpaper distributor and at a map publishing company after graduation.

That all changed in 1985, when he accepted an assistant coaching position at Illinois under former Illini head coach Yoshi Hayasaki, and he has not looked back since.

Osborn spent eight years as an assistant, helping lead the Illini to two Big Ten titles and an NCAA championship in 1989. He was then promoted to head coach in 1993, and he led the program to nearly 50 wins across three seasons.

After a successful stint at the helm of the Illini men's gymnastics program, Osborn opted to move to the junior level, where he spent nearly 20 years coaching at three different gyms. During that time, he helped guide gymnasts to the junior national team and to top universities in the country.

"That was a really exciting time," Osborn said. "It was a great group."

Though he mainly worked with high-schoolers, Osborn says there was not a significant skill disparity between gymnasts at the junior and college levels, but he admits he prefers the excitement of coaching at the collegiate level.

"It's similar because your best guys are on the same sort of track," Osborn said. "Certainly here they keep maturing, they keep learning new skills, they keep getting to a higher level. I find this a little more exciting."

Twenty years after leaving the Fighting Illini program, Osborn returned in 2015 to serve as an assistant under Justin Spring. This was also when he met current interim head coach Daniel Ribeiro, who had just been promoted to the associate head coach position.

Their relationship is one of the biggest reasons why Osborn felt comfortable staying in Champaign, and he says he had "no thought of leaving" and was instead more concerned with building the coaching staff around him.

"I think Dan respects all the years that I have coached and all the experiences that I have at the different levels that I worked," Osborn said. "We've always been very comfortable discussing things when we have differences, and we're just constantly going back and forth on different ideas. We build our program that way."

Entering his eighth season in his second stint, Osborn says he feels much more relaxed than the first time around. The successes of his gymnasts are the biggest factor in that newfound ease, but he remains as hungry as ever to lead the Illini back to the top of the Big Ten and the NCAA.

"I feel very comfortable with where I'm at as a coach and the things I've accomplished in my lifetime," Osborn said. "There's still an urgency to get guys to a certain level, and I still absolutely feel that. I can look back and say, 'Yes, I've put guys at every college. Yes, I put guys on the junior national team. Yes, I got somebody to the World Championships.' I can check off a lot of boxes and feel pretty comfortable."

Though he is the eldest coach on staff, his winning resume and experience will be essential as the Illini enter a new era. With two new coaches – Wes Haagensen and Tim McNeill – and a program determined to remain one of the top teams in the country, Osborn is ready to bring out the best in everyone.

He still feels the same excitement and anticipation every time he steps foot into Kenney Gym, the same facility the team used in the 1980s-90s, and with the experience of winning a team title as both a gymnast and a coach, Osborn knows Champaign is where he is meant to be.

“The feeling when you walk into the gym is the same,” Osborn said. “Of course, it’s been rehabbed on the inside. The equipment layout, the pits, the gymnastics part of it is different.

“But you walk in and you still have the open windows, the big high ceiling: It still feels the same. There’s just a ton of history here. It’s special.”

Hungry to Win: Ribeiro Begins the New Era

When Daniel Ribeiro had to choose his major during his junior year, he started freaking out. Already a captain the previous season, he opted to combine two things he loved – being a leader of the men's gymnastics team and playing Madden franchise mode, a decision that led to a business management major, and ultimately a career in coaching.

"I realized, which was so incredible, all the work that I'd been doing in Madden fit so unbelievably well with my business management major and from a person-to-person standpoint," Ribeiro said. "I realized that my work in Madden, the hours and hours that I put into Madden, the video game, was one of the most beneficial things I could have done to learn how to build teams, from a strategic standpoint at the collegiate level, and then being a captain taught me how to build teams from a culture and leadership standpoint."

From Chestnut Ridge, New York, Ribeiro chose to attend Illinois after seeing the team dynamic and culture, and he knew he wanted to join "the closest team in the country."

Competing with the Illini from 2008-2011, Ribeiro won two NCAA pommel horse titles and three Big Ten pommel horse titles and was a three-time All-American.

A captain for the final three years of his collegiate career, Ribeiro became close with former head coach Justin Spring, who joined the team ahead of the 2010 season. Though Ribeiro was still a student-athlete, the pair constantly discussed strategy, scholarships, and training plans. After being an invested team captain, Ribeiro took on an official assistant coaching role with his alma mater immediately after graduation.

"I made it a point to be very, very close with Justin," Ribeiro said. "I was a pseudo-coach as a captain in the last half of my career, to the point where it was like almost an immediate switch. Justin was waiting for me to graduate to bring me on a staff. From then on, we were just seamlessly working together, developing, evolving, winning, losing. The whole rest of our history just developed from there."

In his first year in the assistant coaching position and at the age of 21, Ribeiro and the Illini won the NCAA Championships, and he earned the National Assistant Coach of the Year award for his work, the youngest-ever recipient of the accolade.

In 2015, Ribeiro was promoted to associate head coach, but that title did not result in any changes in responsibilities. Having already been Spring's second-hand man as both an athlete and coach, he knew he deserved a promotion.

"The real reason that promotion came about was because of everything that I was taking on from a leadership standpoint and a program standpoint," Ribeiro said. "I was doing a lot, and we were winning championships. It was something that I'd earned. In the five years that I was an assistant, I had my hands in every pot with Justin, like we were running that program together, so being an associate head coach was appropriate for the role that I was already taking on."

When Spring left the program in 2022, Ribeiro assumed the interim head coach position, and he immediately had to fill in the gaps within his coaching staff. Assistant coach Don Osborn remained in his role, while he filled in the other assistant position with Tim McNeill and added Wes Haagensen as a volunteer coach.

The group has a "perfect balance between youth and experience," Ribeiro says, and all four coaches have won individual and team titles while competing and coaching. With the staff in place, he has set the foundation for team and recruiting success.

"It's exactly what I was going for when I envisioned putting together the absolute perfect and best staff in the country," Ribeiro said. "We are the only school to have four coaches at this caliber, and we are absolutely, clear and away the best coaching staff in the country."

When Ribeiro was still an assistant, he opted to add numbers to uniforms, something he knew would make athletes more identifiable and bring them "closer to mainstream sports." The move also allows Illinois to retire the numbers of program legends, which acts as motivation for the team and creates potential events moving forward.

Since taking over the head coach position, Ribeiro has added "titles" within the program, which a gymnast earns every time they win an event or all-around title at a meet. Ribeiro says it took him 150 hours to sift through over one century of Illini men's gymnastics history, and it allows him to push athletes to set records and move up on program leader boards.

Though these might be seemingly small things will add up, Ribeiro says, and create positive change within the program.

"I've always been into the tiny little details and the tiny little things," Ribeiro said. "These are very tiny little things, but they could have a big impact. If I can create enough avenues of things that could have a large impact on our program, I'm certain that a number of those tiny little details will hit. If I have a number of those tiny little details that do hit, then we're going to make a large impact on the program."

With the implementation of the numbers and statistics, Ribeiro has also maintained the culture and reputation of Illinois men's gymnastics that initially attracted him to the program. Despite the addition of new coaches, the Illini identity will remain consistent while continuing to evolve and develop.

"Culture is something that I'm not going to need to change a whole lot. What I'm going to do is continue to evolve it," Ribeiro said. "Creating a core value system is the baseline of culture. Creating a value system that athletes can live their lives around, that shape everything that they do is the thought process behind culture. As long as we are continually creating those opportunities to develop our team and our culture, we're gonna continue to have the absolute strongest team chemistry in the country."

With the interim tag, Ribeiro has already left his mark on the program that has meant so much to him over the past 15 years, and he's determined to take the Orange and Blue to the top of the Big Ten and the NCAA.

"We are the most storied program here," Ribeiro said. "It is the least talked about program with the most success. That's what we stand for. It's within our DNA. It's who we are. Illinois has been champions for the last 100 years, and I plan on continuing that status."

Ribeiro Signs Four to 2023 Class

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. –Illinois men's gymnastics interim head coach Daniel Ribeiro announced the signing of four recruits - Brandon Dang, Preston Ngai, Vahe Petrosyan, Alex Taipans – set to joning the Fighting Illini program in 2023.

"The Illinois Class of 2023 will go down as the best Illini class since the 2012 national championship team," Ribeiro said. "Not only are these athletes loaded with talent and potential, but more importantly, they fit perfectly into the culture that we are building here at Illinois. These athletes are good kids, great students, and more focused and driven individually and as a group than any I have seen in a long time. They are going to have the chance to do something special here, and start the next Illini gymnastics dynasty."

Brandon Dang | Pommel Horse | San Jose, Calif.

Dang competed with West Coast Olympic Gymnastics Academy under coach Vince Miller.

A pommel horse specialist, Dang will be used as the anchor (the last and best athlete in an event, which is usually a seasoned veteran) as a freshman. This will be the first time a freshman will be an anchor since Ribeiro did so in 2011. Dang will be a direct replacement for graduate student and 2021 pommel horse national champion Ian Skirkey, who will be graduating at the end of the season.

Dang has multiple accolades including five state championships, four regional championships and four national pommel horse championships.

Dang was a member of the USA Gymnastics All-Star Team in 2018, 2019, 2021 and 2022. He also placed fifth in all-around at the 2022 Nationals

In total, Dang has 46 top 10 state finishes, 24 top 10 regional finishes and seven top five national finishes.

Dang chose Illinois because, "because of the prestigious computer science and engineering programs, the positive team spirit, and the fantastic coaching staff."

"Brandon is the undisputed number one specialist in this year's signing class," Ribeiro said. "He has trained under Coach Vince Miller, who has produced over a dozen of our nation's top pommel horse competitors. He has the talent to fight for an NCAA national title immediately in his freshman year and will eventually have the chance to fight for World and Olympic medals on pommel horse."

Preston Ngai | All-Around | Elk Grove, Calif.

Ngai is the younger brother of former Illini Brandon Ngai, who won the 2016 NCAA title on pommel horse to become the youngest national champion in any sport in NCAA history. While Brandon was a specialist on pommel horse, Preston can do it all while having a strength on pommel horse, which is rare for an all-around competitor.

Ngai was a part of Elevate Gymnastics Academy and coached by Ron Howard, who also coached current Illini and still rings All-American, Ashton Anaya.

Ngai has competed in numerous national championships, including the 2022 OOFOS U.S. Gymnastics Championships in Tampa, Fla. where he finished first in still rings, second in pommel horse, third in all-around and floor and fourth in vault.

He also competed in the 2022 Men's Development Program National Championships in Mesa, Ariz., placing second in still rings, tied for third in vault and fourth in all-around.

He placed first in high bar, second in still rings and third in floor at the 2021 Men's Development Program National Championships, and first in pommel horse and still rings and third in all-around at the 2019 Men's Junior Olympic National Championships.

At age 13, Ngai tied for fourth in vault and parallel bars and placed fifth in all-around at the 2018 Men's Junior Olympic National Championships.

Ngai has also been a member of the Junior National team for four straight years.

Multiple schools tried to recruit Ngai, including Penn State and three-time reigning national champion, Stanford.

He ultimately decided to be an Illini because, "of its unrivaled team chemistry. The group is filled with a bunch of guys who are close and yet willing to challenge each other to be the best possible version of themselves. Illinois also has an amazingly skilled coaching staff and a top notch computer science program."

"Preston is a top five all-around athlete and doesn't have a weak event," Ribeido said. "While most all-around athletes have either pommel horse or still rings as their weakness, Preston has both of those events as his strength. With that, combined with his explosive and quick twitch power on floor and high bar, Preston will be an athlete that could win any event on any given day. Preston is also primed to explode onto the college scene. He is extremely intelligent and passionate about gymnastics and his goals. These tools make him a dangerous weapon to threaten the top of the all-around podium in the years to come."

Vahe Petrosyan | All-Around | Los Angeles, Calif.

Petrosyan trained at Gymnastics Olympica with coaches Paul Sargsyan and Capri Sano, who are arguably some of the best technical coaches in the world. The seasoned all-around competitor is a consecutive four-time All-Around National Champion as well as the all-around champion at the USA Championships.

Petrosyan is not a stranger to competing internationally; he helped win all-around team gold at the 2021 Pan American Championships in Guadalajara, Mexico and team gold at the 2022 DTB Pokal in Stuttgart, Germany

Along with the team gold, Petrosyan also won Individual gold on the high-bar and rings in Germany, along with an Individual all-around gold at the 2021 Pan Am Games in Cali, Colombia.

While he was sought out by fellow Big Ten schools Nebraska and Michigan, Petrosyan chose Illinois because of, "its welcoming and pleasant environment. The gymnastics team and coaches have created a gratifying culture like no other. The gymnastics team and coaches as a whole were all highly passionate and prideful in their work, which is exactly what I was looking for in a team."

"Vahe is arguably the number one All Around athlete in the Nation for the class of 2023," Ribiero said. "He is a silent warrior with a clear, focused vision on making the Olympic Games and has all the tools needed to become an Illini legend. Vahe has a beautiful gymnastics line, high difficulty, a full commitment to his training and goals, and brings a fearless approach to learning new skills which is critical in pursuing the highest level of elite gymnastics. Vahe is going to be a pillar of the Illini Gymnastics program for years to come."

Alex Tapanes | All-Around | Miami, Fla.

Tapanes, who joins the Illini from the east coast, was a member of the Florida Gymnastics Training Center where he was coached by Jorgie Valdes.

After battling injuries, Tapanes has made a giant comeback and is arguably one of the best all-around athletes. He has seven state champion titles, four regional champion titles and has qualified for the nationals four times. Tapanes is also a three-time qualifier for the Junior Elite and for the Ricky Deci National Camp, a very prestigious camp for gymnastics.

Other schools interested in Tapanes include Ohio State, Oklahoma, Michigan and the U.S. Naval Academy. He chose Illinois, however, because, "the environment felt right. From the campus and dorms, to the team and gym I felt like Illinois could be my home for the next four years. There's lots of potential for me to grow as both a student and an athlete here."

"Alex has shown incredible resiliency in making a comeback from injuries," Ribiero said. "He has the passion, grit, and determination that fit right into our culture that we are building here at Illinois. Alex has every single tool needed to become one of the best all-around athletes in the country. He is powerful, quick, and his lines make gymnastics look easy. Alex brings an amazing positive attitude through the ups and downs of his journey which will help him in his future."

Hein, Silbermann Return to Campus for Football Military Appreciation Day

Lt. Molly Hein remembers seeing an ad for the U.S. Army while watching TV in middle school. The commercial depicted a teenager sitting down to tell their parents that they wanted to enlist in the military, something Hein found "really impactful." Seeing people in uniform at the airport or out in public also fueled her interest, and knowing "the high regard that I looked at them with" inspired her to want to wear that same uniform once she was older.

For Capt. Andreas Silbermann, his inspiration came from his grandfather, who "went through the whole Army life" and eventually retired after 28 years. After observing the way his grandfather's career turned out, how he attacks problems, and his overall personality, Silbermann knew he wanted to follow in his footsteps.

Both Illinois alumni and former Illini student-athletes took different paths to arrive at the same eventual end destination: enlisting in the Army and becoming UH-60 Black Hawk helicopter pilots.

"Aviation is a really unique skill set, and I always push myself to do the hardest things," Silbermann said. "Being on the gymnastics team, I wanted to continue with that and push myself and try to excel in a unique trade. Flying helicopter is a very unique trade to be able to do."

Hein competed at Illinois with swimming and diving from 2016-20, earning three-time Academic All-Big Ten honors and Big Ten Distinguished Scholar accolades as a senior, while Silbermann attended Illinois from 2014-18 and saw action during his junior and senior campaigns on pommel horse while with the men's gymnastics program.

Hein and Silbermann joined the Army ROTC as freshmen while still participating and competing in their respective sports. Both student-athletes earned ROTC scholarships and never considered leaving the program once getting involved.

"It was the service side of things that really motivated me to stay and just the culture," Hein said. "I felt like I was surrounded by a group of like-minded people, which I really enjoyed. The scholarship was kind of just the cherry on top."

They both branched into Army Aviation, and after graduating from Illinois, Hein and Silbermann headed to Fort Rucker, located in southern Alabama, to begin flight school, albeit two years apart.

After completing Basic Officer Leaders Course and Survival, Evasion, Resistance, and Escape Training, Hein and Silbermann progressed to flight school. They initially learned to fly UH-72 Lakotas, which they called the "smaller, basic helicopter that everyone's going to learn how to fly."

The next challenge came six months later in the form of choosing an "advanced airframe," which would be the helicopter both Hein and Silbermann would fly full-time after finishing flight school. They both chose the same aircraft: UH-60 Black Hawks.

"It's the most versatile aircraft that you can fly," Silbermann said. "Civilian sector uses Black Hawks, so if I ever wanted to find a job on the outside of the military, I could easily find one in the civilian sector and fly Black Hawk. They're also just really cool-looking aircraft, and the mission set, being able to interact with the ground force on a smaller scale, is really exciting. In my opinion, I think being a lift asset, being able to pick up heavy things and bring a lot of people to different places, is really exciting."

Both Hein and Silbermann's first official assignment after finishing flight school ended up being the same place: Fort Campbell, located on the border between Kentucky and Tennessee. Hein has been stationed there since February, while Silbermann arrived in April 2020. He was deployed to Europe for 10 months from June 2020 to April 2021, but he has been back at Ft. Campbell ever since.

Hein and Silbermann will return to Champaign ahead of the Illinois football game on Saturday. The pair will fly their UH-60 Black Hawks to campus, and the airframes will be on the west lawn of State Farm Center.

“I’m super excited to be able to fly up to campus, my alma mater, in a helicopter,” Silbermann said. “Being able to land by the State Farm Center, and being able to go to a football game, and just be a part of two awesome things. Being an alumni from the University of Illinois and then now being in the Army, I have a lot of pride in representing the school in something that means a lot to me and the general civilian population.”

Fans are encouraged to see the helicopters and take pictures with both Hein and Silbermann starting about two hours before the 11 a.m. kickoff, who will be in attendance for Military Appreciation Day and will particiapte in the celebrity I-L-L.

“The opportunity to come back in the way that I am is probably one of the coolest things I’m ever gonna do,” Hein said. “I’m so excited, I’m very grateful for the opportunity, and I’m super happy that all the pieces fell into place to make it happen. I have been able to go back to campus, but I haven’t been able to spend a lot of time there. I’m showing off what I love doing, which is flying, and just how cool Army aviation is. Hopefully I’ll inspire some young kid somewhere to see that and be like, ‘You know what? That’s what I want to do,’ and 10 years later, that’s what they go do.”

Ribeiro Selected as Permanent Head Coach of Fighting Illini Men's Gymnastics

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. –One of the most decorated men's gymnasts in Fighting Illini history, Daniel Ribeiro was named the permanent head coach of the program today by UI Director of Athletics Josh Whitman. The head coaching appointment runs through the 2026-27 season and is subject to approval by the UI Board of Trustees at its January meeting.

"In Daniel Ribeiro, we have identified someone who has committed his adult life to the advancement of Fighting Illini men's gymnastics," said Whitman. "Beginning with his time as a student-athlete and continuing through more than a decade on our coaching staff, Daniel has demonstrated a passion for our gymnasts and the Fighting Illini gymnastics tradition. During these last five months, we have seen Daniel step into the head coaching role with a strong vision, confidence, and a willingness to learn. Our team and our alumni have spoken enthusiastically about Daniel's leadership, and we are excited to partner with him as we usher in this new era of men's gymnastics at the University of Illinois."

Ribeiro was named interim head coach this past summer after serving four seasons as assistant coach and seven years as the associate head coach for the Illini, and in November, he promptly signed one of the top recruiting classes in the nation.

"I am extremely humbled and privileged to have been given the opportunity to lead this incredible group of young men," Ribeiro said. "My passion for Illinois is only exceeded by my love for my athletes and a burning desire to win. I cannot thank Josh Whitman and Sara Burton enough for their mentorship and confidence in me, to not only lead this program, but to bring championship success back to Champaign. My staff and I are committed to developing champions in every single one of our student-athletes that will lead to incredible academic, athletic, and personal growth and success. We will not rest until the National Championship Trophy is back with the Illini Family."

Ribeiro earned National Assistant Coach of the Year and Central Region Coach of the Year in 2012 after helping lead the Illini to their fourth-consecutive Big Ten title and first national championship since 1989.

In the 11 seasons combined as an assistant and associate head coach, Ribeiro helped oversee a program that produced seven national champions, 70 All-Americans, 18 Big Ten Champions, two Big Ten Gymnasts of the Year, two Big Ten Freshman of the Year and a Nissen-Emery Award winner.

As a member of the Fighting Illini men's gymnastics team from 2008-11, Ribeiro won two NCAA titles on pommel horse (2009, 2011) and was a three-time captain, starting his sophomore season.

The Chestnut Ridge, New York, native is also a three-time Big Ten pommel horse champion, taking the conference crown in his freshman (2008), junior (2010) and senior (2011) seasons while earning First-Team All-Big Ten accolades in each of those years as well. Ribeiro also captured pommel horse gold at the 2010 U.S. Visa Championships between his junior and senior seasons.

McCool, Skirkey, Anaya Take First Place Finishes in CGA All-Star Games

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. Illinois men's gymnastics trio Connor McCool, Ian Skirkey and Ashton Anaya all earned a first place finish in their respective events in the first-ever College Gymnastics Association All Star Games.

Each gymnast was not only nominated by their coach to compete in the games, but was also chosen by a committee and voted on by fans. The gymnasts pre-recorded their routine and were judged on a ten-point system by the judges in a virtual event.

The All-Star Games had all 15 men's gymnastics schools compete and were divided into the East and West teams: team East included Air Force, Cal, Greenville, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Simpson and Stanford. Team West included: Army, Illinois, Michigan, Navy, Ohio State, Penn State, Springfield, and William and Mary. Four athletes were selected for each event to represent East or West, along with their program.

McCool competed on floor exercise and earned a 9.25 to grab his first place finish.

Skirkey and Anaya earned themselves a solid 9.00 for their first place titles – Skirkey on pommel horse and Anaya still rings.

Two more Illini competed in the All Star Games, senior Evan Manivong and sophomore transfer Amari Sewell. Both competed in vault, Sewell scoring a 9.75, .25 away from a first place finish, and Manivong a 8.75.

Kolak Uses Social Media to Increase Environmental Awareness

Illini men's gymnast senior Dylan Kolak says it's hard to find his niche on social media. Yet, with content ranging from fashion to gymnastics and from travel to weightlifting, Kolak has amassed over 740,000 followers on TikTok and over 85,000 on Instagram after gaining popularity in 2020.

"When I first started to gain popularity on TikTok, primarily back in my sophomore year, I just started posting these videos, and they were getting millions and millions of views," Kolak said. "I was like, 'Wow, this is very, very obtainable, this end goal of being this widescale, respected person that with, obviously, a large audience.' When I first started to, I guess, go viral online, that was the biggest motivation I could have gotten to continue to post."

The accounts, which can be found on both platforms under @Dylan.Kolak, started to generate traction while he was at home during the COVID-19 pandemic. After hitting 50,000 followers on TikTok in the summer 2020, a period during which Kolak consistently posted, he grew to 300,000 by the end of the year. By the end of 2021, he grew to almost 600,000 followers. Though his growth has somewhat slowed, he now sits at almost 750,000.

While Kolak used to focus on his viewership numbers and follower count, he has instead shifted his mentality to simply make content he finds amusing and enjoyable to make. Often getting teammates involved in videos, Kolak enjoys making content and aims to post two to three time every day.

"I really just started to make content and videos that I cared about and that I really found amusing, and funny, and just enjoyable to make," Kolak said. "I stopped really caring about views and if like, 'Oh, this isn't my niche, whatever. This isn't gonna perform well.' I just stopped really caring, and I think that's the mindset that you need to have sometimes with social media."

Kolak does everything for his channel: He brainstorms ideas, writes all the scripts, records, and edits all of his content, all of which can take anywhere from 30 minutes to two hours per day. Now a time-management expert, Kolak says he would rather spend his time being productive, staying busy, and setting himself up for success than sitting around doing nothing.

"These years are probably the most influential and the most important of our lives, so why would I waste that sitting on the couch and watching TV when I could be benefiting myself and setting myself up for success?" Kolak said. "I still try and enjoy my free time and obviously not work too hard. You still need to enjoy things. In my eyes, knowing that I've gotten a lot more done and been productive throughout my day just makes the little free time I have all the more enjoyable."

Kolak, an integrative biology major, wants to use his platform to generate attention toward climate-change related issues, like coral reefs and global warming. Looking to have a successful career in marine biology and ocean sciences, Kolak says having a large following will help him raise awareness and potentially build some funding to achieve those goals.

Now working toward obtaining scuba certification, Kolak will soon start shooting videos underwater and make more content about the environment, especially since he plans on moving to one of the coasts – potentially southern California or Hawaii – after graduation.

With his accounts continuing to grow and attract more attention, Kolak is garnering interest and ultimately working toward his goals of changing the world.

"I'll have people that will listen to me," Kolak said. "If I can grow as much as I possibly can, in my eyes, I just feel like I'm going to be able to make so much more of an impact and a change on the population and society in general."

McCool Lands in Top-10 All-Time Titles in Loss to Ohio State

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Senior Connor McCool secured his 11th title with a 14.150 performance in the 401.000-399.200 loss to Ohio State Saturday afternoon. The title win puts him in the Top-10 All-Time Titles list, tied with C.J. Maestas, who competed from 2012-2015.

Titles are unique to Illinois men's gymnastics, created by head coach Daniel Ribeiro in 2012. Ribeiro then backlogged every event winner in program history and titles have been recorded ever since.

Illinois' loss to Ohio State is just the second of the season, putting them at an 8-2 mark, and first in conference play, putting them at 1-1.

"Sometimes you have an off day," Ribeiro said. "Our energy was strong and not a single miss we had was pressure based, which means we just need to continue building our preparation. The more prepared we are, the less likely mistakes will happen. This will fuel us through the bye."

The Illini had a strong floor performance, sweeping the first three spots. McCool got the title with a 14.150 with Amari Sewell close behind him with a 14.000 and a new career-high. Michael Fletcher got the third place slot with a 13.900.

The Orange and Blue was again in the top three on pommel horse, topped by Ian Skirkey with a season-high 14.900. Max Farkhadau took second with a 13.850 and David Pochinka was third with a 13.650.

Ashton Anaya not only took the title, but also broke his career-high with a 14.800 on still rings. Josh Cook, who competed in the all-around, was the next highest scoring Illini with a 13.600.

The Illini fumbled a bit on vault, with Evan Manivong getting the highest Illinois score with 14.200.

Will Hauke had a standout performance on parallel bars, taking the title and a 14.000. Fletcher was a step behind him, scoring a 13.900.

Illinois finished the day on high bar, with Manivong securing a 13.600.

As a team, Illinois will have a three week bye, coming back with a tri meet against No. 1 Stanford and Cal on March 4. As for McCool, Skirkey and Fletcher, the trio will compete in the Winter Cup on Feb. 25-26 to try to secure a spot on the US Championship team.

Six Past, Present and Future Illini Set for Winter Cup

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. –Illinois men's gymnastics will be well represented at the upcoming Winter Cup, with a combined six current, former, and future Fighting Illini ready to compete Friday through Sunday at Freedom Hall in Louisville, K.Y.

Fighting Illini grad students Michael Fletcher and Ian Skirkey, and senior Connor McCool will represent the Orange and Blue alongside program alumnus Alex Diab and Class of 2023 signees Brandon Dang and Vahe Petrosyan.

Diab has competed in the Winter Cup all four years of college, starting in 2016 when he placed eighth on still rings. In 2017 he tied for sixth on floor, in 2018 he placed second on still rings, in 2019 he placed 10th on floor and vault and second in still rings. In his post-Illinois career in 2021, he placed 15th on floor, 14th on vault and first on still rings. In 2022, he placed fifth on floor and first on still rings.

This will be Fletcher's fourth time competing in the Winter Cup for the Illini, with his first time in 2019 where he placed sixth on pommel horse, eighth on vault and 15th on high bar. In 2021, he placed 14th on floor and pommel horse and second on vault. Last year, Fletcher placed ninth on floor, sixth on pommel horse and 12th on the parallel bars.

McCool has yet to compete in the Winter Cup, however, he is third in the country on floor and has won 11 floor titles over the course of his career.

This is also the first time for Skirkey even though he was crowned the 2021 Pommel Horse National Champion. He is also second in the country on pommel horse and has two titles wins this season and eight in total.

About the Winter Cup

The 2023 Winter Cup is a qualifying event to the 2023 U.S. Gymnastics Championships. The Winter Cup will also culminate in the selection of the Men's Junior and Senior National Teams to be named following the competition.

The Winter Cup serves as an opportunity to earn more National Points to qualify to compete in the U.S. Gymnastics Championships – a top-tier gymnastics meet with the most outstanding gymnasts in the country – in August. More information about the Winter Cup can be found here.

Who competes?

Athletes can earn a spot in the the Winter Cup in one of three ways:

1. Competing in the 2022 U.S. Championships last August, and earning at least one National Team Point (Diab, McCool, Petrosyan, and Skirkey).

2. Qualifying from one of the four designated qualifying meets (Dang).

3. Submitting a petition, a waiver requested when an athlete is injured, and having it be accepted (Fletcher).

What is the National Point System?

National points are based on a gymnast's finishes in the meet:

1st = 11 points,

2nd = 10 points

3rd = 9 points

4th = 7 points

5th = 6 points

6th = 5 points

7th = 4 points

8th = 3 points

9th = 2 points

10th = 1 point

The program skips from nine points (third place) to seven points (fourth place) to provide greater emphasis on finishing in the top three on each event.

The total of national points earned determines if the athlete makes the U.S. Championships in August.

The first day of the championships (March 31) will be the team competition with the second day (April 1) being individual competition.

The Illini will compete against the five teams in the Big Ten Championships, hosted by Ohio State.

The Illini finished the season 2-2 in conference competition and finished tied for second. Illinois proved everyone wrong with this finish as they were voted to come in last in the Big Ten in the pre-season polls.

No. 4 Fighting Illini Men's Gymnastics Takes Fourth at Big Ten Championships

COLUMBUS, Ohio – The fourth-ranked Fighting Illini men's gymnastics team took fourth place at 2023 Big Ten Championships in Columbus, Friday night, posting a team score of 409.40. Graduate student Michael Fletcher took fourth in the all-around with 82.20, his second-highest score of the season.

"The place we finished tonight really doesn't reflect the performances we saw from our guys," head coach Daniel Ribeiro said. "Every single team showed up tonight and the top four teams were within three points. We had a 94 percent hit ratio. There is absolutely nothing that we should be upset about. We will head into event finals tomorrow night with our head held high, but with something to prove. We are eager to take home some event finals hardware."

The Illini started the meet strong on vault setting a new program record with a 72.60. Evan Manivong and Fletcher led the team with 14.650 scores and Josh Cook scored a career best 14.45. That score, along with the team's 66.95 on parallel bars and 67.050 on high bar, kept Illinois leading the pack through the first three rotations.

Graduate student David Pochinka posted the team's highest parallel bars mark with a 14.65, which was the third highest of the meet. Freshman Tate Costa was the team leader on high bar with a 13.65.

Three Illini Men's Gymnasts Win Big Ten Event Titles

COLUMBUS, Ohio – For the first time since the 2017 season, three Fighting Illini men's gymnasts won Big Ten titles in the event finals at the 2023 Big Ten Championships. Connor McCool took the title on floor exercise, followed by Ian Skirkey on pommel horse and Ashton Anaya on still rings.

"The boys let loose and dominated tonight," head coach Daniel Ribeiro said. " This is what an entire year's worth of hard work is all for. These guys deserved every spot in the finals and all five medals won. This is a huge confidence builder for NCAAs. The job is not done yet, but today was definitely a win for the Illini."

McCool took the floor as the second to last performance of the night and put together a near perfect routine to score a 14.725. Paul Barnes of Penn State, the only gymnast to score higher on the event the night before, followed McCool but only pulled out a 14.3. McCool becomes the first floor exercise Big Ten event winner since C.J. Maestas in 2015.

As the top score from team finals on pommel horse, Skirkey was the anchor performance, needing to better a 14.15. He blew away the competition with a 14.80 and becomes Illinois' first horse conference event winner since Brandon Ngai in 2017. Skirkey was one of three qualifiers on the event. Sophomore Max Farkhadau earned second-team All-Big Ten honors after finishing third with a 13.825.

In the very next routine, Anaya took the still rings, also as the last performer in the event. His 14.475 beat out the 14.175 from Donavon Hewitt of Ohio State. The sophomore becomes the Big Ten still rings champion for the second straight season.

The Illini had three qualifiers on vault with Evan Manivong scoring the Illini's top mark of the finals with a 14.60, placing fourth. He was followed by Amari Sewel's 14.425, which was good for sixth, and Michael Fletchers' seventh-place 14.40.

Senior David Pochinka was the only Illini representative on parallel bars, placing third with a score of 14.225, also earning him second-team All-Big Ten.

Fletcher was the sole Illini qualifier on high bar, and set a new season-best mark with his 13.950, placing seventh.

Skirkey, Anaya Earn National Titles at NCAA Championships

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. –Graduate student Ian Skirkey (pommel horse) and sophomore Ashton Anaya (still rings) both were named national champions at the NCAA Championships Saturday night in State College, Pa.

This is the first time since 2012 Illinois has two national champions when C.J. Maestas won the still rings title and Paul Ruggeri won the vault title. This is also Skirkey's second time winning the pommel horse national title, the first being in 2021.

The Illini also secured third place for the first time since 2018 with their season-high score of 415.590.

"This was a magical finish to an already incredibly successful season," head coach Daniel Ribeiro said. "This was a selfless team with a special energy and it all came together on the final night at NCAAs. We could not have done this without the help and support of my assistant coaches and support staff. This was an all out team effort and everyone deserves credit for this special season."

Illinois started off on still rings where Anaya secured a 14.800 and kept the number one spot the whole competition. Josh Cook also had a notable score with a 13.700 with Michael Fletcher scoring a 13.500 and Ethan Boder securing a 13.400.

Amari Sewell not only broke his career-high with a 14.866 on vault, but earned fourth place in the event. Connor McCool and Evan Manivong notably scored a 14.500 with Fletcher scoring a 14.466.

Manivong notched the top high bar score with a 13.466, with Tate Costa right behind him with a 13.433.

McCool earned his All-America honor with seventh-place 14.533 floor performance. Cook secured a note-worthy 13.933 with Sewell securing a 13.833.

Skirkey, who needed a 14.333 or better to win the title, landed a monster score of 15.133 to capture his second national title. Sebastian Ingersoll, who only competed twice this season, secured a 13.966, good enough for fourth place. Max Farkhadau was right behind his teammate, scoring a 13.833 and securing fifth place.

Fletcher also competed in the all-around and scored a 81.331 for seventh place.

The nine All-Americans is the most top-eight finishers Illinois has received since 2014, when the Illini secured 10.

Ashton Anaya captured one of two individual national titles for the Fighting Illini at the 2023 NCAA Men's Gymnastics Championship last Saturday evening in State College, Pa.

Anaya claimed top honors on the still rings, while teammate Ian Skirkey clinched the individual title on the pommel horse, giving the Illini two individual national champions for the first time since 2012 (CJ Maestas, still rings; Paul Ruggeri, vault).

Anaya's performance on the still rings set the tone early, as the Orange and Blue went on to score a season-high 415.590 points to secure a third-place national finish as a team, the squad's best since 2018.

"This was a magical finish to an already incredibly successful season," head coach Daniel Ribeiro said. Anaya's performance also secured his second consecutive NCAA All-America honor, and added to his already lengthy list of career accomplishments which includes 2022 and 2023 Big Ten still rings titles.

John Redmond: Entrepreneurial Fortitude

By Mike Pearson

FightingIllini.com

Thursday, April 14, 2022 has a big red star beside it in John Redmond's professional journal.

That was the day that the former Fighting Illini gymnast's company, InspectIR Systems, was granted authorized emergency use by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for the first-ever breathalyzer test to quickly detect the presence of COVID-19.

Remember how we all lined up to get a nasal swab sample to see if we had contracted the dreaded disease? Well, Redmond's InspectIR COVID-19 Breathalyzer made that method so "old school."

His apparatus analyzes the gases in the breath and picks up the specific chemical signature of SARs-VoV-2 infection. Once infected, the cells produce a biological reaction that generates gases that are captured in the blood stream and transferred to the lungs and exhaled in the breath. Within three minutes, thanks to the InspectIR Breathalyzer, patients have a nearly definitive answer.

"It is everything that customers and our investors had asked for," said Redmond, co-founder and President of the Frisco, Texas based company. "The challenge that we faced was the timeframe in which we were approved. By the middle of last April, it was kind of the beginning of fatigue that was setting in around COVID. Now, the reality is that people are only testing symptomatic folks. Part of the excitement for our solution is that asymptomatic spread is a thing."

The process of securing FDA approval requires a great deal of patience.

"We reached out to the FDA and had our first conversation with them in July of 2020," Redmond said. "We were all over the country testing people, testing them against other known respiratory infections, doing genomic sequencing to see not only it they had COVID but what kind of COVID. There were analytical and precision studies. It was a very rigorous process. Altogether, the process to get approval took about 20 months."

Redmond maintains that one of the many challenges of the current COVID testing is the frequency of both false positives and false negatives.

"Since the beginning of the crisis, accuracy has always been a major issue," he said. "Our device is specifically designed for trace detection in the high parts-per-trillion. We are confident that it will provide the most accurate results. Market-wide, there are only a few viable, non-invasive detection tools that are available."

So, within the next several months, what are Redmond's goals for InspectIR?

"Ideally, with one single breath, we want to be able to let people know what health issues they're dealing with," he said. "Do you have COVID or the flu or RSV (respiratory syncytial virus) or whatever? We don't have to take blood or urine or saliva samples. Just take a deep breath, blow into our instrument, and let it do its work. And within three minutes, you'll have your answer. Then, go see a doctor to get a treatment."

Other long-term goals of InspectIR are discovering ways to detect gastric, lung and breast cancer, and also identifying an individual's usage of cannabis and opiates.

Originally an accounting major and ultimately an administration/marketing graduate from the University of Illinois' Gies School of Business, Redmond says his formula for success begins with a simple, age-old axiom: hard work and dedication.

"Knowing how to roll up your sleeves, knowing how to set goals and, and working towards those goals are things I believe in," Redmond said. "My upbringing, my education, and being an athlete at the University of Illinois have all combined to create my entrepreneurial fortitude."

Redmond gives ample credit to the educational instruction he received at the U of I.

"Looking back, I can see that our business school professors were preparing us for real life, exposing us to market research and case studies that we could eventually apply in our careers," he said.

As a former gymnast and gym owner, Redmond is cognizant that his sport, especially men's gymnastics, is in a tenuous place.

"When you consider the mind, spirit and body connection and when you think of strength and flexibility and speed and quickness all embodied in one thing, the ultimate athlete is a male gymnast," he said. "Historically, Illini gymnastics has been our most successful program, so to have something that has been so fundamental to be at risk really bothers me."

'It's A Pretty Big Stepping Stone': Top-Ranked McCool Wins Big Ten Title, NCAA Specialist of the Year

As Connor McCool stepped onto the floor on the second day of competition at the 2023 Big Ten Men's Gymnastics Championships, his confidence could not have been higher. Ranked the top floor specialist in the country, a mark he achieved for the first time just two weeks prior, McCool headed into the postseason looking to win the first Big Ten title of his career.

After postseason competitions were canceled during his freshman season, McCool finished in a tie for second place at the 2021 championships, ending his night only 0.150 points behind event champion and future Olympian Shane Wiskus. The following year, McCool once again secured a runner-up finish, giving him additional motivation heading into his senior season.

As the second-to-last competitor of the day, McCool knew the score he needed to beat in his third appearance at the Big Ten Championships.

"I've been doing really well in competitions this year, so the expectation was I was gonna go in and hit," McCool said. "I knew that I had competition. I knew it wasn't gonna be an easy road, but I knew that I was positioned well if I hit my set to the best of my ability."

Sticking his passes and his dismount, McCool earned a 14.725, the highest score he's ever achieved in a Big Ten postseason meet, to finish atop the podium and bring home the hardware. He was one of three Illini gymnasts who won a Big Ten individual title, alongside Ian Skirkey on pommel horse and Ashton Anaya on still rings.

"It means a lot because that's something I've always looked at," McCool said. "I've seen other people win Big Ten titles every year that I've been here so far. It's a pretty big stepping stone. In a really competitive conference, it's a big honor. Walking in my freshman year, that's not something I thought I was going to be competitive for. In my sophomore year, I realized I was close, and it was something I've always been working towards.

"It felt like a stepping stone: Big Ten champ and then national champ. That felt like the natural order of things, so this feels like a big check off my list of goals to my end goal of being an NCAA champion."

McCool's conference title has been a long time in the making. His family made the move from Pennsylvania to Missouri, which gave him the opportunity to train in better facilities with more resources. Training in a gym in St. Louis, McCool connected with former Illinois gymnast Mike Filla, who was his club coach and introduced him to the world of college gymnastics. McCool realized early on in his high-school career that he would not be able to compete as an all-arounder at the collegiate level, and he instead focused on becoming a floor specialist.

His recruiting class was among the first to start using social media during the recruitment process, and he says he would tag college coaches in posts to try to get their attention while also regularly texting and emailing.

"There were a couple of schools that were showing interest, and I think that was because I wouldn't leave the coaches alone," McCool said. "Once I got their numbers, I was sending them texts with skill updates every single week. I found that they really wanted to see consistency in competitions, and I was showing that."

Though he did not receive any Division-I scholarship offers out of high school, McCool opted to join Illinois as a walk-on, committing to the Orange and Blue in October of his senior year.

"Illinois was the first one to offer me a spot," McCool said. "It was early in the recruiting process, and I was probably one of the first guys in the class to commit. I jumped on it right away because I really enjoyed my trip and the experience of the team versus some other schools that I'd looked into. I didn't see the sense of community at other places that I saw here. I was happy I did get the opportunity because after the whole recruiting process I went through, this is where I wanted to be."

In his first year in Champaign, McCool knew he and the rest of the incoming freshmen class would take on big roles in their debut collegiate seasons following the graduation of several Illini men's gymnastics legends, including two-time NCAA champion Alex Diab. McCool competed in seven meets on floor and vault and won two event titles during the 2020 campaign, which was eventually cut short due to COVID-19.

Despite not having a full season under his belt, McCool was voted one of three team captains ahead of his sophomore year. Though he was relatively inexperienced as a leader, he quickly earned the trust and confidence of his teammates and coaches, and he has served as a team captain for each of the last three seasons.

"I was very unsure because I didn't really know what I was doing," McCool said. "I think I was thrown into it a little bit. People saw I had potential in that. I had a lot of growing to do. It definitely was scary because I didn't really know what I was doing. I definitely didn't do it perfectly, but I learned a lot about myself. It was cool that people trusted me so early in the process.

"It's cool that with each year, people have gained more trust in me, and they're comfortable with me in the position, which is awesome. The guys have really taken me well, especially through that learning period when I did make mistakes. It obviously wasn't held over my head too much because I'm still here in the role."

After earning back-to-back Second-Team All-Big Ten honors in 2021 and 2022, McCool secured first-team accolades this season, while his 15 floor titles across his four-year career rank tied for fifth-most in program history.

McCool has already decided that he will be returning to Illinois for a fifth season. With a Big Ten individual title now checked off McCool's college gymnastics checklist, all that's left is to win a national title. Holding the No. 1 floor specialist ranking for multiple weeks of the regular season and being named College Gymnastics Association's Specialist of the Year, McCool has gone from a walk-on to a Big Ten champ, has used that top ranking as added motivation and comfort in his search for ultimate glory.

"I know I have a lot of capability, I have trust in my own abilities, and it was just proving it to everybody else because I wasn't a very big, well-known name coming in," McCool said. "I appreciate the coaches recognizing and appreciating my contributions pretty quickly. Coming in ahead of my freshman summer, I struggled a lot just because it was a completely new training program, way harder than I was used to. Once I started figuring things out my freshman year, I was kind of swinging.

"I've been ranked relatively high on the floor since I got here, so I know where I'm at. Some people don't have the opportunity to compete, and it's cool that I've been able to push myself to this level."
