

2025-26 FIU MEN'S BASKETBALL RECORD BOOK

THE OCEAN BANK CONVOCATION CENTER

Since the opening of FIU's home court on February 1, 1986 - currently known as the Ocean Bank Convocation Center - opponents quickly learned that winning basketball games on the Modesto A. Maidique Campus would be no easy task. It began early in 1986-87, while FIU was still a fledgling Division II program, with an overtime win over Dartmouth, and continued with exciting Division I victories over Michigan from the Big Ten, Trans America Athletic Conference champion College of Charleston, in-state rival USF and the longest game played in the NCAA in 2004-05 when the Panthers outlasted Sun Belt Conference foe Arkansas-Little Rock, 118-114, in five overtimes.

FIU's best season at home was 1997-98 when the Panthers won a school-record 13 games. The longest winning streak in arena history was 18 from February 15, 1997 through November 29, 1998. The 2012-13 season marked the fifth time that the program had posted double-digit wins in the venue.

A full array of activities has taken place in this 94,000 square-foot multi-purpose facility. Sporting events, concerts, banquets, trade shows, graduations, convocation ceremonies and other University and community events have all been accommodated.

In the Spring of 2011, construction on the east side of the Panther's home began. An 11,000 square-foot addition was completed in Decmeber of 2011 and features added concessions, box offices, restrooms, meeting rooms and merchandising areas. Two large gameday suites were also completed. Each is approximately 1,000 square feet in size.

The main court is a Cincinnati Robbins perma-cushion maple wood basketball floor, made up of some 19,000 square feet of wood. Four retractable basketball backboards allow for the floor to be divided into two practice courts, while Spalding portable basketball standards are used for intercollegiate competition. The Arena has an overall seating capacity of 5,000.

In mid-April of 2013, FIU completed the resurfacing of the court. With its one-of-a-kind look the new floor, featuring a beach scene, is something that is expected to attract recruits and provide a home-court advantage. On Aug. 23, 2013, FIU announced a partnership with Lime Fresh Mexican Grill (Downtown Dadeland & West Kendall) in which the "Not Your Average Burrito Joint" secured the naming rights for the court at, what was then known as, FIU Arena.

During the 2014-15 season, FIU used a temporary floor covering up the beach-themed court. The floor came from the Honda Center in Anaheim, Calif., which was used for the 2014 NCAA Tournament. Following the conclusion of the 2014-15 campaign, the floor was replaced and the beach-themed court returned.

The facility added a brand-new score board and video board in the Spring of 2011. At 24 feet by 16 feet, the state-of-the-art Daktronics scoreboard features a 14 feet by 9 feet video board which will play highlights, advertisements and be a major part of the game day experience at the Ocean Bank Convocation Center.

Support areas include an equipment room, training room and eight different, full-service dressing rooms. Academic space in the building includes three classrooms, and physiology, computer and kinesiology laboratories.

In the summer of 2010, construction on the facilities athletic lockerrooms took place. The crown jewel of that project was the completion of the men's and women's basketball locker rooms. Each NBA-quality locker room is 2,000 square feet and feature a team meeting room and separate coaches locker rooms.

The Ocean Bank Convocation Center also houses offices and board rooms for athletic administrators and a state-of-the-art, 4,500 square-foot athletic training center that opened in 2006.

The facility features a hydrotherapy room, which includes custom-built, underground hot and cold plunge pools and a therapy pool with an underwater treadmill, a doctor's examination room, functional training area, rehabilitation area with 12 treatment tables and an audio-visual system that includes high definition and flat screen televisions for comfort and convenience.

During the summer of 2017, in addition to the installation of 2,046 new seats, including 602 chair back seats, the building also received a new name - Ocean Bank Convocation Center - through a multi-year deal with the Miami-based financial institution.

RETIRED NUMBERS | CARLOS ARROYO

CARLOS ARROYO

Former FIU star Carlos Arroyo has lived his dream of playing in the NBA and overseas, wrapping up the 2012-13 season with Turkish club Galatasaray S.K.. A native of Fajardo, Puerto Rico, he is arguably the most successful Puerto Rican player in that country's professional basketball history.

A four-year letterman with the Panthers (1997-2001), Arroyo still holds a number of individual school marks. He is the Panthers' career-record holder in assists (459), and is the only FIU player to have 600 points in a single season when he scored 615 during his 2000-01 senior campaign. Currently, Arroyo is the second all-time leading scorer in FIU basketball history with 1,600 career points, behind only Dwight Stewart. Arroyo was a two-time member of the All-Sun Belt Conference team and was selected to the 2001 SBC Championship All-Tournament team.

Arroyo's professional career began when the Toronto Raptors signed him in October 2001, making him only the fifth Puerto Rican in history to play in the NBA. He moved on to the Denver Nuggets later that season, seeing limited action in 37 games over the course of the year.

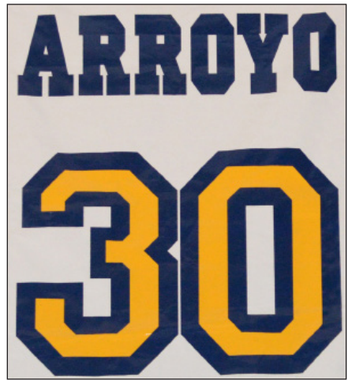

But his fortunes changed over the summer of 2002 after signing a free agent contract with the Utah Jazz as part of a plan to replace the future Hall of Fame point guard John Stockton.

After signing a one-year contract with the Jazz for 2003-04, Arroyo started 71 games that year and by November, he ranked 11th in the league in assists per game. On Nov. 14, 2003, he scored a career-best 30 points against the Minnesota Timberwolves, breaking the record for most points ever scored by a Puerto Rican in an NBA game. He ended the year averaging 12.6 points and his 8.5 assists per 48 minutes ranked 15th best in the league.

In January 2005, Arroyo was traded to the Detroit Pistons, playing a role in the Pistons' drive toward a second-consecutive NBA championship title that ended with a seven-game series loss against the San Antonio Spurs. Midway through the 2005-06 season, he was dealt to the Orlando Magic where he saw action in 27 games and averaged 10.8 points and nearly three assists per contest.

Five seasons ago, playing with Maccabi Tel-Aviv of the Israeli Basketball Super League, Arroyo averaged 15.3 points and 5.8 assists in helping his team win the league championship, and being named the Finals MVP.

In October of 2009, Arroyo signed as a free agent with the Miami Heat.

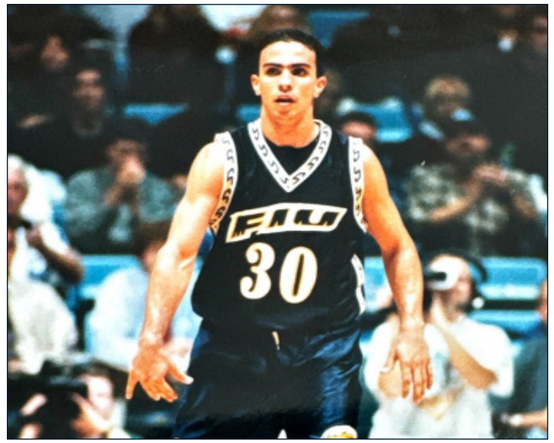

During the 2009-2010 season, Arroyo averaged 6.1 points, 1.8 rebounds and 3.1 assists per 48 minutes.

During the 2010-11 season, Arroyo began the year with the Heat, where he appeared in 49 games, serving as the team's starting point guard 42 times. He averaged 5.6 points and 2.0 assists per 48 minutes with the Heat before signing with the Celtics in March of 2011. Arroyo appeared in 15 games with Boston, averaging 4.8 points-per-contest.

In 2011-2012, Arroyo led Turkish club Beşiktaş Milangaz to the 2012 league championship, averaging 14 points and 4.5 assists-per-game. He also led his squad in winning the Eurochallenge, while avergaing 10.7 points and 3.6 assists-per-game. Arroyo was invited to play in the league's all-star game where he contributed 13 points, two rebounds and 13 assists. He hit the game-winning 3-pointer to lead his team to a 140-139 victory.

Three seasons ago, Arroyo helped Galatasaray win the TBL championship after defeating Banvit B.K. 76–58 in the final series. Arroyo scored 15 points and had eight assists in the game. This was Arroyo's second championship in the TBL, after winning in 2012 with Beşiktaş.

Most recently, Arroro returned to his native Puerto Rico where he signed a contract on March 16, 2015 to play for Cangrejeros de Santurce. He averaged 17.4 points in 39 games during the season. He then signed a one-year deal with FC Barcelona Lassa, on July 24, 2015 and help guide the legendary European team to the ACB Finals before losing to rival Real Madrid, 91–84, in Game Four.

Despite his professional accomplishments, Arroyo is probably best known for his participation in the 2004 Olympic Games in Athens, Greece. First, he carried the national flag representing Puerto Rico in the opening ceremonies and then led his national team to a stunning 92-73 victory over Team United States, scoring 25 points, dishing out seven assists and making four steals in the winning effort. Arroyo was awarded with All-Olympic honors.

Arroyo remains the toast of his homeland and is considered one of the best international point guards. During the 2004 Olympics Arroyo led the Puerto Rican Men's National Team throughout the basketball competition averaging 18 points-per-game overall.

During the 2006 FIBA World Championship, Arroyo averaged 21.2 PPG, 4.6 rebounds-per-game and 5.2 assists-per-outing in five games for the Puerto Rican team. Arroyo finished tied for fourth in points-per-game during the 2006 FIBA World Championship with fellow Puerto Rican teammate Larry Ayuso. Arroyo played at the 2008 Olympic Qualifying Tournament, but wasn't able to compete in the semifinals and finals due to a leg injury. At the 2010 CentroBasket, Arroyo was reassigned to the regular shooting guard position, while J.J. Barea replaced him as the starting point guard. Puerto Rico won its group, defeating Panama in semifinals and the Dominican Republic in the finals to win the gold medal. Arroyo had averages of 6.3 assists-per-game and led the tournament in points-per-game with 19.3, earning him inclusion in the tournament's All-Star Team. He was selected the event's Most Valuable Player.

It was one of seven NBA teams that Arroyo would play for during his professional career.

RAJA BELL

Forward Raja Bell was a mainstay on NBA rosters for 13 seasons.

Bell enjoyed a break-out year in 2005-06 as a member of the Phoenix Suns. He became a solid contributor, starting all 79 games in which he played and finishing with 14.7 points per game in 37.5 minutes. Bell scored his NBA career-best 31 points in a game against the Seattle Supersonics on Jan. 22, 2006, and ranked third in the NBA behind only Ray Allen and Gilbert Arenas with 197 three-point field goals. He did even better in 2006-07 with 205 total 3-pointers, tying Arenas for the league lead.

Bell emerged as a strong defender off the bench in the 2001 Playoffs for the Philadelphia 76ers in their run to the NBA Finals, guarding stars like Milwaukee's Ray Allen and Los Angeles' Kobe Bryant. His coming out performance was in Game 7 of the Eastern Conference Finals when he scored 10 points in nine minutes, helping propel the 76ers to the conference championship and a berth in the NBA Finals.

The following season, as a member of the Dallas Mavericks, he started 32 games for a team that set a franchise record for wins and advanced to the Western Conference Finals.

For two seasons after that, he toiled as a member of the Utah Jazz where he established a reputation as a "hard-nosed" defender and a "fierce" competitor. In 2003-04, he was recognized as one of the premier sixth-men in the league while averaging 11.2 points as one of just two Jazz players to see action in all 82 contests.

Before signing a four-year free-agent contract with the Suns, Bell played 63 games in 2004-05 for the Jazz with 32 starts. Averaging nearly 30 minutes of playing time per contest, he finished with 12.3 points-per-game-his highest pro average up to that time-while still playing sterling defense.

During the 2009-10 season, Bell played in five games for the Charlotte Bobcats before being traded to the Golden State Warriors. He appeared in just one game for the Warriors before suffering and season-ending injury. Bell returned to the Jazz as a free agent during the 2010-11 season. That year he appeared in 68 games, starting in 63, while averaging 8.0 points-per-game and 2.6 rebounds-per-contest.

He averaged over 30 minutes of playing time per contest with the Jazz that season. In 2011-12, Bell averaged 6.4 points-per-game for Utah in 34 appearances.

Over his NBA career, Bell has played 706 professional games, with 479 starts, averaging 9.9 points in 28.1 minutes-per-game.

Bell was a fourth-round draft pick (29th overall) by the Yakima Sun Kings in the 1999 CBA Draft and was named to the 1999-2000 CBA All-Rookie Team. He signed as a free agent with the San Antonio Spurs in August 2000, prior to heading back to Yakima for more seasoning and then was signed by Philadelphia on April 16, 2001 where he came into his own.

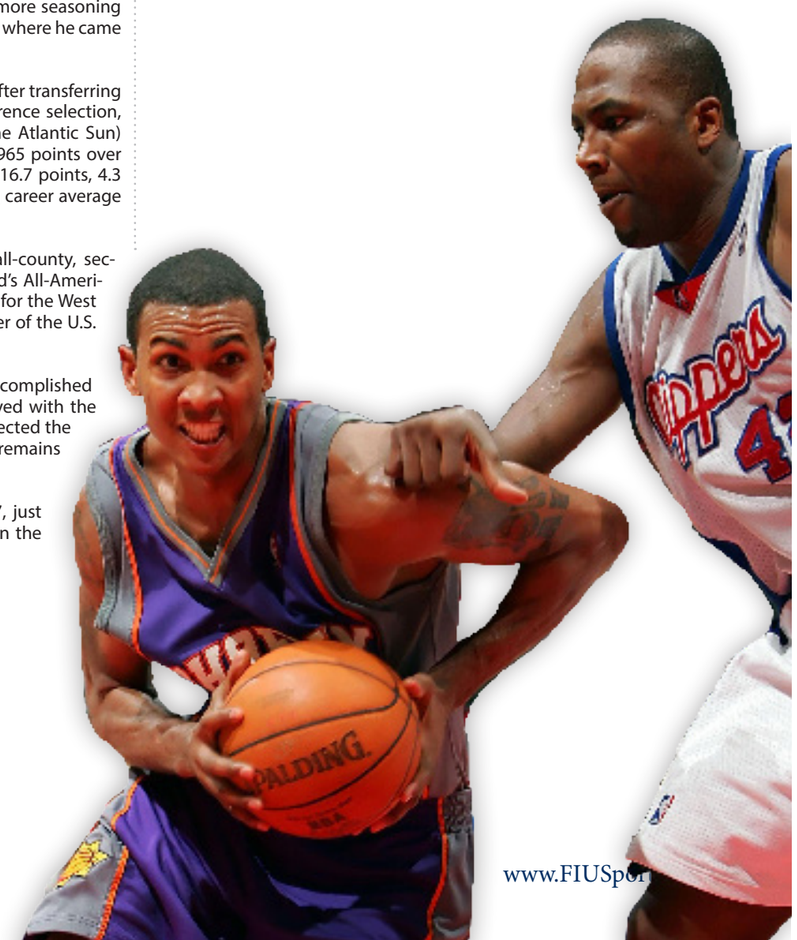

Bell played two seasons with the Panthers (1998-99) after transferring from Boston University. He was a two-time all-conference selection, with the Trans America Athletic Conference (now the Atlantic Sun) as a junior and the Sun Belt as a senior. Bell scored 965 points over his two-year FIU career, which included averages of 16.7 points, 4.3 rebounds and 2.7 assists as a senior, and his 16.6 ppg career average remains third best in Panther history.

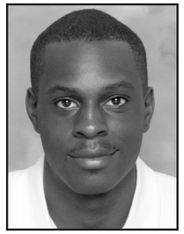

As an amateur, Bell was named first-team all-city, all-county, second-team all-state and honorable mention McDonald's All-America while attending Miami Killian High School, played for the West team in the 1995 Olympic Festival and was a member of the U.S. Virgin Islands National team in 1997-98 and 2003.

Bell is married to the former Cindy Greenman, an accomplished FIU student-athlete in her own right. Greenman played with the Panthers women's soccer team from 1992-96, was selected the 1993 Atlantic Sun Conference Player of the Year and remains one of the program's all-time leading scorers.

The couple had their first child, Dia, on May 2, 2007, just hours before tip-off against the Los Angeles Lakers in the first round of the 2007 NBA Playoffs.

Bell retired on Feb. 13, 2014.

DWIGHT STEWART

Dwight Stewart was the most prolific scorer in FIU men's basketball program history. The Miami native played for the Panthers from 1988 through 1993 and finished his intercollegiate career as the only male player in FIU history ever to score more than 2,000 points.

As a senior, Stewart led the 1992-93 team averaging 16.3 points and finished his career as the solo holder of 30 school records and co-holder of five others. Nearly 15 years later, Stewart still owns or is tied for 14 school marks and his name appears among the top 10 performers in numerous other FIU career- and single-season leader lists.

On February 27, 1993, Stewart became the first basketball player, and second student-athlete in the history of the school, to have his jersey retired. And on Nov. 17, 2006, Stewart was honored again by the university and the athletic department, this time with inclusion as one of five members in the inaugural FIU Athletics Hall of Fame induction class.

Stewart started 117-of-118 games over his collegiate career, scoring 2,101 points for an average of 17.8 points per contest. He was twice named to the first team All-Trans America Athletic Conference (now Atlantic Sun) and was voted the team's Most Valuable Player four times. Stewart also received numerous mentions in publications like USA Today and The Sporting News and was named a preseason All-American by Street & Smith's prior to the 1989-90 season.

Stewart played a major role on what was FIU's finest team in 1992-93 when the Panthers finished with a 20-10 overall record and a TAAC regular season championship. Stewart started all 30 games that season and averaged 16.3 points per game, shooting 50.8-percent from the field and 70.6-percent from the charity stripe. He also contributed an average of 6.4 rebounds per contest and led the team with 36 blocked shots and 38 steals.

Prior to that, he was the first FIU player ever to score 500 points in a season, averaging 18.3 points per game to become the school's all-time leading scorer, breaking the previous mark that had stood for six seasons.

Before enrolling at FIU, Stewart was a two-time all-county performer at Miami Edison High School, leading the Red Raiders to a 26-7 record and a No. 3 state ranking in 1987-88.
