11 FORMER ALL-AMERICANS WILL BE INDUCTED DEC. 7 AT THE WALDORF ASTORIA

Eleven former All-America football players have been named to the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame for 1982.

Chosen by the Foundation's Honors Court, headed by Fred Russell, Vice President of the Nashville Banner, the 1982 Hall of Fame group incredibly includes seven linemen and four backs.

In making the announcement, Vincent dePaul Draddy, the Foundation's Chairman, said that the 11 new electees would be inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame at the Foundation's Silver Anniversary Awards Dinner in New York, December, and enshrined at the Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame at Kings Island, Ohio in the summer of 1983.

Three of the backs chosen were quarterbacks, Heisman Trophy winner Terry Baker of Oregon State, 1960-62, Vito (Babe) Parilli of the University of Kentucky, 1949-51, and Don Meredith of Southern Methodist University, 1957-59. Stanford's brilliant breakaway halfback Hugh Gallarneau, 1938-41, rounded out the group.

Three Ends

The linemen included three ends, Bill Carpenter, Army's fabled Lonely End, 1957-59; Jim Owens of the University of Oklahoma, 1946-49, and Gene Goodreault of Boston College, 1938-40; watch-charm guard Bert Metzger of the University of Notre Dame, 1928-30; burly Bruce Bosley, University of West Virginia tackle; Les Richter, University of California, 1949-51, guard-linebacker, and Merv Pregulman, who played guard, tackle and center for the University of Michigan, 1941-43.

Baker, a native of Pine River, Minnesota, attended high school in Portland, Oregon, where he was All-State in football, basketball and baseball. He was the first Heisman Trophy winner from the Great Northwest in 1962. He played at six-foot three and 195 pounds when he made every All-America team and was named a National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athlete as well. The left-handed field general played three seasons with the Los Angeles Rams, and studied law in the off season. After one year in Canadian Football, Baker retired to devote full-time to his law practice in Portland. He was an honor student in mechanical engineering at Oregon State and twice was on the cover of Sports Illustrated.

Parilli, a native of Rochester, Pennsylvania, was Kentucky's first All-America back in 69 years of competition. He led the SEC in passing for three years when he threw 50 touchdown passes with a completion percentage of 55.9.

The number one draft choice of the Green Bay Packers, he led the Boston Patriots to a divisional title and ended his pro career with 1,552 completions for 22,681 yards and 178 touchdowns. In later years, Parilli has been a longtime assistant coach in pro football and was the head coach of the ill-fated Chicago Winds in WFL. At Kentucky, Parilli, a 6'1", 185 pounder, was labeled by his coach Paul Bryant as having "a keen football mind." He had the instinct to do the right thing, to call the right play at the right time or to change plans at a moments survey of the situation after coming out of the huddle. Parilli also was a magician as a faking, deceptive quarterback, one of the best to ever play the college game.

Pride of Mt. Vernon

Meredith, the pride of Mt. Vernon, Texas, was a six-foot, three-inch, 195 pounder, who sparkled for Bill Meek's Southern Methodist Mustangs, twice winning All-America honors in 1958 and 1959. He later played pro ball for the Dallas Cowboys from 1960 to 1969. At SMU, four times he won wire service Backfield of the Week honors while completing 69.2 percent of his passes for a NCAA record in 1958. He retired from pro football to become a stockbroker in 1969 but a year later launched a spectacular career in television as a sports announcer with ABC-TV and later with NBC-TV as an actor. He helped make Monday Night Football popular in a team which also included USC Hall of Famer Frank Gifford and Howard Cosell, a former Brooklyn attorney, who stashed his law books for a career in radio and television sports.

Gallarneau, a six-foot, 195-pound native of Detroit, went West to win collegiate glory as a member of Clark Shaughnessy's smashing 1940 Stanford backfield, college football's first and most successful "T" formation team. A fast, shifty runner, Hugh played his high school football in Chicago before joining Stanford's "modern" four horsemen backfield; Frankie Albert, Norm Standless, Gallarneau and Pete Kmetovic, which reached its zenith in 1940. Gallarneau scored two touchdowns in the 21-13 victory over Nebraska in the 1941 Rose Bowl. Gallarneau was also the undefeated intercollegiate Pacific Coast light heavyweight boxer in 1938 and the heavyweight boxing champion in 1940.

He served in the Marine Corps during WW II and was discharged as a major after joining the Chicago Bears after graduation. He played in the College All-Star game and played for the Bears in the 1941 and 1942 championship playoff games. He returned to the Bears after the war and played for two years winning All-Pro honors before retiring to devote fulltime to a business career with Marshall Field & Company in Chicago and later for Hart, Schaffner & Mark in 1961 where he became a corporate vice president.

Carpenter, a native of Woodbury, New Jersey, earned nine varsity letters at Springfield High and was captain of three varsity teams. He received 28 scholarship offers but cast his lot with the U.S. Military Academy.

Injured as a sophomore, Carpenter set an Academy record for 22 passes caught for 453 yards, and helped Army post its first undefeated record (8-0-1) since 1946. He captained the 1959 Black Knights and broke his own record with 43 receptions for a total of 591 yards. Carpenter became Colonel Earl (Red) Blaik's Lonely End, never returning to the huddle to get the play.

War Hero

Carpenter served with distinction in Viet Nam receiving the Silver Star, a Distinguished Service Cross, three Air Medals, and an Army Commendation Medal. He was awarded the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame's first Distinguished American Award in 1966 in recognition of his heroic action in combat by turning certain death into miraculous survival. He is currently Brigadier General of the Third Brigade, Ninth Infantry, at Fort Lewis, Washington.

Owens, a native of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, was an All-State high school football player in high school before enrolling at the University of Oklahoma where he won three letters for Bud Wilkinson's Sooners, including All-America acclaim in 1949. Owens played pro football with the Baltimore Colts for four years before joining Paul Bryant's University of Kentucky and Texas A & M staff for two years before being named the head coach of the University of Washington.

Owens, a six-foot, four-inch, 210 pounder in his playing days, was named to Wilkinson's all-time Oklahoma team. His Washington Huskies won two Rose Bowl games while compiling a 68-48-6 mark. He has been successful in business in the Seattle area since leaving intercollegiate athletics.

A PLANE TO CATCH — Veteran Sports Columnist Bob Broeg, also a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame Committee, had a plane to catch following the Foundation's Honors Court meeting in Houston. Wishing Bob a safe trip home are the Foundation's Executive Director Jimmie McDowell (c) and Notre Dame Athletic Director Gene Corrigan, who had accepted a position on the Honors Court while still athletic director at Virginia.

Goodreault, a six-foot, three-inch, 215 pounder, grew up in Haverhill, Massachusetts where he was a high school standout before enrolling at Boston College, where he was a keen blocker, strong defender, and excellent pass receiver, winning All-America acclaim. He joins teammates Charley O'Rourke and Chet Gladchuck in the College Football Hall of Fame. All played key roles in Frank Leahy's ten regular season victories, climaxed by the sensational Sugar Bowl upset victory over Bob Neyland's University of Tennessee.

Goodreault was named to every major All-America team in 1940. He served in the Navy during World War II and also played on Jim Crowley's University of North Carolina Pre-Flight team. He is currently Treasurer of the Donahue-Goodreault Company in Boston, specializing in wool. He lives in Bradford, Massachusetts.

Senior Electee

The senior member of the 1982 Hall of Fame group is also the smallest of the gang. Metzger, a native of Chicago, was another of Knute Rockne's All-America "watch-charm" guards. He was five-feet eight and played at 149½ pounds — not 150 — 149½. He was one of the sparks of the 1930 undefeated Notre Dame national champions. In high school at Loyola Academy, Bert excelled in football, baseball, basketball and swimming.

For years, he was a successful business executive in the dairy foods and paint business. He made all of the major All-America teams as a senior and was also secretary of his class. He coached one year at Catholic University in Washington, D.C., before going into business.

Big Bruce

Bosley, a native of Fresno, California, attended high school in Green Bank, West Virginia. The six-foot, two-inch, 220 pounder, coached by Pappy Lewis, played tackle and end for the Mountaineers, winning All-America honors along with teammate Sam Huff. Bosley was the Southern Conference's Player of the Year as a senior, captain of the All-Conference team and was named outstanding blocker in the league. Twice Bosley was National Lineman of the Week. As a sophomore against

Penn State, he blocked a punt and recovered it for the winning touchdown and at one time in the game, made five consecutive tackles. He was named the AP's Lineman of the Week for his performance in that 20-19 victory over the Nittany Lions.

Bosley later played professional football with the San Francisco 49ers for 13 years and concluded his career the next year with the Atlanta Falcons. He was a perennial Pro Bowl selection and starter. Coaches referred to him as a "coach on the field" as a guard and later as a center. He had been a partner in an electric supply company and also held a real estate license in interstate real estate investments since his playing days. In 1980, Bosley was a NCAA Silver Anniversary honoree.

Richter, a native of Fresno, California played high school football in his hometown before joining Pappy Waldorf's Golden Bears in 1949. He won All-America honors twice and captained both the football and rugby teams. The six-foot, three-inch, 200 pounder played in the East-West Shrine game and the College All-Star game. He kicked 40 points after touchdown in 1951 for a Pacific Coast record and played in two Rose Bowl games. He was valedictorian of his graduating class at Cal before going into the Army during the Korean War. Richter played nine years with the Los Angeles Rams before becoming president of the Riverside Raceway. He was traded by the New York Yankees football team, which became the Dallas Texans, to the Rams for 11 players, an NFL record.

Pregulman, a native of Lansing, Michigan, played guard, tackle and center for Fritz Crisler at Michigan, winning All-America honors. He served in the U.S. Navy for three years and played professional football with the Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers for four years. He served in the U.S. Navy for three years in the South Pacific during World War II, earning four battle stars. The six-foot, two-inch, 220 pounder launched a successful business career and today is the president and chief executive officer of Siskin Steel & Supply Company in Chattanooga.

Pregulman is married and the father of four children. Richter, who now lives in Riverside, California, is married and the father of two children. Bosley now makes his home in Hillsborough, California and is married and the father of three children. Metzger lives in Chicago and is married and the father of four children.

Owens lives in Seattle, is married and the father of three children. Carpenter is married and the father of three children and lives at Fort Lewis, Washington. Gallarneau lives in Northwood, a suburb of Chicago, is married and the father of two children. Meredith lives in Beverly Hills, is married and the father of three children.

Parilli lives in Boston, is married and the father of one son. Baker, married and living in Portland, has two children.

TWO GREAT COACHES ELECTED TO COLLEGE 'HALL', SCHWARTZWALDER, JORDAN JOIN IMMORTALS

RECORDS ALMOST IDENTICAL; BOTH WON PURPLE HEART

Two outstanding college football coaches, with almost identical records, and a combined victory total of 351 wins, have been elected to the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame for 1982.

The late James Ralph (Shug) Jordan of Auburn and Floyd (Ben) Schwartzwalder of Syracuse will join college football's immortal coaches this year, Vincent dePaul Draddy, the Foundation's Chairman of the Board, announced in February.

Jordan will be inducted in a special ceremony on campus at Auburn this Fall. Schwartzwalder will be inducted at the Foundation's Silver Anniversary Hall of Fame Dinner at the Waldorf Astoria, December 7 in New York. Jordan, along with the deceased 1982 player electees, will also be saluted the same evening at the Waldorf Astoria.

Jordan, who died at the age of 69 in 1980 of leukemia, compiled a 175-83-7 record during his 25 years of coaching at his alma mater.

Schwartzwalder coached at Muhlenberg before taking over Syracuse's football fortunes where he compiled a 151-82-3 record and an overall mark of 176 victories, 87 losses and three ties.

Both Schwartzwalder and Jordan had outstanding war records in the service of their country during World War II.

Top War Records

Schwartzwalder rose to the rank of major as a member of the 82nd Airborne Division receiving the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Purple Heart, four battle stars and Presidential Unit citation.

Jordan attained the rank of major as a front line officer who participated in H-Hour in North America, H-Hour in Sicily, D-Day at Normandy and H-Hour in Okinawa — one of the New American soldiers to participate in four of the war's major invasions. Jordan also received the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star.

Schwartzwalder led Syracuse to the national intercollegiate football championship in 1959, to four Lambert Trophies and seven bowl games. He had 22 straight non-losing seasons and developed a great array of All-America performers including Heisman Trophy winner Ernie Davis, Jim Brown, Floyd Little, Roger Davis and Larry Csonka.

Jordan's Tigers played in 12 bowl games and won the National Championship in 1957. His standouts included All-America Pat Sullivan, who also won the Heisman Trophy, Governor Rob James, Jimmy (Red) Phillips, Terry Beasley, Zeke Smith and Tucker Frederickson, among others.

Schwartzwalder, a native of Point Pleasant, West Virginia, attended West Virginia University, receiving his Bachelor's Degree in 1933 and his Masters' in 1935. He played varsity football as a starting center at 153 pounds. Married and the father of two children, Ben is retired and lives in St. Petersburg, Florida. He is also past president of The American Football Coaches Association. His 25-5 record at Muhlenberg led to his invitation to take over

Ben Schwartzwalder

Ralph Jordan "SHUG"

Syracuse's fading football fortunes. He was coached by "Greasy" Neale, a Hall of Famer in his own right, at West Virginia.

Jordan, a native of Selma, Alabama, was a three-sport star at Auburn, excelling as a starting pitcher on the baseball team, a standout center in football and the leading Southern Conference scorer in basketball. He was voted Auburn's most outstanding athlete in 1931-32. He was coached by Chet Wynne. He was married and the father of three children.

THANKS TO THE PRESS — The Foundation's President Dick Kazmaier (r) commends veteran sports authors John Mooney of the Salt Lake City Tribune and Bob Broeg (c) of the St. Louis Post Dispatch for taking time from their busy schedule to serve on the NFFHF Honors Court.

A GOOD TIME HAD BY ALL — Les Unger (l) of the New Jersey Sports Authority, sponsors of the Garden State Bowl, and Ambrose (Bud) Dudley, Executive Director-Founder of the Liberty Bowl in Memphis (r) were congratulated by Tex Thornton of Houston for a job well done in 1981.

FOUR DECEASED ALL-AMERICANS NAMED TO HALL

LLOYD YODER
CARNEGIE TECH

BERNIE SHIVELY
ILLINOIS

EDDIE PRICE
TULANE

COLGATE

ON-CAMPUS INDUCTIONS ARE PLANNED THIS FALL

Four deceased All-American football players were today named to the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame, Vincent dePaul Draddy, the Foundation's Chairman, announced this spring.

They include: John (Count) Orsi, Colgate University, end, 1929-31; Eddie Price, Tulane University, fullback, 1946-49; Bernie Shively, University of Illinois, guard, 1923-26, and Lloyd Yoder, Carnegie Tech, tackle, 1923-26.

All will be inducted in special on-campus ceremonies at their alma mater's home games this Fall.

Orsi, a native of Newark, New Jersey, was captain of the 1931 Colgate team where he was hailed as a "second Benny Oosterbaan" by New York Sports Editor George Trevor. His greatest day came against NYU when he scored the only Colgate touchdown, and then blocked NYU's extra point try in the 7-6 Red Raider victory.

Price, a Consensus All-America back in 1949, held the SEC rushing record for 27 years. A native of New Orleans, Price attended Warren Easton High. He was the offensive spark of Tulane's SEC champion 1949 Green Wave. The five-foot eleven-inch 195-pounder, broke into pro football with the New York Giants, twice winning All-Pro recognition. He held the Giants' rushing record for a decade.

Champ Wrestler

Shively, a four-year starter for the Fighting Illini, won All-America honors in 1926, and was also the Big 10 heavyweight wrestling champion, and was a standout in track. He later coached football, track and baseball at the University of Kentucky before he became athletic director of the Wildcats in 1938.

Yoder, a native of Salem, Ohio, captained the 1926 Carnegie Tech team which upset Knute Rockne's Notre Dame Fighting Irish. Rockne had decided to attend the Army-Navy game and scout the contest, turning the Irish over to his top assistant, Hunk Anderson. It was Notre Dame's only loss of the year.

Yoder, a four-year starter on the football team, was also the president of the student body. He was a Lt. Commander in the Navy during World War II and was a radio and television executive for 40 years with the National Broadcasting Company until his retirement.

Orsi was coached by Andy Kerr and played at five-eleven and 185 pounds. Successful in business, he was president and owner of his firm of manufacturers representatives. Earlier he coached for nine years at his alma mater and lived in Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania. He was married and had three children. He made the AP and Coaches All-America teams in 1931. Orsi died in February of 1978.

Price was coached by Henry Frnka at Tulane after two years of WW II Naval duty. He was a building contractor after his pro football playing days. He was married and the father of four children. Price died July, 1979.

Shively, a native of Oliver, Illinois, helped build the University of Kentucky's athletic program into one of the nation's best, and also is remembered as the man who was the athletic director when Adolph Rupp developed his perennial national basketball champions, and a young Paul Bryant fielded the Wildcats' first SEC football blue ribbon winner. He was married and the father of two children, and died December, 1967.

Top Official

Yoder, who captained the East team in the East-West Shrine game in 1926 and then captained the West team in 1927, later played for the San Francisco Olympic Club, which played a full schedule against Pacific Coast Conference and West Coast Independents. He later worked with Graham McNamee doing the color for the 1928 and 1929 Rose Bowl games. Yoder served as a Pacific Coast football official from 1928 to 1939, and worked Skyline Conference games from 1940 to 1950. He also was an official in the 1932 Olympic Games.

An avid golfer and fisherman, Yoder was coached by Wally Staffen at Carnegie Tech. He was married, and died in 1967.

MILT VALLENS DIES

Milt Vallens, membership secretary of the Foundation's Orange County California chapter, and a long-time member of that chapter's Board, passed away in December. He was honored at the 1982 chapter dinner in Santa Ana, along with the late Hall of Famer Paul Schweigler with scholarships given in their memory. Vallens was an ardent UCLA supporter as well.

TROPHY HUNTERS — The National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame presented its championship trophies to the NCAA Division I-AA, Division Two and Division Three champions and to the NAIA Division One and Two champions at its annual Council Luncheon in Houston in January. Idaho State won the John F. Kennedy Trophy which goes to the NCAA Division I-AA champion. The NCAA Division Two Asa Bushnell Foundation trophy was claimed by Southwest Texas State. Unbeaten Widener College claimed the Foundation's Division Three Amos Alonzo Stagg trophy. The Dwight D. Eisenhower NAIA Division One championship was won by Elon College for the second straight year. There was a tie for the newly-named Foundation Teddy Roosevelt Trophy and co-championship bowls were presented to Austin College and Concordia. The honorees include, front row, left to right, Babe Caccia of Idaho State; Jim Christopherson, Concordia; Larry Kramer, Austin; Lee Smith, Southwest Texas State; Bill Manlove, Widener College; and Alan White, Elon College. Back row, from left, Dr. Myron Coulter, Idaho State; Don Schumacher, General Manager, College Football Hall of Fame; Scotty Whitelaw, Commissioner, ECAC; Jimmie McDowell, the Foundation's Executive Director; Rev. Edmund Joyce, Notre Dame and Fred Russell, Nashville Banner.

PRIME TIMERS — Mike Smith (l), president of the Sugar Bowl, and Dan McNamara, Executive Director of the Orange Bowl, both had excellent games with the national championship at stake New Year's Night. They enjoyed the NFFHF Council Luncheon in Houston.

GOOD COMPANY — Jack Gallagher (c) has written many lines about Hall of Famers Weldon Humble (r) of Rice and Bobby Wilson of SMU over the years. The trio attended the Foundation's Council Luncheon in Houston.

AUBREY DEVINE DIES

Aubrey Devine, Iowa's great All America back and Hall of Famer, died in December.

He won All-America acclaim in 1921 as one of the great Hawkeyes of all time. He was active in the Foundation and played in the early NFFHF West Coast golf tournaments.

HONORED AT ARMY-NAVY GAME — Roger Staubach, Navy's legendary Heisman Trophy winning quarterback, who was inducted into The National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame in New York in December, was also saluted at the Army-Navy game in impressive pre-game ceremonies in Philadelphia last fall. Staubach was presented a Hall of Fame plaque by the Foundation's Executive Director Jimmie McDowell (l) and, in turn, presented the plaque to Admiral Edward C. Waller, Superintendent of the Naval Academy, while a proud wife, Marianne Staubach looks on. The plaque will be on permanent display at the Naval Academy with Navy's other Hall of Famers.

FAREWELL, TEX — Veteran Bowl Official Tex Thornton (c) has resigned as Executive Director of the Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston to enter private business. He gets a sendoff from veteran Houston sports columnist Jack Gallagher (l) and John Mooney of the Salt Lake City Tribune at the Foundation's Council Luncheon in January.

STURDY TENNESSEANS — University of Tennessee Athletic Director Bob Woodruff (l) the Foundation's South Regional Chairman, enjoyed a visit with old friend Timmons Treadwell III of the Liberty Bowl at the annual NFFHF Council Luncheon in Houston. Treadwell is an old duck hunter, whose family helped make Memphis the great city that it is. In addition, to hunting duck, shooting quail, riding to the hounds and chasing Liberty Bowl prospective teams, Treadwell also has unloaded some insurance in his time.
