ELEVEN FORMER ALL-AMERICANS WILL BE INDUCTED DEC. 8; EIGHT LINEMEN INCLUDED IN STAR-STUDDED GROUP

By Jimmie McDowell

Eleven former All-American football players were named to the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame, Vincent dePaul Draddy, Chairman of the Board, announced this spring.

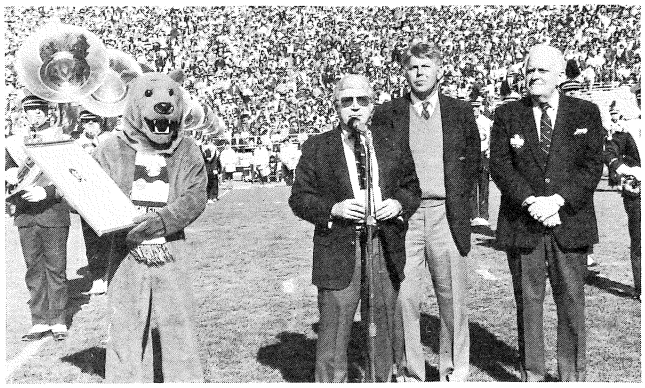

The class of 1987 includes two ends, three tackles, a center, a guard, a roverback, a single wing tailback and two quarterbacks.

They are: Carroll Dale, Virginia Tech, end, 1956-59; Don Heinrich, University of Washington, quarterback, 1948-52; Ted (The Mad Stork) Hendricks, University of Miami, 1965-68; Johnny (Drum) Majors, University of Tennessee, tailback, 1954-56; Mike Reid, Pennsylvania State University, tackle, 1966-70; Richard (Dick) Scott, US Naval Academy, center, 1945-47.

Jim Ray Smith, Baylor University, tackle, 1952-54; Joe Steffy, US Military Academy, guard, 1945-47; Francis (Fran) Tarkenton, University of Georgia, quarterback, 1957-60; George Webster, Michigan State University, roverback, 1964-66, and Ron Yary, University of Southern California, tackle, 1964-68.

They will be formally inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame at the Foundation's 30th annual Hall of Fame Awards Dinner, December 8th at The Waldorf-Astoria in New York City and will be later enshrined at the College Football Hall of Fame at Kings Island, Ohio.

In addition to being outstanding football players, the electees have also had notable careers after their playing days ended which is part of the criteria for election to the College Football Hall. They were chosen by the Foundation's 12-man Honors Court, headed by Fred Russell, Vice President and longtime sports editor-columnist of the Nashville Banner.

Two Time Pick

Dale, a native of Bristol, Tennessee was born in 1938. He played offensive and defensive end for Coach Frank Moseley's Gobblers. A six-foot one-inch 195 pounder, he was a two-time All-America selection. He later played professional football for five years with the Los Angeles Rams and for eight years with the Green Bay Packers. In business he became president of the Sunshine, Inc. in Norton, Virginia, a coal operation involved strictly in surface mining. He is married and the father of three children.

Heinrich, who was born in 1930 in Chicago, won All-America honors, quarterbacking Coach Howie O'Dell's Washington Huskies and was ranked by rival coach, Jess Hill, of Southern California as "the best college passer I ever saw." After serving 21 months in the Army during the Korean War, Heinrich played professional football for seven seasons with the New York Giants and the Dallas Cowboys, and then coached for 16 years with the Giants, Los Angeles Rams, Pittsburgh Steelers, New Orleans Saints and the San Francisco Forty Niners. A sports telecaster in San Francisco, he is the 49ers color analyst. He earlier was a sportscaster in Seattle. Married and the father of four children, he resides in Saratoga, California.

Skyscraper

Hendricks, 39, a native of Guatemala, who was raised in Miami Springs, Florida, excelled as an offensive and defensive end for Coach Charley Tate's Miami Hurricanes, was UPI's Lineman of the Year in 1968 with a record 17 tackles in the Notre Dame game, earning him the Knute Rockne Memorial Award. After leaving Miami, the six-foot eight-inch 222-pounder played professional football with the Oakland-Los Angeles Raiders until his retirement in 1984. He is married and the father of two children and is self-employed.

Triple Threat

Majors, the veteran head coach at the University of Tennessee, after successful tours as Iowa State and the University of Pittsburgh, played for his father, the late Shirley Majors, in Huntland, Tennessee. Born in Lynchburg, Johnny, 51, was the Southeastern Conference's Most Valuable player for Coach Bowden Wyatt's champion Volunteer team in 1956. Runner-up to Paul Hornung in the Heisman Trophy race, Majors was cut from the same cloth as other great Tennessee tailbacks. He played one season for the late Harvey Robinson in 1954, before Wyatt, also a Hall of Famer, returned to rebuild the Orange's football fortunes. Married and the father of two children, Majors was an unanimous All-America choice.

★★★

Reid, 41, a nationally recognized composer with numerous country hits, now lives in Nashville, A native of Altoona, Pennsylvania, Reid was a nationally ranked wrestler at Penn State, who also held the shot-put school record. The six-foot two-inch 245-pounder was an All-America tackle for Coach Joe Paterno's Nittany Lions. As an undergraduate, Reid also was affiliated with the Penn State Thespians, playing "Big Julie" in "Guys and Dolls." A classic pianist, he gave recitals (Chopin and Listz) on campus. He authored the Grammy-winning "Stranger In My House" hit sung by Ronnie Milsap. He won the Maxwell Trophy and the Outland Trophy and was named Lineman of the Year by the Washington Touchdown Club in 1969. He is married and the father of one son. He played five seasons for the Cincinnati Bengals before retiring to devote full time to his music career.

Cotton Bowl President

Jim Ray Smith, a towering six-foot four-inch 225-pounder for George Sauer at Baylor, grew up in West Columbia, Texas. President of his own real estate firm in Dallas, he served as President of the Cotton Bowl Association after playing professional football with the Cleveland Browns and the Dallas Cowboys. Smith, 54, is married and the father of three children. He served in the Army for two years. He was named Lineman of the Week in 1953 after Baylor's victory over Texas A&M. He is active in the Dallas Salesmanship Club.

Scott, 62, a native of Highland Falls, New York, in the backyard of West Point, won All-America acclaim as the US Naval Academy's center in 1945, after earlier attending Colgate and Baylor. He captained Admiral Tom Hamilton's Midshipmen as a senior. The six-foot two and a half inch 192-pounder, who had served 19 months in the Army before enrolling at Annapolis, was President of his class and the Bridade Commander. He also lettered in Lacrosse and Basketball. A Navy flyer for seven years, Scott worked for Lockheed Aircraft, the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, and the Department of Defense, serving as Special Assistant for Southeast Asia affairs. After retiring from government service, Scott taught math, history and science at the Byrnes School in Potomac, Maryland. He is married and the father of three children.

Ace Blocker

Steffy, 60, was born in Chattanooga, and as an 18-year old played guard on Coach John Barnhill's 1944 University of Tennessee Rose Bowl team. Appointed to West Point, Steffy was a standout on Colonel Red Blaik's 1945, 1946, and 1947 teams, which posted a 23-2-3 record. Steffy won the Outland Trophy in 1947 as Army's captain and All-America guard. In 1950 in the Korean War, Steffy proved to be a superb soldier, winning the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart, and later serving as General "Iron Mike" O'Daniel's aide. He was regarded as one of the best offensive linemen ever produced at Army, opening holes for the fabled Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis. Successful in business in Newburgh, he's the principal owner of the Broadway Garage and the local Buick agency. He served as President of the Rotary Club, President of the Powelton Golf Club and serves on the Board of St. Luke's Hospital. Steffy is married and the father of one son.

EARLY RESERVATIONS

Over 800 reservations have already been accepted for the National Football Foundation's 30th Annual Hall of Fame Awards Dinner Dec. 8 at the Waldorf Astoria in New York City.

Tarkenton, 47, was born in Richmond, Virginia and attended high school in Athens, Georgia where he became an early Georgia Bulldog fan. The six-foot one-inch 185-pounder, now a resident of Atlanta, after 18 years as a professional quarterback for the Minnesota Vikings and the New York Giants, is the father of two children. His college coach, Wally Butts, said "As a field general and ball handler, Tarkenton has no superior." He won all conference and All-America honors while leading Georgia to a 14-0 Orange Bowl victory over Missouri. Team captain in 1960, Tarkenton led the SEC in total offense and passing. He was voted the MVP in the Hula Bowl, completing 19 of 33 passes for 204 yards and two touchdowns. He is president of the Tarkenton Group in Atlanta.

Duffy's Best

Webster, a six-foot four-inch 218-pounder, has been called by his Hall of Fame coach Duffy Daughtery, as one of the best linebackers to ever play college football. A native of Anderson, South Carolina, Webster, 42, led the Spartans to the national championship in 1965 and to the co-national championship in runner-up position in 1966. After playing professional football with Houston, Pittsburgh and New England, for 10 seasons, Webster retired and is self-employed in Houston. He served in the Air Force Reserve and went back to college to get his degree in 1971. He has worked as Athletic Director of the Gulf Coast Community Services and was a member of the Houston Council and Human Relations. His number 90 was retired at Michigan State, only the second Spartan in history to win this distinction. Team Captain in 1966, Webster was voted the Spartans' all-time greatest player.

Yary, 41, a native of Chicago, played for two years at Cerritos Junior College before joining John McKay's Men of Troy, and helped the Trojans post a 24-7-1 record for three years including the national championship 1967 season.

He played 14 seasons for the Minnesota Vikings and the Los Angeles Rams after graduating from Southern Cal. and today owns Yary Photography in Orange County, specializing in Sports Photography. The six-foot six-inch 255-pounder earned his degree in Finance. He was a two-time All-America tackle who excelled offensively and defensively, and was named the Outland Trophy recipient his senior year.

VANN COACHED SOUTHERN TO BACK-TO-BACK 'BAMA CONQUESTS; BLACKMAN, NELSON FIELDED CHAMPIONSHIP ELEVENS

By Jimmie McDowell

The late Colonel Thad (Pie) Vann, University of Southern Mississippi's head football coach for 20 years, Robert (Bob) Blackman of the University of Denver, Dartmouth, Illinois and Cornell, and David (Davey) Nelson of Hillsdale, Maine and the University of Delaware have been elected to the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame for 1987, Vincent dePaul Draddy, Chairman of the Board, announced in January.

The trio was chosen by the Foundation's 12-man Honors Court headed by Fred Russell, Vice-President and longtime Sports Editor-Columnist of The Nashville Banner.

Colonel Vann, who served for three years in the European Theater of Operations during World War II, was a member of the United States Army Reserve for 30 years. As a football coach, he had only one losing season while his Southerners chalked up 139 victories, 55 losses and 2 ties. Two of Southern's most famous victories included back-to-back victories over the University of Alabama in 1953, when the Crimson Tide won the SEC Championship and had been picked to win the national title in Grantland Rice's preseason poll, and again in 1954 to prove that it was no fluke. At the time, Vann had only two full time assistant coaches.

Great Upset

Southern's 25-19 conquest over Alabama in 1953 had been labeled college football's greatest upset since Centre College, sparked by Bo McMillan, went East and kayoed Harvard 6-0. Southern featured two of college football's best backs of the 1950's, Hugh Laurin Pepper and Bucky McElroy, who each won Little All-America honors. In 1953, Southern also blanked offensive-minded University of Georgia, led by Zeke Bratkowski, who had been averaging three touchdown passes a game, 14-0.

Blackman, captain of Southern Cal's freshman team in 1937 before being stricken with Polio, posted 202 triumphs against 118 losses and 10 ties while coaching at Pasadena City College (1949-1952), University of Denver (1953-1954), Dartmouth (1955-1970), and Cornell (1977-1982). His teams at City College went 34-5-3, while his charges at the Senior Colleges posted a 178-113-7 mark. His best years were at Dartmouth where the Big Green won 104, lost 37 and tied 3, twice winning the Lambert Trophy. Three times Dartmouth was undefeated in 1962, 1965, and 1970.

Nelson's combined collegiate coaching record was 105-48-6, including an 84-42-2 performance at Delaware. His 1963 Blue Hens' team was undefeated, rating the label of "Little Giants" of the East with his famous Delaware Wing-T attack. He was also an assistant coach at Harvard.

Rebel Captain

Vann, a native of Magnolia, Mississippi, earned four varsity letters at the University of Mississippi in football and baseball. He captained the Johnny Rebels his senior season. Three times he fielded the top defensive team in the nation while winning two college division national titles. He died in 1982 at the age of 76 after retiring as Southern's popular coach in 1968. He entered the insurance business and remained active until he suffered a stroke. His wife, Ann, preceeded him in death. He is survived by two children Mrs. Ralph Peeples and Thad, Jr. He had been called "the father of University of Southern Mississippi football", posting more victories than any other coach there. He served as Reen Green's line coach for 12 years, before and after World War II, before being elevated to the head coaching job. His teams were noted for their excellent conditioning, blocking and tackling skills. He was truly a defensive wizard.

AFCA President

Blackman, past president of the American Football Coaches Association, was born in DeSoto, Iowa, but grew up in Southern California. He was a three-sport letterman at Long Beach Poly High before enrolling at USC. A victim of Polio, he spent 16 weeks in the hospital, his playing career ended. He graduated cum laude in1942 and later earned a Master's degree.

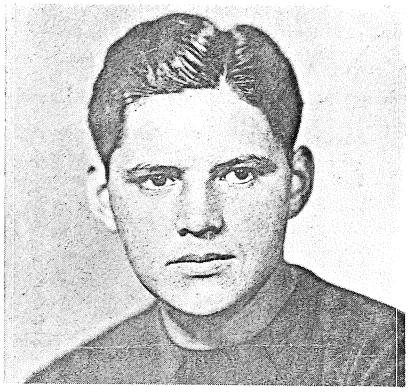

Blackman's coaching career began at the San Diego Naval Training Station, and the Sailors posted nine wins in 10 outings. After winning two Junior Rose Bowl games and a national junior college title at Pasadena City College, he took over the University of Denver's football fortunes, which had gone without a win the previous season. In his second year there, the Pioneers chalked up a 9-1 record and their first conference title in 37 years.

Dartmouth was averaging only three wins a year during the previous five years when Blackman was hired. His great success there brought about the job at the University of Illinois, where the team had fallen on hard times. During Blackman's six years there, the Fighting Illini trailed only

THREE DECEASED PLAYERS ELECTED TO HALL

WESTFALL, MIKE McKEEVER, YARR CHOSEN BY COURT

By Jimmie McDowell

Three deceased All-America football players have been named to the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame for 1987 according to Vincent dePaul Draddy, Chairman of the Board. They are Mike McKeever, University of Southern California, guard, 1958-60; Bob Westfall, University of Michigan, tailback, 1940-42, and Tommy Yarr, University of Notre Dame, center, 1929-31. All will be inducted in special on-campus ceremonies this fall and will be saluted at the Foundation's 30th Annual Hall of Fame Awards Dinner, December 8th, in New York City at the Waldorf-Astoria.

McKeever, a native of Los Angeles, played guard for Don Clark and John McKay at USC, winning All-Coast, All-Conference, All-America and All-Academic All-America honors. Mike's twin brother, Marlin, was also an All-America performer for the Trojans and is also a College Football Hall of Fame candidate. McKeever, a six-foot 225-pounder also participated in track at USC. He suffered a head injury in a game prior to his senior year, ending his active playing career. He had been listed as a high pro draft choice prior to his injury.

After graduation, he was General Superintendent of a construction company and active in community affairs. While returning home from work one day he was involved in a traffic collision, suffering extensive head injuries. He was in a coma for two years before his death in 1967 at the age of 27. Before the accident he had channeled his competitive efforts into the hammer throw hoping to go to the Olympics. He was married and the father of a daughter, Terri, and two sons, Mike, Jr, and John who were honored as high school senior Scholar-Athletes by the Foundation's San Diego chapter.

Westfall, captain of Fritz Crisler's 1941 Wolverines, was second in the nation in rushing as a junior. In three seasons he rushed for 1,864 yards, a record which stood for a fullback for 30 years. The five-foot six-inch also played for the Detroit Lions from 1944-47 and was named All-Pro in 1945 as the Lions' rushing and scoring leader. He later coached a semi-pro football team in Adrian, Michigan and then founded and served as President of the Adrian Steel Company. In 1949, he was honored as one of Michigan's all-time great football players. He was active in the Foundation's Detroit chapter until his death in 1980 at the age of 61. He was survived by his wife and three children. A native of Detroit, Westfall, known as "Bullet Bob" for his explosiveness on the gridiron, majored in Literature and received his B.A. Degree and then served 18 months in the Army Air Corps before receiving an honorable medical discharge as a result of bronchial asthma which was plagued him since he was nine years old.

Yarr, a native of Chimacum, Washington in 1910, was Knute Rockne's All-America center as a five-foot eleven-inch 197-pounder, and was a starter on the 1930 team which won the first of 10 national championships for the Fighting Irish. Against SMU, Yarr made three pass interceptions after Notre Dame has scored the go-ahead touchdown with four minutes remaining.

In his senior year, Yarr was a consensus All-America. He was an outstanding offensive center, particularly snapping the ball to ace punter Hall of Famer, Marchy Schwartz. In the Northwestern game, Schwartz had to punt five times from his own end zone and Yarr snapped the ball perfectly each time despite having one hand in a cast, broken. He graduated in 1932, Magna Cum Laude and later played pro ball with the Chicago Cardinals. He was Notre Dame Line Coach Hunk Anderson's assistant before becoming head coach at John Carroll University. He later accepted a position as Manager of the Chicago Public Loan Corporation. Married and the father of three children, Yarr suffered a fatal heart attack in 1941 at the age of 33.

Ohio State and Michigan State in total victories. An offensive innovator, Blackman was also noted for his strong defense.

Blackman returned to the Ivy League in 1977 at Cornell and concluded his coaching career on a strong note. He and his wife are living in retirement on Hilton Head Island in South Carolina, but Bob keeps his hand in the game as the player selection chairman of the East in the famed East-West Shrine game played each year at Palo Alto.

Top Player

Nelson, a native of Detroit, was a standout football player at the University of Michigan, leading Fritz Crisler's Wolverines in rushing as a senior with a 6.3 yard average. He became one of Hall of Famer Crisler's best products as a student athlete and as a young coach. While excelling at Delaware, Nelson also was elected to the College Football Rules Committee and his excellent work in this phase of the game helped him being named the National Football Foundation's Distinguished American Award honoree in 1984.

Nelson and his wife, Shirley, have three children and they continue to live in Newark, Delaware as he serves as Division Director of Physical Education, Recreation, and Athletics.

Vann will be formally inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame at a home game this fall and will be saluted at the Foundation's 30th annual Hall of Fame Awards Dinner, December 8th in New York when Blackman and Nelson will be inducted.

BOSTON COLLEGE NIPS GEORGIA IN HALL OF FAME BOWL

HALLORAN'S LAST SECOND TOUCHDOWN PASS TOPPLES BATTLING BULLDOGS

By Jimmie McDowell

With thirty two seconds remaining, Boston College's Shawn Halloran completed a five yard pass to Kelvin Martin to wipe out a 24-20 University of Georgia lead and enable Cowboy Jack Bicknell's Eagles to extend their winning streak to eight while beating Vince Bulldogs, 27-24, in the Ninth Annual Hall of Fame Bowl game — the first held in Tampa.

Halloran, a six-foot four-inch senior, completed 31 of 52 passes for two touchdowns and was named the Most Valuable Player in the game. Successor to Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie as a junior, Halloran heard the boos and jeers which even resulted in his losing the starting quarterback job in the California game early in the season.

After injuries had decked the two sophomore replacements, Halloran was given another opportunity by Bicknell and he responded to the challenge and then some, teaming with shifty runner Troy Stratford in forming a dynamic pass-run punch which restored Boston College to national ranking — as high as 12th in one poll — when all of the returns were in after the 1986 Bowl games. Halloran's jeers turned to cheers in the process.

The Eagles romped to an early 20-7 lead only to see Dooley's Dawgs stage a splendid rally to go ahead in the final period before the Eagles launched the dramatic 76-yard winning touchdown drive. Except for the Penn State-Miami national championship game, only the one-point Iowa triumph over home town San Diego in the Holiday Bowl compared with the closeness of the 1986 Hall of Fame Bowl game.

A day-long rain halted an anticipated good gate sale which Tampa Bay has come to enjoy. The ticket sale was 39,000 plus.

Stradford rushed for 122 yards and one touchdown and caught seven passes for 48 yards. Martin, the ace receiver, snared nine passes for 98 yards and the game-winning touchdown. Lars Tate was Georgia's leading rusher with 63 yards in 17 carries. Quarterback Jim Jackson scored twice for the Bulldogs.

NFL HAS CONTRIBUTED $335,000

The National Football League Charities contributed another $15,000 to the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Graduate Scholarship program in December.

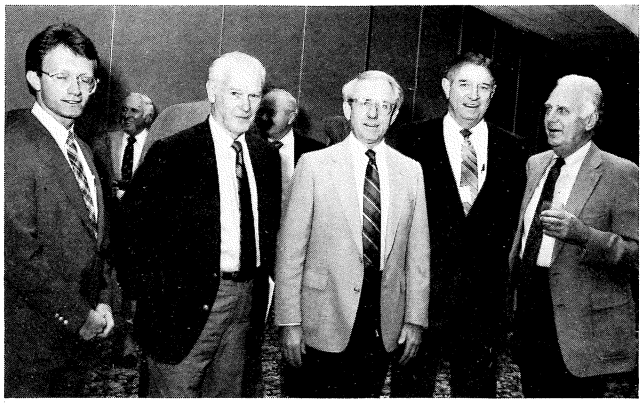

This is the second year of a ten-year commitment of $15,000 a year made by NFL Charities last year, bringing the total support to date to $335,000.

Al Ward, Treasurer of NFL Charities, said that NFL Charities believes in the National Football Foundation's Graduate Scholarship program and this is a way that the 26 NFL teams, through NFL Charities, can express their appreciation to the Foundation for a job well done over the years in recognizing academic and athletic excellence.

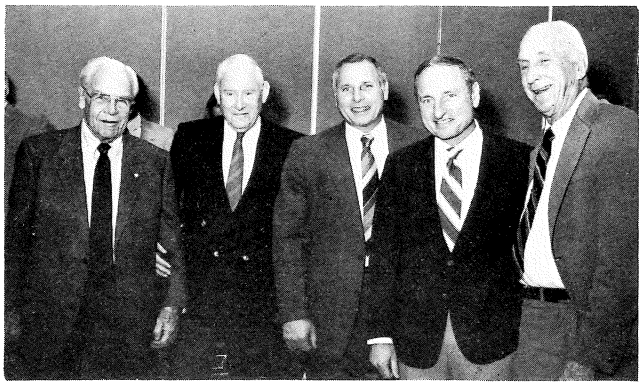

Commissioner Pete Rozelle is the President of NFL Charities. Congressman Jack Kemp is Vice-President. Al Ward is Treasurer and Joe Rhein is Secretary. The Directors include: Lamar Hunt, David Mahoney, Wellington Mara, Lowell Perry, Ralph Wilson, Congressman Kemp and Commissioner Rozelle.

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK — The Foundation's Chairman Vincent dePaul Draddy (l) commends Big John Adcock, Hall of Fame Bowl team selection chairman, on a job well done in matching Georgia against Boston College in the Ninth Annual Hall of Fame Bowl, and Tampa's inaugural effort.

KICKOFF CLASSIC V: IOWA VS. TENNESSEE

HAWKEYES, VOLS FINISHED ON STRONG NOTE, WINNING POST-SEASON BOWL GAMES

Perennial national powers Iowa and Tennessee, both winners in bowl games at the end of the 1986 season, have accepted invitations to play in Kickoff Classic V in Giants Stadium, Monday, Aug. 31.

Announcement of the pairing was made by Vincent de-Paul Draddy, chairman of the selection committee, and chairman of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, chief beneficiary of the game.

Serving with him on the committee were Bill Flynn, athletic director at Boston College, representing the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, and Lavell Edwards of Brigham Young, newly-elected president of the American Football Coaches Association.

High Scorer

"We could have the highest scoring game to date," Robert E. Mulcahy III, president and chief executive officer of the New Jersey Sports & Exposition Authority, said. "These teams both have most of their skill position people returning, including their quarterbacks and key receivers. We look forward to their participation and dealing with Hayden Fry of Iowa for the first time as well as an old friend, Johnny Majors of Tennessee."

Iowa, a Big 10 powerhouse for years, won the Holiday Bowl last December, defeating San Diego State 39-38, with a spectacular comeback to finish 9-3 in a rebuilding year. The Hawkeyes will be making their initial visit to Giants Stadium and have visited the east rarely. The Hawkeyes had a winning visit to Penn State five years ago.

Iowa will have Tom Poholsky, a highly rated quarterback last year as a sophomore plus the imposing 6-8, 230-pound sophomore-to-be Dan McGwire, described by Fry as "extremely mobile" at quarterback, and a 230-pound fullback in David Hudson whom he considers "one of the best in the country."

Five Straight

Tennessee rebounded from a poor start last year to win its last five games, including a victory over Minnesota in the Liberty Bowl, to finish 7-5. The key figure in this streak was quarterback Jeff Francis, a 6-3, 204-pounder, who found a fine receiver in Anthony Miller. Miller reminds observers of former Tennessee great Willie Gault.

Iowa and Tennessee last met in the 1982 Peach Bowl, where Iowa earned a 28-22 decision.

The Kickoff Classic will be telecast nationally by Raycom Sports and broadcast over the Mutual Radio Network.

$550,000 Guarantee

The game is approved by the NCAA as a 12th game for participating teams and is conducted with NACDA as an overseer. NACDA, the Hall of Fame and the American Football Coaches Association participate in the revenues. Each team is guaranteed $550,000.

Coaches Majors and Fry are expected to attend a press conference at Giants Stadium on Tuesday (Feb. 10).

Previous Kickoff Classics have featured Nebraska (44), Penn State (6); Miami (20), Auburn (18); Brigham Young (28), Boston College (14); and Alabama (16), Ohio State (10). None of those teams was eligible for consideration this year.

ALSO, JETS VS. GIANTS

Two nights earlier, Aug. 29. the world champion New York Giants play the New York Jets at Giants Stadium giving fans a great doubleheader.
