Sola Adebisi: From the Leach Center to the Tucker Center

By Julia Caterson, Seminoles.com

When junior Sola Adebisi first came to Florida State, he spent most of his free time playing basketball at the Leach Center with friends in the on-campus student gym.

This season, he has made the most of his opportunity with his teammates inside the Donald L. Tucker Center as a member of the Florida State basketball team.

The recent Men's Basketball walk-on did not come to college expecting to become a Division I student-athlete, but his passion for the sport and determined spirit led him to a spot on the Seminoles' roster.

Adebisi was four-years old when his two older brothers, Toluwani and Kayode, introduced him to the game of basketball.

"I would always lose to them whenever we would play," Adebisi said, reflecting on his first memories playing the sport. "Now I'm the tallest one of all three of us, so I can't say that's the case anymore."

At 6-6, it's no surprise that the youngest of the Adebisi brothers would be a natural at the game. Despite his height and playing ability, he did not plan to pursue basketball in college. Following in the footsteps of his hardworking father and brothers, Adebisi planned to pursue his studies in the STEM field, and he landed on computer science, his major at Florida State.

Balancing his computer science major with the Seminoles' basketball schedule is a challenge that Adebisi has relished. He acknowledges that the transition when he first joined the team was the most difficult time in terms of making time for his academics, but he has since found a balance that he is able to maintain through discipline and hard work.

"There are definitely times I want to get off course and do other things - things that aren't related to basketball or academics, but you have to stay disciplined in order to be successful," Adebisi said.

From his best friend from home who would work out with him during the pandemic, to his older brothers in medical school, Adebisi finds inspiration for his hard work in the people around him. His biggest inspiration, however, is his father.

"I've always seen him work hard throughout my childhood, so that's what keeps me going," says Adebisi

Adebisi's parents immigrated to the United States from Nigeria in 1995.

"They came here so we could have better opportunities," he said. "If I were in Nigeria I wouldn't be doing this right now. My brothers might have become doctors, but I wouldn't be able to study and play basketball at a major university."

Sola Adebisi: From The Leach Center To The Tucker Center

By Julia Catterson

Seminoles.com

February 24, 2023

When junior Sola Adebisi first came to Florida State, he spent most of his free time playing basketball at the Leach Center with friends in the on-campus student gym.

This season, he has made the most of his opportunity with his teammates inside the Donald L. Tucker Center as a member of the Florida State basketball team.

The recent Men's Basketball walk-on did not come to college expecting to become a Division I student-athlete, but his passion for the sport and determined spirit led him to a spot on the Seminoles' roster.

Adebisi was four-years old when his two older brothers, Toluwani and Kayode, introduced him to the game of basketball.

"I would always lose to them whenever we would play," Adebisi said, reflecting on his first memories playing the sport. "Now I'm the tallest one of all three of us, so I can't say that's the case anymore."

At 6-6, it is no surprise that the youngest of the Adebisi brothers would be a natural at the game. Despite his height and playing ability, he did not plan to pursue basketball in college. Following in the footsteps of his hardworking father and brothers, Adebisi planned to pursue his studies in the STEM field, and he landed on computer science, his major at Florida State.

Balancing his computer science major with the Seminoles' basketball schedule is a challenge that Adebisi has relished. He acknowledges that the transition when he first joined the team was the most difficult time in terms of making time for his academics, but he has since found a balance that he is able to maintain through discipline and hard work.

"There are definitely times I want to get off course and do other things - things that aren't related to basketball or academics, but you have to stay disciplined in order to be successful," Adebisi said.

From his best friend from home who would work out with him during the pandemic, to his older brothers in medical school, Adebisi finds inspiration for his hard work in the people around him. His biggest inspiration, however, is his father.

"I've always seen him work hard throughout my childhood, so that's what keeps me going," says Adebisi

Adebisi's parents immigrated to the United States from Nigeria in 1995.

"They came here so we could have better opportunities," he said. "If I were in Nigeria I wouldn't be doing this right now. My brothers might have become doctors, but I wouldn't be able to study and play basketball at a major university. My parents moved here for a better future for us. I'm hoping to do something like that for my children in the future."

Adebisi's family moved a number of times while he was growing up, but they have lived in Georgia for the last sixteen years.

Adebisi graduated high school in the midst of the pandemic in 2020. When deciding where to go to school, his top two options were Ohio State University and Florida State University. The family had lived in Ohio when he was younger, and with an older brother who also attended Ohio State, he was a huge fan of the school. The main reason he chose to attend Florida State was the location, it was closer to home and had better weather.

“Once I saw the campus at Florida State, and of course considering how good the basketball team was, I was like ‘I have to go to Florida State,’” said Adebisi.

He enrolled at Florida State in the fall of 2020 and experienced a very different first year than most Florida State students.

“It was initially hard to meet people because of certain mandates in the dorms,” said Adebisi. “I eventually met a small group of friends, and I spent all my time with them.”

Adebisi spent a lot of his time with his friends playing basketball at the Leach. Little did people know that this fun pastime for Sola would translate into a spot on the Florida State basketball team.

But adversity struck Adebisi during his freshman season.

“I was playing basketball, I went up to block a shot and I landed on my side,” said Adebisi. “After the injury happened, I was laying on the floor, I thought I was completely fine. One of my friends took me to the hospital. As soon as I told my parents they drove down right away, and they picked me up that night.”

Sola spent the rest of his freshman year at home, taking all of his classes online.

Following his recovery, he returned to Florida State for his sophomore year, Adebisi was determined to make the most of his remaining college years.

“I met a lot more people just by playing basketball at the Leach.”

One of these people ended up reaching out to Adebisi because he was a member of the women’s basketball scout team during the 2021-22 season, and asked Adebisi wanted to try out of the Seminoles.

“Why not?” Sola remembers thinking. “At times I’d have interactions with Coach Ham and people on the men’s side just from being in the facility. I was able to reach out to Coach Jones this [past] fall and get a tryout, and that’s how I got on the team.”

Adebisi’s walk-on process was simple.

“For me, it was a three-week evaluation period,” said Adebisi. “I was practicing and the coaches were evaluating how I was doing, how I was adjusting, and how I would feel on the team. After those three weeks were up, I was officially on the roster.”

Since joining, Sola would say his favorite memories have all been spending time with his teammates, whether in the team hotel or on the team bus.

“Spending time with the guys is always fun. The best part of the team dynamic is how everyone’s personalities mix.”

Adebisi knows that being at Florida State means constantly learning – whether academically or on the basketball court.

“You have to apply discipline to all aspects of your life, not just athletics, because if you can stay disciplined in something as basic as making your bed every morning, that helps with all the other things along the road.”

The school record for rebounds by a Seminole in an ACC game is 17 by Michael Joiner against Wake Forest on January 9, 2001. Cleveland's 16 defensive rebounds established a school record by a Florida State player in an ACC game. Warley scored his career-high of 17 points on four made field goals and eight free throws. He surpassed his former career-high of 15 points against Duke in February of 2022 and made the most free throws of his career, shooting eight for 10 (.800) from the free throw line

Cleveland finished the game with 11 points and collected eight rebounds — all on the defensive end of the court. Both Mills and Cleveland finished the game with 11 points and four made field goals apiece. Mills' 11 points marked his tenth consecutive game scoring in double figures. Greg Elliot's early seven points on two-of-two 3-point field goals, helped Pitt jump out to an early 15-5 lead before a 17-2 run by the Seminoles fueled by Mills scoring eight points, and Green Jr scoring five to put the Seminoles ahead 22-17.
