Head Coach Robert Gary

Robert Gary is in his first season as Furman's head track and field/cross country coach.

Gary, a native of Chicago, Ill., has spent the last six years as the head men's track and field coach at Ohio State and has also served as the school's men's cross country coach for the past 16 years. During his time at the helm of the Buckeye track and field program, he has guided his teams to six top-three finishes at Big Ten championship events, including runner-up performances at the 2009 cross country meet, plus the 2009 outdoor and 2010 indoor meets. Under Gary's tutelage, the Buckeyes have garnered 17 individual titles and seven relay crowns.

"As a two-time Olympian, assistant coach for the U.S. national team, and successful national-level college coach, Robert Gary brings a wealth of knowledge and national acclaim to the Furman cross country and track and field teams at a time when Furman is making a larger commitment to this program," said Clark upon announcing Gary's hiring. "We are excited to have both Robert and Rita Gary joining Furman University."

"Furman is committed to achieving both academic and athletic excellence, and Robert Gary will be a wonderful addition to our athletic program," said Furman President Rod Smolla. "He has proven himself as a coach at the highest levels of competition, and he will bring valuable expertise to a cross country and track and field program that is poised to become one of the nation's best."

The Buckeyes reached the NCAA cross country championships during eight of Gary's 16 years as head coach, finishing as high as 11th-place in 2005. Gary's teams have produced numerous all-Big Ten honorees, two All-Great Lakes regional selections, and two All-Americans (Brian Olinger and Jeff See). Most recently, his 2011 squad placed 23rd at the national meet.

Last indoor season, Gary led the Buckeyes to a fourth-place finish in a very tight Big Ten conference meet, placing just nine points shy of first place, and produced the fourth-most NCAA Indoor Championship qualifiers. His Ohio State team concluded the NCAA Indoor Championships with the fourth-most All-Americans, including two relay teams comprised entirely of student-athletes from the state of Ohio that set Buckeye records to qualify for the meet. Gary also coached three sub-4 minute milers this indoors (Cory Leslie, Daniel Huling, and See).

"My wife and I are extremely excited to work together with all of the support areas at Furman," said Gary. "This program gives us with an opportunity to focus toward the distance areas and offers a more formalized post-collegiate training group. We both feel like the setting -- the facilities, weather, availability of physiological testing -- along with the great foundation already in place by Gene Mullins and the rest of the current staff, will present a very rewarding challenge for our staff and a will prove to be a great place for Furman student-athletes to develop."

Gary's involvement with USA Track and Field has helped fashion his reputation as one of the nation's elite coaches. Last year he served as an assistant coach for Team USA at the IAAF World Championships in Daegu, South Korea, and as the head coach for the U.S. junior team at the IAAF World Cross Country Championships in Punta Umbria, Spain. During the 2010 season, Gary was Team USA's U-23 distance coach at the North America, Central America, and Caribbean Athletic Association (NACAC) meet in Toluca, Mexico.

Gary's past proteges include Olinger, who won the prestigious Manchester Road Race and turned in the top American finish and the third-best time ever at the Falmouth Road Race, and See, who became Gary's fourth mile champion after winning the USATF indoor mile championship in 2011. In 2010, he coached former Miami University track talent Huling, who won the 3000m steeplechase at the 2010 USA Outdoor Track and Field Championships. Huling was one of several track and field stars, including Rob Myers (1500m), Olinger (steeplechase), and See (1500m), who trained under Gary in preparation for the 2008 Olympic Trials in Eugene, Ore. Myers, Huling, and Olinger advanced to the finals in their respective events at the trials.

A two-time Olympian (1996 Atlanta Games and 2004 Athens Games) in the

Robert, Rita, & Percy Gary

3000m steeplechase, Gary concluded his own running career in 2005 after becoming one of only five Ohio State track and field athletes to earn bids to two separate U.S. Olympic teams. He finished second in the steeplechase at the U.S. Olympic Trials in 1996, recording a career-beset time of 8:19.46, then posted a third-place finish at the 2004 Trials eight years later. As a cross country athlete, Gary garnered 11 career appearances on the U.S. cross country team and was chosen Track and Field News Cross Country Runner of the Year in 2004.

Prior to his time as head track and field coach at Ohio State, Gary served nine years as an assistant coach with the Buckeye team.

A 1996 graduate of Ohio State, Gary completed an illustrious career as a member of the Buckeye track and field program, earning six All-American citations and winning the Big Ten championship in the steeplechase in 1994. His time of 7:52.63 in the 3,000m still stands as the Ohio State indoor record in the event. A three-time All-Big Ten selection, he helped the Buckeyes to three league championships and was inducted into the Ohio State Athletics Hall of Fame in 2009.

Gary and his wife, the former Rita Arndt, who serves as an assistant coach in the Paladin track and field/cross country program, are parents of a son, Percy.

Assistant Coach Rita Gary

Rita Gary is in her first season as an assistant coach with the Furman track and field/cross country programs.

As head women's track and field/cross country coach at Miami University from 2008-2009, Gary was named the 2008 Mid-American Conference Cross Country Coach of the Year after leading the RedHawks to the first conference title in program history. Miami, which ranked as high as 35th nationally, finished sixth at the NCAA Cross Country Regional meet that fall.

Gary spent four years coaching at Michigan State before accepting the post at Miami. After serving as head women's cross country coach/assistant track and field coach for two years, she was promoted in June 2006 to associate head cross country coach for the men's and women's programs/assistant track and field coach.

During her time with the Spartans, Gary was named the Great Lakes Region Cross Country Coach of the Year in both 2006 and 2007. Her 2007 team placed fifth at the NCAA Cross Country Championship, and her athletes garnered eight All-America, 23 NCAA Great Lakes All-Region, and 21 All-Big Ten citations during her tenure. Seven of her athletes were also honored as Academic All-Americans.

Prior to her time at Michigan State, Gary spent two years as an assistant coach at South Florida, where she coached the program's first cross country All-American. She was part of the Bulls staff that was recognized as the 2003 Conference USA Coaching Staff of the Year.

A 2001 graduate of South Florida with a degree in mass communications, Gary spent two seasons as a undergraduate at Michigan State before transferring to South Florida. A six-time NCAA qualifier, Gary set two South Florida school records and was honored as a three-time Academic All-American. She led the Bulls to their first Conference USA cross country title and first NCAA Championship appearance.

A native of Saline, Mich., she is married to Furman head track and field/cross country coach, Robert Gary. The Garys are parents of a son, Percy.

Assistant Coach Chris Neal

Chris Neal is in his first season as assistant coach with the Furman's head track and field/cross country program.

Neal, a native of Lafayette,

Ind., spent the last four seasons as an assistant coach at Ohio State, focusing primarily on the distance events. During his tenure, the Buckeyes qualified for the NCAA Cross Country Team Championship for the first time in school history (2009) then captured the program's first Big 10 indoor championship in 2011. Ohio State also claimed back-to-back Big 10 Outdoor Championships in 2011 and 2012. Neal coached four NCAA cross country championship individual qualifiers and had eight athletes post All-Region finishes under his tutelage.

"As Coach Neal and I have worked together over the last few cross country seasons, it has been very exciting to watch him develop the women's distance program at Ohio State and help the team to its first NCAA Cross Country Championship berth," said Gary. "Furman's staff and our resources will be focused toward the distance area, and we will count on his experience to help build a perennial national powerhouse.

"Additionally, Coach Neal will work closely with me with the post-collegiate group of runners that we will begin to put together and recruit," said Gary. "I strongly believe the post-collegiate component of Furman University track and field will serve as a great template for training and goal-setting at the very highest of levels."

Prior to his time at Ohio State, Neal completed a four-year stint in New Orleans, first as an assistant coach at the University of New Orleans then as an assistant at Tulane. While at Tulane from 2006-08, Neal guided the Green Wave to an eighth-place team finish at the 2007 NCAA Mideast Regional and a ninth-place finish at the 2007 South Central Regional Cross Country Championship, the first top-10 finish in the program's history. During his time at New Orleans, he coached the Sun Belt Conference cross country individual champion, four track and field individual champions, and 10 all-conference performers.

Neal spent two seasons as an assistant coach at Ball State in Muncie, Ind., before coaching in New Orleans. At Ball State, he mentored an NCAA national cross country championship qualifier, an NCAA outdoor track and field championships qualifier, and seven individual Mid-American Conference Champions.

"I am extremely excited to be joining Coach Gary's staff here at Furman," said Neal at the time of his hiring. "Furman has a great campus and an exceptional environment in which runners can develop. It was an easy decision for my wife and me to come to Greenville after seeing the campus and meeting the athletic department staff. We have a great track and field/cross country staff in place and will be looking to do something special over the next few years with the program."

A 2003 graduate of Eastern Kentucky with a bachelor's degree in physical education, Neal earned his master's degree in sports administration from Ball State in 2005. As a cross country letterman at Eastern Kentucky, Neal helped the Colonels to the Ohio Valley Conference championship in 2004. He is married to the former Carissa Westfall, of Monticello, Ind.

2012-13 Furman Paladin Cross Country and Track & Field Assistant Coach Cory Leslie

Cory Leslie is in his first season as an assistant coach with the Furman track and field/cross country program.

Following an illustrious collegiate career at Ohio State, where he earned first team All-American honors in both the Steeplechase and the Distance Medley Relay, Leslie recently competed in the 2012 U.S. Olympic Trials in the 3,000m Steeplechase, finishing ninth in the finals after posting a personal record of 8:31.08 in the prelims. A five-time All-Big Ten Selection, he owns four Ohio State records (800m, 1000m, mile and DMR).

Leslie, a native of Ohio, recently graduated from Ohio State with a bachelor's degree in education, majoring in sport and leisure studies with a concentration in leadership and humanities. He was a four-time Ohio State Scholar Athlete and an Academic All-Big Ten selection. He will also continue his professional career with the Furman Elite running club under the direction of Gary.

Assistant Coach Jeffrey See

Jeffrey See is in his first season as an assistant coach with the Furman track and field/cross country program.

See, a six-time All-American at Ohio

State from 2005-2010, was a four-time Big Ten Champion for the Buckeyes. Professionally, he has continued his growth under Gary, winning his first U.S. title in the mile at the 2010 USATF Indoor Championships. His 1500m time of 3:35.21, recorded earlier this year, is the fifth fastest American time in the event in 2012, ranking high enough for the Olympic A-standard. He finished ninth at this year's Olympic trials and has been ranked in the top 30 in the world.

A native of Middletown, Ohio, See earned a degree in marketing from Ohio State in 2010. He was honored as a four-time Academic All-Big Ten selection and five-time Ohio State scholar athlete. He will continue his professional career as a member of Furman Elite running club.

Director of Operations Scott Lucking

Scott Lucking is in his first season as Director of Operations for the Furman track and field/cross country programs.

Lucking comes to Furman following two years as an assistant coach at Wofford. He will assist the Paladin program through his connections with the Greenville Track Club and intimate knowledge of the high school cross country landscape.

He competed at the collegiate level for both Syracuse and Northern Illinois. While at Syracuse, Lucking was a member of the distance medley relay team that set a school record and competed on the Orange cross country team that qualified for the NCAA Cross Country Championships. At Northern Illinois, he was a member of two school record holding teams, the two mile relay and distance medley relay.

Lucking, who graduated from Northern Illinois in 1977 with a degree in marketing and a minor in retail, holds USA Track & Field certifications in Level I coaching and Level II endurance and continues to compete in master's running events throughout the country.

Volunteer Assistant Coach Cari Neal

Cari Neal is joining the Furman staff after spending the past four seasons as a volunteer assistant coach with the women's track and field programs at Ohio State. She will assist the Furman program with day-to-day operations, while pursuing her Physical Therapist Assistant License at Greenville Technical College.

Prior to her arrival at Ohio State, Neal served as the head cross country and track coach at Benjamin Franklin High in New Orleans, La., where she helped the men's and women's cross country programs to state championship appearances, leading the men to a top-10 team finish. On the track, she helped 18 individuals qualify for the state championships, eight during the indoor season and ten outdoors.

A 1994 graduate of Ball State, Neal is married to Furman cross country/track and field assistant coach Chris Neal.

2012-13 Furman Paladin Cross Country and Track & Field Irwin Belk Track & Field Complex

Furman University, which over the years has claimed seven Southern Conference titles in track and field and six league cross country championships, dedicated the Irwin Belk Complex for Track and Field in October 1997.

The facility is named in honor of its principal benefactor, Irwin Belk, the son of William Henry Belk and the founder of the Belk merchandising empire. Irwin Belk, a longtime leader in business, the arts, politics, and education in the state of North Carolina, attended the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, where he set a number of records in track. As a philanthropist, Belk has given the lead gift for track and field complexes at the University of North Carolina, Charlotte and now Furman, and is dedicated to the advancement of the sport.

In addition to the improved track complex, Furman now boasts the Kelsey-West track, a red MONDO surface with eight 42-inch lanes. The high jump, long jump, triple jump, and pole vault runways are joined by a cream colored apron. MONDO is the premier name in track surfaces and has been used in each of the last six Olympics and at the 1997 World Track & Field Championships held in Athens, Greece.

In April 2007, Furman announced the planned construction of a new $2.5 million track house and a new track complex.

The first phase of the project will be a two-story, 6,000-square-foot track house that will be situated atop the hill overlooking the track, off Cherrydale Lane. It will include locker rooms for the men's and women's teams, coaches' offices, a reception area and a warm-up area for athletes.

Attached to the track house will be a new 2,000-square-foot laboratory for the Furman Institute of Running and Scientific Training faculty.

The new track house also includes subsequent plans to renovate the existing Irwin Belk Complex For Track & Field, install lights, construct bleacher seating for 1,500, erect a press box, and add parking.

The facility construction and improvements announcement came in conjunction with the Asics Blue Shoes Mile banquet held at the Hyatt Regency in downtown Greenville. Over 400 alumni and others, including 1972 U.S. Olympic gold medalist in the 800 meters, Dave Wottle, and former Boston Marathon winner Amby Burfoot, were on hand for the eventful weekend that also included the second annual Asics Blue Shoes Mile run. Renowned distance runner Alan Webb capped the event, attended by over 3,000 fans, by recording the first-ever sub-4-minute mile on a South Carolina track with a time of 3:57.83.

"This is a dream come true and a positive step forward for our program," said former Furman cross country and track and field coach Gene Mullin. "It is a tremendous asset in our recruiting efforts, and also to the Furman and Greenville community. With this facility, we look forward to hosting conference, regional and international events on the prep, collegiate and professional levels."

The Irwin Belk Complex for Track & Field features the Kelsey-West Track which is a MONDO running surface. The facility will be getting a facelift over the next few years as there are plans for a new track house and renovated complex.

2011-12 SoCon Review

Furman University athletic teams compete in the Southern Conference. The conference was established in 1921 and is the fourth oldest major college conference in the United States. Only the Big Ten, Big 12 and Missouri Valley Conferences are older in terms of origination. Despite the league's age it is a dynamic and ever-changing partnership as evidenced by its historic membership.

In all, 42 teams have been associated with the Southern Conference in the course of its almost eight decades. The SoCon gave birth to the present day Southeastern and Atlantic Coast Conferences in 1932 and 1953, respectively, so well-known powerhouses like Tennessee, North Carolina, Georgia and Georgia Tech are former Southern Conference members.

Current league members include Furman, Appalachian State, The Citadel, College of Charleston, Davidson, Elon, Georgia Southern, Samford, UNC Greensboro, Chattanooga, Western Carolina and Wofford.

Three major awards are given by the league to its member institutions. The Commissioner's Cup is given annually to the school fielding the league's best all-around men's sports program, while the Germann Cup is presented to the school with the best overall women's program. In addition, the McAlister Award is presented to the institution judged to have exhibited the highest degree of sportsmanship in league competition. Furman has claimed the Germann Cup on 12 occasions.

FURMAN UNIVERSITY

Furman University

Furman University is the oldest, largest and most selective private institution of higher learning in South Carolina. Founded in 1826 by the Baptist Convention of South Carolina as the Furman Academy and Theological Institution, Furman today is an independent, coeducational liberal arts college of 2,600 students located on a spacious 750-acre campus in Greenville.

Named for Richard Furman, a prominent pastor in Charleston, S.C., and a leader in Baptist higher education, the institution moved three times in its early years before being chartered as the Furman University and settling permanently in Greenville in 1850. Eight years later its theological department became the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, which eventually moved to Louisville, Ky. Between 1920 and 1932 the university included a law school, but for most of its history it has been a liberal arts college.

In 1933 Furman was coordinated with the nearby Greenville Woman's College, which was founded by South Carolina Baptists in 1854 as Greenville Baptist Female College. The two schools operated under one administration but on separate campuses in downtown Greenville until 1961, when the current physical plant on the outskirts of town was completed and the two campuses were united. The university and the South Carolina Baptist Convention severed ties in 1992.

The move to the new campus served as the catalyst for Furman's ongoing transformation from a primarily regional college to one of the leading liberal arts institutions in the country. Today Furman offers majors and programs in 40 subjects and is one of the select group of colleges that qualify for a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, the nation's most prestigious academic honorary society. Ninety-six percent of the faculty hold a doctorate or the terminal degree in their field, and the study body comes from 47 states and 47 countries.

In recent years Furman has become an exemplar of engaged learning, a hands-on, problem-solving, collaborative approach to the liberal arts that encourages students to put into practice the theories and methods learned from texts and lectures. Engaged learning emphasizes such areas as internships, service learning, study abroad and research.

Furman Traditions

Colors

The origin of Furman's school colors can be traced to the 1890s when, at an alumni meeting headed up by James Andrews Tate of York, S.C., it was officially decided that royal purple and white would serve as school colors. Furman's purple is PMS 268.

Logos

Furman's athletics program is represented by the Diamond "F" logo, which was introduced in 1973. It was conceptualized by Dick Sheridan, then an assistant coach on Furman's football staff, and designed by Furman junior art major Dennis Zeiger for $25. The Diamond F has been copied (and letters changed) by numerous high school athletic teams in the Southeast, often times by former Furman student-athletes now in the coaching ranks.

Nickname, Mascot

Furman University's official athletic mascot is a knight on a horse and the school's intercollegiate athletic teams are nicknamed "Paladins." Prior to 1961 this was not the case as the baseball team was known as the "Hornets," the football team "Hurricane," and the basketball team "Paladins." First used by a Greenville sportswriter in the 1930s to describe Furman's basketball team, "Paladins" became the official nickname of all school intercollegiate athletic teams following a vote of the student body on September 15, 1961.

A "Paladin" is defined in the American Heritage College Dictionary as a "paragon of chivalry; a heroic champion; a strong supporter or defender of a cause; and any of the 12 peers of French emperor Charlemagne's court." While the same dictionary does not specifically describe a knight as a Paladin or vice-versa, the knight's definition of "a defender, champion, or zealous upholder of a cause or principle" closely resembles the aforementioned definition of a Paladin.

While history reveals knights and Paladins were not always mounted men-at-arms, the modern image of a knight has no doubt played a role in the development of Furman's mascot as a knight on a horse.

Furman's knight is known as "Sir Paladin," and the horse that currently serves as Sir Paladin's mount is Fury, owned by Dave Hanson of Palmetto, Ga.

Greenville

Greenville is the heart of South Carolina's Upcountry for good reason—in fact, for many of them. This city of 70,000 (metropolitan population 400,000) enjoys a delightful setting in the northwest corner of the state near the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Greenville's climate is temperate, permitting outdoor activities year-round.

A dynamic city, Greenville pulses with the economic opportunities and cultural offerings of a growing metropolis, yet retains small-town Southern hospitality and charm.

South Carolina

Downtown Greenville is only part of the story. The Upcountry entices as a place where restoration and new growth merge continually with the best of Southern traditions and history. Whether you're looking for fun in the great outdoors or river-powered mills and Revolutionary battlefields, the Upcountry has all this and more.

LATHAM BASEBALL STADIUM

One of the first on-campus facilities constructed prior to Furman University's move from downtown Greenville in the late 1950s, Latham Baseball Stadium, named in honor and memory of Dr. John T. and Gloria Latham, the parents of former Paladin All-Southern Conference performer and Furman benefactor Tommy Latham and his family in May of 2008, possesses as much charm and character as any baseball complex in the league.

Located in the heart of Furman's modern athletics complex on one of the nation's most scenic campuses, Latham Stadium boasts an outstanding, well-maintained playing surface of Bermuda and rye grass known for its consistency and smoothness. With seating for 2,000, the stadium offers fans an excellent venue for enjoying collegiate baseball.

In 2001, Latham Baseball Stadium underwent a significant improvement with the addition of lights that meet standards for Double A and Triple A professional baseball. On April 13, 2001, the Paladins hosted Southern Conference foe UNC Greensboro in the first home night game ever played on campus.

In the spring of 2012 the university broke ground on the Furman Baseball Complex, which represents Phase 1 of $3.5 million in facility enhancements at Latham Stadium.

The complex, which is located just beyond the stands down the first base/right field line, includes coaches' offices, locker rooms for both coaches and players, player lounge, training and equipment rooms, laundry, and spacious indoor batting and pitching cages. Expected date of completion for the $2 million, approximate 10,000-square foot facility is August, 2012. The architect is McMillan, Pazdan, and Smith and builder is SYS Constructors of Greenville.

"We've never been more excited about the future of our program as we are now," said head coach Ron Smith. "This facility is indicative of Furman University's commitment to baseball and will be an immediate benefit for our current players while also greatly assisting us in recruiting.

It certainly gives us the 'wow factor' when people enter the university gates."

Phase 2 will enhance the fan experience and include a new press box, concourse, concessions, public restrooms, and additional chair back seating.

Since its opening on March 20, 1956, Latham Baseball Stadium has served as the home of six Southern Conference championship teams, including the 2005 Paladin squad that advanced to the NCAA Atlanta Regional after claiming the league's tournament championship.

FLUOR FIELD AT THE WEST END

In addition to Latham Stadium, its on-campus home, the Furman Paladins annually play several home games at Greenville's spectacular Fluor Field at the West End, one of the country's premier minor league ballparks.

Furman played nine games at Fluor Field in 2012, including early season contests against Michigan State and Miami of Ohio in the annual First Pitch Invitational, as well as clashes with 2010 & '11 national champion South Carolina and Clemson. In addition, the Paladins played four Southern Conference Tournament games at Fluor Field in late May, among which were wins over Western Carolina and SoCon regular season champion Appalachian State.

Furman served as host of the 2009 Southern Conference Baseball Tournament at Fluor Field — an experience that earned rave reviews from fans and league officials, who decided the annual event should return to Greenville's West End in 2012 and in 2013.

The Paladins played the first collegiate game in Fluor Field history on May 16, 2006, when they faced South Carolina in front of 6,155 fans — the largest crowd at the time to ever witness a Furman home baseball contest.

Opened in 2006 and located at the corner of South Main and Markley Street in Greenville's vibrant downtown, the intimate, 5,700-seat facility was named 2006 Ballpark of the Year by Ballparks.com. It serves as home of the Greenville Drive, the Single A South Atlantic League affiliate of the Boston Red Sox. The popular facility also plays host to numerous civic functions and concerts, including a 2006 performance by Grammy Award winning artist Edwin McCain.

Modeled after Fenway Park, home of the Red Sox, West End Field boasts its own "Green Monster," a 30-foot high wall in left field equipped with a manual scoreboard. Dimensions all around the outfield wall are the same as Fenway Park, including "Pesky's Pole" in right field. A 15x20 video screen is located in right field.

Stadium features are numerous and include the Coca Cola Dugout, Upper Deck, Picnic Pavilion, and popular 500 Club that pays homage to all major leaguers who have hit 500 or more home runs in their careers. An extra-wide concourse and three concession stands at the back of the grandstand add to the overall fan-friendly experience, as does a sponsored children's play area and grassy knoll in the left field corner.

The exterior of the ballpark, echoing Greenville's textile past and rich baseball tradition, includes over 500,000 bricks reclaimed from former mills. "Shoeless" Joe Jackson grew up in Greenville and played for Brandon Mill, one of the city's many textile teams before turning pro. His home, which recently opened as a museum, is located just across the street from Fluor Field.

TIMMONS ARENA

In 1998 Furman University athletics entered a new era with the opening of Timmons Arena, the school's on-campus, multi-purpose facility.

The 100,000 square-foot arena, which seats 3,500 people for basketball and 6,000 for concerts and other school and community activities, currently serves as the home of the university's football and men's and women's basketball programs.

In addition to featuring two regulation-size basketball courts, the facility includes offices and locker room facilities, offices for sports information, a complete sports medicine facility, and a 7,000 square-foot strength and conditioning center that serves the university's entire 20-sport intercollegiate athletics program. Arena seating is chair-back style and is collapsible to allow the available floor space to be used for a variety of activities.

The lead gift of $4 million for the facility was provided by longtime Furman supporters William R. Timmons, Jr. '49, Jean Timmons Pelham '42, and Charlie and Kitty Wells '48 Timmons. Bill, Jean, and Charlie are children of the late William R. Timmons '14.

At the time of facility dedication, Bill Timmons, chairman of Greenville's Canal Insurance Company, longtime university trustee, and recipient of an honorary degree from Furman, recalled that his family's association with the university dated back from his father's enrollment in 1910. His father's brother, Charles Edward Timmons, Jr., also attended Furman before volunteering for World War I, during which he was killed in action.

The construction of Timmons Arena eased overcrowding in Alley Gymnasium and in the Herman W. Lay Physical Activities Center (PAC), which currently serves as the home of the department of health and exercise science, student recreational and intramural sports, and fitness center.

The decision to move forward with the arena was driven by the closing of Memorial Auditorium, the downtown Greenville facility that served as Furman's basketball home for 38 years.

Located just southeast of the home stands at Paladin Stadium, Timmons Arena features a main entrance and wings made of brick, with the rear constructed of split face block and insulated metal panels. Stanmar Inc. of Stanbury, Mass., which specializes in constructing athletic facilities, was the designer and builder at a cost of $10.9 million.

FURMAN GOLF COURSE/REK CENTER

Set among 170 acres on one of the nation's most attractive campuses, the Furman University Golf Course is rightfully acclaimed as one of the best collegiate courses in the country.

Originally designed by Richard K. Webel of Long Island, N.Y., and Walter Cosby, superintendent of grounds and greens at the Greenbrier Hotel and Golf Resort, course construction began in 1957 when few colleges in the country had an on-campus facility. In the spring of 2008 the course was closed for major renovation, including the rebuilding of all tees and greens and several hole modifications and improvements. It re-opened in October 2008.

The home of two of the nation's oldest intercollegiate tournaments, the Furman Intercollegiate and Furman Lady Paladin Invitational, it also serves as the annual site of the annual 4A South Carolina State High School Championship.

Over the years the course has hosted some of the game's most renowned stars, including Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Curtis Strange, Jay Haas, Billy Andrade, and David Duval, as well as a host of outstanding women players, including Nancy Lopez and Furman graduates Betsy King, Beth Daniel, Dottie Pepper, Sherri Turner, and Maggie Will.

The home of Furman's nationally recognized women's program that has made 23 NCAA Tournament appearances and now counts 10 graduates on the LPGA Tour, the facility has also served as the primary course to several outstanding Furman men players, including 1981 Fred Haskins Award winner and current PGA Champions Tour member Brad Faxon '83, who holds the course record with a 62.

The REK Center for Intercollegiate Golf, which opened in the summer of 1997, has provided a big boost to Furman's golf program. Launched with gifts from Betsy King, Beth Daniel, and Dottie Pepper, and completed with the help of an anonymous donor, the center serves as clubhouse and practice facility for Furman's golf teams. In addition to coaches' offices, locker rooms, and a meeting area, the center features putting and chipping greens, fairway and greenside bunkers, and a covered, heated tee.

In the summer of 2012 the university completed construction of Phase I of the REK Short Game Facility featuring three new holes and renovated putting green, a $320,000 project. Phase II will include further expansion of the REK Center, including a Learning Center at a cost of $1 million.

PALADIN STADIUM

Furman's Paladin Stadium, nestled beautifully on campus with a scenic view of Paris Mountain, is the football home of the Paladins, having opened in 1981 to replace Surrine Stadium, which served as the site of Furman football for 45 years.

The stadium, which features 16,000 permanent seats, originally was constructed to accommodate 13,200 spectators. Prior to the 1985 season, 2,800 additional seats were added, giving the stadium its current capacity.

Following the completion of the 2012 campaign, the school will demolish the existing press box and replace it with a new 38,000-square foot, five-story complex that will serve as the new operational home for Furman football, complete with locker room, coaches' offices, meeting rooms, and "Heritage Hall." In addition, the new facility will feature a club level with concessions and special seating, new presidential and corporate suites, and new press box. Other stadium improvements to enhance fan game day experience are also planned.

Paladin Stadium is the third home of Furman football since 1919. Manly Field, completed in that year, served as the home of Furman football until 1936, when Furman moved the site of its football contests to then-newly constructed Surrine Stadium. The first game played in Surrine Stadium — a 14-13 Furman win over Davidson — was the sixth game of the year for Furman during the 1936 season. In 1980, Furman closed its association with Surrine Stadium with a 28-15 victory over arch-rival The Citadel to win its first outright Southern Conference football championship.

Furman opened Paladin Stadium in the same fashion it did Manly and Surrine, winning the first game played within its confines. The Paladins defeated East Tennessee State, 21-0, in the stadium's inaugural contest and in a quarter century of play have gone on to record a 148-39-1 (.790 winning percentage) home record, claiming 10 Southern Conference championships and the 1988 NCAA I-AA (FCS) national championship along the way.

In 1985 the stadium's field was named Eugene Stone Field in honor of Stone, who was directly responsible for the additional seats added to the stadium prior to the 1985 season. In 2009 the school added a new 13x32 video board and scoreboard.

From initial grading to completion, Paladin Stadium took two years to be realized at a cost of approximately two million dollars. Construction was by Farley Construction of Columbia.

The playing field is hybrid Bermuda and landscaping at the stadium is in line with the design and architecture of the entire university.

PEPSI STADIUM

A new era began in Furman softball in 2001 with the opening of Pepsi Stadium.

Dedicated prior to the Lady Paladins' 3-2 win over then-Southern Conference rival East Tennessee State, Pepsi Stadium replaced Furman Field, which served as the center of the school's highly successful softball program in its first 20 years of existence. During that time, Furman produced a 207-97 record (.681).

Its outfield sodded with Bermuda grass, which provides a consistently smooth playing surface, Pepsi Stadium measures 200 feet down the left and right field foul lines and 220 feet to the center field fence.

With seating for 300, the facility boasts enclosed brick dugouts, laser graded infield, bullpens, two batting cages located down the right field line, scoreboard, and a padded outfield fence bordered by an attractive hedge.

The opening of Pepsi Stadium signaled Furman's continued commitment to softball excellence. In 1994 the Lady Paladins captured the first regular season and tournament championships offered by the Southern Conference, and the following year Furman made it two in a row by claiming the league regular season crown. In 2007 Furman returned to the championship ranks by making a clean sweep of the SoCon Tournament field, defeating College of Charleston, Elon, Western Carolina, and Georgia Southern en route to the crown and first ever NCAA Tournament appearance.

This past spring Furman launched another major upgrade for Furman softball by breaking ground on a new press box and coaches' office complex at Pepsi Stadium. The two-story, 2,700-square foot facility includes restrooms and a concession stand on the lower level, a second floor featuring offices for new head coach Kyle Jamieson and his staff, room for media and game day operations, and a lounge area to entertain recruits and other guests.

The project is scheduled to be completed this fall at a cost of approximately $615,000. The architect is McMillan, Pazdan, and Smith and builder is The Elliott Group.

EUGENE STONE III SOCCER STADIUM

In September of 1995, over 3,500 fans joined with international soccer great Pelé in dedicating Furman University's new Eugene Stone III Soccer Stadium.

The facility, which features a brick and wrought iron fence, 3,000 permanent seats, fully-automated scoreboard, modern press box, and lighting for night games, serves as home of Furman's successful men's and women's soccer programs and has been the site of five Southern Conference Tournaments and a pair of NCAA Tournament first round matches.

Named for the late Eugene Stone, long-time Furman benefactor, the $1 million complex is one of several generous gifts made by Stone and the Stone Foundation to Furman University in support of the school's athletics program.

In 1981 Stone provided the grading work for Furman's Paladin Stadium football field, which is named in his honor, and in 1983 he initiated significant annual scholarship support for Furman's men's soccer program.

During the 2012-13 school year the university will break ground on a $1.6 million, two-story fieldhouse that will house home and visiting team locker rooms, expanded public restrooms, a permanent concession area, referees' room, and storage space. The second floor will serve as an open-air plaza for watching games.

Due primarily to Stone's commitment, Furman's men's soccer program has responded by winning 19 Southern Conference championships and making eight NCAA Tournament appearances, including a trip to the "Elite 8" in 1999 following first and second round wins over North Carolina and Wake Forest, respectively. Furman finished that season 21-2-1 and ranked third in the final Soccer America poll. In 2002, the Paladins posted a 19-3-1 mark, including a pair of NCAA Tournament wins, and in 2007 Furman posted a 19-4 mark and advanced into the NCAA Tournament second round before losing, 1-0, to eventual champion Wake Forest. All told the Paladins have compiled a 107-33-8 record in Stone Stadium (.750).

Furman players who have starred in Stone Stadium include Clint Dempsey, a standout performer with Fulham FC (EPL) and 2006 and 2010 United States World Cup Teams; U.S. National Team and Major League Soccer (MLS) Houston Dynamo standout Ricardo Clark; and Shea Salinas of the MLS San Jose Earthquakes.

Furman women's soccer, meanwhile, has enjoyed similar success since the program's start in 1994. Over its 17 seasons of play, the Lady Paladins have captured six conference regular season titles, made five NCAA Tournament appearances, and posted a 102-45-9 home match record in Stone Stadium (.683).

ALLEY GYMNASIUM

In the fall of 2005 Furman volleyball became the first Southern Conference program to begin play in a volleyball-specific complex when it moved its home court from Timmons Arena into Alley Gymnasium.

"Alley Gym is such a great venue for volleyball because the scale of the facility is more in proportion to the size of a volleyball court," said head coach Michelle Young at the time. "Our fans are right on top of the action, and the noise level is a major advantage for us when playing at home."

The transition of Furman volleyball to Alley Gym actually began due to a scheduling conflict at Timmons Arena during the 2004 campaign.

"The atmosphere was so exciting for that first match that we knew this was where we need to play," added Young, whose team went on to post a 4-1 mark that year on their new home court.

This past year Furman posted a perfect 8-0 record in Alley Gymnasium as part of a 21-9 campaign, and over the past three seasons the Paladins have combined to go 27-2 in the facility (.931), including an 11-1 mark in 2009 as part of a program best 26-4 season that featured a perfect 16-0 regular season. In 2008 Furman won seven home matches on the way to a 21-14 season, SoCon Tournament championship, and NCAA Tournament appearance. Since moving into the facility the Paladins have forged a 53-15 home mark (.779).

Prior to the squad's permanent move into the facility in 2005, the gym floor was stripped, repainted, and sealed in a volleyball specific design. In addition, the ceiling was replaced and new scoreboard, strobe lighting, and wireless internet hub installed. Seating for 500 was also provided. In 2007 air conditioning was added to the court area to make the facility even more fan friendly.

Another program enhancement was the procurement of a new, larger locker room, located just off the court, and new coaches' offices in the building. In 2006 the Friends of Furman Volleyball (FoFV) helped celebrate the program's new home by hosting a house warming party called

"Rally in the Alley."

Originally constructed in 1958, Alley Gymnasium has been used as a practice facility for all athletic teams over the years. It is named for former Furman basketball coach and athletics director Lyles Alley, who headed up the Paladin basketball program for over 20 years and coached All-America Furman performers Frank Selvy and Darrell Floyd, among others.

MINOR HERNDON MICKEL TENNIS CENTER

Furman University's tennis programs, which over the years have brought great distinction to the university with numerous championships and outstanding play, boast as their home one of the region's top tennis facilities, the Minor Herndon Mickel Tennis Center.

The central building of the tennis center, which encloses approximately 41,000 square feet, features four indoor courts and a clubhouse with offices for the men's and women's coaches, locker rooms for home and visiting teams, lobby, lounge, and viewing area for the outdoor courts. The complex also includes an outside stadium court with seating for 400 people and 15 outdoor courts.

The $2 million complex was completed in 1996 and named in honor of the later Minor Mickel, a long-time supporter of the university and first woman to serve as chair of the Furman Board of Trustees. An original gift of $600,000 was made in 1993 by Mrs. Mickel's family in her honor. Additional commitments by the family, alumni, and friends of the university in the following year boosted the total to nearly $2 million.

Mrs. Mickel, a native of Elberton, Ga., and graduate of the University of Georgia, was a longtime Greenville resident. She served on both Furman's Advisory Council and Board of Trustees, and, in 1989, became the first woman ever to chair the board. In addition, she was honored with the school's Mary Mildred Sullivan Award and was awarded an honorary doctorate degree in 1993, prior to her death in 2005.

The complex also honors other individuals for their contributions to Furman.

Family and friends of the late B.O. (Tommy) Thomason, an avid tennis player and Furman graduate who served as the university's chief legal counsel prior to his death in 1993, made gifts in his memory. One group of outdoor courts is called the Tommy Thomason Men's Complex.

The stadium court is named in honor of Paul Scarpa, who served for 45 years as Furman's men's tennis coach prior to his retirement in 2011. Court One is named in honor of longtime women's coach Debbie Southern. Other courts have been named by donors to honor family and friends.

In 2009 the Furman men's tennis scoreboard was given by Barry Cox, a Scarpa pupil, in honor of his father, Charles W. Cox, former president of Daniel Construction and avid tennis player and friend of Scarpa. The outdoor courts for both the men's and women's teams were resurfaced in the summer of 2011.

Both the men's and women's tennis teams have been extremely successful, combining to win 53 Southern Conference regular season and tournament championships over the years.

IRWIN BELK COMPLEX FOR TRACK & FIELD

Furman University, which over the years has claimed seven Southern Conference titles in track and field and six league cross country championships, dedicated the Irwin Belk Complex for Track and Field in 1997.

The facility is named in honor of its principal benefactor, Irwin Belk, the son of William Henry Belk and the founder of the Belk merchandising empire. Irwin Belk, a longtime leader in business, the arts, politics, and education in North Carolina, attended the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, where he set a number of records in track. As a philanthropist, Belk has given the lead gift for track and field complexes at the University of North Carolina, Charlotte, and now Furman, and is dedicated to the advancement of the sport.

In addition to the improved track complex, Furman now boasts the Kelsey-West track, a red MONDO surface with eight 42-inch lanes. The high jump, long jump, triple jump, and pole vault runways are joined by a cream colored apron. MONDO is the premier name in track surfaces and has been used in each of the last eight Olympics and numerous World Track & Field Championships.

In April 2007, Furman announced the planned construction of a new $2.5 million track house and a new track complex.

The first phase of the project will be a two-story, 6,000-square-foot track house that will be situated atop the hill overlooking the track, off Cherrydale Lane. It will include locker rooms for the men's and women's teams, coaches' offices, a reception area and a warm-up area for athletes.

Attached to the track house will be a new 2,000-square-foot laboratory for the Furman Institute of Running and Scientific Training faculty.

The new track house also includes subsequent plans to renovate the existing Irwin Belk Complex For Track & Field, install lights, construct bleacher seating for 1,500, erect a press box, and add parking.

The facility construction and improvements announcement in 2007 came in conjunction with the Asics Blue Shoes Mile banquet held at the Hyatt Regency in downtown Greenville. Over 400 alumni and others, including 1972 U.S. Olympic gold medalist in the 800 meters, Dave Wottle, and former Boston Marathon winner Amby Burfoot, were on hand for the eventful weekend that also included the second annual Asics Blue Shoes Mile run. Renowned distance runner Alan Webb capped the event, attended by over 3,000 fans, by recording the first-ever sub-4-minute mile on a South Carolina track with a time of 3:57.83.

Furman University's Sports Medicine Center, with three current campus locations encompassing nearly 7,000 square-feet of space, state-of-the-art equipment, heated therapy pool, and diverse professional staff, delivers health services to the more than 300 young men and women who comprise Furman's 20-sport intercollegiate athletics program.

The goal of Furman's Sports Medicine program is to create an environment that is most conducive to the physical well-being of the student-athlete.

Facilities

The Sports Medicine main office, with over 4,000 square-feet of space in the Athletics Building, serves as the university's outpatient rehabilitation facility.

The 2,700-square foot Timmons Arena office houses the Athletic Training Center, and the recently opened Aquatic Therapy facility is located in the Lay Physical Activities Center (PAC). A fourth sports medicine location will be included in the new football operations complex to be constructed at Paladin Stadium.

All facilities are fully staffed each day and available to each of Furman's 20 athletic teams.

Staff

The Sports Medicine Center utilizes a multi-disciplinary approach to patient care, bringing together professionals with diverse backgrounds and expertise in sports medicine and physical therapy.

The staff includes athletic trainers and physical therapists with years of experience treating athletes at all levels. Staff athletic trainers are responsible for monitoring the health status of each student-athlete on a daily basis.

In addition to the existing staff, the center engages an extensive network of medical professionals available to the student-athlete. Piedmont Orthopaedic Associates serves as the team physician group and provides comprehensive orthopedic care to athletic teams. Nutritionists and sport psychologists are also part of the referring network.

Furman's broad-based, 20-sport athletics program is supported by its ultra-modern, 7,000 square-foot strength training and conditioning, located in Timmons Arena.

Served by two professional strength coaches, the facility features a full range of weight training and exercise equipment to assist Furman's 300 student-athletes in reaching their athletic potential.

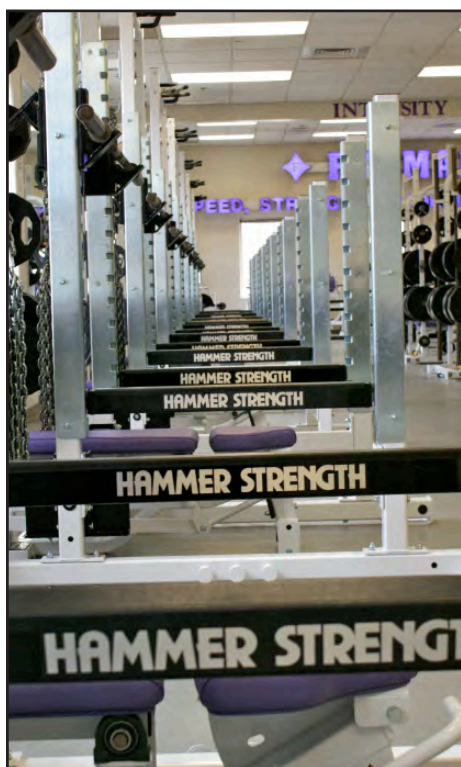

Easily accessible and sporting an excellent view of Paladin Stadium, the center, which is lined with mirrors and includes two separate coaches offices room, is outfitted with MONDO flooring and features all new strength training and conditioning equipment following a complete upgrade in the spring of 2012.

Strength and Conditioning Mission Statement

The mission of the Paladin Strength and Conditioning program is to build championship-caliber student-athletes by applying discipline, work ethic, leadership, and accountability principles while training in a safe, clean, scientifically-backed facility and program. By modeling servant leadership principles, we will develop young men and young women who will run their race to win in the classroom, in competition, and in life.

Strength and Conditioning Philosophy

The Paladin Strength and Conditioning philosophy is to enhance athletic performance through a foundation of proven, old-school methods as well as the incorporation of cutting-edge, scientifically-backed ideas within our training regimens. We believe in developing athletes through the 6:3:1 principle. The mind is to the body as 3 is to 1, and the spirit is to the mind as 6 is to 3.

Weight Room Description

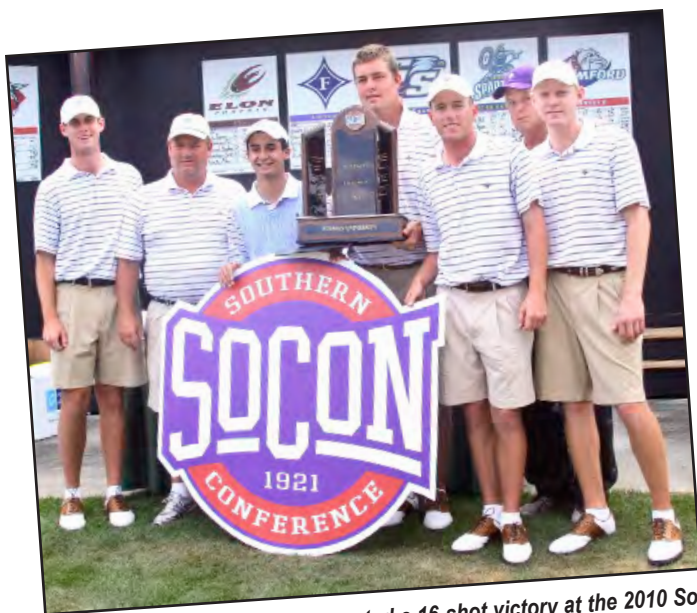

The strength training & conditioning facility is an official Hammer Strength training center, boasting twenty-four power stations. The weight room also contains a full unilateral training circuit, a plyometric development zone, a multidirectional speed area, a large variation of kettlebells and dumbbells, along with up-to-date cardiovascular machines. The facility also boasts the addition of five high-definition flat screen televisions, supported by a state-of-the-art Bose audio system. Additionally, Paladin athletes can partake in the room's nutrition area, which contains vitamins, minerals, and protein recovery shakes. The Furman Strength and Conditioning facility is also the official home of the Tsunami Barbell, a cutting-edge training device that is unparalleled in recruiting fast-twitch fibers through proprioception.

NCAA PUBLIC RECOGNITION AWARDS

Since 2005 the NCAA has honored 37 Furman athletic teams with public recognition awards for Academic Progress Rate (APR) scores that rank in the top 10 percent of all squads in their respective sports for the previous four years. The APR provides a real-time look at a team's academic success each semester by tracking the academic progress of each student-athlete. The APR includes both retention at an institution and academic eligibility in its calculation and provides a clear picture of the academic culture in each sport.

Few conferences in America can claim the heritage of the Southern Conference, which continues to thrive as one of the most historic and progressive Division I intercollegiate athletics conferences in the country. Now in its 91st year of operation, the Southern Conference continues to emphasize the importance of the student-athlete and the league's role in helping to build lifelong leaders and role models.

The Southern Conference has excelled as the premier Football Championship Subdivision conference since earning that classification (formerly I-AA) in 1982. It currently consists of 12 members in four states throughout the Southeast and sponsors 19 varsity sports and championships that produce participants for NCAA Championships.

The Southern Conference is the nation's fourth oldest collegiate athletic association, surpassed by only the Big Ten (1896), the Missouri Valley (1907), and the Pac-10 (1915).

Throughout its history, the Southern Conference has been an innovator in college athletics. The Southern Conference was the first "super conference" with its charter membership including the likes of Alabama, Auburn, and North Carolina. The SoCon, as it has come to be known by headline writers throughout the country, is the league that gave birth to the three-point shot in college basketball and was the college home of such sporting greats as Arnold Palmer, Jerry West and Charlie "Choo Choo" Justice.

Academic excellence has been a major part of the SoCon tradition. League athletes have been recognized countless times on Academic All-America and district teams. Nineteen Rhodes Scholar winners have come out of the conference. Each year, the league distributes at least five graduate scholarships. Last season, nearly 35 percent of all athletes participating in the SoCon carried grade point averages of 3.0 or better.

MEMBERSHIP HISTORY

The Southern Conference was formed on February 25, 1921 at a meeting in Atlanta, Ga. Fourteen institutions from the 30-member Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association (SIAA) reorganized as the Southern Conference. Those charter members included Alabama, Auburn, Clemson, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi State, North Carolina, North Carolina State, Tennessee, Virginia, Virginia Tech and Washington & Lee. Athletic competition began in the fall of 1921.

In 1922, six more schools Florida, Louisiana State, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tulane and Vanderbilt joined the fold. A year later, the University of the South joined the ranks. Virginia Military Institute became a member in 1925, and Duke came into the fold in 1929. Since then, conference membership has experienced a series of membership changes with 41 institutions having been affiliated with the league. The league has undergone two major transitions during its history.

The first occurred in December 1932 when the Southeastern Conference was formed out of the 23-school Southern Conference. In 1936, the Southern Conference invited The Citadel, William & Mary, Davidson, Furman, Richmond and Wake Forest to join the membership.

The second major shift happened in 1953 when Clemson, Duke, Maryland, North Carolina, North Carolina State, South Carolina and Wake Forest officially withdrew from the league to form the Atlantic Coast Conference. Current league members include Appalachian State, College of Charleston, The Citadel, Davidson, Elon, Furman, Georgia Southern, UNC Greensboro, Samford, Chattanooga, Western Carolina, and Wofford.

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE MEMBER SCHOOLS

Appalachian State University	Boone, North Carolina
The Citadel	Charleston, South Carolina
College of Charleston	Charleston, South Carolina
Davidson College	Davidson, North Carolina
Elon University	Elon, North Carolina
Furman University	Greenville, South Carolina
Georgia Southern University	Statesboro, Georgia
University of North Carolina-Greensboro	Greensboro, North Carolina
Samford University	Birmingham, Alabama
University of Tennessee-Chattanooga	Chattanooga, Tennessee
Western Carolina University	Cullowhee, North Carolina
Wofford College	Spartanburg, South Carolina

LEADERSHIP

The Southern Conference named its first commissioner in December 1950. Duke head football coach Wallace Wade made the transition from coaching to athletic administration as the person at the helm of the conference.

Lloyd Jordan replaced Wade as the commissioner in 1960 and served a 14-year term until Ken Germann became the league head in 1974. Germann was the commissioner for 13 years and aided the league's expansion to include women's athletics. He was succeeded by Dave Hart in 1987 who orchestrated the transfer of the league office from Charlotte, N.C. to Asheville, N.C.

Wright Waters replaced Hart in 1991 and was succeeded by Alfred White in 1996. White was followed in 2001 by Morrison, who moved the conference offices to Spartanburg, S.C. Morrison departed in June of 2005 and was succeeded by John Iamarino.

CHAMPIONSHIPS HISTORY

The first Southern Conference Championship was the league basketball tournament held in Atlanta in 1922. The Southern Conference Tournament remains the oldest of its kind in college basketball.

In May of 1923, the league held its first outdoor track and field championship in Montgomery, Ala., and two other sports, cross country and tennis, held their first championships during the 1920s.

The 1930s saw four more sports — wrestling, indoor track and field, swimming and golf — celebrate their first conference championships.

Baseball was introduced as a Southern Conference sport in 1947, and rifle held its first conference championship in 1956. Soccer was the most recently added men's sport in 1967.

The SoCon began sponsoring women's sports during the 1983-84 season. That year, volleyball, basketball and tennis championships were held in the league. Cross country joined the mix in 1985 and the league began holding indoor and outdoor track championships in 1988. Most recently, the conference instituted golf and softball championships in the spring of 1994 and added soccer in the fall of 1994.

The SoCon currently declares champions in 10 men's sports — football, soccer, cross country, basketball, indoor track and field, outdoor track and field, wrestling, baseball, tennis and golf — and nine women's sports: soccer, volleyball, cross country, basketball, indoor track and field, outdoor track and field, tennis, golf and softball.

Furman Hall of Famer Andrew Burr is the only athlete in SoCon history to lead the league in scoring in two different sports in consecutive years.

Rod Smolla

President

Rodney A. Smolla became Furman University's 11th president on July 1, 2010.

He is nationally recognized as a scholar, teacher, advocate and writer, and is one of America's foremost experts on issues relating to freedom of speech, academic freedom and freedom of the press. A native of the Chicago area, he is a 1975 graduate of Yale University, where he was a member of the football team. He graduated first in his class from Duke University Law School in 1978.

Prior to coming to Furman, the 58-year-old Smolla served three years as Dean and Roy L. Steinheimer Professor of Law at Washington and Lee School of Law. He has also been Dean and Allen Professor at the University of Richmond School of Law as well as Director of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at the College of William & Mary.

During his legal career, Smolla has presented arguments in state and federal courts, including the U.S. Supreme Court. He has also testified before committees of the U.S. Senate and U.S. House of Representatives.

His book, Free Speech in an Open Society (Alfred A. Knopf, 1992) won the William O. Douglas Award as the year's best monograph on freedom of expression. He is also the author of Jerry Falwell v. Larry Flynt: The First Amendment on Trial (St. Martin's Press, 1988) and Deliberate Intent (Crown Publishers, 1999). The latter, which was made into a television movie by the FX cable network, describes Smolla's involvement in a notorious case in which he successfully represented the families of three murder victims in a suit against the publisher of a murder instruction manual.

His latest book, The Constitution Goes to College, describes the constitutional principles and ideas that have shaped American higher education. It is scheduled for publication in late 2010 by New York University Press.

Smolla is also a frequent media commentator in newspaper, magazine and Internet news stories. In addition to writing pieces for the New York Times Book Review, he is a regular contributor to the on-line magazines Slate.com and The Huffington Post.

He has remained an active teacher even while serving in his two deanships, teaching courses in higher education law, professionalism, constitutional law, and the Constitution and American culture. Last fall he taught a course at Furman that explored the constitutional law principles that have influenced America's public and private universities. His numerous teaching awards include the State of Virginia's Outstanding Faculty Award and William & Mary's John Marshall Faculty Award.

In addition to teaching at William & Mary, Richmond and Washington and Lee, Smolla has been a professor at the University of Illinois, University of Arkansas and DePaul University law schools, and a Senior Fellow of the Washington Annenberg Program of Northwestern University. He has also been a visiting professor at the University of Melbourne, University of Denver, and Duke law schools.

Smolla is active in civic and community affairs, and frequently speaks to community groups, church groups, youth groups, schools and college organizations. He serves on numerous civic, community, professional and corporate boards, including the Board of Directors of Media General, Inc., and the chairmanship of the Council for America's First Freedom, an organization dedicated to religious freedom.

Dr. Gary Clark

Athletics Director

When Gary Clark was named director of athletics at Furman in August of 2000, he spoke of the challenge of building on the success of a program coming off one of its greatest decades.

Now in his second decade as head of the school's 20-sport athletics program, it's clear Clark — and Furman — have made good on the task as Paladin athletics has maintained its competitiveness and overall excellence.

During Clark's tenure, Furman athletic teams have combined to win 26 Southern Conference regular season championships and 27 league tournament titles, and make 40 NCAA Tournament appearances.

Furman's athletics program earned an 108th place finish in the 2007-08 NACDA NCAA Division I Sports Academy Director's Cup all-sports competition, the highest showing by an SoCon school and third highest among state institutions, and the last four years Furman has ranked among national leaders in NCAA Academic Performance Rate (APR) scores. In addition, the university captured the SoCon's 2007-08 Barrett-Bonner Award by placing the highest percentage of its student-athletes on the league's academic honor roll.

Clark's appointment as athletic director brought him full circle after first coming to Furman as a basketball player in the early 1970s and later returning in 1998 to serve as director of the Paladin Club, the school's athletic fund-raising organization. He added the title of associate athletic director for external affairs the following year.

A 1974 Furman graduate with a B.A. degree in history, Clark earned M.Ed. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of South Carolina. He spent the next 23 years at Spartanburg Day School as a teacher, coach, and, finally, headmaster, where he oversaw several successful enrollment and fund-raising campaigns.

During his time as a Furman undergraduate, Clark lettered twice as a member of the basketball team and played on Paladin squads that won two Southern Conference Tournament championships and made two NCAA Tournament appearances under head coach Joe Williams. During his senior season, the Paladins posted a 22-9 record and defeated South Carolina, 75-67, in the NCAA East Regionals.

A native of Chicago Heights, Ill., Clark, a former member of the NCAA's prestigious Management Council, is married to the former Merrie McCullough '75 of Honea Path and has two sons: Ryan and John Stewart.

Dr. Bill Pierce

Faculty Athletics Representative

Dr. Bill Pierce, Furman's NCAA Faculty Athletics Representative, joined the Furman faculty in 1983 and has chaired the health sciences department for almost three decades. During his tenure as chair, the health sciences major has grown into one of the most popular on campus.

The W. Va., native was a highly recruited two-time all-state basketball player who attended Davidson on a basketball scholarship. While at Davidson, he played on nationally ranked basketball teams that won three Southern Conference championships. He was also a successful half-miler on the track team.

Pierce graduated from Davidson in 1971 with a degree in political science. He earned a master's degree in sports studies from West Virginia and doctorate in physical education from Virginia Tech.

Furman Invitational

Each year, Furman hosts a cross country invitational in October and a track & field invitational in April. In 2010, the cross country meet was renamed the Gene Mullin Furman Cross Country Invitational, in honor of the former long-time Paladin coach. At the event, which marked the 38th running of the meet, Furman unveiled a new race course and a new cross country score board. The course is mapped out on Furman's beautiful golf course.

The Furman Track & Field Invitational began in 1999 as part of the U.S. Track & Field Collegiate series. Over the past six years, it has taken on a new look with the inclusion of the Blue Shoes Mile events, including the inaugural Asics Blue Shoes Elite Mile in 2007. On April 7, 2007, former Olympian Alan Webb, one of the country's premier middle distance runners, ran the first-ever sub-four minute mile on a South Carolina track with a time of 3:57.83. Despite the rare cold and blustery conditions, more than 3,000 fans were on hand at the Irwin Belk Track & Field Complex and Kelsey-West Track to witness the record.

The Blue Shoes Mile Runs are part of several activities to raise money for Furman's Blue Shoes Track Scholarship program. The brainchild of former Paladin runner Chris Borch '78, the Asics Blue Shoes Mile and related fund-raising efforts have already secured nearly $2 million for athletic scholarships.

"With track," said Borch, "I learned passion. Track is one of the last pure sports. It brings out in us the things that we admire in others."
