WHY BULLETS?

Athletes composing the teams of Gettysburg College were designated “Bullets” in 1924 by Paul L. Roy, city editor of the Gettysburg Times. The nickname originated after a Rotary Club dinner at the Quaker Valley Country Club at which football coach William W. “Bill” Wood spoke. Roy, a guest at the dinner, wrote an article for the Times the following day in which he compared the team to “Bullets,” a take-off on the Civil War Battlefield. Thereafter, the Times always referred to Orange and Blue teams as the “Bullets.”

2016 BULLETS FOOTBALL

BARRY STREETER

Head Coach
38th Season
Lebanon Valley '71
Email: bhstreet@gettysburg.edu
Office Phone: 717-337-6414

Barry Streeter enters his 38th season as the head football coach at Gettysburg College in 2016. Streeter is not only the winningest and longest-tenured coach in program history, but he is also the longest-tenured active football coach in all of Division III. With a career record of 190-179-5, he ranks sixth in career victories among all current NCAA Division III football coaches, and he is tied for 23rd in all-time Division III football coaching wins.

Streeter has molded the Bullets into one of the top offensive teams in the Centennial Conference and Division III. Since installing a unique set known as the “Spread Wing” in 2005, Gettysburg has led the Centennial Conference in total offense five times, rushing offense seven times, and passing offense twice. The Bullets have figured among the top-25 in Division III in rushing five times during the same stretch, and in 2009 Gettysburg finished fourth in Division III in total offense, averaging a school-record 493.1 yards per game.

Last fall, the Bullets jumped out with five consecutive victories to open the year before finishing 7-3 overall and 6-3 in conference competition. The team set a new program and conference standard for rushing in the season opener with 574 yards against Bridgewater. Gettysburg finished as the conference leader with 245.1 rushing yards per game. The squad also finished second in the league in total yards per game (429.4) and passing touchdowns (25). Seven Bullets were named All-Centennial Conference. In 2010, Gettysburg posted an outstanding offensive season, setting school records for points (394), touchdowns (53), and rushing touchdowns in a regular season (33). The Bullets also led the conference in scoring (39.4 ppg), total offense (464.1 ypg), and rushing offense (248.2 ypg) while finishing 13th in Division III in all three categories.

Streeter joined the coaching staff at Gettysburg in 1975 as an assistant on Joseph Sabol’s football staff and as the head coach of the track & field program. On Feb. 3, 1978, he succeeded Sabol on the gridiron, becoming one of the youngest head football coaches ever at Gettysburg.

Starting with the 1980 season, when the Bullets fashioned a 6-3-1 record, he guided the program to winning records for eight consecutive years, the longest such streak in school history. In 1985, he guided Gettysburg to its third consecutive Centennial Conference Championship and its inaugural appearance in the NCAA Division III playoffs, advancing all the way to the national semifinals and finishing with an 11-1-1 record.

Streeter has coached five Academic All-Americans, 21 All-Americans, three Centennial Conference Offensive Players of the Year, and 205 all-conference selections. One of his most accomplished student-athletes was Paul Smith ’00, who was a three-time All-American and set the NCAA Division III all-purpose yards record for a single game with 527 against Muhlenberg in 1999.

A 1971 graduate of Lebanon Valley College, Streeter earned two varsity letters as a tight end on the football team and two as a defenseman on the school’s lacrosse team. In 2003, he was inducted into Lebanon Valley’s Hall of Fame. He was awarded a master’s degree in health and physical education from the University of Delaware in 1975 and was a graduate assistant on Tubby Raymond’s football staff at Delaware. Streeter became an astute student of the Delaware Wing-T, which is the basis for Gettysburg’s Spread Wing offense.

Streeter has two sons, Jason and Brandon, and two daughters, Kelly and Lindsey. Jason played football at Lehigh University, and Brandon - a current assistant football coach at the Clemson University - was a starting quarterback for Clemson. Streeter and his wife Patricia are residents of Spring Grove, Pa.

GAME DAY PROGRAM

SHIRK FIELD AT MUSSELMAN STADIUM

Dedicated in September 1965 with a ceremony attended by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Musselman Stadium is the home to Gettysburg field hockey, football, men's lacrosse, and men's and women's outdoor track & field. In September 2003, Shirk Field at Musselman Stadium was converted from natural grass to AstroPlay, a state-of-the-art in-fill synthetic grass surface. The renovation was made possible through the generosity of Dick Shirk '67, for whom the field is named. More recently, the home locker room received a complete makeover with the installation of new lockers, audio and video systems, and updates to the athletic training room.

GAME DAY EXPERIENCE

Few schools in Division III can match the aura and excitement surrounding a typical game day at Gettysburg College. For more than five decades, thousands of exuberant fans have donned the school colors of orange and blue and filled the bleachers at Shirk Field at Musselman Stadium each Saturday, ready to support the Bullets as they face off against the latest foe on the schedule.

From the players' perspectives the day begins with a pre-game meal in the College's top-rated Dining Center. Afterwards, the team gathers in the newly renovated locker room below the stadium stands to begin preparing for the day's epic confrontation.

When ready, the team doesn't run alone onto the gridiron. With the fans perched on the edge of their seats awaiting the start of the game, the Bullets Cheerleaders and Bullets Marching Band stand at attention ready to welcome their team onto the field amidst a chorus of cheers and Gettysburg's fight song, "Loyalty." Throughout the contest, the cheerleaders and band maintain a steady stream of support, the former with cheers and push-ups for every Gettysburg score and the latter with a symphony of heart-pumping and inspiring music and chants.

At halftime, the Bullets Marching Band continues its century-long tradition by dazzling the assembled masses with a full performance, dashing to and fro across the field as the music plays and the flags proudly wave banners of orange and blue.

Rain or shine, win or lose, all players and family members are treated to a post-game tailgate at Quarry Pavilion sponsored by the Football Parents' Club.

In its 24th year of excellence on and off the field, the Centennial Conference is one of the nation’s elite small college conferences.

On June 4, 1981, Keith Spalding, president of Franklin & Marshall College, made the announcement that “eight private colleges found it timely and appropriate to form a round-robin football schedule among institutions with similar attitudes and practices in intercollegiate football competition.” With that statement, the Centennial Conference was born.

From 1983-92, the eight private colleges - Dickinson College, Franklin & Marshall College, Gettysburg College, Johns Hopkins University, Muhlenberg College, Swarthmore College, Ursinus College and Western Maryland (now McDaniel) College - participated in a football-only conference. Because of the success in operating the Centennial Football Conference, the presidents began to study the feasibility of an all-sports conference early in 1991. The presidents received a positive report from an ad hoc committee in March 1992, which also recommended that Bryn Mawr College, Haverford College and Washington College be invited to join as charter members.

On April 29, 1992, Gordon A. Haaland, president of Gettysburg College and acting chairman of the committee of the original eight presidents, announced the expansion of the Conference to an all-sports conference. He also announced that Bryn Mawr, Haverford and Washington had accepted the invitations to become charter members.

A purpose and mission statement adopted by the presidents stated, “recognizing that our fundamental purpose is the academic mission of institutions, we agree to establish an all-sports conference in the spirit of rationalizing our competition by controlling travel, schedule and costs. The Conference will be controlled by the presidents of the member institutions.”

The Centennial Conference encourages athletic competition among national liberal arts colleges and universities that share similar academic aspirations and a commitment to the importance of the total educational experience of students engaged in sports. Inter-collegiate athletics programs are an integral part of the life of the member institutions and flow from their educational objectives. Each institution provides a comprehensive, broad-based athletics program. All varsity sports are treated equitably, and every sport is important.

The Centennial Conference crowns champions in 24 sports and continues to sponsor intercollegiate programs of national prominence for women and men. Soccer, basketball, lacrosse and track and field are just four of the sports in which Centennial schools have been synonymous with national excellence. On the average, Centennial members boast of 21 varsity teams per campus, which is well above the national norm.

The Conference has had 10 teams win NCAA titles - Washington College men’s lacrosse (1998) and men’s tennis (1994, 1997), Ursinus College field hockey (2006), Franklin & Marshall College (2007, 2009) and Gettysburg College (2011) women’s lacrosse teams and Johns Hopkins women’s cross country team (2012-2013-14). Fifty-nine students earned All-America recognition, including 12 who were selected to the first team.

The Centennial Conference is also equally proud of its student-athletes’ accomplishments in the classroom. In 2015-16, 16 athletes were named to the CoSIDA Academic All-America teams, including six first-team selections, while five others were awarded NCAA Post-Graduate Scholarships.

THE COACHES
Barry Streeter enters his 38th season at the helm of Gettysburg’s football program. Streeter is the longest-tenured active coach in Division III and his 190 wins place him sixth among active coaches. Streeter has led Gettysburg to three Centennial Conference championships (1983-85) and he has twice been named CC Coach of the Year. In 1985, he led the Bullets to the only undefeated regular season in school history (9-0-1) and an appearance in the national semifinals. Streeter is a 1971 graduate of Lebanon Valley and he is a member of the Dutchmen’s Hall of Fame.

Tim Launtz is in his sixth season at the helm of his alma mater. Launtz is 21-32 and guided Juniata to the ECAC South Bowl in 2013, marking the program’s first postseason appearance in four decades. Launtz was an assistant coach at Juniata for 15 years prior to becoming head coach, including six seasons under current Gettysburg offensive coordinator Kevin Burke. Launtz is a 1980 graduate of Juniata.

GETTYSBURG DEFENSE
The Bullets defense leads the Centennial in fumbles recovered (4) and tackles (169). The Bullets racked up five sacks and nine tackles for a loss against Ursinus. The tackles for a loss were the most since the team posted 10 against Juniata two years ago. Junior linebacker Frank Olmo leads the conference with 23 tackles.

GETTYSBURG SPECIAL TEAMS
Sophomore Tyler Frazee averaged 44.7 yards on three punts against Ursinus. Frazee booted a 55-yarder in the third quarter against the Bears, the longest by a Bullet in nearly two years. Freshman Justin Geisel kicked his first career field goal against Ursinus and averaged 54.5 yards on eight kickoffs.

DEFENSIVE RETURNS
Sophomore Mike McKnight had two long defensive returns against Ursinus. McKnight carried a fumble 42 yards and brought back an interception 53 yards. He is the first Bullet to get a fumble recovery and an interception in the same game since senior Chris Miller against McDaniel in 2014. His fumble return was the longest since Joe Delaney ’12 went for 65 yards against Dickinson in 2008.

FIRST-TIMERS
Four Bullets have caught their first touchdown passes this season and all four went for at least 30 yards. Junior Ty Abdul-Karim caught a 35-yard score from classmate Justin Davidov in the opener against Bridgewater. It was also Davidov’s first career scoring throw. In the game against Ursinus, sophomore Matt McFadden (31 yards), junior Andrew Major (33 yards), and sophomore Johnny Davis (32 yards) each hauled in their first touchdowns. McFadden’s score came from senior Danny Thompson, which marked his first collegiate touchdown pass.

MAT MAN
Sophomore Paul Triandafilou has started the last two games at nose tackle, recording five tackles and a tackle for a loss. Triandafilou also competes on the wrestling team. As a freshman, he went 30-4 and earned All-America status with a fifth-place finish at the NCAA Division III Championship, the highest national finish ever by a Bullet heavyweight.

The 1985 football team posted the only unbeaten regular season in program history (9-0-1), won the conference title, and advanced to the NCAA semis.

HISTORY OF BULLETS FOOTBALL

Football has been a campus staple for more than 125 years. The program has evolved through the years, but the traditions of excellence on and off the field have remained the same. Football at Gettysburg College isn't just about wins and championships; it's about creating an atmosphere for young men to strive to be their best in all facets of their lives on campus and beyond.

Pride runs deep for the Orange and Blue with a bevy of championships going through the decades. The team dominated its league in the early part of the 20th century before achieving new heights as a member of the Middle Atlantic Conference University Division. In 1964, the squad claimed the MAC title competing against Division I rivals Bucknell, Lehigh, and Temple. Two years later, the Bullets earned the Lambert Memorial Cup as the top small college team in the East.

Since Barry Streeter took over as head coach in 1978, the Bullets have claimed a spot as one of the elite teams in the Centennial Conference, claiming three consecutive titles (1983-85) and competing in the semifinals of the NCAA Division III playoffs in 1985. Under Streeter, 21 Bullets have claimed national accolades, including three-time All-American and NCAA Division III single-game all-purpose yardage record holder Paul Smith '00. Gettysburg's prolific spread-wing offense has paced the conference in rushing yardage 17 times and the team finished fourth in the nation in total offense in 2009.

Gettysburg's long-standing tradition on the football field includes several competitive "trophy" games with long-time rivals.

Old Tin Cup

Gettysburg and Muhlenberg recently renewed their rivalry for the "Old Tin Cup," which was created as part of an elaborate and fictional story to spark interest in the 1954 Homecoming showdown between the two schools.

Little Brown Bucket

Gettysburg's closest rival is Dickinson and the "Bucket" has been a feature of the series since 1938. Created by members of the Board of Trustees at both institutions, the Bucket has remained in Gettysburg for the last three seasons.

The Lincoln Trophy

The newest rivalry trophy added to the mix is "The Lincoln Trophy," (right) claimed by the winner of the Gettysburg-Franklin & Marshall game. Instituted in 2014 to recognize the 100th meeting between the two programs, the stove-pipe hat shaped award was created from two "witness" trees from the Gettysburg Battlefield.

2016 BULLETS FOOTBALL

BULLETS MARCHING BAND

Since its first performance at a home football game vs. Bucknell over a century ago, the Bullets Marching Band has provided entertainment for students, alumni and fans as well as a superb musical education for the talented student-performers that comprise the many wind band ensembles in the Sunderman Conservatory of Music. And with over 100 members, Bullets Marching Band is one of the most visible musical ensembles at Gettysburg College.

The Bullets Band performs for 10,000 people each year, including all home football games, the Collegiate Marching Band Festival in Allentown, PA, high school exhibitions and regional parades. The Bullets Marching Band is also one of the largest and most active student groups on campus. Composed of students from almost all majors and disciplines, it combines the best in musical performance with outstanding marching in a fun college atmosphere.

The Bullets Marching Band is based in the Sunderman Conservatory of Music at Gettysburg College and is only one of our ensembles and musical organizations which include the Wind Symphony, Symphony Band, College Choir, Symphony Orchestra, Jazz Ensemble and many more. For information about the Sunderman Conservatory, our concerts, programs and events, visit us online at www.gettysburg.edu/music.

BULLETS CHEERLEADERS

The cheerleading team can be seen chanting, dancing, and stunting on the track during football games during the fall season. We pump up the crowd with “pom letters,” tumbling, dance routines and touchdown push-ups. The squad cheers at home football games, supporting the Bullets football team through the rain, shine, wind, cold, and heat. During the spring, we review cheers, learn new stunts, and prepare ourselves for the upcoming season!
