COACHES PROFILES

DAVE MAGARITY HEAD COACH NINTH SEASON AT ARMY

Records:
482-438 Overall (32nd Season)
169-104 at Army (Ninth Season)

A Hudson Valley coaching veteran chosen to lead an up-and-coming program at one of the nation's most prestigious institutions. That's the storyline that unfolded in April 2006 when the leadership at the United States Military Academy announced Dave Magarity as Army's eighth women's basketball head coach in program history.

Magarity was chosen to take the reins following what had been a "Cinderella" storybook season in 2005-06 for the Black Knights until their head coach, Maggie Dixon, died suddenly that spring.

Magarity spent the 2005-06 season on the bench with Dixon, serving as associate head coach and playing an integral role in the Black Knights' magical campaign during which the team won its first-ever Patriot League Tournament title, accompanied by an NCAA Tournament berth.

Magarity has since been writing his own story in the West Point history books, one that has maintained a rich winning tradition as one of the Academy's most celebrated women's sports.

Leading Army to its second NCAA Tournament appearance and arguably its best season in 2013-14, Magarity became the program's all-time wins leader, showing a 146-97 record through eight seasons at the Academy. Magarity surpassed Lynn Chiavaro (132 wins) to become Army's wins leader after his team defeated Holy Cross on Jan. 15, 2014. The 32-year coaching veteran reached the 400 career win threshold in 2011-12 and shows a 459-431 record.

Magarity guided Army to a 25-8 finish in 2013-14, setting the program's Division I record for victories in a season. The 25 wins equaled the team's all-time wins mark that Army established as a Division II program in 1983-84.

After finishing tied for second in the regular season, the Black Knights claimed their second Patriot League Tournament championship, thanks to a seven-game winning streak that was capped by a 68-58 win over Holy Cross in the conference title game. Army advanced to the NCAA Tournament for the second time as a Division I program, and for the fourth time overall.

By leading Army to the NAAs, Magarity became just the second coach to take both a men's and women's program to the NCAA Tournament, after he guided the Marist men's team to the dance in 1987. He joins William "Speedy" Morris, who reached the NCAA Tournament with the men's and women's basketball teams at La Salle.

Sophomore Kelsey Minato joined Lisa Russell (USMA '95) as the only Army player to earn back-to-back Patriot League Player of the Year nods following her record-setting season. Minato established Army single-season records in points (725), free throws (207) and three-pointers (82), while also topping Academy single-season marks in points per game (22.0) and free throw percentage (92.4). Joining Minato as All-Patriot League performers were senior Jen Hazlett (second team) and freshman Dani Failor (All-Rookie Team).

Faced with an unthinkable challenge after the loss of Dixon, the Black Knights honored their late coach and ushered in the Magarity era with a stellar 24-6 record. Army posted an 11-3 mark in conference play, further cementing the fact that the Academy made the right decision in Magarity's hiring and that the program was in more than capable hands.

Seasons of 18-12 and 19-12 marks followed in 2007-08 and 2008-09, respectively, as Magarity continued to challenge his players with two of the most rigorous nonconference schedules in program history. Army faced top-25 teams in Connecticut, Rutgers and Ohio State over the span of two years in order to best prepare the team for Patriot League play in January.

A young Black Knight squad without a single senior on the roster posted an 11-18 mark in 2009-10. However, Magarity's club still managed to finish in a tie for fourth place and capture the fourth seed in the Patriot League Tournament.

The Black Knights' senior-dominated unit went 13-16 in 2010-11, bowing out to Bucknell in the Patriot League Tournament after tying the Bison for fourth place in the regular-season standings.

After graduating the team's top two scorers and four starters from the 2010-11 team, Magarity and his staff worked hard to exceed all expectations in 2011-12. Three months after being selected seventh in the Patriot League preseason poll, the Black Knights finished the regular season tied for third, clinching home-court advantage for the conference tournament. Army was narrowly edged out by Holy Cross in the quarterfinals to end the season 14-16.

The 2012-13 campaign was one of the most successful in program history. Magarity became the first head coach in Army's Division I history to record multiple 20-win seasons as he led a young Black Knight squad to a 22-9 record, just their second Patriot League regular-season title in program history and the program's first WNIT bid.

Army became the first team in conference history to sweep all major awards, with Magarity claiming the league's Coach of the Year. In addition to his coaching honor, freshman Kelsey Minato became the first in league history to be voted both the Player and Rookie of the Year, while senior Anna Simmers was tabbed Defensive Player of the Year. Minato was the first Rookie of the Year and second Player of the Year to be mentored by Magarity, while Simmers was the second Defensive Player of the Year.

Minato and Simmers were honored with All-Patriot League first-team selections, while Minato and classmate Aimee Oertner were unanimous picks to the All-Rookie Team. Army had multiple first-team selections for the first time in program history, while the two newcomer nods were also a program first.

Magarity is one of just four active Division I women's basketball coaches to make the transition from the men's side to coaching women. The short list also includes Paul Westhead (Oregon), Alan LeForce (Coastal Carolina) and Dennis Wolfe (Virginia Tech).

COACHES PROFILES

Magarity has mentored five 1,000-point scorers at Army, including Jen Hazlett '14 and Kelsey Minato, who both reached the plateau in 2013-14. The other players to reach the 1,000-point mark under Magarity's watch, Cara Enright '08, Alex McGuire '09 and Erin Anthony '11, make up one of the most celebrated trios in Army history, as they represent the program's second, third and fourth-leading scorers, respectively. Magarity's marquee recruit from day-one, Anthony wrapped up a decorated career ranked second on Army's career rebounding list. A two-time CoSIDA/Capital One Academic All-America selection, Anthony was a four-year all-league performer and three-time Patriot League Scholar-Athlete of the Year.

Along with Anthony, Enright and McGuire, Magarity groomed 2007-08 Patriot League Defensive Player of the Year Maragree King '08. His players have combined to win 15 All-Patriot League citations, seven All-Rookie Team honors and three Player of the Year (Enright, Minato) awards.

One of the most well-respected and recognizable faces in the basketball community, the honors and awards for Magarity are plentiful. In addition to 2013's Patriot League honor, he was presented with the Anaconda Lifetime Achievement Award at the 2008 Men's Basketball Final Four in San Antonio, Texas. In his first season at Army, the N.Y.-Metropolitan Basketball Writer's Association named Magarity its Coach of the Year. Following the landmark 2005-06 campaign, the Army team was bestowed with the Jimmy V Foundation Comeback Award, AT&T National Sportsmanship Award and Patriot League Sportsmanship Award, further rooting Magarity's influence on the program.

Magarity added to his coaching accolades when he was named the Basketball Coaches Association of New York Division I Women's Basketball Coach of the Year following the 2013-14 campaign. A mainstay on the banks of the Hudson with 30-plus years of head coaching experience, Magarity's respect for West Point runs deep.

"I have had many opportunities to bring men's teams that I coached to West Point, and I have always held a strong feeling for the Academy as an outsider," Magarity said upon taking his current position. "To be given this opportunity is one of the most special gifts that I could receive as a coach. The commitment and dedication to excellence here is outstanding. I am honored to be a part of this great tradition."

Magarity arrived at West Point in October of 2005 following a brief stint as the Assistant Commissioner/Director of Men's Basketball Operations for the Mid-American Conference (MAC). Magarity was responsible for basketball scheduling, working closely with the MAC coordinator of officials and served as a liaison between the league office and the 12-member institutions. Prior to joining the MAC, he held a similar position with the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference (MAAC) based in Edison, N.J.

"It was a tremendous honor and thrill for me to be named the head coach at West Point," Magarity said. "Maggie Dixon and I, and the staff, started something very special. It's an honor for me to embrace the opportunity, continue what we started and expand on that success for years to come."

"The decision I made to stay here was probably one of the smartest decisions I have made in my life, professionally," he continued. "To be at West Point with the support of the athletic administration and surrounded by some of the finest young cadet-athletes in the country, is an opportunity I am excited and absolutely thrilled about as we move forward."

In 23 years as a men's head coach, including 18 just 31 miles north of West Point at nearby Marist College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Magarity tallied an overall record of 313-334 (.484), with 253 of those victories coming with the Red Foxes.

During his coaching tenures at Marist and St. Francis University (Pa.), Magarity was honored as Coach of the Year in four different leagues. He was first named Coach of the Year at St. Francis in 1981, earning NABC Division I District III accolades, before garnering recognition at Marist during the 1986-87 season when he won ECAC Metro honors.

He was honored again following the 1994-95 campaign, being dubbed the Northeast Conference Coach of the Year, and the following season was recognized by the NABC for the second time in his career. He would again earn NABC Coach of the Year honors following the 2000-01 and 2001-02 seasons. Magarity was selected the MAAC Coach of the Year in 2001-02 by the league's coaches. He won CollegeInsider.com's top coaching honor three times (2000, 2001, 2002) and the Sport Magazine New York Metropolitan Basketball Writers Association Award once in 1988.

Under his direction from 1986 to 2004, the Red Foxes saw unparalleled success as he led his teams to an NCAA Tournament appearance in 1987 and to the National Invitational Tournament in 1996. Of the 18 Marist teams he coached, 15 of them reached double digits in wins and two eclipsed the 20-win plateau, including a 22-win performance during the 1995-96 season. His squads played in two conference tournament championship games and won the ECAC Metro Conference regular-season title in 1987-88.

His coaching career began at St. Francis in 1973 as a graduate assistant and then as an assistant coach until taking over the reins of the program in 1978, becoming the youngest Division I head coach in the nation at the time (27). In his third campaign, Magarity led the Red Flashes to a 17-10 mark, the most wins in a season for St. Francis in a dozen years, and earned District III Coach of the Year honors as a result.

Magarity began his Empire State coaching career as an assistant at Iona College under then-head coach Pat Kennedy. While a member of the Gaels coaching staff, Magarity helped Iona to a pair of 20-win seasons and two NCAA Tournament appearances (1984, 1985). After three successful years at Iona, Magarity headed up the Hudson River to take over the program at Marist.

In his first season at the helm of the Red Foxes in 1986-87, Magarity made a name for himself, leading that group to the institution's first-ever 20-win season (20-10) and the team's second consecutive berth in the NCAA Tournament. Magarity's squad ranked 11th in the country in field goal percentage defense (.425) and scoring defense (.62.9). The Red Foxes won 14 of their last 15 games that season as Magarity took home ECAC Metro Coach of the Year honors.

In his second campaign, Magarity and the Red Foxes continued to impress as they finished 18-9 overall and earned a share of the ECAC Metro Conference regular-season crown with a 13-3 conference mark. Marist continued to show that defense was a key to Magarity's coaching philosophy, ranking second in the nation in field goal percentage defense holding opponents to 40.1 percent shooting from the floor. Marist also showed that it could score, connecting on 45 percent of its three-point attempts to rank 13th nationally. The Metropolitan Basketball Writers Association honored Magarity by presenting him the second annual Mike Cohen "Good Guy" Award. That June, Magarity saw Marist gain national prominence when Rik Smits was the second pick overall of the 1988 NBA Draft by the Indiana Pacers. Smits played 13 seasons in the NBA and was selected to the East squad for the NBA All-Star Game in 1998. He retired in 2000 ranked second in the Pacers' franchise history in points (11,125), rebounds (4,601) and blocked shots (959).

Magarity led Marist to only its second 20-win season in 1995-96, compiling a school-record 22 wins, and posted a school-record .759 winning percentage (22-7). The Red Foxes earned the program's first bid to the NIT, and Magarity was recognized as the NABC District II Coach of the Year. Four players from that squad were named All-Northeast Conference.

The Red Foxes and Magarity won a share of the MAAC regular-season title in 2001-02, the first since joining the league prior to the start of the 1997-98 campaign. Marist went 13-5 in MAAC action on its way to an overall 19-9 record.

During his 18 seasons at Marist, Magarity coached a total of 11 Red Foxes who eclipsed the 1,000-point mark for their careers. But his tenure was marked by more than just playing success. Magarity coached two Academic All-Americans and graduated better than 95 percent of his players who completed their NCAA eligibility.

A 1974 graduate of St. Francis in Loretto, Pa., Magarity earned a bachelor's degree in business management and marketing.

Magarity, who hails from Philadelphia, Pa., and his wife, Rita, have three children: Maureen, Katie and David, Jr., two granddaughters, Charlotte and Taylor, and one grandson, Carter. All three Magarity children are Marist graduates, while Maureen served as her father's assistant and eventually associate head coach at Army before departing to take the head women's basketball coaching position at the University of New Hampshire in May 2010.

COLLEEN MULLEN ASSOCIATE HEAD COACH FOURTH SEASON AT ARMY

Colleen Mullen joined Army's staff as an assistant coach in July 2011 and was promoted to associate head coach a year later. Mullen made her way to West Point after two years at Long Island University where she was the top assistant and recruiting coordinator. She also spent a season as an assistant coach at Patriot League foe Lehigh. Along with assisting all aspects of the program, Mullen is also Army's recruiting coordinator.

"I am excited to have Colleen join our coaching staff here at the Academy," head coach Dave Magarity said upon her hiring. "She brings a wealth of experience and an infectious energy as a recruiter. She has a strong background as a teacher of the game, and her ability to work with our young backcourt will be critical for our future success as a team."

A proven point guard as a collegiate player for both Rhode Island and New Hampshire, Mullen has continued to cultivate her expertise at the guard position since entering the coaching ranks.

In 2013-14, Mullen helped develop an Army backcourt that led the Black Knights to a team-record 25 wins and their second NCAA Tournament appearance as a Division I program.

Under Mullen's watch, sophomore point guard Kelsey Minato turned in arguably the best single-season performance in team history. Minato set Army single-season records in points (725), free throws (207) and three-pointers (82), while also topping the Academy's single-season list in points per game (22.0) and free throw percentage (92.4).

The Black Knights drained a program-record 212 three-pointers in 2013-14, while Minato and senior guard Jen Hazlett (73) finished the year first and second on Army's single-season three-point shooting list, respectively.

Minato claimed her second straight Patriot League Player of the Year honor in 2013-14, while Hazlett was recognized on the all-league second team.

Army's backcourt shined in 2012-13, as Minato became the first in Patriot League history to be voted Player and Rookie of the Year, while the Black Knights had two first-team All-Patriot League selections for the first time in program history, with both honorees being guards (Minato, Anna Simmers).

The Black Knights' high-scoring perimeter unit helped Army average its highest scoring output since 2007-08 thanks in large part to the second-most accurate three-point shooting contingent in the Patriot League. The Black Knights' success rate beyond the arc was their highest since 2008-09, while their 158 triples were the most Army had made since 2004-05.

The Black Knight ball handlers were the most precise in the conference during Mullen's first season as associate head coach, as Army led the Patriot League in least turnovers per game and ranked as high as ninth in the nation in the category.

During her seven-year coaching tenure prior to Army, Mullen has churned out a plethora of decorated guards and secured top-rated recruiting classes. In her two seasons at Long Island, she helped lead the Blackbirds to an appearance in the Northeast Conference finals and helped record the second-highest win total in program history with a 22-10 mark in 2009-10. She mentored two-time first team All-NEC player Ashley Palmer, while point guard Kiara Evans ranked eighth nationally in assists per game (6.4) under Mullen's watch.

Her duties at Long Island also included managing the program's budget, overseeing the assistant coaching staff, coordinating all on and off campus recruitment and serving as the academic coordinator. The Blackbirds successfully improved their overall team grade-point average from a 2.84 in 2010 to a 3.19 in 2011. A proven recruiter, her first recruiting class was ranked 88th nationally by All-Star Girls Basketball Report. Mullen was also responsible for signing first team All-America junior college player Ebony Davis out of St. Louis, Mo.

Prior to her tenure at Long Island, Mullen spent 2007-08 at Lehigh where she oversaw player development with an emphasis on the backcourt. During her short stint at Lehigh, she guided three of the program's top guards - Erica Prosser, Tricia Smith and Alex Ross - to All-Patriot League selections. All three players went on to garner major Patriot League honors and help Lehigh to back-to-back conference titles.

Mullen spent 2005-07 as the top assistant at Southern New Hampshire after serving as the director of basketball operations at Northern Illinois in 2004-05.

Mullen received a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration from New Hampshire in 2003. She earned her a Master of Business Administration degree from Southern New Hampshire in 2006.

EMILY GARNER ASSISTANT COACH THIRD SEASON AT ARMY

Army head coach Dave Magarity announced the addition of Emily Garner as an assistant coach to the women's basketball staff on June 21, 2012. Garner spent the previous two seasons with the Long Island University women's basketball program following a four-year playing career at Army's Patriot League foe Lafayette.

"Emily was a freshman during my first year at West Point," said Magarity at the time of her appointment. "I remember her being one of the best rookies in the league and went on to have a really solid career. She was a terrific player and really hard worker, qualities which have carried through to her coaching career.

"Everyone I spoke to, from her high school coach in Virginia, to the Athletic Director at Lafayette, to her fellow staff members at LIU, was tremendously complimentary of her abilities and attitude," continued Magarity. "As a player and a coach, she's always exhibited a lot of class. She's a great addition to the Army women's basketball family."

In her second season mentoring the Army post players in 2013-14, Garner helped the Black Knights win their second Patriot League championship and second NCAA Tournament berth as a Division I program. The Black Knights totaled 38.0 rebounds per game, while Army's 5.2 rebounding margin was tops in the Patriot League. Freshman forward Dani Failor was named to the conference's All-Rookie Team after averaging 4.3 points and 3.9 rebounds while appearing in all 33 games.

In her first season behind the Army bench, Garner guided forward Aimee Oertner to a unanimous All-Rookie Team selection after the standout post player notched 81 rejections during her freshman campaign.

Prior to coming to West Point, Garner spent the previous two seasons with the Blackbirds, serving as an assistant coach (2010-11) and director of basketball operations (2011-12). During that time, LIU averaged 20 wins per season while earning consecutive berths to the Northeast Conference Championship.

For Army, the Virginia native's responsibilities include monitoring the team's academic progress while also serving as the point of contact for marketing initiatives and community outreach and relations projects. Her recruiting efforts will focus on her home region of the Mid-Atlantic and Southeast.

Garner began her coaching career at her alma mater, Robinson Secondary High School in Fairfax, Va. She was an assistant coach for the Rams, while serving the same role for the Potomac Valley Tarheels AAU squad.

Garner was a four-year member of the Lafayette women's basketball team, playing in 108 career games. She led the Leopards in rebounding for two seasons while also garnering a pair Patriot League Academic Honor Roll citations.

Garner, who graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English with a minor in economics and business in 2009, remains on Lafayette's all-time top-10 lists for career rebounds, free-throws made and free-throws attempted, as well as single-season marks for rebounds and free-throw attempts.

COACHES PROFILES

JENNA McLAUGHLIN
ASSISTANT COACH
SECOND SEASON AT ARMY

Army head coach Dave Magarity announced the hiring of assistant coach Jenna McLaughlin on Aug. 21, 2013. McLaughlin arrived at West Point after serving as an assistant coach at NYU. McLaughlin's primary roles include assisting in player development, recruiting, scheduling and team operations, while also coaching the guards and wing players.

"Jenna is a great addition to the staff," said Magarity. "I've known her for a number of years after having the chance to see her at NYU and Sacred Heart and have always been very impressed with her. She comes highly recommended. Jenna brings a lot of energy to the staff and has a great understanding of this business at all levels. We're excited to have her."

McLaughlin excelled in her first season at Army, mentoring a solid backcourt that led the team to its second Patriot League Tournament championship in 2013-14.

McLaughlin played important roles in the development of sophomore guards Kelsey Minato and Jean Parker, as well as in the fine-tuning of senior guard Jen Hazlett. Minato achieved a plethora of Academy single-season records including points (725), free throws (207), three-pointers (82), scoring average (22.0) and free throw percentage (92.4).

Additionally, Hazlett's 73 three-pointers are the second most in team history, while Parker's shooting improved over the course of the season, as she finished with 35 three-pointers. As a team, Army's 212 three-pointers on the year also topped the program's all-time list.

McLaughlin, who played collegiately at Molloy College, spent the 2012-13 season on the NYU sidelines. The Violets' season was highlighted by an upset victory over 13th-ranked Washington as well as a standout freshman campaign by Megan Dawe, who was voted UAA Rookie of the Year and ECAC Division III Metro Rookie of the Year.

McLaughlin, who graduated from Molloy in 2009 with a bachelor's degree in history before remaining in Long Island to pursue a graduate degree, took her first coaching assignment out of college at Sacred Heart University. The Carle Place, N.Y., native spent two seasons with the Pioneers, who went 43-20 during her stint to include an NCAA Championship bid in 2012. While at SHU, McLaughlin completed a master's degree in teaching.

As a shooting guard at Molloy, McLaughlin led the Lions to a pair of NCAA Tournament bids, including the program's first in 2008 after claiming the East Coast Conference title. As a graduate student in 2010, McLaughlin led Molloy to a team-record 22 wins, another ECC crown and its second trip to the NCAAs.

McLaughlin comes from a family with military history as both grandfathers served in World War II. McLaughlin's maternal grandfather served in the Army while her paternal grandfather was in the Navy and worked on the U.S.S. Terry destroyer in the Pacific.

LISA STRACK
ASSISTANT COACH
FIRST SEASON AT ARMY

Army head coach Dave Magarity announced the addition of Lisa Strack as an assistant coach to the women's basketball staff on July 1, 2014. Before coming to West Point, Strack spent two seasons as the video coordinator for the Virginia Tech women's basketball program after a four-year playing career at American University.

"I am fortunate and excited to have Lisa join our staff," Magarity said. "I have known her for quite a while and have always admired her toughness and work ethic as a player. She comes to West Point with solid experience and she will have a positive impact on our young team."

Strack spent the 2012-13 and 2013-14 seasons at Virginia Tech, where she worked as the video coordinator with the women's basketball team. During her time in Blacksburg, Va., Strack was responsible for breaking down film and assisting in recruiting visits.

No stranger to the Patriot League, Strack was a four-year standout guard at American University prior to taking the position at Virginia Tech.

A 1,000-point scorer and two-time All-Patriot League selection at American, Strack led the Eagles in scoring and rebounding during her senior year and earned Patriot League Player of the Year honors. As a senior, she was named American's Female Student-Athlete of the Year, while serving as a team captain and starting in all 31 games.

Strack capped her playing career by leading American to a program-record-tying 23 victories, a 14-0 mark in the Patriot League and the school's third WNIT appearance in four seasons.

Strack graduated as just the ninth American women's basketball player to record 1,000 points and 500 rebounds in her career, finishing with 1,059 points and 500 rebounds. She was also the Patriot League's steals leader in 2011-12, registering 2.6 steals per game, and ranked in the top 10 in the conference in scoring and assists, with averages of 11.5 points per game and 2.8 assists per game.

Additionally, Strack was recognized on the 2010 Patriot League All-Tournament Team and garnered All-Rookie Team honors in 2009.

A native of Langhorne, Pa., Strack graduated from American in 2012 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration.

capabilities, he handed her over to Pablo Martinez, a former professional player in Mexico. Minato met with Martinez twice per week, one hour per session, at Village Bible Church in nearby Garden Grove, Calif. The court was carpeted, forcing her to dribble harder than usual, and it measured 94 feet by 50 feet. He also put a weighted vest on Minato to test her strength, instructing her to hold the ball one inch below her chin, one inch out from her chest. There were wooden backboards, but they served as little more than backdrops. She was a net tickler, the ball, spinning backward, rarely nicking the rim.

"I had to change the nets all the time," Martinez says. "All the time."

So it was that Mullen first came upon Minato in December of 2011. Army was in Tempe, Ariz. for a game against Arizona State, and Mullen, in the market for a point guard, attended Nike's Tournament of Champions in Phoenix.

On the event's second day, she eyed a few California kids, but took in a Huntington Beach game for no particular reason.

In four seasons, Minato had matured from a freshman whose father tied her sneaker laces just off the court before a summer-league game to the program's all-time leading scorer. Mullen liked what she saw from Minato, who was undersized but effective. Mullen knew nothing else about her, and had to leave after watching Minato. She sent McClurg a long, inquiring e-mail in the days afterward.

"Shot in the dark," Mullen says.

It connected. McClurg informed Mullen that Minato had the grades necessary for admission and was interested in learning more about West Point. There was interest from other schools, but no commitment from any. Coast-to-coast communication continued with head coach Dave Magarity calling Minato weekly as a priority recruit. After losing in the league tourney, he flew west for a home visit. He planned on attending a Huntington Beach playoff game against San Diego High, a team traditionally more powerful than Minato's. Minato's parents were concerned Magarity might lose interest if she happened to struggle. They tried to talk him out of attending, but he stayed, settling into a seat atop the bleachers. Minato knocked down one three-pointer, then two, then three, then four, then five. Magarity was "dumbfounded." She kept shooting, hitting a sixth three, then seventh and eighth.

"I was like freaking out," he says. "I didn't want to leave. I wanted to hold her hand and walk her back to West Point."

There were still steps to be taken. Minato's father mentioned to his neighbor, Mike Rovere, that the family was trekking to West Point for an official visit. Rovere, an attorney then moonlighting in the martial arts, was already training the Minato siblings, but offered to introduce her to self-defense moves to let her know what it was like to fight someone off with her hands. He taught her MMA maneuvers such as the Muay Thai clinch and grappling; they worked with Pugal sticks and she wrestled her brother on a mat in Rovere's garage on Saturday mornings. She absorbed it all.

"I'd set up scenarios where they would throw each other around," Rovere says. "She rarely spoke. Sometimes I was wondering what was going through her head. Her eyes were burning a hole through my head. It was a focused effort."

Minato felt confident, and enjoyed her visit to West Point. General Ann E. Dunwoody, the Army's first female four-star general, happened to be on site that day, and Colonel Diane Ryan, taking Minato around campus, arranged for Minato to meet with her. Minato continued on to Connecticut afterward, where she visited Sacred Heart, but her affections were for West Point. There was no sure word from admissions for some time, though. Her parents started sweating the radio silence.

"What's Plan B, Kels?" her father said.

"Oh, no, there's no Plan B," Minato said. "This will work out."

She received clearance two weeks before basic training, better known as "Beast Barracks." While she moved without hesitation, her father fought his nerves. She recited the oath on Reception Day, July 2, 2012, solemnly swearing to "maintain and defend the sovereignty of the United States."

Her father did not know when he would next hear from her as she said her goodbyes. He calls the interim period "excruciating." One day went by, then two and three. He wondered what she faced, knowing the academy's complicated past since women were first admitted in 1976.

"It's bad enough for a guy," he says. "Here's my little girl. What the heck's going on?"

His phone rang on Day 4. He was in line at a Greek restaurant with his wife when an unfamiliar number streamed across his cell-phone screen. He had set up his house line so that it would forward all incoming calls to his cell in case she called while they were out. He picked up, listening for any sounds of distress in her voice.

"I can't describe the relief," he says. "She expressed enthusiasm, happiness."

Military life was new to Minato, but she had been around war relics — a compass, notebook and goggles — growing up. Her great-grandfather, Anselmo, was a Private in the U.S. Army's 32nd Infantry Division during World War I, and fought in Germany and France. He was injured by gunfire, cut by bayonet during hand-to-hand combat and suffered mustard gas attacks. Her grandfather, Alfeo, served in the 721st Bomb Squadron during World War II. Rick sought advice from his brother, David, also an Army man, about preparing her. A friend asked her mother: How can you let your daughter enroll in a military school where 16% of the students are women?

Minato took it all in stride, breathing in teargas with classmates and loading her M16 rifle. She earned sharpshooter status for her accuracy as well as honors as the best new cadet in her squad during the second half of Beast. Her greatest failure related to facial control. She smiled often, even as others learned to stare blankly. To get the smiling out of her, Minato's leader gave her duct tape to shape a fake smiley face on a wall. She was ordered to communicate with the tape without laughing.

"I don't even know why I smiled so much," she says. "It wasn't even

Half past eight o'clock on a Monday morning in late January and Minato, making her way from an environmental engineering class in Washington Hall, slips on a wool hat over her hair, wrapped in a tight bun, before stepping outside. She wears a black parka, "USMA 16" stitched in gold on the front, and moves quickly over the blacktop — white lines painted for basketball and bordered by Gothic arches — to Thayer Hall for a military leadership class. Snowflakes fall; her California blood cools. She frets about when to put on gloves when the weather turns cold on campus, not wanting to seem "soft" in comparison to the other cadets.

"It's probably 80 degrees and sunny back home," she says.

It is nine degrees in the rock-bound highland atop the banks of the Hudson. There are posters lining the walls to her next classroom, one featuring Uncle Sam pointing at all comers and informing them, "I want YOU... to be a Math major."

Another poster invites cadets to a lecture reflecting on 20 years after the Rwandan genocide. Inside Room 372, Lieutenant Colonel Darcy Schnack, a logistician who grew up in Iowa and served multiple deployments in Iraq, welcomes 16 cadets — 14 men, 2 women — for class. She informs them that she will likely not be at their next session due to funeral detail duty. She tells them about proper procedure for full military honors at burials — pallbearers, a lieutenant presenting the flag, a team playing Taps, a rifle team firing a 21-gun salute. She encourages them to learn more.

"I'll tell you to take it seriously, to interact with these folks," she says. "We have a lot of World War II veterans passing nowadays."

Schnack transitions to life-and-death decision-making. Emotional intelligence, self-management and time constraints are touched upon. She commences a lesson focused on the emergency landing of U.S. Airways Flight 1549 by Capt. Chesley (Sully) Sullenberger III and First Officer Jeff Skiles some 50 miles south.

"Miracle on the Hudson?" she says. "I want you to start thinking about decisions."

Minato opens a binder to take notes on loose-leaf paper. Her tools during the course of the school day are her TI 30XIS calculator, a multi-color pen and a "Pink Pearl" compound eraser. She hates math, but enjoys the calculations taken by military leaders.

In class, Schnack shows a scene from "Lone Survivor," a movie about Navy SEALs faced with ethical decisions in the mountains of northern Afghanistan that border Pakistan. Later, in a biology class, the professor breaks up a dense lesson by using the video game "Halo" to highlight enzyme inhibitors. Heavy metal plays as clouds of blood form on screen after an explosion. The words "Who's Yo Daddy?" and "Owned!" stream across the monitor. Minato, seated in front, smiles.

There are times when the military and basketball themes come together. Before each game, the women line up in height order outside the lock-during field training. It features all 19 players stacked together. Some place their hands as if holding pistols, others as if aiming rifles, one as if lugging a grenade launcher.

Kelsey Minato leads Army's women's hoops team with a motor that's as unstoppable as her moves to the basket. The great-granddaughter of WWI veteran Anselmo Minato (far l. top) and granddaughter of WWII vet Alfeo Egido, she's right at home in a military life that has not only seen her climb the Black Knight all-time leaderboard, but has also introduced her to such hoop luminaries as Kurt Rambis and Derek Fisher (above), Phil Jackson (l.) and Army alum and Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski.

Minato, second shortest, ducks, ready to pounce, ball in hand. A cadet yells, "Locked and loaded!" They run out onto a home court lined with advertisement boards that range from Lockheed Martin to Massage Envy Spa.

Magarity, 65, never lacks for ammunition. Once a Seabee, his spark is best evident at home games when the school awards a $20 gift certificate from a local pizzeria to a fan who guesses the time when he will throw off his sports jacket in frustration. They know him well. He came to Army in 2005 when Maggie Dixon was head coach. The Black Knights reached the NCAAAs for the first time as a Division I program that March, but Dixon died a month later due to complications of an enlarged heart. She was 28, and Magarity, who reached the NCAAAs with Rik Smits at Marist in 1987, had entrenched.

In Minato, a Californian like Dixon, he found a singular talent to lead Army back to the NCAAAs. Last year, before the league title game, Magarity visited Dixon's granite headstone by Old Cadet Chapel.

"When you come here, you definitely feel her presence," Minato says. "She will always be involved with us in some way. In a way we were playing for her."

Magarity's pupils are playing for each other, too. His staff extends the playbook often, implementing screens and re-screens, encouraging Minato to work methodically, to outwit counterparts by finding open teammates.

In practice, she will roll her eyes at the length of play names, such as, "Down Fist Special Reverse," but she understands the end game: establishing an inside game with forwards Olivia Schretzman and Aimee Oertner while developing wings such as freshmen twins Destinee and Daizjah Morris.

"They run Minato off every wing screens, fade screens," Fabbri says. "She has perfected the floater off the tight curl."

Minato works to close holes in her game, but one doctor told her there might be one in her right (shooting) wrist. She noticed something amiss during a West Coast swing near her hometown in November. She made 1-of-10 attempts from behind the arc against Pepperdine, and had an X-ray taken. She practiced with a protective strap for a time, but played games sans brace throughout. She insists she is fine, but frequently rubs the wrist following games, flexing it to keep loose.

There is no sympathy for the league's leading scorer. At Holy Cross in Worcester, Mass., she sells contact into a foul call, and Holy Cross coach Bill Gibbons shouts, "She might be the best player in the league, but that's a flop!"

She later lobbies another official for a call, and Gibbons yells across the court, "She can't talk to you like that!" She shrugs and scores Army's last eight points to win, 53-51.

"Props to her," Gibbons says.

No team frustrates her like Lehigh. The Mountain Hawks offer the cadets a kaleidoscope approach, flashing 11 looks on defense, alternating schemes mid-possession at times. Minato struggles all night, needing 17 shot attempts to score 16 points in a 12-point loss. When Minato misses a jumper in the second half, a whistle follows and one fan, throwing all diplomacy to the side, alleges nepotism.

"Well, that's a patriotic call!" the fan says.

Minato tries to compartmentalize her worlds as best she can. She checks CNN.com in between classes, scanning for updates on international events. She notes headlines highlighting the actions of ISIS — a beheading of a journalist here, the burning of a Jordanian pilot there. The ongoing battles occupy her thoughts.

"It makes me really sick, but it also makes me feel like I am part of the solution, fighting them," she says. "It's nice to know there are people who recognize that type of behavior is unacceptable. It's despicable, really. I get really pissed off."

The Middle East is never far from her reality, and the last Monday in January is no different. Reuven Rivlin, the Israeli President, visits, paying his respects in the cemetery before addressing the cadets from the poop deck inside Washington Hall. To curry favor, he pardons all cadets facing punishments. He adds encouragement.

"I bring you a message from the people of Israel," he says. "Go Army! Beat Navy!"

The corps erupt, fists pounding on tables, forks banging on plates. Lunch is done in 20 minutes, and Minato makes her way toward her room on the sixth floor of MacArthur Barracks, a gray stone building looking out at Trophy Point. Her living space is Spartan, just past a battlefield cross — combat boots, bayonet in ground, battle helmet on top

"All Gave Some, Some Gave All," sketched nearby. She lives with one female roommate on a co-ed floor. She mentions the mouse that used to rummage through granola she stored in a drawer, and the sleep she lost listening to it. She later found the mouse dead by her desk.

"I need a nap," she says.

Twenty minutes to tip behind enemy lines inside Alumni Hall, the U.S. Naval Academy's basketball building that doubles as the Bob Hope Performing Arts Center in Annapolis, and Minato prepares for center stage. She is in a locker room that is more of a dressing room, what with the vanity mirrors lined with light bulbs and Georgetown Cupcake boxes stacked by the door. She tightens her ponytail and applies lip balm. "She smirks at a schedule poster of the Navy women's team that has been re-decorated with their opponents' teeth colored in and horns added to heads. Minato gives the poster a quick punch before exiting into a hallway that leads to the court. More than 800 Midshipmen in uniform anticipate her appearance.

Once Army possesses the ball, she dribbles. Her antagonists commence their pre-planned chant.

"Ball hog! Ball hog!" they say, timing a tomahawk chop to the hymn.

"Ball hog! Ball hog!" they say.

It goes on all game; Minato pays them no mind. She bit her fingernails and picked at her lips when the arena was empty during the morning shoot-around, but maintains a calm exterior as her shots fall short early. Army is up one at the half, and she grows more aggressive, finding rhythm in a second-half run. In five-and-a-half minutes, she hits a pull-up jumper, a 3-pointer from the top of the key, another from the wing and a baseline jumper. She is fouled, and makes the subsequent free throw. The chants die down; the Midshipmen stay put, but several open academic books to read. She finishes with 23 points in a 12-point win. Magarity pivots to punch the air as Minato steals the ball in the final seconds. He attributes the win to her flourish. "At the end of the day, it came down to Kelsey Minato stepping up and making some incredible plays," he says. "She has an incredible feel for the game."

Logging a league-high 38 minutes per game, more than 1,000 on the season, she is worse for wear this time of year. She walks out of the locker room — hair still wet, a gym bag on each arm — back to the court, where her parents wait for a brief embrace. Her father snaps posed photographs en route to the bus, the last one in front of a battleship painting, Minato boards, and takes her seat. There will soon be an ice cream social at the superintendent's house for sinking Navy, but she halts the onward march for a night.

Someone slips the disc for "Fury," a film about a mission taken by Allied forces behind enemy lines during World War II, into a DVD player.

Wallkill girl with leukemia inspires Army

A 'good-luck charm' for hot Knights

By Sal Interdonato
Times Herald-Record

WEST POINT - The Army women's basketball team was doing nothing right.

The Black Knights were missing jumpers, layups, free throws. They were missing the chance for an expected win, down five points inside of 5:00 left against ninth-place Colgate.

Dave Magarity, a coach for four decades, needed to vent. He strolled down the bench and found a seat next to Andrea Wojciechowski. Magarity rattled off Army's issues to Wojciechowski, a 12-year-old from Wallkill. She smiled.

That smile has become the team's inspiration.

Battling acute lymphoblastic leukemia, Wojciechowski has become a shining light for 22 Army players and seven coaches and staff members. Army officially made Wojciechowski part of the team on Jan. 19 through the Friends of Jaclyn Foundation, an organization helping place cancer patients with sports teams.

Since that day, Andrea's spirit in her fight against leukemia has improved, and so has Army's mindset. Wojciechowski is a fraction of the height of players, but they are the ones looking up to their friend.

One tough kid

Diagnosed with leukemia in February 2013, Wojciechowski has endured 25 spinal taps according to her mother, Liz Ruiz. She takes two chemotherapy pills daily. Andrea's dosage increases to 13 pills on Wednesdays.

"She deserves this for everything that she's been through," Liz Ruiz said. "In 2013, her brain swelled up and she almost died twice on the (operating) table. ... She's had so much blood work done."

"One day, she said, 'Mommy, could I just go up to heaven for a little while?'"

Liz Ruiz has seen a change in her daughter's mood since joining the team. Army home games provide Andrea with a rare day out of the house. Her mother is thrilled to see Andrea apply makeup and dress up in preparation for the games.

"It (the games) gives me something to look forward to. It's fun. I get to see how coach (Magarity) plans everything and see what's going on with the team."

"It (the games) gives me something to look forward to," said Andrea, active in basketball, gymnastics, dance and cheerleading before her illness. "It's fun. I get to see how coach (Magarity) plans everything and see what's going on with the team."

Andrea, who turns 13 on Friday, is part of all the team's pre-game activities, from Magarity's locker-room speech to warm-ups to the squad's rally circle before tip-off.

And of course, she has a seat on the bench.

Army's 'good-luck charm'

Kelsey Minato, Army's leading scorer and reigning Patriot League player of the year, is proud to call Wojciechowski her "sister."

"She's definitely inspired us and kind of put things in perspective for us," Minato said. "If we have a bad game, it (stinks). But at the end of the day, there are bigger problems in life. When you look at her and see how spirited she is and how happy she is with all she has been through, it really motivates us."

Andrea's relationship with the team has extended outside the gym. Minato and junior guard Jean Parker are among the many Army players who text and Snapchat Andrea daily. Parker talks about being unsure if she could find the strength Wojciechowski has mustered to battle her illness.

"It's giving her something to look forward to and us keeping in constant contact with her," Parker said. "Even if it's a little text, I think she really looks forward to that and appreciates that. I don't think she is in school right now, so she can't be around a lot of her peers."

Parker calls Wojciechowski the team's "good-luck charm."

Army rallied for a 48-47 win over Colgate that day recently. It was Army's 11th straight win since Andrea's "signing" day. She waited in the locker room after the win and handed out notes of appreciation to every player. Andrea's message was how much she enjoyed coming to the games and seeing her sisters.

"She always expresses her gratitude," Parker said.

Liz Ruiz said Andrea will complete her chemotherapy medication on June 19. The hope is that Andrea will return to an active life. Maybe she'll celebrate with a few jump shots at the hoop in her driveway, where she had played with her two older brothers.

For now, Andrea has a front-row seat for the defending league champions. She just better not get too comfortable on the bench. When Army wasn't playing up to Magarity's standards during a game against Lehigh, he shouted down the bench, "Put Andrea in!" "It's had a big impact on the kids," Magarity said. "I'm sure they have seen other things in their lives and some tough things, but to expose them to Andrea's fight has been amazing. The connection was instant."

Army (21-6, 13-4 Patriot) will complete its regular season on Saturday against Lafayette before beginning defense of its Patriot title and NCAA tournament appearance. The Black Knights undoubtedly will encounter more struggles, more moments when they dearly need to see their good-luck charm toward the end of the bench, smiling.

Army scores strong new class

Eight recruits will press for playing time

BY KEN MCMILLAN
Times Herald Record

WEST POINT — The dynamic of Army's Patriot League championship women's basketball team will certainly change this season with the addition of eight freshmen.

Ninth-year coach Dave Magarity likes his new class of players and believes a handful have a legitimate chance at contributing right away. "You have a little bit of everything," he said.

The Black Knights graduated one starter in Jen Hazlett and senior guard Krishawn Tillet has decided not to play following several years of battling knee injuries.

That leaves 24 players on the active roster and the need to use a second team — known as a Varsity B or junior varsity — to accommodate playing time.

Magarity defends the idea of bringing in eight newcomers, citing Hazlett's original Class of 2014 that had seven players and dwindled to one. He also must replace four seniors after this season.

"We have some kids who are capable of becoming very good players at this level, and a couple contributing right away," he said.

Three incoming recruits should provide athleticism to the guard position.

Nicole Heavirland is only 5-foot-6 but is "maybe one of the strongest kids I've seen," Magarity said. She was named all-New England Prep first team the past two seasons at Phillips Exeter (averaging 14 points, three rebounds and three assists last season) and all-Montana first team as a sophomore. She has a work ethic that helped her become a member of the U.S. Junior Olympic rugby team and a candidate for the 2016 or 2020 Summer Games.

Janae McNeal and Aliyah Murray arrive from the U.S. Military Academy Prep School.

Army coach Dave Magarity has brought in eight freshmen to keep veterans on their toes.

The 5-9 McNeal is powerful and able to drive past defenders, much like 2013 grad and all-star Anna Simmers. She was a 2,000-point scorer in Virginia. Murray is a 5-10 guard from New Jersey, a strong defender and a burgeoning offensive threat.

Six-foot forward Jahla Osborne is one of the highest-rated scholastic recruits Magarity has ever corralled. A mobile post player, Osborne averaged 15 points and 12 rebounds for Colonial Forge High School, and was named all-Virginia 6A second-team. Magarity thinks he found a "sleeper" pick in 6-3 forward Lena' Hicks, who averaged 18 points and 13 rebounds at Elkton (Md.) High School two years ago — she played at USMA Prep last season.

The Morris twins, Daizjah and Destinee, were originally recruited to go to USMA Prep, but West Point admissions made them direct admits. Both players are athletic and quick, Magarity said. Daizjah averaged 15 points, five rebounds and four steals (she had 271 in her career) for Centennial High School in Minnesota, and Destinee averaged eight points, three rebounds and almost four assists.

Margaret Anne Hubbell is a hard-nosed, 5-9 forward who scored 1,058 points, split between Central Bucks East and Germantown Academy, both in the Philadelphia area. She averaged 18 points and nine rebounds at Germantown last season.

Magarity acknowledged there's a bit of "anxiety" for players who rode the end of the bench last season and might feel squeezed by the recruits, but that is the competition that Magarity wants for his team, nearly certain to be voted the preseason favorite to repeat as champion.

"They were part of something special and now all of a sudden that can change," he said. "We want to make sure we keep everybody engaged and be fair about it. At the end of the day, what's fair and what's reality are sometimes two different things."

Army women's hoops not resting on laurels

WEST POINT— After 40 years of working as a basketball coach Dave Magarity wishes he could embrace the joys and success of the sport he loves so much.

Habits are hard to break, though, and he admits he has a penchant to reflect on the negative, lamenting the losses that should have been wins and forever feeding the what-

if questions

that will never be answered satisfactorily.

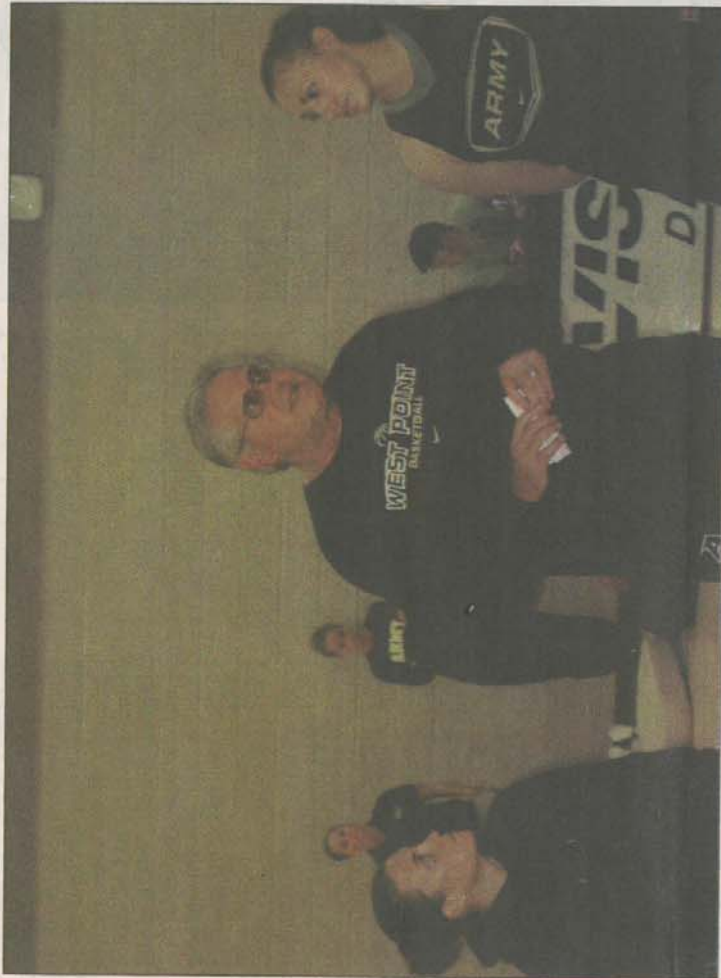

There was so much to embrace last season as the Army women steered toward the playoffs.

Kelsey Minato was setting all sorts of scoring records, Jen Hazlett started to shoulder a valuable leadership role and several young players emerged as much-needed depth.

But this is what Magarity remembers: Shelby Romine hitting an impossible shot to send the Black Knights to defeat at Bucknell; Army's defense failing to show up as Holy Cross won a shootout at West Point; and, old nemesis Colgate waylaying a bid for first place, leaving Army a game short.

"Those are the things that stick in my mind," Magarity told his team as it gathered for its first official practice of the season on Monday. "We should have won two straight regular-season championships, okay. We should have but we didn't."

That Army team proved resilient — undaunted by its setbacks, the Black Knights rolled off seven consecutive wins and claimed the coveted Patriot League tournament title and a berth in the NCAA tournament.

So what is this year's motivation? Not even Maggie Dixon's girls, the championship team of 2006, could repeat the following season in Magarity's first season at the helm, crushed by the emotional weight of her untimely death.

"We learned a lot playing game to game," senior Olivia Schretzman said of last year's run. "We took each game as serious as possible. We're just going to fight like we did then."

So it was fitting that the new season started with little fanfare, no giant pep rally and no Midnight Madness celebration to herald the champions. The first practice took place in two-time reigning player of the year, "but for me, and I know the coaches will enforce it as well as the other captains, we have to maintain our focus from the very beginning, even in the non-conference games against opponents that we're supposed to (beat). We need to treat those games as opportunities to work on our sets, work on our defense, work on playing better as a team, so when it comes time for league (play) we will be ready."

Ever the historian, Magarity delved into his practice files to recycle his favorite quote to open a new season.

"The greatest thing in the world is not so much where we are but in what direction we are moving," said Supreme Court associate justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Without pause, Magarity asked his team: "Where are we going? Are we all going to be fat and happy because we got hot last February and rattled off whatever we did ... eight (actually seven) straight wins?"

Magarity praised his team for finding the will to win its second Patriot League championship.

"What you did was unbelievable ... it was great," he said. "Do we want to go through that again or do we want to sit around and hope that it happens. I don't think this team is about talk or about lip service."

And with that, a new season began, full of hope.
