ARMY WEST POINT AT NCAA TOURNAMENT

The Army golf team is no stranger to the NCAA Tournament. The Black Knights played in the inaugural event in 1939 and have made 24 appearances overall. Ben Mayo and Fred Stanford played in the first NCAA Tournament at Wakonda Country Club and began a run that has seen 14 teams and 11 individuals qualify for the highest stages of collegiate golf.

Army made its first appearance as a team in 1960 and tied with Lamar and Princeton for 24th place. As a team, the Black Knights qualified twice more until the NCAA changed the format, adopting a regional tournament.

The Black Knights have earned a spot at the NCAA Regionals 12 times, the most recent at the 2016 Albuquerque Regional.

ARMY-NAVY RIVALRY

The Army-Navy golf rivalry began in 1939 when the Midshipmen won 6-3. Since then, the two teams have met in a dual format each season with a limited exception. The Black Knights discontinued golf during the 1943 and 1944 seasons and then secure a tie in 1945, Army won its first "Star" in 1952 and that started a stretch that included five wins in the next six years.

The rivalry began as match play and continued to be modeled after the Ryder Cup until 1971. From that season until the fall of 1994, strokes were used to determine the winner. Match play returned in the fall of 1995 and continues to be the competition of choice.

ARMY WEST POINT GOLF

SERVICE ACADEMY CLASSIC / CIC CUP

From 1993-2012, Army, Navy and Air Force and occasionally other military-based schools gather for the Service Academy Classic, a stroke-play event that typically includes plenty of pageantry and competition. The tradition was started again in 2023 with the Commander in Chief's Cup.
