CRIMSON VS. THE LIONS

Jordan Hill has already made quite an impact in his first season with the Crimson, accumulating 41 tackles through seven games.

THE PARTICULARS

For the first time in nearly a month, the Crimson returns home to face Columbia today at Harvard Stadium. Sitting atop the Ivy League standings with Penn, Harvard stands at 6-1 overall and 4-0 in Ivy League play after winning its conference-record 13th-straight Ancient Eight road game at Dartmouth a week ago. Columbia stands at 2-5 overall, with a 1-3 league mark after dropping a 31-23 decision to Yale last Friday. This afternoon's game will be televised on ONE World Sports and the Ivy League Digital Network.

THE MATCHUP

The Crimson is averaging 29.4 points per game, posting 155.7 yards rushing and 250.4 yards passing. Senior quarterback Joe Viviano is completing passes at a 64.3 percent clip, averaging 226.0 yards per game with 10 touchdowns and four interceptions. Viviano's favorite targets are senior Anthony Firkser and sophomore Justice Shelton-Mosley, with a total of 69 receptions for 932 yards and seven scores. Semar Smith has been the Crimson's top rusher with 403 yards through six games and seven TDs.

Defensively, three linebackers pace the Crimson in tackles with junior Luke Hutton totaling 43 stops and sophomore Anthony Camargo and freshman Jordan Hill adding 41 apiece. Senior Raishaun McGhee recorded 14 tackles and one interception against Dartmouth last weekend.

Columbia has posted 13.3 points per game, rushing for 117.6 yards and accumulating 171.7 through the air. Anders Hill has played in all seven games under center, completing 51.1 percent of his passes with four passing touchdowns, two rushing scores and four picks. Josh Wainwright and Scooter Hollis have 52 combined receptions for 512 yards and one score. On defense, Gianmarco Rea owns 73 tackles, including 10.5 for a loss and two sacks.

SERIES HISTORY

Saturday's game will be the 75th meeting between Harvard and Columbia in a series that dates back to 1877. The Crimson owns a 12-game win streak dating back to 2004 and has not lost a game in Cambridge to the Lions since 1995. Harvard has shut out Columbia 11 times, including in three of the last four seasons.

LAST YEAR'S MEETING

Justice Shelton-Mosley amassed 270 all-purpose yards, including 131 receiving yards and 121 punt return yards, as Harvard knocked off Columbia, 24-16, a season ago. Quarterback Scott Hosch '16 finished 22-of-39 for 324 yards and had two touchdowns through the air, while Ben Braunecker '16 made seven grabs for 130 yards. Linebacker Eric Medes '16 paced the Crimson defense with nine tackles, 1.5 tackles for a loss and 1.0 sacks, while Matt Koran '16 had a 12-yard interception return.

HARVARD COACH TIM MURPHY

In his 23rd season as Harvard's all-time winningest head coach, Tim Murphy enters tonight's game with a 162-63 record with the Crimson and a 194-108-1 overall head coaching record, which includes five years at Cincinnati and two years at Maine. Since the formation of the Ivy League in 1956, only one Ivy coach has compiled more wins than Murphy's 162 and he is just one of five coaches to win 100-plus games. Murphy also owns 114 Ivy League wins, second most all-time. Murphy has led Harvard to nine Ivy League championships (1997, 2001, 2004, 2007, 2008, 2011, 2013, 2014 and 2015). He is 18-4 vs. Columbia.

COLUMBIA COACH AL BAGNOLI

Midway through his second season as head coach at Columbia, Al Bagnoli (Central Connecticut State '75) is 4-13 overall and 2-9 in the Ivy League. Bagnoli, who coached at Penn for 23 years from 1992-2014, is 152-93 as an Ivy League coach, including 114-58 in Ancient Eight games. Bagnoli won nine Ivy League championships while at Penn (1993, 1994, 1998, 2000, 2002, 2003, 2009, 2010 and 2012). He is 14-10 vs. Harvard (all wins coming while at Penn).

HARVARD YARDAGE

by Tim Williamson
Associate Director of Athletics

After a historic three-game road trip, the first of its kind for the Crimson since 1888, Harvard will play Columbia in front of its hometown fans this afternoon. Today's game is also the 1,300th in Crimson football history.

Today's game will decide who holds on to second place among all-time Ivy League coaches, as Tim Murphy and Al Bagnoli are tied with 114 conference victories (Carm Cozza of Yale sits in first with 135 Ivy wins). While the Crimson saw its program and Ivy record 16-game road win streak snapped at Holy Cross Oct. 15, Harvard established a new team and Ancient Eight mark by rattling off its 13th-straight Ivy win away from home by topping Dartmouth, 23-21, in Hanover, New Hampshire last weekend.

A Crimson victory today would also mean Harvard would play for at least a share of the Ivy League title when it visits Penn next Friday evening (Nov. 11). That game will be shown live on the NBC Sports Network at 8 p.m. and is part of an interesting Harvard TV doubleheader, as the Crimson men's basketball team will tipoff against Stanford in Shanghai, China at 11 p.m. on ESPN2.

Last weekend, two of our other fall programs clinched Ivy League titles!

Women's cross country won its first Heptagonal Championship since 1985 and seventh in program history after topping the field at West Windsor Fields in New Jersey Oct. 29. Junior Courtney Smith took home the individual title, the first for a Crimson female runner since 1989. Freshmen Erin Dietz (fifth), Judy Pendergast (sixth) and Lisa Tertsch (ninth) also finished in the top 10.

Meanwhile in Hanover, No. 16 field hockey handled Dartmouth, 3-1, to improve to 6-0 in Ivy League play, clinching the program's fourth Ancient Eight crown, as well as the automatic bid to the NCAA tournament. Freshman Bente van Vlijmen tallied all three Crimson goals to give the Crimson its first conference title since 2004. Way to go, Crimson!

It's hard to believe a few of our winter teams have either already started competition or will next week. In addition to the men's basketball team playing its historic game in China, women's basketball opens at Minnesota Nov. 12 and both Harvard hockey programs are well underway.

Remember to catch the Harvard action on the Ivy League Digital Network.

After an incredibly successful first three years that saw over 3,000 events streamed live, the Ivy League Digital Network has returned for 2016-17, providing fans with unprecedented coverage of the Ivy League.

Multiple subscription options are available to fans including school-specific and league-wide passes.

Featuring live and on-demand video and audio content from home and away contests across a variety of sports, the nine-channel network features a channel for each of the eight schools and a League-wide channel showcasing all available digital content across the conference.

Aiming to serve its fans on as many platforms as possible, the Ivy League recently announced the launch of the ILDN app, which is now available on Apple TV and Roku for in-home television viewing. The new app will feature all live events and on-demand content on the ILDN.

Connect with The Ivy League® Digital Network by using the hashtag #ILDN on social media or by following the Ancient Eight on Facebook (facebook.com/TheIvyLeague), Twitter (@IvyLeague) or Instagram (instagram.com/IvyLeagueSports).

***

As we mentioned last time, Lee Family Hall of Athletic History now hosts two interactive digital displays. The totems tell story of Harvard Athletics, highlighting key moments throughout our history and exploring big themes that drive our mission. Content includes Ivy League champions, team photos, recent and historic videos, and a facilities map that depicts the changing athletic campus. I urge you to check these out after today's game.

***

As a fun way to assist with fan engagement, our office has continued to incorporate use of specific hashtags for each of our football games. Follow along on twitter using #HarvardColumbia for today's game against the Lions.

We will show tweets using today's hashtag on the videoboard and will be retweeting some of the same messages from our official Harvard Athletics account, @HarvardCrimson.

I am thrilled to be back after spending a few weeks at home with my wife, Christine, our twins (Breanna and A.J.) and our newborn daughter, Ellie. I need to thank my entire staff, but particularly Alli Fossner, for doing a tremendous job during my absence. As in every professional field, the most important resource we have is people, and I am very lucky to have such a proficient, energetic and fun group. I am very proud of Alli, Brock, Zack, Jeff, Imry and our entire intern class.

My baby daughter was the recipient of her first award last week, as she was presented with an honorary Gold Helmet Award by Jack Grinold and the New England Football Writers' Assocation.

It's hard to believe we only have one more home game after today: The Game against Yale on Nov. 19. Harvard has topped its archrival nine-consecutive times, another Harvard record. We look forward to seeing all of you at Harvard Stadium in two weeks. As always, Go Crimson!

A Note to Harvard Friends, Alumni and Fans...

Carrying on the Harvard tradition of excellence is hard work. Searching for a competitive edge is part of the challenge, and we know that you want to help Harvard be a winning team. Meeting those challenges means playing by the rules. As part of the team, the NCAA, Ivy League & Harvard University has rules for coaches, players, and YOU!

C CONTACT... DO have a telephone conversation ONLY if the prospect initiates the phone call and the conversation is unrelated to recruiting. DO NOT write, call or have on or off-campus contact with a prospect. Harvard can only have contact with a student-athlete who is attending another institution once permission has been given by said university or college.

R RECRUITING... DO notify the Athletic Department or members of the coaching staff about outstanding prospects in the area. DO NOT contact a student-athlete at another college or university for the purpose of recruitment, only coaches and authorized staff members may participate in recruiting activities.

I INVOLVEMENT... DO notify the Athletic Department of job or internship opportunities that you may know of for student-athletes. DO NOT provide transportation, vehicles, or other goods to student-athletes or prospects.

M MONEY... DO contact the Harvard Varsity Club if you wish to make a donation to the Harvard Athletics program. DO NOT provide financial assistance (cash, reduced fees for services, free or reduced housing) at anytime to any current student-athlete or prospect.

S SPORTSMANSHIP... DO encourage and promote good sportsmanship by supporting the participants, coaches, and officials in a positive and respectful manner. DO NOT engage in any inappropriate behavior including using foul language or engaging in verbal attacks on players, coaches, officials, or other fans, as you will be asked to leave by security personnel.

O OPPORTUNITIES... DO take the time to call the Compliance Office at (617) 496-3865 before you do something that may jeopardize a student-athlete's eligibility to compete in intercollegiate athletics. DO NOT use the name, picture or appearance of a current student-athlete to directly advertise, recommend, or promote sales of a commercial product of any kind.

N NCAA & IVY LEAGUE RULES... Harvard University is held responsible for anything their Friends, Alumni and Fans do related to Harvard student-athletes and /or prospects. Student-athletes and/or prospects may be declared ineligible for competition if these compliance rules and regulations are not properly followed. Go Crimson!

FEATURED PLAYER JAMES DUBERG

By Scott Sudikoff

Harvard senior defensive tackle James Duberg got a late start with organized football, but once he hit the field as a sophomore in high school, his career took off quickly.

Duberg grew up in Chula Vista, California, but because of his size he wasn't allowed to play Pop Warner football with kids his age. Instead he found other activities to keep him busy.

"I would have loved to play [football] with my friends, but we all knew I couldn't," explained Duberg. "Football was something I had my sights set on for high school."

Duberg kept occupied by playing various other sports like soccer, baseball, and he also learned tae kwon do.

Although he couldn't play organized football with his friends growing up, he found his love for the sport by watching on television.

"I could see the difference in camaraderie compared to other sports," said Duberg about what enticed him about the sport. "I was drawn to it because you could see the energy and the fire that players played with."

Growing up near San Diego, Duberg spent a lot of time watching the San Diego Chargers and standout linebacker Junior Seau.

"I always watched Junior Seau playing for the Chargers. Watching him run sideline to sideline, giving his all every single play - the game was life to him," Duberg described. "Watching a guy that was so passionate about it really drove me to believe that there was something special about it, and I couldn't wait to experience it."

Duberg's first organized football game came in his sophomore season at the age 15 at Bonita Vista High School, as he had missed his freshman year due to injury. This made it tougher for him to transition into the game.

"It was very frustrating at times as most guys understood everything, but I had never played before so there were instincts that I lacked," Duberg explained. "I had to make up for it with being a lot quicker than everyone else because I couldn't diagnose plays as quick as guys who had played for five or six years."

While jumping into high school football, Duberg continued a baseball career that started at an early age. He was able to juggle both with a well-timed schedule.

"I'd play summer baseball and AAU on the weekends, but I would have to sometimes skip practice during the week to make football practices," Duberg said. "It was gratifying, extremely gratifying."

Unfortunately for his baseball career, a shoulder injury affected his throwing, and led him to switch his focus to football. The renewed focus helped him get it when it came to football.

Duberg recalls a story of playing middle linebacker in an extremely close game in his sophomore season.

"I dropped back at a 45-degree angle watching the quarterback's eyes, and I looked to my left and there's a guy coming across the middle," Duberg explained. "I made a dash for him before the ball was even thrown and I connected at the right time."

"It was at that time that everything clicked for me."

It was the spring after his junior season that the ball started rolling towards a college football career as a message was left for him about playing at Harvard.

"I was dumbfounded that I could even have that type of offer," Duberg said. "I didn't know how good I was."

Duberg was good enough to visit the Harvard football camp before his high school senior season.

"I got to meet Coach Murphy on that visit," Duberg explained. "The combination of the coaching staff and the players I met, it all clicked. I could see myself here."

"James has all the tools to become a dominant defensive lineman," said Tim Murphy, The Thomas Stephenson Family Head Coach for Harvard Football, of Duberg. "His work ethic, commitment and loyalty generate tremendous respect within the Harvard football program."

When Duberg first came to campus, he looked to a defensive veteran for advice and motivation, former first team All-Ivy League performer Nnamdi Obukwelu '14.

"Nnamdi was a role model," said Duberg. "His dedication and worth ethic [stood out], and he always kept encouraging me by giving constructive criticism. He was one of the main guys I looked up to."

During his time at Harvard, Duberg has had the ability to improve his game in practice by going up against offensive linemen that now have careers in the NFL like Nick Easton '15 and Cole Toner '16.

"Nick really made me better. I had no choice but to improve my game quickly," explained Duberg. "He never took plays off and he really made me play to my potential. I really attribute my improvement and success to how difficult he made it on me."

Duberg and his teammates are on the path towards a potential fourth-straight Ivy League championship. How do they sustain the success?

"We're always hungry," said Duberg. "It's a clean slate the day last season ends, and it's about never being satisfied. That's one of the driving forces that makes us successful."

When you speak to members of the Harvard football senior class, you get a similar response as to what makes playing in Cambridge so special - the relationships.

"I'll definitely cherish getting after it with the guys at practice every single day," said Duberg. "Looking to your left, and to your right, and knowing that we're giving it our all makes the friendships we've created incredibly special and unbeatable."

The Ivy League stresses a 40-year and not a four-year commitment when it comes to athletics, so it's always appropriate to see what a student-athlete like Duberg has planned for the future.

"This game has done a lot for me," explained Duberg. "It's one of the big reasons I'm the man I am today, so I'd like to continue playing, and I will do everything in my power to make that happen."

"If my career doesn't continue, I will be grateful that I got to experience something as special as this, and I'll continue on to medical school."

Not a bad back-up plan.

SENIOR STORIES JOHN VAN ALLEN

> "John Van Allen is one of the most improved players on the team and has developed into a legitimate weapon at the tight end/h-back position."
>
> – Tim Murphy,
> The Thomas Stephenson Family Head Coach for Harvard Football

Q: What is your concentration?
I study Sociology and Government at Harvard.

Q: What do you hope to do in life once football is finished?
Once football is done, I would like to travel the world and see different cultures around the globe. That has always been something on my bucket list. I plan to work in finance for a couple years. Then, I hope to return to business school before embarking on some entrepreneurial endeavors.

Q: Can you explain the nuances of your position and provide something for the casual fan to better understand your position?
A tight end/H-back is essentially a jack of all trades - you need to be able to do it all. As a tight end/H back, you need to be tough enough to block down in the trenches with linemen and athletic and smooth enough to get a good release off a DB and make those big time catches. Coach Murphy often refers to the tight end group as the SEALS of the offense, due to our versatility and ability to do it all.

My favorite teams to watch here at Harvard would have to be the basketball teams, as it's always a great game day atmosphere with the crowd cheering the men and women on, plus it never hurts to get some Harvard paraphernalia from the athletic department.

The hardest part of being a student-athlete at Harvard is probably balancing the rigor of the classroom with the competitiveness of the playing field and being expected to perform at high levels in both. Being Harvard students, we don't have some of the academic amenities that you may find at an Ohio State or Alabama. Rather, we must dedicate the same amount of effort to the classroom as everyone else, which I have come to appreciate as it teaches us to prioritize and the true meaning of hard work.

Q: Who do you like lining up against in practice?
I like lining up against Raishaun McGhee and Kolbi Brown because they're my roommates and we always have a little friendly competition amongst each other. I know we can always talk a little smack to one another, which may or may not come up later when we're all eating in the dining hall. Having this friendly competition has allowed us to push each other to get better and helps set the tone for the entire practice.

Q: Who has the best nickname on the team and why?
I think DJ Mott may have the best nickname on the team, which is Daquan. This nickname was given to him by me when he was staying with us during one summer for workouts. We wanted to mess with him a little bit, so we decided to call him by every name except his actual name. For some reason the name Daquan stuck and everybody began calling him it including players, coaches and himself.

Q: Do you have a nickname and how did it come about?
Everyone usually calls me JVA, which is short for my full name John Van Allen. It's a name that essentially catches on everywhere I go, I never actually tell people to call me JVA, but it somehow makes it way back time and time again. Even this summer, I interned at Bank of America Merrill Lynch, and sure enough the name made its way to New York City with me. I have no preference though, John or JVA are pretty interchangeable.

Q: How has playing football at Harvard better prepared you for life?
One thing Coach Murphy preaches is adversity training and playing football at one of the most prestigious universities in the world has been exactly that. Sometimes in football things won't go your way, but it's how you react to those moments of adversity that really tell you about yourself. Being a student-athlete at Harvard, you have to learn to be organized, have a short term memory, and be a hard worker. Football, specifically football here at Harvard, has taught me so much about myself as a student, an athlete, and a man. The game has been a great teacher over the years and I am truly thankful for the opportunity to be a part of the Harvard football family.

Q: When you leave Harvard, what do you want your legacy to be?
When I leave Harvard, I want to be known for my character. I pride myself on being someone that everyone respects, loves, and enjoys being around. I'm not the loudest guy on the team, I would much rather let my play speak for me. I want people to know that I worked day in and day out to contribute to my team and be one of the best players on the field each and every time I stepped on it. I want to help this 2016 team to another Ivy League championship and be a part of the first class in Harvard Football history to win four consecutive Ivy League championships. Simply put, I want to be remembered as a champion, who was a leader on and off the field.

Q: What is your favorite memory on the football field?
My favorite memory on the football field would probably have to be our Harvard-Yale game during the 2014 season. It was culmination to a great season, ESPN College Gameday, a packed stadium, with the Ivy League championship on the line. The atmosphere was something out of a movie, as the game came down to the very last minute and some huge plays by two great former Crim, Andrew Fischer and Scott Peters. With Scotty Peters sealing the game with an interception with less than a minute left to play, the sideline erupted and you could feel the roar of the crowd. With that game, we went on to have an undefeated season and win another Ivy League championship.

Q: Where are your favorite places to eat in the square?
Some of my favorite places to eat in the square would probably be Pinocchios, Zinnekins, and Felipe's, which I like to refer to as Pepe's. However, I have a very bad sweet tooth, so I would have to say my favorite of them all would be Insomnia Cookies. There cookies are to die for, if you have never been you are not living life right.

Q: If you could do anything for a day without any cost considerations, what would it be?
I would probably go skydiving, I've been once before and it was one of the most exhilarating experiences. I'm kind of an adrenaline junky, so roller coasters, jumping out of planes is kind of my thing, another big reason why I love playing football.

Q: What is your favorite Murphy-ism?
Two of Coach Murphy's go-to sayings are "grit" and "blue collar". I'd say he averages about 3-5 "grits" per interview. In all seriousness, grit is a great word to describe Harvard football. Everyone involved with the program understands how important it is to maintain the winning tradition that we have been so fortunate enough to have over the past couple of years, and that doesn't happen without blue collar guys who are willing to put in the work and who have enough grit to make it all possible.

Drew Gilpin FAUST

President

Drew Gilpin Faust is the 28th president of Harvard University and the Lincoln Professor of History in Harvard's Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

As president of Harvard, Faust has expanded financial aid to improve access to Harvard College for students of all economic backgrounds and advocated for increased federal funding for scientific research. She has broadened the University's international reach, raised the profile of the arts on campus, embraced sustainability, launched edX, the online learning partnership with MIT, and promoted collaboration across academic disciplines and administrative units as she guided the University through a period of significant financial challenges.

A historian of the Civil War and the American South, Faust was the founding dean of the Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study at Harvard, guiding its transformation from a college into a wide-ranging institute for scholarly and creative enterprise, distinctive for its multidisciplinary focus and the exploration of new knowledge at the crossroads of traditional fields.

Previously, Faust served as the Annenberg Professor of History at the University of Pennsylvania, where she was a member of the faculty for 25 years.

Raised in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley, Faust went on to attend Concord Academy in Massachusetts. She received her bachelor's degree from Bryn Mawr College in 1968, magna cum laude with honors in history, and her master's degree (1971) and doctoral degree (1975) in American civilization from the University of Pennsylvania.

She is the author of six books, including "Mothers of Invention: Women of the Slaveholding South in the American Civil War" (University of North Carolina Press, 1996), for which she won the Francis Parkman Prize in 1997. Her most recent book, "This Republic of Suffering: Death and the American Civil War" (Alfred A. Knopf, 2008), looks at the impact of the Civil War's enormous death toll on the lives of 19th-century Americans. It won the Bancroft Prize in 2009, was a finalist for both a National Book Award and a Pulitzer Prize, and was named by The New York Times one of the "10 Best Books of 2008." "This Republic of Suffering" is the basis for a 2012 Emmy-nominated episode of the PBS American Experience documentaries titled "Death and the Civil War," directed by Ric Burns.

Faust has been a trustee of Bryn Mawr College, the Andrew Mellon Foundation, and the National Humanities Center, and she serves on the educational advisory board of the Guggenheim Foundation. She has served as president of the Southern Historical Association, vice president of the American Historical Association, and executive board member of the Organization of American Historians and the Society of American Historians. Faust has also served on numerous editorial boards and selection committees, including the Pulitzer Prize history jury in 1986, 1990, and 2004.

Her honors include awards in 1982 and 1996 for distinguished teaching at the University of Pennsylvania. She was elected to the Society of American Historians in 1993, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in 1994, and the American Philosophical Society in 2004.

Faust is married to Charles Rosenberg, one of the nation's leading historians of medicine and science, who is the Ernest E. Monrad Research Professor of the Social Sciences at Harvard. Faust and Rosenberg have two daughters, Jessica Rosenberg, a 2004 summa cum laude graduate of Harvard College, and Leah Rosenberg, Faust's stepdaughter, a scholar of Caribbean literature.

Robert L. SCALISE

The John D. Nichols '53 Family Director of Athletics

Robert L. Scalise, Harvard's John D. Nichols '53 Family Director of Athletics, has overseen an era of tremendous success for the nation's largest Division I athletics program. The seventh person to hold the position, Scalise leads an organization made up of 42 varsity sports, a myriad of club and intramural programs, more than 1,200 intercollegiate athletes and a broad array of wellness and recreation programs and facilities.

In 15 years as director of athletics, Scalise has seen Harvard win 18 national team championships and 117 Ivy League titles, including a school-record 14 conference crowns in both the 2004-05 and 2013-14 seasons. In addition, the 43 Ivy League crowns won by the Class of 2015 set a new Harvard record for most conference titles by a graduating class. While Harvard puts special emphasis on Ivy League championships, the department has had considerable success on a national level under Scalise by winning team and/or individual national championships in eight of the last 10 seasons.

Under Scalise, Harvard has played host to several high-level NCAA tournaments including the 2006 women's basketball Final Four at the TD Bank Garden as well as the 2008, 2009 and 2012 men's lacrosse championships at Gillette Stadium and the 2010 fencing championships at Gordon Indoor Track. In 2013, Harvard again played host to the NCAA women's water polo championships at Blodgett Pool. The Crimson has also welcomed the top college squash teams in the country on numerous occasions, hosting the 2008 and 2014 men's College Squash Association championships and the 2009 and 2012 women's CSA championships.

Born in New York City and a 1967 graduate of Uniondale (N.Y.) High School, Scalise has extensive ties to Ivy League athletics. A 1971 Brown alumnus, Scalise was selected three times to the All-Ivy League lacrosse team and twice named All-America and All-New England. He led the nation in scoring (47 goals) as a junior, then co-captained the squad in 1971 when he set an NCAA record by scoring 11 times against Connecticut while helping the Bears advance to the inaugural NCAA men's lacrosse tournament. As a senior, Scalise was named the recipient of the Brown University Sportsmanship Award and the Sports Illustrated Award of Merit.

Scalise entered the coaching ranks at Brown in the fall of 1971 as an assistant for the men's soccer and lacrosse teams. He was just 24 years old when he was named head coach of Harvard's men's lacrosse team in 1974. He led the Crimson to the 1980 Ivy League championship, the program's first league title in nearly two decades, and an accompanying NCAA tournament bid. He coached 25 All-America selections and completed his tenure in 1987 with a 98-79 overall record.

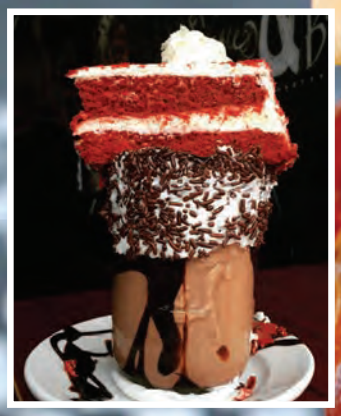

Scalise was also the first coach of Harvard's women's soccer program, which began varsity play in 1977. He led that team to Ivy League crowns in 1978, 1979 and 1981, and NCAA tournament berths in 1982 and 1984. In 1985, Scalise became the nation's first women's collegiate soccer coach to amass 100 victories. He finished with a 113-38-11 overall record.

Scalise was inducted into the Brown Hall of Fame in 1991 and was the recipient of the 2015 United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association (USILA) Howdy Myers Man of the Year Award.

Scalise left coaching in 1987 to enroll in the Harvard Business School, where in 1989 he was awarded a Master in Business Administration. Later that year, he became director of MBA placement services, managing processes and products serving the Business School community. He held that post until 1992, when he accepted a position at Bain & Company to become director of recruiting, career development and alumni relations. While there, he developed strategic and operational initiatives to build people assets for the firm and prepared and managed an operating budget of approximately $4 million. Scalise returned to Harvard Business School in 1995 as its executive director of MBA program administration before assuming the role of Senior Executive Officer where he oversaw an annual operating budget of $200 million and remained until being named director of athletics in July 2001.

A leader in intercollegiate athletics, Scalise serves as a member of the inaugural NCAA Division I Council. He is the chair of the NCAA Student-Athlete Experience Committee and works as a member of the NCAA lacrosse rules committee.

Scalise is married to Maura Costin Scalise '80, an All-Ivy swimmer at Harvard who coached the Crimson women's swimming and diving team from 1985-98 and achieved Ivy League and national prominence during her tenure. In addition, four of Scalise's children have been varsity athletes at Harvard—competing on the lacrosse and polo teams—including his daughter, Rosemary '19, a current member of the women's lacrosse team.

By any measure, Tim Murphy has led Harvard's storied football program to its most prosperous era since the early 20th century. He looks to continue that trend in 2016, as he enters his 23rd season as the Thomas Stephenson Family Head Coach for Harvard Football.

One of the game's finest teachers and motivators over the last quarter-century, Murphy is Harvard's all-time winningest coach, and since the formation of the Ivy League in 1956, only one Ivy coach has compiled more wins than his 156. His Harvard teams have captured nine Ivy League championships (1997, 2001, '04, '07, '08, '11, '13, '14, '15) and have combined to own the NCAA Division I Football Championship Subdivision's best record over the last 15 seasons (123-26, .826).

Murphy is the first Harvard coach since the iconic Percy Haughton to lead the Crimson to three unbeaten, untied seasons in his tenure (2001, '04, '14). Having previously coached five seasons at Cincinnati and two at Maine, Murphy owns career records of 188-108-1 overall, 156-63 with the Crimson and 17-5 in The Game, the annual rivalry tilt between Harvard and Yale.

A six-time selection as New England Coach of the Year (1988, '97, 2001, '04, '11,' 14), Murphy was the American Football Monthly Division I-AA National Coach of the Year in 2004 and was also honored as a finalist for the Eddie Robinson Award for the top FCS coach nationally in 2001, '04 and '11. He was the Gridiron Club of Greater Boston Head Coach of the Year in 2001 and '11 and has also been recognized as the American Football Coaches Association District I Coach of the Year (2001) and the Scotty Whitelaw ECAC Division I-AA Coach of the Year (1997). Murphy was also named the inaugural recipient of the Ivy League Coach of the Year Award in 2014.

Under Murphy, Harvard has claimed Ivy titles in six of the last nine and eight of the last 15 seasons. In those 15 seasons, starting with 2001, the Crimson has posted the second-highest winning percentage in all of NCAA Division I, trailing only Boise State. Harvard has logged at least seven wins in each of those 15 years, an Ivy League record. No other Ivy team has strung together seven such seasons in a row.

Every four-year player Murphy has recruited to Harvard has been a part of at least one Ivy League-championship team. Murphy is just the fourth head coach to man the Harvard sideline since 1950.

Since 1994, Harvard has had 111 first-team All-Ivy League selections, six Ivy Rookies of the Year, 10 Ivy Players of the Year, nine first-team All-Americans and 25 players who have been drafted or signed professional contracts, including six-time Pro Bowl center Matt Birk '98 and starting NFL quarterback Ryan Fitzpatrick '05.

In addition, 20 of Murphy's Harvard players have received national academic recognition (either CoSIDA Academic All-America or the FCS All-Academic Team). Before sending two players to the CoSIDA Academic All-American team in 2008, Harvard had a national-best six players recognized on the All-District 1 team.

The Crimson has had 10 or more All-Ivy honorees in each of the last 17 seasons, with program highs of 11 first-team picks and 20 total mentions in 2007 and 2015.

Murphy led the Crimson to its third-straight Ivy League crown in 2015, a first in program history. With a 9-1 overall record and a 6-1 mark in league play, the Crimson ended its campaign with a crucial 38-19 victory over Yale in The Game to extended the winning streak over the its rival to a program-record nine straight games. Harvard matched the school record with 20 All-Ivy honorees, including nine first team selections and Justice Shelton-Mosley was named the Ivy League Rookie of the Year. Scott Hosch took home the Asa S. Bushnell Cup as the Ivy League Offensive Player of the Year, the sixth-straight Crimson student-athlete to win the award. In addition, the team was tabbed one of the recipients of the ECAC FCS Lambert Meadowlands Award, given to the top football team in the Eastern region of the Football Championship Subdivision

Harvard completed its 17th unbeaten, untied campaign in 2014, going 10-0 overall and 7-0 in league play to earn the program's 16th Ivy crown. Harvard was the lone undefeated team in Division I for the 2014 season. The Crimson capped the perfect season, its third under Murphy, with a 31-24 victory over Yale in The Game, extending the win streak over its archrival to a program-record eight straight games. Harvard also hosted ESPN's College GameDay on the day of the Yale game, becoming the second Ivy League school (Penn in 2002) to host the premiere college football television show.

In 2013, Harvard went 5-0 on the road en route to a share of the Ivy League title, going 9-1 overall and 6-1 in the conference. The Crimson topped Yale, 34-7, defeating the Bulldogs for the 12th time in the last 13 games.

Murphy's sixth Ivy title came in 2011, when Harvard clinched the outright Ancient Eight crown before the last week of the season for the first time in school history. A 45-7 win at Yale capped a perfect Ivy season and a 9-1 overall campaign. All nine victories came by double digits. The 35-21 victory at Columbia was Murphy's 118th at Harvard, breaking Joe Restic's program record.

Murphy and Restic have rewritten Harvard's storied football records, and the two coaches remained close until Restic's passing in December 2011. In the spring of 2008, Murphy joined Restic as Harvard coaches to be honored with the National Football Foundation Eastern Chapter's Ron Burton Distinguished America Award, given to a former football player who has carried the lessons learned on the field to his larger community.

The 2008 Ivy-champion Crimson finished the year ranked 14th in the FCS Coaches Poll. In a game that will go down in history as one of equal importance and dominance, the 2007 championship season was capped by a 37-6 victory at Yale against a previously undefeated Bulldog team that was highly ranked in both total offense and defense.

The 2001 Harvard squad posted the school's first undefeated, untied campaign since 1913, while the 2004 team went a step further by going 10-0 to mark the first perfect season with at least 10 wins since 1901. The Crimson posted a 7-0 Ivy record in 2007 and a year later went 9-1 overall while sharing the Ivy crown with Brown. Murphy's 1997 Crimson also went 9-1, 7-0 in the Ancient Eight, and won the Ivy title, Harvard's first in 10 years.

The 2012 AFCA president and a past president of the Division I-AA Coaches Association, Murphy has presented at several high-profile events, including coaching clinics at Notre Dame and Southern California. In 2010, he was part of a small envoy of college head coaches to visit American servicemen and servicewomen overseas as part of the USO/Morale Entertainment Coaches Tour. Murphy went on a weeklong trip that included stops at McConnell and Scott Air Force bases before going overseas for visits to eight countries in nine days with visits to bases and vessels.

Murphy is Harvard's first endowed coach. In October 1994, Thomas F. Stephenson '64 M.B.A. '66 established a $2 million endowment fund that supports the head football coach in much the same way that an endowed chair supports a professor. Stephenson chose to name the fund for members of his family, who have been active participants in the Harvard community for four generations.

The 2004 season stands as arguably the Crimson's finest in more than 100 years. The Crimson went 10-0 on the year and had an average margin of victory of 20.5 points. Harvard scored at least 31 points in nine of the 10 games, had a double-digit winning margin in eight games, held its last six opponents to 14 points or less, dealt two shutouts and allowed just one touchdown in the last three games.

Harvard finished the year as the only undefeated school in the FCS and one of just five unbeatens in all of college football. The Crimson finished the season ranked No. 13 in the final Sports Network Division I-AA national poll and the ESPN/USA Today poll, marking Harvard's highest finish in the national rankings since the formation of the Division I-AA polls. Harvard's final Sagarin Rating stood 37th among the 239 Division I football schools.

The 2004 Crimson had 15 players, then the most in school history, named All-Ivy League. Among those were Fitzpatrick, who earned selection to play in the East-West Shrine Game and the Hula Bowl, and Clifton Dawson '07, who went on to become the Ivy League's all-time leading rusher in 2006.

Murphy's 2001 Harvard squad finished 9-0 overall and 7-0 in the Ivies, and was ranked No. 19 in the final Sports Network poll. Harvard committed just nine turnovers, averaged 445.0 yards in offense and scored at least four touchdowns in every game.

Previously, Murphy led Harvard to the 1997 Ivy championship, when his squad finished 9-1 overall and 7-0 in league play. It marked the first time in school history that the Crimson had posted a perfect Ivy record.

Murphy was named head football coach at Harvard Dec. 6, 1993. He came from the University of Cincinnati, where that fall he had directed the Division I-A Bearcats to their finest record in 17 years. Murphy's first head coaching position was at the University of Maine, where, in 1987, he led the Black Bears to their first NCAA Division I-AA playoff berth.

At Cincinnati, Murphy led the Bearcats to an 8-3 record in 1993, their first winning campaign since 1982 and the school's best overall mark since 1976 (9-2). Cincinnati was the fourth-most improved team in Division I-A (an increase of five wins over 1992).

This success came after Murphy inherited a program that had a condemned stadium, no practice facilities and the loss of 19 scholarships after being placed on probation for infractions incurred by the previous coaching staff. He attained all of his short-term goals, including NCAA compliance, an improved graduation rate, reconstructing the strength and conditioning program and development of a successful major college team. When Murphy took over at Cincinnati in 1989, he was only 32 years old and was the youngest Division I head coach in the nation (along with Dave Rader at Tulsa).

While improvement was consistent throughout his tenure, it all came together in 1993. In that summer, Cincinnati was recognized by the College Football Association for being one of only 20 Division I schools to graduate a minimum of 70 percent of its most recent recruiting class. On the field, the Bearcats had their third-highest point total in school history (302), and set school marks for most offensive plays, most first downs and fewest turnovers. In addition, Cincinnati won that year's Independent Football Alliance championship.

Murphy started his head coaching career at Maine, in 1987 and '88, when he became the youngest head coach in the country (at age 30) upon succeeding current Dartmouth head coach Buddy Teevens. His first team finished with an 8-4 record (the Black Bears' best record in 23 years), shared the Yankee Conference title and advanced to the NCAA Division I-AA tournament for the first time in school history.

Murphy also has extensive experience as an assistant coach. He was the offensive coordinator at Maine in 1985 and '86, when the Black Bears both rushed and passed for more than 2,000 yards in the same season for the first time in school history. He was the offensive line coach at Boston University for three seasons, from 1982 through '84, and helped the Terriers to Yankee Conference titles and NCAA Division I-AA playoff berths each year. Murphy was also the defensive line coach at Lafayette in 1981, when the Leopards posted their best record in school history (9-2), just one season after the squad went 1-10.

Murphy began his coaching career as a part-time assistant at Brown in 1979 and was promoted to assistant varsity offensive line coach the following season. A native of Kingston, Mass., he graduated from Silver Lake High School in 1974. He then attended Springfield College, where he became a four-year starter and was a small college All-New England linebacker as a senior.

He graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree in 1978 and earned a master's degree in education from Springfield the following year. Murphy did additional postgraduate work at Boston University and was accepted to the J.L. Kellogg Graduate School of Business at Northwestern and the Colgate Darden School of Business at Virginia.

Murphy was chosen to sit on the board of trustees of the American Football Coaches Association in January 2005 and was named to Springfield's All-Decade Team in 2006. In October 2007, the night following Harvard's 27-10 victory over Princeton, Murphy was inducted into the Springfield College Athletic Hall of Fame. During 2013, Murphy served as President of the American Football Coaches Assocation, and in 2015, he joined Harvard's Faculty Committee on Athletic Sports.

Murphy resides in Allston with his wife, Martha Kennedy Murphy. The couple has three children: Molly Kennedy '14, Conor Timothy '16 and Grace Katharine '18.

ASSISTANT COACHES

JOEL LAMB

Assistant Head Coach
Quarterbacks/Offensive Coordinator

Former Crimson quarterback Joel Lamb is in his 11th season as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach in 2016.

Lamb oversees the Crimson's recruiting efforts in Massachusetts and the Midwestern states, including Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

En route to its 17th Ivy League championship in 2015, the Crimson offense finished first in the Ivy League with 36.4 points per game and 474.2 yards of total offense. Lamb guided seven players to All-Ivy first team selections, including senior quarterback Scott Hosch, who was the Ancient Eight Offensive Player of the Year. Hosch was also named the New England Player of the Year after averaging 303.5 passing yards a game and setting the Harvard single-season passing record by tossing for 2,827 yards.

Despite missing several key players to lengthy injuries in 2014, the Crimson averaged 32.7 points per game en route to a perfect 10-0 season and its 16th Ivy League championship. Three offensive players were tabbed to the All-Ivy first team, as Harvard ranked 19th in the country in total offense (461.4). The Crimson had the definition of a balanced offense, averaging 230.9 yards per game through the air and 230.5 yards per contest on the ground.

In 2013, Lamb's Harvard offense contributed to the Crimson's 15th Ivy League title by racking up the nation's 32nd-best total offense of 426.1 yards per game with 260.1 in the air and 166.0 on the ground. Harvard's 371 points, good for 18th in the nation, landed second in program history behind 2012's total of 394. The 39.4 points per game in 2012, which ranked fourth nationally, came from the second-highest scoring offense in the nation as the Crimson piled up 487.5 yards per game with a passing efficiency rating of 157.25. Those numbers came a year after the Crimson ranked 11th in scoring offense in 2011.

A 1993 Harvard graduate, Lamb returned to Cambridge in 2006. Harvard has ranked among the nation's top 25 in either rushing or passing in eight of the last nine seasons.

Lamb was named the Assistant Coach of the Year by the Gridiron Club of Greater Boston in 2008. His seasons have seen seven Harvard quarterbacks earn All-Ivy League honors, including Ivy League offensive players of the year Colton Chapple '13 in 2012, Chris Pizzotti '08-09 in 2008 and Scott Hosch '16 in 2015.

Lamb returned to Harvard following nine years as the quarterbacks coach at Yale. He was the Bulldogs' offensive coordinator for three seasons, during which time Yale twice led the Ivy League in passing offense. His 2003 unit led the Ivies in passing offense, scoring offense and total offense.

Lamb helped Yale to the 1999 Ivy League championship, which was the Bulldogs' first league title in 10 years. He coached three of the four most prolific quarterbacks in Yale history: all-time passing leader Alvin Cowan, runner-up Joe Walland and Peter Lee, who ranks fourth in school history. Lamb's 2005 quarterback, Jeff Mroz, finished second on Yale's single-season passing chart and tied Cowan's school record with 22 touchdown passes before signing with the Dallas Cowboys.

Lamb was a four-year member of Harvard's football program as an undergraduate and was the 1992 winner of the team's Henry N. Lamar Award, which recognizes dedication to the program, concern for his fellow man and contributions to Harvard football.

He went on to play competitively in England in 1994 with the Leeds Cougars of the British American Football Association.

A native of Natick, Mass., Lamb was a three-sport captain at Natick High School and was an all-state quarterback. He also was a standout in baseball and basketball. Lamb graduated from Harvard in 1993 after concentrating in psychology. He holds a master's degree in sports management from the University of Massachusetts.

Lamb's father, Tom, was the longtime athletic director and football coach at Natick High School, while Joel's wife, Ainslee, served as the head field hockey coach at Boston College from 2005-14. They have a daughter, Brooklyn.

SCOTT LARKEE

Assistant Head Coach
Linebackers/Defensive Coordinator

Former All-Ivy League linebacker Scott Larkee, the Gridiron Club of Boston's 2012 Assistant Coach of the Year, is in his eighth season as defensive coordinator at Harvard and his 10th total season across two stints as an assistant coach at his alma mater in 2016.

Larkee led a defense that held its opponents to an average of 13.0 points per game during the 2015 season. The Crimson ranked second in the Ancient Eight in scoring defense and first in rushing yards allowed (84.4). The senior linebacking corps of Eric Medes, captain Matt Koran and Jacob Lindsey were all selected to All-Ivy teams after combining for 191 tackles, including 17.5 for a loss.

Harvard's defense remained one of the preeminent units in the country in 2014. The Crimson ranked first in scoring defense (12.3 points allowed per game) and fourth in rushing defense (86.3 yards per game). Zack Hodges was named the recipient of the Asa S. Bushnell Cup as Ivy League Co-Defensive Player of the Year, as the Crimson completed a perfect 10-0 season en route to the program's 16th Ivy championship. Harvard held its first eight opponents under 18 points and blanked Columbia for the third-consecutive year.

In 2013, Larkee's defense helped the Crimson to its 15th Ivy League crown. Harvard's rushing defense, which allowed 97.3 yards per game, ranked sixth in the nation and atop the Ivy League while its scoring defense (22.7 points per game) came in at 25th. Behind the 2013 Asa S. Bushnell Cup recipient, Zack Hodges, the Crimson recovered 13 fumbles to tie for 15th nationally and lead the Ancient Eight.

Larkee led one of the NCAA Division I Football Championship Subdivision's top defenses in 2012. The Crimson led the nation in rushing defense (69.4 yards allowed per game) and sacks (4.2 per game) while ranking eighth nationally in scoring defense (17.4 points allowed per game). Harvard held six of its 10 opponents to 14 points or fewer, and three of those opponents—including shutout victim Columbia—scored seven points or fewer.

A year earlier, Larkee's defense ranked fifth nationally in scoring defense and sixth against the rush, behind Ivy League Defensive Player of the Year Josue Ortiz.

A 1999 Harvard graduate, Larkee is in the 10th season of his current tour of duty with the Crimson. He returned to his alma mater in 2007, coaching the running backs while serving as the program's recruiting coordinator. In 2008, he assumed the team's special teams coordinator position and also worked with the linebackers. In 2009, Larkee took over as the defensive coordinator and linebackers coach.

Larkee is responsible for recruiting the northeastern United States including New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Since Larkee began working with Harvard's linebackers in 2008, Crimson players at that position have accounted for 17 All-Ivy League selections.

Larkee previously served as an assistant coach for the Crimson's 2001 Ivy League championship team. He coached the outside linebackers for Harvard's 9-0 squad, its first since 1913 to go unbeaten and untied.

Before returning to Cambridge, Larkee had been a graduate assistant at Boston College, helping the Eagles to back-to-back bowl appearances.

Larkee had a brief stint as a defensive assistant at Columbia, which came on the heels of a three-year tenure as an assistant at Division III Bates College. He served as the Bobcats' special teams coordinator, linebackers coach and strength and conditioning coordinator from 2002 to '04.

Larkee also has served as an assistant at Bowdoin College for the 1999 and 2000 seasons and was a player/coach with Les Cougars de St. Ouen l'Aumone (a French club team) in 2001.

A second-team All-Ivy League selection as a senior, Larkee graduated from Harvard in third place on the Crimson's career tackles chart (243). He recorded 98 tackles with six pass breakups and was a starter on Harvard's 1997 Ivy League championship team. Larkee also earned the team's Henry N. Lamar Award, given to the Harvard football senior who, through dedication to the program and concern for his fellow man, has made a unique contribution to the team.

Larkee and his wife, former Crimson field hockey All-American Judy (Collins) Larkee '99, live in Norwood, Massachusetts with daughters Shea (9), Maureen (6) and Casey (newborn) and sons Sam (8), Joe (5) and Mike (3).

ASSISTANT COACHES

Ryan CRAWFORD

Assistant Coach
Special Teams Coordinator/
Defensive Backs

Ryan Crawford is in his fifth season working with Harvard's defensive backs and his third as special teams coordinator in 2016.

Crawford is responsible for recruiting the Atlantic coast section of the United States, including Florida, Georgia and the Carolinas.

In 2015, Harvard's secondary assisted in holding its opponents to an average of 13.0 points per game and leading the Crimson to its 17th Ivy League title. Sean Ahern, who was elected the Harvard's 143rd captain, was unanimously selected to All-Ivy first team. Chris Evans and Asante Gibson were also recognized on All-Ancient Eight teams.

Justice Shelton-Mosley was named the conference's Rookie of the Year and to the first team after averaging 19.0 yards on punt returns, the highest in school history. The special teams unit was one of the premiere in the nation, ranking second in punt return defense (0.9), third in blocked punts (five), fifth in blocked kicks (seven) and sixth in punt returns (16.5).

In 2014, the Crimson's secondary and special teams were some of the premiere units in the country, helping Harvard finish 10-0 and earn the program's 16th conference championship. Harvard ranked first in the nation in scoring defense (12.3 points allowed per game), and the team blocked four punts, good for third in the country. Andrew Fischer, who garnered All-Ivy honors, was 29th in the nation, averaging 23.7 yards per kick return. Three members of the secondary also earned All-Ivy status, including Norman Hayes and Sean Ahern, who garnered first-team status.

Crawford's defensive backs helped Harvard claim its 15th Ivy League title in 2013, while earning four All-Ivy League honors. Among the quartet was Norman Hayes, a first-team selection, who tied for 16th nationally with three forced fumbles. The foursome helped the Crimson rank 25th nationally in scoring defense at 22.7 points allowed per game, while Harvard blanked Columbia for the second-straight season and held five of its opponents to 21 points or fewer.

In Crawford's first season in Cambridge, three Harvard defensive backs earned All-Ivy League recognition. Among that group was Chris Splinter, who picked off five passes and tied for fifth nationally with 0.5 interceptions per game. The group helped the Crimson rank eighth nationally in scoring defense at 17.4 points allowed per game.

Crawford came to Harvard after spending four seasons at the University of Rhode Island. He served as the Rams' defensive coordinator and also carried out a previous stint as the program's recruiting coordinator.

Over his final three seasons at URI, Crawford's secondary intercepted 30 passes in the tough Colonial Athletic Association. Crawford has mentored a pair of all-conference defensive backs, including Jarrod Williams, who left URI in 2010 among the school's all-time leaders in interceptions.

Prior to his tenure at URI, Crawford spent three years as a cornerbacks coach at Bucknell. In 2007, the Bison led the Patriot League with 14 interceptions.

Crawford also spent two years at his alma mater, Davidson. He spent one year coaching the quarterbacks before switching to defense in 2004 to coach the defensive backs.

A 2001 Davidson graduate with a degree in biology, Crawford earned Associated Press first team All-America honors in 1999, when he led the nation with eight interceptions as part of a Davidson team that topped the country with 28 picks. In 2000, Crawford was named the I-AA Mid-Major Defensive Back of the Year as well as the I-AA Independent Defensive MVP. In 2000, he was named Davidson's Special Teams Player of the Year as well as the school's Male Athlete of the Year.

Crawford was inducted into Davidson's Hall of Fame on Feb. 4, 2012 as part of the college's 23rd induction class.

After graduation, Crawford played semipro football for the Carolina Cowboys and competed professionally with the Indiana Firebirds of the Arena Football League. He was also a 2007 camp invitee with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League and worked as a stuntman and featured extra in the movie "Radio," starring Cuba Gooding, Jr.

Joe VILLAPIANO

Assistant Coach
Wide Receivers

Joe Villapiano, Harvard's wide receivers coach, is in his 12th season as a member of the Crimson coaching staff in 2016.

Villapiano recruits the western section of the United States, including California and Arizona. He returned to coaching the wide receivers in 2012 after spending the previous four years with the running backs. He has served previous stints coaching the wide receivers and the defensive backs.

At the conclusion of the 2015 season, Harvard's wide receivers helped the team average 303.5 passing yards per game. The unit helped Harvard post a 9-1 record and win the ninth-consecutive meeting against Yale en route to the program's 17th championship overall. Freshman Justice Shelton-Mosely was named Ivy League Rookie of the Year, as well as earning second team honors as a wide receiver.

In the fall of 2014, Harvard's wide receivers helped the Crimson average 230.9 passing yards per game, as well as 461.4 total yards per contest, good for 19th in the nation. This unit helped the Crimson post a perfect 10-0 record en route to the program's second straight Ivy title and 16th championship overall.

During the 2013 season, Villapiano's receiving corps contributed to Harvard's 15th Ivy League title by helping a passing attack that ranked seventh nationally in passing efficiency (155.38 rating), 18th in scoring offense (37.3) and 32nd in total offense (426.1 yards per game).

In 2012, Harvard's receivers aided the fourth-best passing attack in the nation with a passing efficiency rating of 157.25. They also helped the Crimson rank third in total offense (387.5 yards per game), fourth in scoring offense (39.4) and 19th in yards per game (273.20).

From 2008 to '11, Villapiano coached the team's running backs, including Ivy League Player of the Year Gino Gordon '11 in 2010. He also coached Ivy Rookie of the Year Treavor Scales '13 in 2009. Gordon and Scales each earned three All-Ivy honors under Villapiano, and Scales claimed his fourth All-Ivy nod in 2012.

Villapiano coached the Crimson defensive backs from 2006 to '08. All four of Harvard's defensive backs were named All-Ivy League in 2007, with three of them, Steven Williams '08, Andrew Berry '09 and Doug Hewlett '08, earning first-team status. In 2008, three Crimson defensive backs earned all-league accolades, while cornerback Matthew Hanson earned the selection as Ivy Rookie of the Year.

Williams would set his name apart as Harvard's all-time interceptions leader. His eight picks in 2007 tied a single-season record for the Crimson and gave him sole possession of first place on the all-time list with 16. Named first team All-America by the American Football Coaches Association, Williams went on to represent his home state in the Texas versus The Nation All-Star game in El Paso, Texas.

Berry meanwhile, capped an All-America career by twice being named an Academic All-American while also earning the FCS Scholar-Athlete of the Year award as a senior and graduating with two degrees in just four years.

Villapiano came to Cambridge in 2005 after spending two years on the staff at the University of Connecticut, where he coordinated the offensive scout team and analyzed game video of opponents' offenses.

Villapiano joined the staff at Connecticut following his four-year playing career in Storrs. He caught five passes for 47 yards in his career and holds the distinction of having scored the final Connecticut touchdown in Memorial Stadium, the team's former home facility.

He earned the team's Student-Athlete Award as a senior.

Villapiano earned a bachelor's degree in math education from Connecticut in 2003 and added a master's degree in education in 2005. His uncle, Phil, was a four-time Pro Bowl linebacker with the Oakland Raiders and was a member of Oakland's Super Bowl XI championship team.

In addition to his work with the Crimson football program, Villapiano and his former high school teammates are active in the formation of a company called iB-LIEVE, which is designed to empower individuals and teams using belief, positive attitude and positive action.

ASSISTANT COACHES

MICHAEL HORAN

Assistant Coach
Defensive Line

Michael Horan enters his eighth season as an assistant coach for Harvard football in 2016. Horan is in his fifth season in the top position with the defensive line after serving for three years as assistant defensive line coach.

He recruits student-athletes in the southwest United States, including Texas and Oklahoma.

The defensive line helped the Crimson to its 17th Ivy title in 2015 by allowing just 13.0 points per game. Defensive end James Duberg was named All-Ivy second team after registering 16 tackles and four quarterback hurries.

In 2014, the Crimson posted the program's 17th undefeated, untied record, going 10-0 overall and winning the team's 16th Ivy title. The defensive line was at the center of the championship run, helping the Crimson rank first in the nation in scoring defense (12.3 points allowed per game) and fourth in rushing defense (86.8 yards allowed per game). Zack Hodges was named the co-recipient of the Asa S. Bushnell Cup, as Ivy Co-Defensive Player of the Year, and was one of three defensive linemen to be named to the All-Ivy team.

Horan's defensive line helped Harvard claim its 15th Ivy League title in 2013. The squad made up the nation's sixth-best rushing defense (97.3 yards allowed per game), while the Crimson's scoring defense came in at 25th allowing just 22.7 points per game. Harvard recovered 13 fumbles to tie for 15th nationally and lead the Ancient Eight, while Zack Hodges was the recipient of the Asa S. Bushnell Cup.

In Horan's first season heading up the defensive line, the group helped Harvard lead the nation in rushing defense (69.4 yards allowed per game) and sacks (4.2 per game). Defensive ends Zach Hodges and John Lyon '13 ranked among the nation's top 20 in sacks per game, and three linemen earned All-Ivy honors.

In 2011, defensive tackle Josue Ortiz '12 was named the Ivy League's Defensive Player of the Year and was an All-America selection. Harvard's defense led the Ivies in scoring defense, rushing defense and sacks and ranked among the nation's top 15 teams in each of those categories.

Since graduating from Bates College in 2005, Horan has coached at four colleges and one high school. He began his coaching career at Stoughton High School, where he worked as an assistant coach under his former head coach, Greg Burke. After one season at Stoughton, Horan moved on to become the tight ends coach at Curry College. During his time at Curry, the Colonels went undefeated in the regular season, captured the New England Football Conference championship and qualified for the Division III playoffs.

In 2007, Horan was named linebackers coach at Kings Point, and in 2008, he moved to Wagner, where he coached the defensive backs.

At Bates, Horan was a senior captain and a two-time All-New England Small College Athletic Conference selection at safety as well as an All-ECAC pick in 2004.

JEREMY BANDY

Assistant Coach
Run Game Coordinator/Offensive Line

Jeremy Bandy is in his fifth season as Harvard's run game coordinator-offensive line coach in 2016.

Bandy coordinates recruiting efforts for the Crimson in the New England states, as well as Virginia, Washington, D.C., Maryland, Delaware and Canada.

Bandy and the offensive line helped the Crimson to a 9-1 season in 2015 and its 17th Ivy League title. The offensive line led the way for an offense that totaled 474.2 yards per game and 36.4 points per game, both first in the Ivy League. Offensive linemen Anthony Fabiano, Cole Toner, Adam Redmond, Larry Allen, Jr., and Max Rich were all tabbed to All-Ivy League teams. Toner was a semifinalist for the "Academic Heisman", awarded to the American college football player with the best combination of academics, community service and on-field performance. Toner also accepted an invitation to the Reese's Senior Bowl.

The offensive line unit flourished under Bandy again in 2014, helping the Crimson to a 10-0 season and its 16th Ancient Eight title. The offensive corps ranked 18th in the nation in total offense with 461.4 yards per game, scoring 32.7 points per game (24th in the NCAA). The entire offensive line was tabbed to the All-Ivy League team, as senior center Nick Easton and junior Cole Toner were first-team selections. Easton also earned a nod as an All-New England lineman.

Bandy's offensive line helped Harvard claim its 15th Ivy League title in 2013, while two linemen garnered All-Ivy League accolades including first-team selection Nick Easton. The lineman contributed to Harvard's total offense of 426.1 yards per game, which stood 32nd nationally, and scoring offense of 37.1 points per game that ranked 18th in the nation and sat second in the Crimson's record book behind 2012's total of 394 points.

In Bandy's first season with the Crimson, his linemen helped Harvard rank third nationally in total offense (487.5 yards per game), fourth in scoring offense (39.4 points per game), fourth in passing efficiency (157.25 rating), 17th in rushing offense (214.3 yards per game) and 19th in passing offense (273.2 yards per game).

Bandy came to Harvard after spending six years on Tim Gilmore's staff at Holy Cross, four of them as the offensive line coach.

In 2011, Bandy's offensive line had two selections on the All-Patriot League team. Additionally, long snapper Matt Fava was named to the national all-freshman team by College Sports Journal.

In 2009, four out of the five starters on offensive line earned All-Patriot League honors as the Crusaders won the league title and advanced to the national playoffs. In 2008, two of Bandy's players earned all-league honors. During his first two seasons with the Crusaders, Bandy served as the tight ends coach, helping to guide the career of first team All-Patriot League selection Ryan McGuire.

Bandy came to Holy Cross from Allegheny College, where he served as the offensive line coach for four seasons. Allegheny won the 2003 national championship, and in 2004, Bandy guided an offensive line which paved the way for the Gators to rush for 1,657 yards and 16 touchdowns.

A 2001 graduate of Baldwin-Wallace College, Bandy played both center and guard on the offensive line for the Yellow Jackets. During his undergraduate days at Baldwin-Wallace, he also served as a recruiting assistant in the football office.

CHRIS BATTI

Assistant Coach
Running Backs

Chris Batti is in his fifth season on the Harvard football staff as the running backs coaching assistant in 2016.

Batti handles Harvard's recruiting efforts in Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Harvard finished the season with a 9-1 record and its 17th Ivy League championship in 2015. Batti helped lead senior Paul Stanton, Jr. to a unanimous All-Ivy first team selection. Stanton finished second in the Harvard record books with 38 career touchdowns and 36 career rushing scores. He ranked fourth with 2,906 career yards and third with 228 career points. During his senior campaign, Stanton led the Ancient Eight in rushing with 809 yards.

With a deep running corps for the 2014 season, Batti helped the Crimson to a perfect 10-0 season and its 16th Ivy League championship. Led by Paul Stanton, Jr., who totaled 990 yards rushing, the Crimson running backs ranked 14th in the NCAA with 230.5 yards per game. Stanton, a first team All-Ivy League and All-New England selection, ranked second in the Ancient Eight and moved to fourth in school history with 27 career touchdowns following his junior season.

Batti's running backs contributed to Harvard's 15th Ivy League title in 2013 by notching 173.6 rushing yards per game in the Ancient Eight and notched 100-plus rushing yards in all but one game, while breaking over 200 yards on three occasions. Paul Stanton Jr., who tied the Harvard record for touchdowns in 'The Game' with four scores (two rushing, two receiving), earned a spot on the All-Ivy League team.

In Batti's first season in Cambridge, Harvard averaged 217.3 rushing yards per Ivy game, the best mark in the league by a 42-yard margin. The Crimson ranked 17th nationally in overall rushing at 214.3 yards per game. Treavor Scales '13 earned first-team All-Ivy League honors while ranking 43rd nationally with 81.6 rushing yards per game.

Batti came to Harvard after spending four seasons at Northwestern, including the last two as a graduate assistant and wide receivers coach while earning a master's degree in sports administration. He initially came to Northwestern in 2008 as a quality control intern while assisting with the offensive line.

In 2011, Northwestern ranked second in the Big Ten in total offense and led the 12-team league in passing offense at 254.2 yards per game. The Wildcats completed a conference-best 71.0 percent of their passes, leading the league with 289 completions. Wide receiver Jeremy Ebert became the first Wildcat since 1998 to top 1,000 yards receiving (1,060) and hauled in 11 touchdowns on 75 receptions while earning second-team All-Big Ten accolades from the media and honorable mention from the coaches.

In 2010, Northwestern ranked third in the Big Ten in passing offense with 242.6 yards per game in the regular season. Quarterback Dan Persa broke the Big Ten record for completion percentage by connecting on 73.5 percent of his throws and earned first-team All-Big Ten honors in the process.

A Glenview, Illinois native, Batti earned his bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign in 2008. Batti played quarterback at Harper College in Palatine, Ill., in 2004-05 and was a member of Harper's 2004 NJCAA national championship club. He earned conference scholar-athlete honors while at Harper and then transferred to Illinois. There, he worked with the Fighting Illini football program in 2007-08 as a student manager.

ASSISTANT COACHES

MIKE DONOVAN

Assistant Coach
Defensive Backs

Mike Donovan rejoined the Harvard football staff as an assistant coach in March 2014 and enters his third season with the Crimson in 2016. His recruiting areas include Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont and West Virginia.

Donovan, who served as an assistant football operations coordinator at Harvard from 2011-12, works with the defensive backs in his second stint with the Crimson.

In 2015, Harvard's secondary helped to hold opponents to an average of 13.0 points per game. The Crimson won its 17th Ivy League title and third-straight. Sean Ahern, who was elected the Harvard's 143rd captain, was unanimously selected to All-Ivy first team. Chris Evans and Asante Gibson were also named to All-Ancient Eight teams.

In 2014, the Crimson posted the program's 17th undefeated, untied record, going 10-0 overall and winning the team's 16th Ivy title. The defensive line was at the center of the championship run, helping the Crimson rank first in the nation in scoring defense (12.3 points allowed per game) and fourth in rushing defense (86.8 yards allowed per game). Zack Hodges was named the co-recipient of the Asa S. Bushnell Cup, as Ivy Co-Defensive Player of the Year, and was one of three defensive linemen to be named to the All-Ivy team.

Donovan, a native of Stoughton, Massachusetts, was previously a defensive quality control assistant at Delaware for the 2013 season, helping the Blue Hens finish with a 7-5 overall mark. While at Delaware, Donovan oversaw film breakdown and organizing official recruiting visits.

A 2011 graduate from Bentley with a degree in corporate finance and accounting, he earned his master's degree in taxation from Bentley later that year. He began his coaching career at Stoughton High School, serving as defensive line and wide receivers coach in 2009. He then worked with the wide receivers as a student coach at Bentley in 2010.

LOGAN JOHNSON

Assistant Coach
Defensive Line

Logan Johnson joined the Harvard football staff as an assistant coach in March 2015 and begins his second season as a defensive line coach in 2016.

The defensive line helped the Crimson to its 17th Ivy title in 2015 by allowing just 13.0 points per game. Defensive end James Duberg was named All-Ivy second team after registering 16 tackles and four quarterback hurries.

He recruits much of the western part of the country, including Alaska, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

Johnson spent 2014 as a defensive line coach at Bentley after working as a special teams quality control coach at Coastal Carolina in 2013. His duties with the Chanticleers also included breaking down film and creating individual weekly scouting reports for each special teams unit, organizing NFL scouting visits throughout the 2013 season and organizing special teams unit substitutions during games.

Johnson spent the previous two years as an assistant football coach at Fitchburg State, working with the running backs, linebackers and special teams.

A Fitchburg, Massachusetts native, Johnson received his bachelor of science in exercise and sports science in 2011 and earned his MBA from Fitchburg State in 2013. He played offensive and defensive line at Fitchburg State and earned first-team All-New England Football Conference honors as a senior in 2010.

MIKE MORRIS

Director of Football Operations

Michael Morris was added to the Harvard football staff as the director of football operations in April 2015 and begins his second season with the Crimson in 2016.

Morris came to Cambridge after spending last year as the assistant director of football operations at Dartmouth.

At Dartmouth, Morris was responsible for the organization and scheduling of unofficial visits and all game day recruiting responsibilities, as well as assisting in the coordination of official visits as it related to travel, preparing itineraries and executing logistics of the schedule. Morris was a liaison for the team to multiple departments at Dartmouth, and managed head coach Buddy Teevens' schedule.

Prior to his stay at Dartmouth, Morris was an athletic operations intern at Boston College, assisting in all aspects of game management and the hiring, training and scheduling of student event staff workers.

Morris served as a graduate assistant at Springfield in athletic administration, focusing on contest management for athletic events. He received his master's degree in education from Springfield in athletic administration in 2013 and bachelor's degree in communication from Boston College in 2011.

Morris married Jade Prickett in July 2016. The couple resides in Brighton, Massachusetts.

STRENGTH & CONDITIONING

JAMES FRAZIER

Director of Strength & Conditioning

James Frazier started his role as the Crimson's Director of Strength & Conditioning in February 2009.

Frazier oversees all strength & conditioning aspects for the nation's largest Division I athletic department with roughly 1,200 student-athletes.

The Palmer Dixon building hosts the Strength & Conditioning staff and boasts 24,000 square feet and the capability to accommodate large teams under one roof. The building is named for William Palmer Dixon '25, who was a two-time national squash champion, a former president of the Harvard Varsity Club and a longtime supporter of Harvard's athletics program.

Frazier was named one of Harvard's 2011 Dean's Distinction award winners, which honors outstanding Faculty of Arts & Sciences staff members whose hard work and skillful collaboration have made a lasting difference for the department.

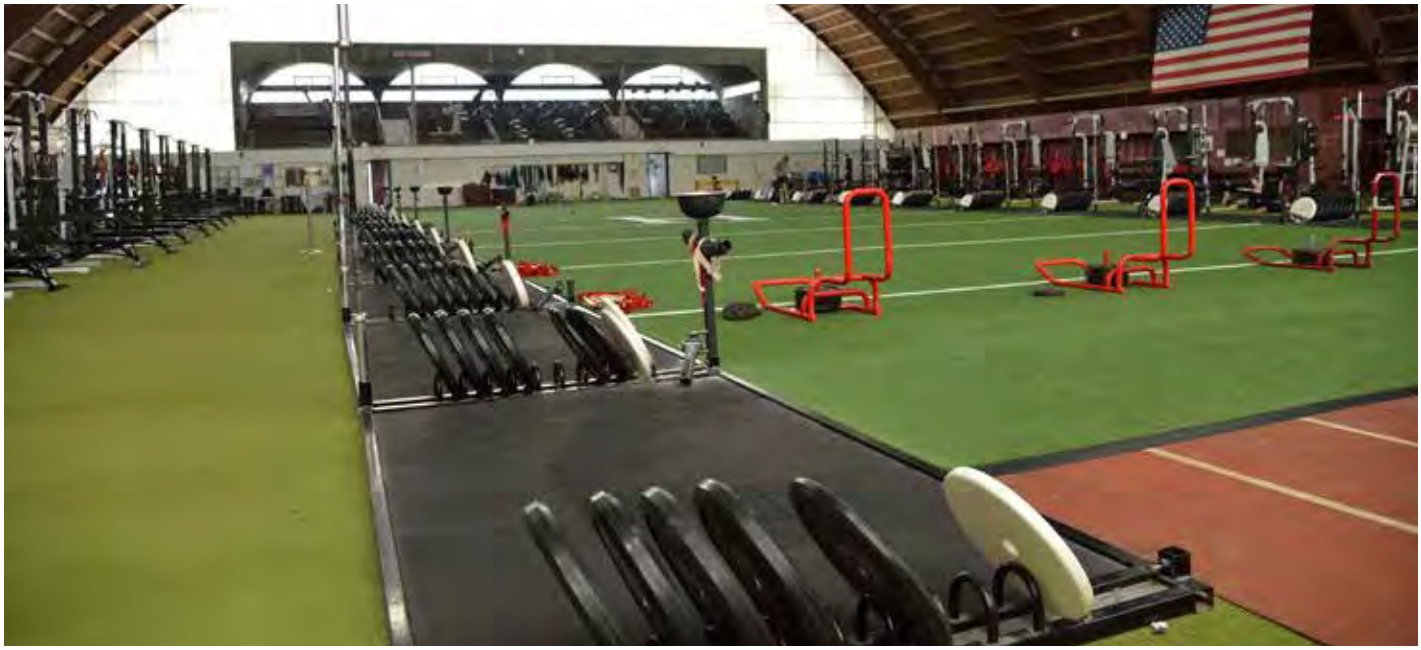

Frazier came to Harvard from the University of Iowa, where he served with the Hawkeyes' football program for two seasons while earning a master's degree in administration from Central Michigan University.

No stranger to the Ivy League, Frazier is a 2006 graduate of Brown University, where he earned a degree in business economics and human biology. Frazier was a four-year football letterman at Brown, where he served as team captain as a senior while helping his team to a 9-1 record. Frazier played defensive end as a junior, earning all-conference honors. He moved to linebacker as a senior and repeated as a first team all-conference selection.

Prior to his stint at Iowa, Frazier served as a strength and conditioning intern with the NBA's Chicago Bulls.

Frazier is a certified member of the Collegiate Strength and Conditioning Coaches Association.

Strength & Conditioning

The Harvard strength and conditioning department is committed to providing the highest level of athletic preparation for all varsity student-athletes. The primary goal is to maximize the potential of each individual student-athlete throughout his college career. Every student-athlete matters.

Each of Harvard's 42 varsity teams receives comprehensive support and effort from the strength and conditioning staff during its designated training times. The strength and conditioning staff works closely with each sport's head coach to implement the most effective year-round training for each team.

Through the guidance of strength coaches, student-athletes develop skills such as discipline, perseverance, goal-setting, teamwork, mental toughness and work ethic. These instill habits that will lead students to better and healthier lives.

The cornerstones of Harvard strength and conditioning are intensity and consistency.

Harvard runs a full-service program, focusing on strength, power, speed, agility, conditioning, flexibility, recovery, nutrition and injury prevention and management. Strength training emphasizes multi-joint, multi-plane movements such as power cleans, squats and upper-body presses. Rotational movements, balance and stability, unilateral exercises and core training are also priorities. All programs are specialized to match team goals at given times of the year. Speed, agility and conditioning are tailored to the needs of each sport. Flexibility, recovery, nutrition and injury prevention are incorporated into all team training programs.

Harvard strength and conditioning is committed to the idea of sound mind, sound body. The program honors the values of the university, and supports the principles of the Ivy League and the NCAA.

SPORTS MEDICINE

Brant BERKSTRESSER

Associate Director of Athletics
Head Athletic Trainer

Brant Berkstresser oversees the Harvard Sports Medicine Department which includes multiple team physicians, fifteen certified athletic trainers, sports dietician, chiropractor, radiologist technician and athletic training students. The department serves all 42 varsity sports. Berkstresser works directly with Harvard's football team. In addition, he is also a preceptor within Boston University, Bridgewater State University, Lasell College and Salem State University undergraduate athletic training programs.

Berkstresser began his tenure at Harvard in July 2008 as the Head Athletic Trainer. He was promoted to Assistant Director of Athletics/Head Athletic Trainer in July of 2009 and most recently promoted to Associate Director of Athletics/Head Athletic Trainer in October of 2013. During his time at Harvard, he has also received several awards from the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, which oversees the athletic department. He was granted the Impact Leadership Award in 2010 and 2011 which recognizes high-achieving employees who consistently exhibit superior performance with exceptional effectiveness. Most recently, he was a 2013 Dean's Distinction award winner, which recognizes a small number of FAS staff members for their outstanding citizenship and exceptional contributions in support of FAS's teaching and research mission.

Berkstresser has given national and international presentations for numerous health and safety professional organizations. He is a co-author of journal articles related to cardiology and orthopedic injury management.

He is currently assisting our team physicians on various studies evaluating the use of EKG screening as part of the pre-participation physical exam and the effects of aerobic and anaerobic training on cardiac function through The Harvard Athlete Initiative. In addition, he is involved with a concussion epidemiology study with the Ivy League and Big Ten Conferences, as well as a long-term longitudinal concussion study with the Harvard Medical School, which researches "the assessment of blood serum biomarkers, neurophysiological function, and balance control, after concussion in collegiate athletes."

He previously served as a member for both the Ivy League Ad Hoc Committee on Concussions and a Core Committee Member of the Big Ten/Ivy League Collaboration on Concussions.

At the NCAA level, Berkstresser currently serves on the Concussion Safety Protocol Committee. In addition, he most recently served on the Bylaw 17 Working Group, Health and Safety Cross Functional Team and was the Chair for the NCAA Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sport Committee.

Berkstresser came to Harvard after spending five years as Georgia Southern University's Head Athletic Trainer and Assistant Athletic Director for Sports Medicine. While at GSU, Berkstresser oversaw a staff of eleven certified athletic trainers (ATC) and in the care of roughly 400 student-athletes. Additionally he also served as a preceptor in their undergraduate athletic training program.

Prior to joining Georgia Southern, Berkstresser served as an assistant athletic trainer at the University of Maryland from 1997-2003, working as one of the Terrapins' football athletic trainer.

Berkstresser previously spent four years as assistant athletic trainer at Kansas State and was the Wildcat men's basketball program's athletic trainer while also assisting in the athletic training efforts during football season.

From 1991-93, he earned an appointment in KSU's graduate assistant program while working on requirements for a master's degree. During the summer of 1990, Berkstresser completed an internship with the New York Jets Football Club.

A native of State College, Pa., Berkstresser earned a Bachelor's Degree in Education with an emphasis in Athletic Training from West Virginia University in 1991 and then earned a Master's Degree in Kinesiology from Kansas State in 1993.

Dylan LOTHIAN

Athletic Trainer

Dylan Lothian joined the Athletic Department as a member of the sports medicine team in 2016, and has been assigned to football and women's water polo.

Lothian spent 2015 as the head athletic trainer at Hopkins High School. In addition, Lothian served an athletic trainer for the USTA Boys 16 and 18 National Championships in Kalamazoo, Michigan and provided medical coverage for football and soccer camps at Western Michigan University.

In 2012, Lothian assisted the general medical team as a student-volunteer at the IIHF Women's World Championships in Burlington, Vermont and the Vermont Lake Monster Single A professional baseball team, performing all exit physicals on the players.

Lothian has also worked closely with runners, delivering blood samples and providing wound care to those in the KeyBank Vermont City Marathon and a US Triathlon Qualifier, both in Burlington, Vermont in 2012.

A Franklin, Vermont native, Lothian received his bachelor of science in athletic training education from the University of Vermont in 2014 and earned his MS in athletic training from Western Michigan University in 2016.

Nicolas BENITEZ

Athletic Trainer

Nicolas Benitez joined the Athletic Department as a member of the sports medicine team in 2016, and has been assigned to football, men's and women's track & field, and men's and women's cross country.

In June 2015, Benitez served as a volunteer athletic trainer for the United States Olympic Committee. In Colorado, he competed a medical volunteer program assisting full time staff with the care and coverage of resident and visiting athletes across a variety of sports.

Benitez makes his return to Cambridge after serving as a graduate assistant athletic trainer for the Crimson for two years from 2012-14. With the Crimson, he assisted in the coordination of daily operations in Harvard's athletic training facilities, working specifically with the football team and independently coordinated care for the women's water polo team.

Benitez spent 2014 as an athletic trainer for Brown University, coordinating care for student-athletes, specifically working with men's and women's track & field, men's and women's cross country, and women's gymnastics teams, as well as assisting in pre-season and game medical coverage for football. At Brown, he played an instrumental role in mentoring and teaching staff and served as member of the eating disorders committee.

In 2013, Benitez served as medical director for the NCAA Women's Water Polo Championship, coordinating medical coverage for the eight-team championship tournament.

In 2011, Benitez was a member of the Chicago Bears Summer Camp medical team, assisting staff certified athletic trainers with prevention, care, and rehabilitation of athletic injuries.

Benitez received his bachelor of science in athletic training from the University of Michigan in 2012 and earned his MS in human physiology from Boston University in 2014.

Jordan KNIGHT

Athletic Trainer

Knight came to Harvard after spending the last three years at Auburn University. Knight was most recently a graduate assistant athletic trainer with the Tigers, where he worked closely with the football and baseball programs, as well as serving as the liaison between the athletic trainers and team physician. He coordinated bi-weekly orthopedic clinics for athletes seen by Dr. James Andrews. He also worked with the men's tennis, baseball, and cheerleading teams at Auburn.

A native of East Waterboro, Maine, Knight graduated with a master's degree from Auburn in 2014, and a bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Maine in 2012.

CRIMSON SPIRIT HARVARD CHEERLEADERS

The Harvard Cheerleading team is a group of women and men dedicated to promoting school spirit, specifically through support of the College's athletic teams. Harvard Cheerleading has its roots in the mid-nineteenth century and boasts such alumni as Franklin D. Roosevelt (1904) and Homer Peabody (1941).

Cheerleading is a club sport consisting of 16-20 members. The team cheers at all football games (home and away) as well as home men's and women's basketball games.

In addition to eliciting enthusiasm from the crowd, the cheerleaders are dedicated to improving and perfecting their sport and continue to do so through participation in competitions. The squad first entered the competition scene in 2008 competing in two local competitions and securing first place in the College co-ed division in both competitions - quite a feat for a squad with only a few members experienced in competitive cheerleading. In 2009, the squad extended its competition aspirations to the national stage, successfully securing a bid to the 2009 NCA College National Championships in Daytona, Florida for the first time. In our debut appearance at this national event, the team earned seventh place in the College Division I Co-ed category and earned a third place finish in the Challenge Cup. The team competed at nationals again in 2013, and in 2014, moved to All Girl Division I, where we competed a personal best, placing fourth in the Challenge Cup. Last season, we competed in the first ever Ivy League Cheerleading Championship, placing second. We look forward to continuing our journey for national recognition in the coming seasons.

Although competition has become a larger element of our program, we have not forgotten what college cheerleading is all about – leading and entertaining the fans. The squad has placed particular importance on finding new ways to increase crowd participation at sporting events. We can be seen performing alongside the band in the Friends and Family tailgate before football games as well as selling game face tattoos and other spirit items as a way to fundraise and interact with fans all the way up to game time. During the games, you can see us performing during time outs and game breaks, and don't miss all the pushups we do when the Crimson score touchdowns.

Beyond events specifically related to cheerleading, squad members also serve as ambassadors to the greater Boston community. Unmistakable in our uniforms and by our positive demeanor, we participate in such community endeavors as the Special Olympics, Relay for Life, the Hasty Pudding's Woman of the Year Parade, as well as various Alumni events and community service projects. As a result of all of our hard work both on and off the field, the cheerleaders are now eligible to receive a Minor "H" designation from the Harvard Varsity Club and the Harvard Athletic Department, which again shows just how hard these athletes work to make this experience incredible for Harvard's athletes and for you, our fans.

We are always looking for feedback from our fans and enjoy hearing what we can do to make your game day experience better. If you would like to contact us with your comments or to join our newsletter mailing list please email Coach Meghan Goodwin at cheer@hcs.harvard.edu.

CRIMSON SPIRIT HARVARD BAND

Hello and welcome from the Harvard University Band! We can't wait to play for you, and we hope you'll catch the contagious Harvardiana spirit. Since 1919, the Band has supported Harvard Athletics with our spectacular music and endless enthusiasm. As we keep the good times rolling towards our 100th year, join in the fun! Dance along to your favorite pop tune and sing ye olde traditional fight songs (lyrics in the program). If you like what you hear, stop by and say so! We work hard to sound our best, and we love hearing from the crowd.

The highlight of our program will be the Band's halftime show. You will watch the world's first university "scramble" band - who has time for that marching nonsense? – present a comic story with demonstrative field formations, painful puns, and props galore! All music is student-arranged and updated regularly to keep our repertoire fresh. Notable shows include the 1968 Playboy show, featured on the magazine's cover, the 1979 Lone Ranger show, complete with white-horse-riding drum major, and the 1994 playing of 1812 Overture (cannon shots!). More recently, Band shows have featured working Iron Man suits, snowball fights, and 15-foot-long dragons. What surprises will today's show hold?

As much as the Band likes to keep things new and exciting, we do have a series of traditions that you'll observe throughout today's game. Mostly, the Band likes to throw stuff. If you look our way in the fourth quarter, you'll see confetti and flowers flying through the air. The flowers hold a special place in the Band's heart. This tradition dates back to the 1950s when Alice Tondel, fondly known as "Mom," gave yellow chrysanthemums to the dates of the then all-male Harvard University Band. Though the Band integrated in 1970, Mom continued to watch over the Band until her death in 1993. Today, we throw flowers in her memory.

When you look over, you might also notice that some in our number have more grey hair than typically found on a 20-year-old head. Every week, the Band's ranks swell with returning alumni – "Crusties" – who play with us and teach us their archaic cheers. While our 100+ students listen to the Crusties tell about "Back when I was in the Band...," we know that once you're one of us, you never really leave.

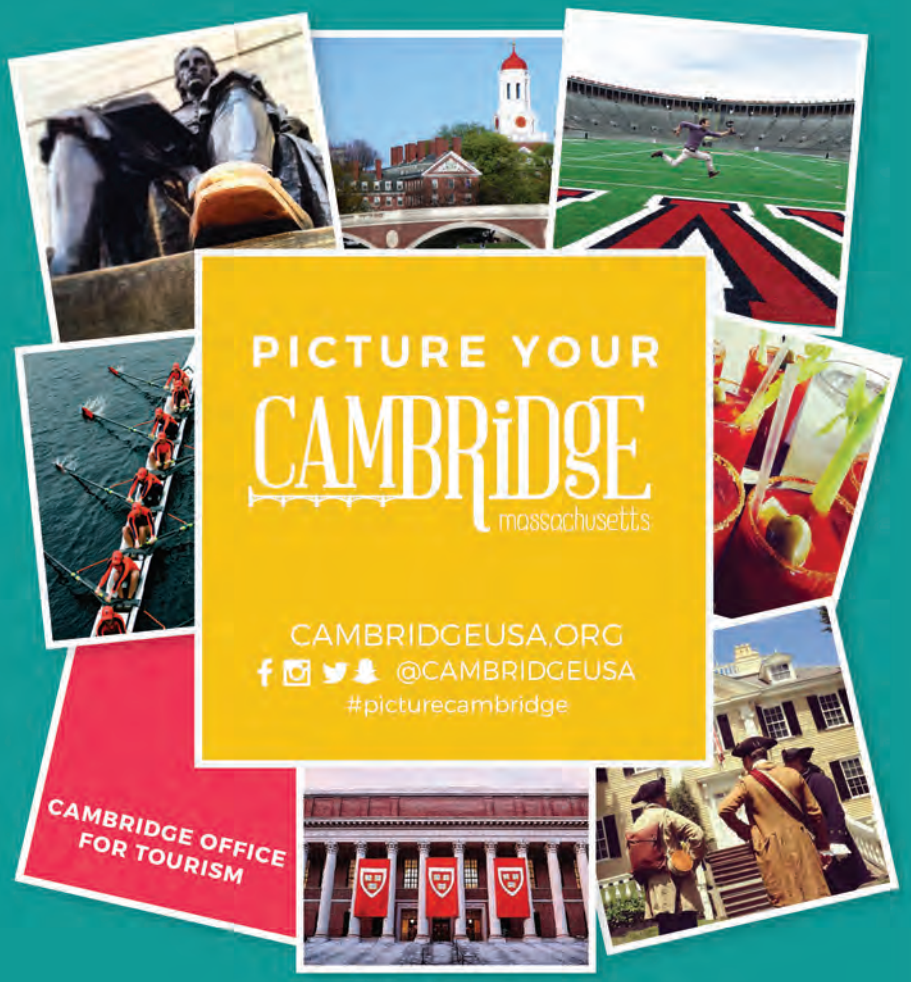

So thank you again for joining us for today's revelry, and be sure to come back soon!

HARVARD FIGHT SONGS AND ALMA MATER

Harvardiana

With Crimson in triumph flashing
'Mid the strains of victory,
Poor Eli's hopes we are dashing
Into blue obscurity.
Resistless our team sweeps goalward
With the fury of the blast;
We'll fight for the name of Harvard
'Til the last white line is passed.
Harvard! Harvard! Harvard! (2x)

Veritas

We say hooray! Hooray! Hooray!
There's never an Eli can teach us to play!
Harvard! Harvard! Harvard!
See how the bleachers blue turn pale with fright;
Send a cheer across to bleach 'em nice and white!
Oh, look at the way we smash and rip 'em through
While the blue bulldog howls "Boo-la, boo-la, boo!"
Let out your voices now so loud and hale,
'Tis a fun'ral ode we sing to Eli Yale.
Oh, give us a yell 'Hi! Hi!' for Harvard,
For the Crimson today!

Score

No hope for Eli,
Here's where we score!
Come twist the bulldog's tail;
We'll win once more,
For Harvard's back at New Haven;
Hark to their mournful wail.
It might be worse, boys, call up a hearse
For poor old yale!

Soldiers Field

O'er the stands of flaming Crimson
Harvard banners fly.
Cheer on cheer like volleyed thunder
Echo to the sky.
See the Crimson tide is turning,
Gaining more and more,
Then fight! fight! fight! for we win tonight
Old Harvard forevermore.

Gridiron King

Then hit the line for Harvard,
For Harvard wins today!
We will show the sons of Eli
That the Crimson still holds sway.
Sweep down the field again,
Victory or die!
And we'll give the grand old cheer boys,
When the Harvard team goes by.

Yo-Ho

Yo ho! The good ship Harvard
Is goalward bound again;
All the crew are at the halyards,
Here's a hail for Johnny Harvard's men!
Bright Crimson at the forepeak
Rides high above the foam.
While we sweep through the deep blue,
Harvard strikes home!

Onward Crimson

Onward Crimson, staunch defenders
Of the emblem we hold dear,
Marching dauntless through the gauntlets
While the Elis quake with fear!
Stay the course now, might Crimson,
For the glory and the pride!
Undefeated, foes retreated,
Harvard's vict'ry sanctified.

Fair Harvard

Fair Harvard! we join in thy jubilant throng,
And with blessings surrender thee o'er
By these festival rites, from the age that is past,
To the age that is waiting before.
O Relic and type of our ancestors' worth,
That hast long kept their memory warm,
First flow'r of their wilderness! Star of their night!
Calm rising through change and through storm.

RAD

R-A-D-C-L-I-F-F-E
Oh, Radcliffe, our alma mater
We sing your glories to the sun
We are your grateful daughters
Our voices raised as one
You gave us joys and wisdom
To set our goals and values true
Radcliffe, our alma mater
We pledge our loyalty to you.

Fight Fiercely, Harvard

Fight fiercely, Harvard!
Fight, fight, fight!
Demonstrate to them our skill.
Albeit they possess the might,
Nonetheless we have the will.
How we shall celebrate our victory?
We shall invite the whole team
Up for tea! How jolly!
Hurl that spheroid down the field
And fight! Fight! Fight!

Ten Thousand Men of Harvard

First Verse:
Illegitimum non carborundum;
Domine salvum fac.
Illegitimum non Carborundum;
Domine salvum fac.
Gaudeamus igitur!
Veritas non sequitur?
Illegitimum non carborundum -- ipso facto!

Fourth Verse:
Ten thousand men of Harvard want vict'ry today,
For they know that o'er old Eli
Fair Harvard holds sway.
So then we'll conquer old Eli's men,
And when the game ends, we'll sing again:
Ten thousand men of Harvard gained vict'ry today!

GAME NOTES

Senior cornerback Raishaun McGhee recorded a career-high 14 tackles and made an interception in the victory at Dartmouth last week.

IVY STANDINGS PICTURE

With three conference games remaining, Harvard sits in a first-place tie with Penn, as both teams own 4-0 Ivy records. Princeton stands third at 3-1. Harvard is off to its third-straight season with a 4-0 conference mark.

ANCIENT EIGHT ROAD VICTORIES

Harvard has rattled off 13-straight Ivy League road wins, a program and conference record.

13 – Harvard (2013-present)
12 - Harvard (1974-77)
12 – Penn (2002-05)
12 – Penn (2008-11)

D-FENCE

The Crimson ranks 14th and 18th in the FCS in rushing and scoring defense, respectively. The Crimson has allowed 105.9 yards rushing and 20.1 points per game.

IVY COACHING WINS

Tim Murphy ranks tied for second all-time in Ivy League wins.

Carm Cozza	Yale	135
Tim Murphy	Harvard	114
Al Bagnoli	Penn/Columbia	114
Bob Blackman	Dartmouth/Cornell	100
Joe Restic	Harvard	92

BETTER THAN AVERAGE

Harvard has clinched its 119th season at .500 or better in the program's 144-year history. It also marks the Crimson's 19th-straight year at .500 or better.

NON-CONFERENCE DOMINANCE

Harvard ripped off 16-straight wins over non-Ivy opponents from 2011-16. It marked the longest streak in Ivy League history.

16 – Harvard (2011-2016)
10 – Yale (1999-2002)
10 – Princeton (1993-96)
10 – Dartmouth (1994-97)
10 – Cornell (1970-74) – 1 tie

HARVARD OWNS NEW ENGLAND

Since 1994, the Crimson owns a record of 117-44 (.727) in games played in New England. Since the 2001 campaign, Harvard stands at 92-17 (.844), and the team is 38-4 since the start of 2012 (.905) in contests held in the region.

ROAD STREAK

The loss at Holy Cross Oct. 15 snapped a 16-consecutive road win streak, an Ivy League and program record (breaking the Crimson record set from 1974-77). The streak was the longest in the FCS. Dartmouth owns the next-longest road win streak in the Ivies, rattling off 14 in-a-row from 1995-97.

MEET THE VISITING TEAM COLUMBIA

Older than the nation itself, Columbia has grown from its beginnings in a schoolhouse in lower Manhattan to encompass two principal campuses – the historic, neoclassical campus in Morningside Heights and the modern Medical Center further uptown in Washington Heights – and become one of the top academic and research institutions in the world, conducting path-breaking research in medicine, science, the arts and the humanities.

Its location in upper Manhattan ensures Columbia a central place in the life of New York City. The global reach of its programs and the diversity and internationalism of its faculty, alumni and student bodies make Columbia a true institution of the world. Columbia College, the original undergraduate branch of the University, offers students a liberal arts education based on its core curriculum, combining flexibility and breadth of choice with a firm commitment to the liberal arts.

GAME NOTES

DOWN THE STRETCH INTO NOVEMBER

Since 2007, the Crimson owns a 26-4 mark (.867) in contests played during the month of November.

CRIMSON OVERTIME HISTORY

Harvard boasts the best overtime winning percentage among Ivy League schools (.750). Here is a look at each team's record in overtime:

Brown	5-7 (.417)
Columbia	3-3 (.500)
Cornell	5-6 (.455)
Dartmouth	4-6 (.400)
Harvard	6-2 (.750)
Penn	7-6 (.538)
Princeton	8-9 (.471)
Yale	6-3 (.667)
TOTAL	40-39 (.506)

LONELY AT THE TOP

Harvard is the only school in Division I Football Championship Subdivision that has registered three unbeaten, untied seasons since 1995. The Crimson was 9-0 in the 2001 season before going 10-0 in 2004 and 10-0 in 2014.

HARVARD IN THE NFL

The Crimson has seven former players on NFL active rosters and two more former players on practice squads.

HARVARD 2016 NFL ROSTERS

Active:

Cameron Brate - Tampa Bay Buccaneers (3rd Season)
Ben Braunecker - Chicago Bears (1st season)
Desmond Bryant - Cleveland Browns (8th Season)
Nick Easton - Minnesota Vikings (2nd Season)
Ryan Fitzpatrick – New York Jets (12th Season)
Kyle Juszczyk - Baltimore Ravens (4th Season)
Cole Toner - Arizona Cardinals (1st Season)

Practice Squad:

Anthony Fabiano - Cleveland Browns (1st season)
Adam Redmond – Indianapolis Colts (1st season)

FRIENDLY CONFINES

Harvard is 443-219-34 (.660) all-time in Harvard Stadium. The program's 400th home victory came in 2006 in a 33-23 win over Cornell in front of 13,287 fans.

GOING FOR FOUR

Harvard has won at least a share of the last three Ivy League titles and is seeking to become the first team to capture four consecutive Ancient Eight titles since Penn (1982-86). This marks the first time the Crimson has won three straight crowns.

The other schools to win three straight: Yale (1967-69), Dartmouth (1969-73), Yale (1979-81) and Penn (1982-86).

Sophomore wideout Adam Scott had a breakout game at Princeton Oct. 22, finishing with eight catches and 85 yards, including a 24-yard touchdown grab.

GAME NOTES

Senior Anthony Firkser leads the team with six touchdown receptions this fall.

TALENTED TANDEM

The duo of Justice Shelton-Mosley and Anthony Firkser has combined for 932 yards on 69 catches this season, each averaging over 75 yards per game. Both surpassed 100 yards receiving in the opening contest against URI, and Firkser neared the 150 mark against Georgetown. The tight end has six touchdowns to his credit through seven games.

BALL CONTROL

Since 2000, Harvard is 32-1 (.970) when it does not fumble and 32-0 when not committing a turnover.

HALF FULL

The Crimson is 94-4 (.959) when leading at halftime since the start of the 2003 season. Harvard last surrendered a halftime lead against Penn on Nov. 14, 2015 (led 25-21, lost 35-25).

VICTORIES IN THE GAME

Harvard head coach Tim Murphy stands at 17-5 (.773) in The Game. Murphy has passed Yale's Carm Cozza (1965-96) with the most wins by a head coach in The Game. Cozza was 16-15-1 against Harvard.

MAGIC NUMBERS

Harvard is 310-6-1 (.979) all-time when the Crimson scores 30 or more points.

RUN STOPPERS

Harvard has held 33 of its last 56 Ivy League foes under 100 yards rushing, dating back to the 2008 season.

CHAMPIONS ABOUND

Every four-year player recruited by Crimson head coach Tim Murphy has both graduated and been part of at least one Ivy League championship team. Murphy has led Harvard to Ivy League championships in 1997, 2001, 2004, 2007, 2008, 2011, 2013, 2014 and 2015.

THIRD AND GOT IT

The Crimson is converting 50 percent (58-of-116) of its third-down opportunities, a number that ranks sixth in the FCS. Harvard has also connected on .571 percent of its fourth-down tries (4-of-7).

WELCOME TO HISTORIC HARVARD STADIUM

When it was built, there were doubters who thought it would never withstand the weight of a large crowd, let alone the brutal cold of a New England winter.

But more than a century later it still stands proud, the "aristocrat of American sports amphitheaters" as one writer put it, and is celebrated for saving football as well as for its timeless charm and fabulous sightlines for fans.

Harvard Stadium turns 113 years old this fall, and the nation's oldest permanent concrete structure for intercollegiate athletics has never looked better. First opened Nov. 14, 1903, for a game against Dartmouth, the Stadium has since hosted nearly 700 Harvard football contests as well as hundreds of other athletic and non-athletic events, including Olympic and professional soccer, lacrosse, rock concerts, benefits and political rallies.

In March of 1903, it was announced that the Class of 1879, in honor of its 25th anniversary, would present the university with a stadium seating 40,000 spectators. The plans provided for a horseshoe-shaped structure of steel, similar to the stadium at Athens, with seats of stone and concrete for 27,000 persons. An additional 15,000 temporary seats were to be added whenever the demand made it necessary. Its total cost was $310,000.

It would be a much-needed addition to the Harvard athletics landscape. The football and baseball teams had played for several years at Soldiers Field, where fans jammed into decaying, unsafe wooden bleachers to cheer on the Crimson. Work on the Stadium began shortly after the completion of the 1903 baseball season, and the foundations were dug in early July. Even when the Stadium opened some four-and-a-half months later, it was far from a finished product. Much of the seating on its eastern side was of a temporary wood nature and capacity stood at just 20,000.

The Stadium marked the first use of reinforced concrete on a large scale, and skeptics abounded who were certain the building would not be safe. To allay those fears, the construction superintendent walked beneath the stands while spectators took their seats on opening day.

In those days, football was a running and kicking game. But as the sport became increasingly violent, some colleges were dropping it in favor of rugby, so in 1906 U.S. President Theodore Roosevelt 1880 stepped in to save the game. He organized the Intercollegiate Football Conference — a collection of 28 colleges and universities and the forerunner of the NCAA — and demanded it adopt rules changes to make the sport safer. Some suggested widening the field, but the permanent nature of the stands at Harvard Stadium made it impractical for the school to endorse this plan.

Concerned that eliminating football at Harvard might mean the end of the sport on a national level, the committee instead approved the forward pass, though it did its best to minimize its effect on the sport. In 1906, the penalty for an incomplete was for the offensive team to lose possession (the rule was "softened" in 1907 to a loss of 15 yards). Other rules changes were also implemented, including giving the offense just three downs instead of five to gain a first down and shortening games from 70 to 60 minutes with a mandatory 10-minute rest between halves. In hindsight, however, it was the adoption of the forward pass that curtailed the sport's violence and led to the surge in popularity that remains to this day.

The Stadium colonnade was added in 1910, and the press box was also built to accommodate growing media interest. When the press box burned down in 1981, it was rebuilt at a cost of $375,000, more than the price tag for the entire Stadium some 80 years earlier. The Stadium's seating area was refurbished two years later.

Today, Harvard Stadium remains one of the great venues in all of organized football. Sports fans from across the nation visit the Stadium to experience the rich tradition, and Harvard's student-athletes are quick to talk about the unique experience of playing in one of the sport's true treasures.

HARVARD STADIUM NOTES

THE FIRST & THE FINEST

Nestled in a spectacular setting next to the Charles River and with the Boston skyline on the horizon, Harvard Stadium ranks among the nation's finest college football facilities.

Built in 1903, it is also the nation's oldest stadium. Harvard Stadium is a horseshoe containing architectural elements of a Greek stadium and Roman circus and is considered an engineering marvel, as it was the world's first massive reinforced concrete structure and the first large permanent arena for American college athletics. With a seating capacity of 30,323, Harvard Stadium is praised for its outstanding sightlines for fans.

Harvard Stadium once accommodated as many as 57,166 spectators when steel stands were built in the north end zone. Those stands were removed in 1951.

IT CHANGED THE GAME

The close proximity of the stands to the field at the Stadium led to one of the most successful innovations in football history. In 1906, debate raged about the sport's roughness and several colleges had dropped football in favor of rugby. When the football rules committee met to discuss changes, Walter Camp proposed widening the field by 40 feet. However, that idea would require considerable alterations to the Stadium. Ultimately, the committee adopted the forward pass.

NATIONAL RECOGNITION

Harvard Stadium is recognized as a National Historic Landmark and is one of just three athletic arenas to be so designated. The Yale Bowl (built in 1914) and the Rose Bowl (built in 1922) are the other two.

A GIFT FROM THE CLASS OF 1879

The Stadium, a 25th-anniversary gift of the Class of 1879, was constructed in four-and-a-half months at the cost of just $310,000.

Prior to the Stadium's opening, Harvard played its home football games at a number of sites. Jarvis Field, where the Littauer Center now stands, was the setting for the Crimson's inaugural contest against McGill (1874) and its first intercollegiate game against Tufts (1875).

After several seasons of playing home games at the South End Grounds, Harvard returned to Cambridge in 1881 and played at Holmes Field, now the sight of Langdell Hall. Football, and most of the school's outdoor teams, moved to Soldiers Field in 1894.

ALL-TIME RECORD

Entering the 2016 season, Harvard has played 693 games in Harvard Stadium since Nov. 14, 1903 (an 11-0 loss to Dartmouth). The Crimson's all-time Stadium record is 440-219-34 (.659).

MORE THAN HARVARD FOOTBALL

Track and field, rugby, lacrosse, soccer, professional football and even ice hockey have also been played at Harvard Stadium, which is also home to the Crimson men's and women's lacrosse programs.

The then-American Football League Boston Patriots called Harvard Stadium home for two years from 1970-71.

The Stadium also hosted Olympic soccer competition in the summer of 1984 (Cameroon, Canada, Chile, France, Iraq, Norway and Qatar all competed), and was the site for the university's 350th anniversary celebration in 1986.

The U.S. track and field Olympic trials were held here in 1916 and 1920.

HISTORIC, YET MODERN

The last major renovation of the Stadium infrastructure took place in 1984, and recent structural testing confirms that Harvard Stadium will be as functional well into the 21st century as it was in the early 20th.

In recent years, the playing field was re-centered to improve the view for fans seated in the closed end and accommodate the 1998 construction of the Murr Center.

Perhaps the most dramatic change to Harvard Stadium took place as part of a 2006-07 upgrade to the facility that included replacing the natural grass surface with FieldTurf, the addition of lights to allow for nighttime use of the field and the installation of a removable dome-like "bubble," that allows for year-round use of the facility by all varsity teams as well as club and recreational groups.

In 2007, the Crimson hosted Brown in the first night game in program history at the Stadium, and 2008 saw the addition of a video board and updated public address system.

In the final game of the 2014 season, Harvard played host to ESPN's College GameDay, the preeminent national college football preview show. In preparation for the 2015 campaign, Harvard Stadium saw the installation of a new state-of-the-art FieldTurf surface.

GAMEDAY AT THE GAME

There was a buzz in the air on a cold November morning as students filed into the Dillon Quad with signs in their hands, ready to endure the chilly weather to cheer on their team and earn some nationally-televised face time. For the first time in program history, Harvard University hosted ESPN's College GameDay and members of the Harvard community lined in the early morning hours of November 22, 2014 to support the Crimson.

Visiting its second Ivy school and first since 2002, GameDay was eager to showcase all that Harvard and Yale have to offer – both on the field and in the classroom. The premier college football preview show showcased three Crimson feature stories. The first detailed how Norman Hayes '15 and his family bonded together to survive the tragedy of losing his sister Olivia. The second focused on the Crimson seniors' Last Lap, where each graduating member shares a moment with every man on the team after the final practice. The 'History of The Game' depicted the original rivalry, as ESPN's Tom Rinaldi described the battle as 'oppression vs. freedom; justice vs. tyranny; darkness vs. light; good vs. evil; Harvard vs. Yale.'

The show was watched by nearly two million viewers before Harvard clinched the outright Ivy League championship title in one of the most dramatic games in recent memory. It was a day that no fan will soon forget.

EDUCATION THROUGH ATHLETICS

Harvard values the lessons that have long been taught by athletic participation: the pursuit of excellence through personal development and teamwork, ethical and responsible behavior on the field and off, adherence to the spirit of rules as well as to their letter, leadership and strength of character, and sportsmanship – respect for one's opponents, acceptance of victory with humility, and acknowledgement of defeat with grace.

A BROAD CURRICULUM

Harvard maintains its strong commitment to the undergraduate with one of the broadest programs in existence. Students may concentrate in any of 48 fields. The majority of courses offered at Harvard have fewer than 20 students, and most departments feature a "tutorial" system of teaching and learning.

STUDENT LIFE

The house system, established in 1930, provides a small college atmosphere within the university. Each house has several faculty members and a staff of residential tutors associated with it, as well as dormitories, dining halls, libraries, intramural athletic teams and a number of social events. There are 12 residential houses, while a 13th unit, Dudley House, provides a parallel life for the students who live off-campus.

LIFE OUTSIDE THE CLASSROOM

Extracurricular opportunities at Harvard are virtually unlimited. There are more than 400 official student organizations at the College, and the number and nature of organizations change constantly as students' interests evolve.

College facilities include concert halls, theaters with large stages and others with more intimate surroundings, dance studios, rehearsal spaces and practice rooms. Creative students may enjoy the visual arts as a satisfying hobby or a serious academic pursuit.

FACULTY

Harvard's faculty is large, diverse, and by any measure, an accomplished group of women and men.

Each faculty member is both a noted teacher and scholar. Harvard students learn in classrooms and labs from professors who are leading authorities in their fields. In this academic community, all members of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, including the most prominent scholars, expect to teach undergraduates as well as graduate students.

Faculty members also instruct students outside the classroom. In addition to professors' weekly office hours, students often spend time with their professors before or after class. There are also many occasions when professors take meals in Harvard's residential dining halls, attend gatherings in the residences of House Masters, who are themselves senior faculty members, and participate in other programs and special events.

Over the course of a year, hundreds of students work closely with faculty members on their own or their professors' research. The opportunities for formal and informal relationships with Harvard faculty are plentiful and rewarding, resulting in lifelong friendships as well as professional collaborations that can enrich students' lives and careers.

2015-16 YEAR IN REVIEW

The women's volleyball earned its first trip to the NCAA tournament after capturing its second-consecutive Ivy title. The Crimson took the first set from eventual national champion Nebraska in the opening round.

Harvard is a beacon in the realm of collegiate athletics, and for the third-consecutive year, the Crimson captured double-digit Ivy League championships with 10. The Class of 2016 consistently rewrote the record books, collecting 45 All-America honors, 42 Ancient Eight titles, and six team and individual national championships in addition to receiving numerous all-conference and all-academic honors.

The success began at Harvard Stadium, where the football team posted a 9-1 overall record and 6-1 mark against conference opponents en route to a program-first third Ivy League championship in a row. Senior quarterback Scott Hosch was honored with the Asa. S. Bushnell Cup, and the program took down archrival Yale for the ninth-straight time, 38-19, in the 132nd playing of "The Game."

For the second-consecutive season the women's volleyball team ended the season atop the Ivy standings, and the team advanced to its first NCAA tournament in program history. Going 15-11 overall and 10-4 over the Ivy League slate, the Crimson took the first set from No. 4 Nebraska, 25-22, before falling in four sets to the eventual national champion.

The men's and women's soccer programs combined for 10 Ivy wins, as each team placed second in the conference table. The men's water polo team, meanwhile, eclipsed the 20-win threshold for the second-straight year, and was one of 16 Harvard teams to appear in the national rankings over the course of the year.

Reaching the zenith of their respective sports, the Crimson saw both a team and an individual win a national championship during the winter season. The women's squash team secured its second-consecutive national championship and fourth in the past five years after running the table with a perfect 13-0 record. Sophomore Alyssa Mehta and freshmen Kayley Leonard and Sabrina Sobhy picked up first team All-America nods to lead the program.

On the strip, meanwhile, junior Adrienne Jarocki fenced to her second-career NCAA championship in the saber. Nearly untouchable, Jarocki was the top seed entering the bracket stage with a plus-56 indicator, and she finished off her final two opponents with scores of 15-9 and 15-10 to earn the crown. The fencing teams combined for a quartet of All-America accolades and finished seventh overall at the event.

The Hobey Baker Award made its way to Harvard for the fourth time in program history, as men's hockey senior Jimmy Vesey lifted the trophy as the nation's most outstanding player. A two-time All-American, Vesey left Harvard as one of only five skaters in program history to tally 80 career goals. The men's hockey program celebrated its first Ivy League title since 2006 and advanced to the NCAA tournament for the second-consecutive season.

Elsewhere on the ice, senior Emerance Maschmeyer shattered the women's hockey program record for career saves with 2,548 stops, and in the spring was named the top goaltender at the IIHF World Championships. On the hardwood, the women's basketball team advanced to the WNIT after finishing third in the Ivy League, while the men's team set a program record for 3-pointers made (220) and advanced to the championship game at the Diamond Head Classic. The women's swimming and diving team picked up its 12th Ivy League championship with over 1,500 points, its third title in the last five years.

It was a banner season on the track for Harvard, as the women's team swept the indoor and outdoor Ivy League Championships – its fourth- and third-straight, respectively. School records fell in an astonishing 25 events, including 22 on the women's side, while the women's outdoor team became the first Ivy League program to earn a top-10 national ranking. First team All-America honors poured in, as sophomore Courtney Smith and junior Nikki Okwelogu earned the honor at the NCAA indoor championships, and Autumne Franklin, Gabrielle Thomas, Paige Kouba and Okwelogu garnered the accolade at the NCAA outdoor finals.

The men's and women's golf programs each raised the trophy as Ancient Eight champions, continuing one trend while bucking another. The women's title was its fifth in a row, which represents the longest-active streak at Harvard and longest in Ivy women's golf history, while the men's team secured its first championship since 1975.

Harvard softball advanced to the Ivy League championship series after posting a 16-4 mark against conference opponents, while the baseball team posted its most wins since 2010 (17). The women's lacrosse team advanced to the Ivy League tournament for the third-straight year, while the men's program reached the championship game after beating No. 2/2 Brown, 13-12, in the semifinals. Men's volleyball head coach Brian Baise notched his 100th-career victory as the Crimson went to its fifth-consecutive EIVA tournament.

The Crimson ended the season on the water, where a trio of teams placed in the top-six at the IRA National Championships. The men's varsity heavyweight crew took fifth overall, while its second vessel won the national title. The men's lightweight boat crossed the finish line for sixth place, while the women's lightweight crew medaled for the fifth year running, collecting the bronze. The men's heavies swept all three Harvard-Yale races run by a cumulative margin of over 70 seconds, as the 2V wrapped a perfect spring campaign.

VOLUNTEERS

We are grateful to the many dedicated alumni/ae and friends who served in a leadership capacity with our Friends groups or as a member of the Visiting Committee on Athletics, the Athletic Director's Council, or the Varsity Club's Elected Board of Directors during the 2015-16 academic year. Thank you to all our volunteers who went the distance to help our programs pursue excellence.

GIFT OPPORTUNITIES

FRIENDS ANNUAL GIVING

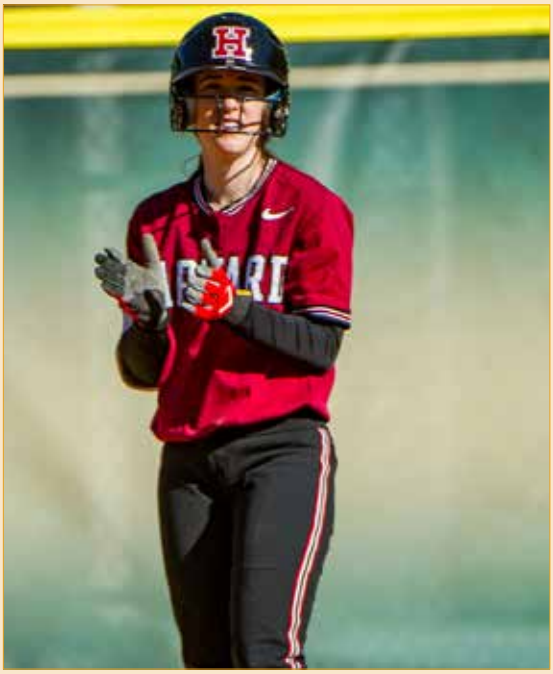

Donations to a Friends group make an immediate and direct impact on each team's annual budget. Gifts of any amount are encouraged. Donations of $5,000+ may be pledged and paid over five years. To contribute to a Friends group, give online through GoCrimson.com/support or mail a check to Friends of (Sport) at 65 North Harvard St., Boston, MA 02163.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR'S DISCRETIONARY ENDOWMENT FUNDS

A minimum gift of $100,000 will establish an Athletic Director's Discretionary Endowment Fund and help provide flexibility and long-term support for our programs.

ENDOWED ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT POSITIONS

A gift of $2 million will establish a named head coach endowment. In much the same way that an endowed chair supports a university professor, Harvard's 23 endowed athletic positions provide financial support for the Crimson's 42 varsity teams and free unrestricted funds to benefit the Department and the College as a whole.

All gifts to Harvard Athletics will receive Class, Reunion, and Campaign Credit

The Department of Harvard Athletics, the Friends groups and the Harvard Varsity Club encourage all alumni/ae to make an additional gift to the Harvard College Fund to support the overall experience for our student-athletes, which includes the College's commitment to financial aid.

For more information on giving to Athletics, please contact:

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR'S DISCRETIONARY ENDOWMENT FUNDS

The Athletic Department values the flexibility afforded by Athletic Director's Discretionary Funds. These endowments provide crucial support for personnel, recruiting, out-of-region travel, technology, facility enhancements and other programmatic needs that fall outside the scope of the Friends group annual budgets.

CONNECT WITH HARVARD ATHLETICS

FY16 DONOR HONOR ROLL

The financial support of alumni/ae, parents and friends is essential to Harvard Athletics. On behalf of all Harvard student-athletes and coaches, I would like to thank everyone who either donated or pledged $5,000 or more, or who previously established an endowment fund that generated current-use income this past fiscal year (July 1, 2015 to June 30, 2016) to the Department of Athletics, a Friends group, the Harvard Varsity Club or a club sport program. Your generosity helps ensure the vitality of our programs and enables us to uphold the traditions and ideals of Harvard Athletics.

- Bob Scalise, John D. Nichols '53 Family Director of Athletics

THIS IS HARVARD FOOTBALL

Tradition

Harvard boasts one of the oldest and most successful college football programs in America, with numerous national and Ivy League Championships in its history. Since helping inaugurate intercollegiate competition more than 150 years ago, Harvard has become synonymous with excellence in athletics and academics.

Success

Over the past 18 years, Harvard has won nine Ivy League championships (six outright) and had three undefeated seasons while posting the Football Championship Subdivision's highest winning percentage during the 2000's.

The Crimson has finished with at least seven wins in each of the last 15 years, and is the only program in Ivy League history to have a stretch of at least eight-straight seven-win seasons.

Recognition

Harvard has had at least one All-American in each of the last 17 years.

The Digits

Entering 2016, Harvard's record over the past ...

Five seasons: 45-5 (.900)
Six seasons: 52-8 (.867)
Seven seasons: 59-11 (.843)
Eight seasons: 68-12 (.850)
Nine seasons: 76-14 (.844)
10 seasons: 83-17 (.830)

Playing The Percentages

Since 2001, Harvard football has boasted the highest national winning percentage in the Football Championship Subdivision and second highest in all of Division I. Only Boise State has won at a greater clip than Tim Murphy's Crimson, while Ohio State, Oklahoma and LSU round out the top five. Since 2009, Harvard has posted 52 wins against just eight losses to carry an 86.6 percent winning percentage. That mark included a 22-game win streak from 2013-2015, tied for the third-longest run in program history.

Academics

Harvard is universally regarded as the top academic institution in America and also has the highest graduation rate (approximately 98 percent). Harvard student-athletes pursue a wide range of academic courses along with their peers. Over the past seven seasons, the football team graduated an award-winning opera singer, Noah Van Niel, the FCS ADA Division I Scholar-Athlete of the year, Andrew Berry, who graduated with both a bachelor and master's degree in just four years, and a Rhodes Scholar in Zar Zavala.

Athletic Program

Harvard fields the largest Division I athletic program in America with 42 Division I varsity sports. Sports Illustrated placed Harvard in the top 45 of "America's Best Division I Sports Colleges," the only Ivy League school to appear in the top 50.

Facilities

Harvard's football facilities are as thorough and impressive as any in the nation. Stately Harvard Stadium received new FieldTurf playing surface in 2015, as well as a state-of-the-art lighting system, a video board, sound system and a removable all-weather bubble. Harvard also boasts a pro-style football locker room and a strength and conditioning complex that is second to none in college football.

Harvard Stadium is one of only three college football venues recognized as a National Historic Landmark.

Diversity

Harvard students are regular kids, who come from all corners of the country. With its diverse student body and metropolitan environment, Black Enterprise ranks Harvard as one of the nation's top colleges and universities for African-Americans.

NFL

Over the past 16 years, Harvard has seen 28 players move on to professional careers. Harvard has had more players sign NFL contracts than any program in the Ivies in the past 16 years. Just recently Ryan Fitzpatrick '04 became one of the highest paid quarterbacks in the NFL and Matt Birk '98 was named NFL Man of the Year. This year, Cole Toner '16 was selected in the fifth round of the NFL Draft by the Arizona Cardinals.

Boston/Cambridge

Boston is an unrivaled "College Town" with more colleges and universities than any metro area. The Sporting News dubbed Boston the nation's best sports town in 2002, 2004, 2005 and 2007. It was ranked second in 2010, 2011 and third in 2009.

Offense

Harvard runs a system that has smashed numerous school and Ivy League records and annually ranks among the top-performing units in the nation. During the 2012 campaign, Harvard established the-then Ivy League record, averaging 39.4 points per game for the season. In 2015, Harvard tallied 36.4 points per game, tops in the Ivy League. Dating back to the start of the 2003 season, Harvard is 88-4 when leading at halftime.

Defense

Harvard employs an attack style of defense that helped the Crimson rank second in the nation last season, allowing just 13.0 points per game.

Tim Murphy

Coach Tim Murphy has demonstrated leadership and success, winning championships as head coach at Maine, Cincinnati, and, for the past 22 seasons, at Harvard. Every four-year player that Coach Murphy has recruited to Harvard has played on an Ivy championship team.

The Game

The Harvard-Yale Game stands as one of the top rivalries in all of college football with the excitement and pageantry to go with it. This is, by far, the biggest game with the largest crowd in the Ivy League. ESPN's College GameDay took notice in 2014, hosting the Emmy Award-winning preview show in front of Dillon Fieldhouse.

THINK OUTSIDE THE SQUARE

HARVARD'S EXPANDING CAMPUS IN ALLSTON

The RoboBee, developed in a Harvard robotics laboratory and about the size of a paper clip, could have applications in environmental monitoring, search-and-rescue operations, and crop pollination.

MAKING THE FUTURE. AROUND THE CORNER.

ON WESTERN AVENUE, JUST ONE BLOCK FROM where you sit today, Harvard is building a workshop to fuel the ideas of tomorrow. Part design center, part fabrication lab, Harvard's new Maker Space in the Science and Engineering Complex will serve as a vibrant hub of invention and imagination for the entire Harvard community.

It will be a place to explore new possibilities, design new products, and work across disciplines. Outfitted for woodworking, plastic casting, metal brazing and soldering, 3D printing, and more, the Maker Space will serve as a communal, state-of-the-art studio for builders—students and faculty—from every Harvard school. This unique space, the only one of its kind at Harvard, will sit within 600 feet of Harvard's three Innovation Labs—the i-lab, the Launch Lab, and the Life Lab—which together have incubated more than 650 student, faculty, and alumni ventures since 2012. When it opens its doors in 2020, the Maker Space will be a bright new light in Harvard's Allston innovation corridor.
