LAUREL VALLEY GOLF CLUB

Laurel Valley Golf Club in Ligonier, Pennsylvania is a world class golf course, ranked as one of the best clubs in America by Golf Digest, with a fascinating history. In the late 1950's, the titans of Pittsburgh industry hatched the then unique notion of an exclusive golf retreat in a secluded setting easily reachable by car from downtown Pittsburgh but far from the real world. The founders of Laurel Valley Golf Club were George Love, Ben Fairless, Dick Mellon, Fred Gwinner, George Wycroff and Arnold Palmer.

The "Laurel Valley six" acquired a long term lease from the Mellon family on a hidden tract of perfect parkland in Ligonier, PA and engaged Dick Wilson to design the course. Many say Laurel Valley Golf Club was his finest design. The result is a fantastic course with terrific routing that maintains a pleasant vibe throughout the round. Starting with the 1965 PGA, Laurel Valley Golf Club has hosted the Pennsylvania Open, the National 2-Ball (a Tour event better ball of partners won twice by Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer), the 1975 Ryder Cup, the 1989 US Senior Open, the Pennsylvania Classic and the Senior PGA, among other championships.
